Tunney Warns the Fat.
Asia's Ill Wind.
Brands and Chain Stores.
Here We Get Action.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—
(Copyright, 1928.)

MIDDLE-AGED fat men, take warning.

Theodore Roosevelt, "in the middle of the road of our life," which is Dante's way of saying past 50, trained with a prize fighter to reduce weight and increase health. He wore heavy sweaters, jogged mile after mile along country roads in hot weather.

He was warned in this column that such "health training" would weaken his heart, lower blood resistance.

He died a few weeks later.

Gene Tunney, a fine combination of brain and body, begins training tomorrow for a fight worth, to him, a million dollars.

He could run 25 miles the first day because of his youth and strength. But Tunney knows how gradually power and energy must be built up, even in youth.

AND THE FIRST DAY HE WILL WALK ONLY SEVEN MILES, AND SLOWLY.

Gradually he will increase the distance by one mile a day and VERY gradually increase the pace.

Having exercised in the morning, he will exercise no more that day.

Fat, middle-aged men planning to get thin and strong in a hurry may learn something from Tunney.

ASIA'S ill wind blows good news to cotton farms.

Japan starts war with China, 15,000 men are sent, then 20,000 more are ordered, with airplanes, fighting tanks and chemical equipment.

Japanese soldiers wear uniforms of khaki. Khaki is made of cotton. COTTON WENT UP $2 A BALE YESTERDAY.

CHINA doesn't object to civil war, but attack from the outside. North and South China, like big oxen, quarreling in a pasture, don't hurt each other much. They don't like the Japanese wolf to snap at their heels and jump at their throats. "Can't you stop this?" China asks the League of Nations. That league, like "Br'er Tarbaby," says nothing.

The League is a wonderful force until war starts.

RUSSIA, near neighbor, and once beaten by Japan, says war actually exists between Japan and China, and France and Britain, disregarding the League of Nations, approve of the Japanese attack.

Quite probably France and Britain have big interests in China and would view with approval Japanese plans to make the Chinese get back to business.

Ask yourself what effect powerful chain-store organizations will have on "branded" goods?

The chain store is powerful enough, in some cases, to ignore public demand for branded goods of established value.

Will increased and dominating advertising force chain stores to carry the brands advertised? Or will chain stores, in spite of advertising, regulate wholesale prices of branded goods to suit themselves?

Isn't it time for owners of important national brands to have their own chain stores?

THE importance of this question is emphasized by the announcement that a new nation-wide system of chain stores is planned and hopes to equal in its field United States Steel or General Motors.

IN THIS fair land we "get action."

In Canada a bootlegger, invited to name those to whom he sold liquor in the land of Stars and Stripes, said "I can't do that, your Lordship. If the United States boys thought I had turned 'squawker' they would take me for a ride and I would never come back."

Another "American," Sarazen, came in second. His blood is Italian.

Third place went to the British. How do they, and how do you, explain the fact that Scotch, Italian, Irish or British blood, transplanted on American soil, can go back across the ocean and beat Europe?

HUGO JUNKERS, builder of the Bremen, a real scientist and builder, says "the air is safer than railways." Railroad owners will smile at that NOW just as British stage coach owners smiled when the locomotive first appeared.

GENERAL ATTERBURY, of the Pennsylvania Railroad, and some others, plan to use airships in connection with railroad trains. That's better than smiling at a new idea.

Robertson Welcomes Power Probe Here

EXECUTIVE DEFENDS DEAL, DENIES SCHOOL BOOK PLOT TO SPREAD PROPAGANDA

THE Duquesne Light Company, accused before the Federal Trade Commission in connection with its purchase of the Coraopolis electric plant and also in connection with the alleged conspiracy of the "power trust" to use the public schools to promote its own selfish interests, was vigorously defended on both charges yesterday by its president, A. W. Robertson.

He said he would welcome a Federal inquiry into the Coraopolis transaction.

Confronted with a letter he had written to the public relations counsel of the public utilities companies, suggesting a method by which school teachers might be led to teach doctrines acceptable to the companies, Robertson maintained that there was nothing discreditable in his course, since he was only advocating the teaching of the truth, and without sinister motive.

Coraopolis Sale Upheld Despite Citizens' Opposition.

President Robertson's declaration that he welcomes an investigation by the Federal Trade Commission of the company's purchase of the Coraopolis light plant came yesterday when he was asked why his company had persisted in buying the plant after the people of Coraopolis had voted, six to one, against selling it.

The question has been suggested by H. C. A. Hofacker, borough solicitor. Hofacker has requested the Federal Trade Commission to inquire into the transaction but on Saturday had received no answer.

Hofacker's question made Robertson indignant. He resented the implication, he said, and courted investigation, since he declared there was nothing improper or secret in the deal.

Robertson professed to see nothing extraordinary in the action of the Coraopolis Council in selling the plant in face of the overwhelmingly adverse public opinion. He suggested as motives for their course the benefits that would come from private operation, as against municipal ownership, and the borough's need for money, which could be supplied by the sale of the plant.

The Duquesne Light Company wanted the plant, he said, to complete its system in that area. Before the purchase it already surrounded Coraopolis on all sides.

"We have made many improvements since we took over the plant," said Robertson, "and the people of Coraopolis are getting cheaper and better service than they had before. I don't know how the increase in taxes that has been complained of balances against the reduction in rates for electric service, but I have no doubt that when all things are considered the citizens of Coraopolis will be found to have benefited by the deal. If they want manufacturing plants, they can assure them of ample electric power, which they could not have done before."

Companies Tried to Insure Fair Views, President Says.

While insisting that the Duquesne Light Company had made no effort to persuade the public school authorities to use or refrain from using any particular textbook, President Robertson argued that there was nothing discreditable in the lessons that the public utilities associations have sought to have taught, because, he asserted, they were the truth.

"Probably a majority of the students in the high schools and colleges," he said, "are of the opinion that municipal ownership of the public utilities is a good thing for the people. I do not think it is, and I can see nothing wrong in teaching, or causing to be inserted in the textbooks, that it is at least a debatable proposition, with a great deal to be said against it. I will not undertake to defend everything that the public utilities associations have done in their efforts to influence public opinion; but I do say there has been no sinister or vicious motive behind it."

LETTER CITED

Robertson was asked if he cared to comment on a letter written by him to J. S. Richardson, chief public relations counsel for the utilities companies, which was introduced in evidence in the Federal Trade Commission's investigation of the power trust and read into the Congressional Record by Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska. In this letter Robertson said:

"The thought occurs to me that the reason why so many educators are more or less hostile to big business in many cases is due to the fact that they themselves are not successful in a business way. There ought to be some way in which educators could be better paid. It would help to cure at least some of their mental bias."

SEES EDUCATORS "SOURED"

Robertson's only comment was that he hoped what he said in the letter would not be construed as necessarily having a bearing on his attitude towards school salaries in Pittsburgh. He said he was a member of a committee on teachers' wages and that, while he might think that educators as a class were underpaid, it did not inevitably follow that he thought Pitts-

Farmers Turn Gun On Standard Oil Plane

ST. LOUIS, May 12.—(AP.)—The big Standard Oil Company trimotored monoplane "Standolind" was fired upon yesterday afternoon as it passed over the farm district south of Gumbo, St. Louis county, it was learned today.

Rodney S. Lamont and James L. Phelps, the pilots, told Lambert-St. Louis Field fliers they were flying at an altitude of about 500 feet, en route from Springfield, Mo., when they felt a bullet strike the wing and saw a man on the ground firing at them with a rifle.

Pilots operating out of Lambert-St. Louis Field have encountered opposition from Missouri River bottom farmers who object to airplanes flying over their farms, contending they frighten the live stock. One man, who declined to give his name, called the field on the telephone last week and said he would fire on the next plane that passed over.

KING'S BAY, Spitzbergen (By radio from San Paolo Station), May 11.—(Delayed).—We have re-entered our hangar at King's Bay after an unsuccessful attmept to reach Nicholas II Island.

The Italia entered the hangar at 4:10 this afternoon. It was humanly impossible, I think, to do otherwise. We had to return.

During nearly eight hours of adventurous flying, the Italia tried all the air roads of the Arctic in quest of one along which a fight against the elements might offer some probability of success.

We left at 5:45 this morning with a much reduced crew. Even the reserve of fuel on board had been reduced considerably owing to the sudden rise in temperature from 12 degrees centigrade below zero yesterday to five this morning and to zero (freezing) this afternoon.

EAGER TO START AGAIN

We are all quite well and extremely eager to start again as soon as possible. After the eight-hour ordeal, all the men on board, including the landsmen, those having no previous experience in air hardships, are very fit and cheerful and show no signs of weariness. I am proud of them.

Our journey of today can be described very briefly. After leaving King's Bay in comparatively fine weather we followed the northwest coast of Spitzbergen, making the

Hoover Closest to Ideal, Mellon Tells Delegates

PHILADELPHIA, May 12.

ANDREW W. MELLON, Secretary of the Treasury, told Pennsylvania's delegation to the Republican National Convention here this afternoon:

HERBERT HOOVER

A. W. MELLON

"The man selected by the Republican convention as the nominee of our party will in all human probability be the next President of the United States. At Kansas City, therefore, we will not merely be nominating a candidate, but selecting a President.

"Under the leadership of President Coolidge, the record of the Republican party has been such as to entitle it to the confidence of the nation.

"It enjoys that confidence. The people unquestionably will give us a new grant of power if they are satisfied that the policies, principles and wise administrative practices which have given economy and efficiency in government and brought prosperity and contentment to the people, are to be continued.

"Our platform must furnish a definite pledge that they will. But more important than the platform is the nominee. His views, character and record must be such as to furnish a guarantee that Republican principles will be upheld, that no backward steps will be taken and that the policies so successfully inaugurated and followed by our great President will be carried forward.

"We hear much talk of the various candidates and of their policies. Among them all Mr. Hoover seems to come closest to the standard that we set for this high office.

"Between now and the convention, however, I recommend that we hold ourselves unpledged and uncommitted to any particular candidate so that when we meet in caucus in Kansas City before the convention, we will have the fullest liberty of choice to do as is best for Pennsylvania and the nation."

CLOSEST TO STANDARD FOR OFFICE, HE DECLARES

Delegates Asked to Go to Convention Unpledged by Treasury Secretary.

Sees Another Term for G. O. P. if Coolidge Principles Are Retained.

By WILLIAM I. GRUNDISH
Staff Correspondent.

PHILADELPHIA, May 12.—Unless the situation changes before the Republican convention in Kansas City, Herbert Hoover is the choice of Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon for President.

That is the only inference that can be drawn from an address made this afternoon by Mellon after he had been elected to head the State's delegation of 79 members to that convention.

At the same time the secretary tempered his statement by urging that the delegation go to Kansas City unpledged. This will be the case, with the exception of three members pledged to Hoover and one pledged to Calvin Coolidge.

The Republican platform must contain, Mellon said, a definite pledge "that the policies, principles, and wise administrative practices which have given economy and efficiency in government and brought prosperity and contentment to the people, are to be continued."

HOOVER CLOSEST

Here is his statement concerning the Presidential situation:

"We hear much talk of the various candidates and of their policies. Among them all, Mr. Hoover seems to come closest to the standard that we set for this high office. Between now and the convention, however, I recommend that we hold ourselves unpledged and uncommitted to any particular candidate, so that when we meet in caucus in Kansas City before the convention we will have the fullest liberty of choice to do as is best for Pennsylvania and the nation."

The people of the United States, Mr. Mellon told the delegates, will "unquestionably" give the party another term if they are satisfied that the principles and policies of Calvin Coolidge are to be continued. This confirmed what are reported to be private conversations with Mr. Mellon in which he is quoted as having said that Hoover can beat Gov. Alfred E. Smith, of New York.

The shadow of the Smith candidacy hovered like a sword over the meeting today. This shadow was not apparent at the meeting of the Republican State Committee this morning, when W. L. Mellon, of Pittsburgh stepped gracefully from the chairmanship and, through his influence, had the place given by unanimous vote to Auditor General Edward Martin, veteran of the World War and Philippine campaign and one of his most trusted lieutenants. Nor was it apparent at the harmonious meeting of the delegates this afternoon, which was featured only by Mr. Mellon's statement, which he read.

War Vets Ignored As State Prepares to Dedicate Shafts

Two hundred members—officers and enlisted men—of the Pennsylvania National Guard will report Monday in Philadelphia, preparatory to sailing Saturday for France to dedicate Pennsylvania's three memorials to its sons and daughters who served in the World War.

Not one unit that served in the war is represented in the delegation, whose expenses are paid by the Pennsylvania Battle Monuments Commission, which erected the memorials—and that fact, becoming known Saturday, has occasioned annoyance, bordering on something stronger, among various veterans' organizations.

TWENTY-EIGHTH "INVITED"

REPUBLICANS WIN TAX FIGHT

WASHINGTON, May 12.—(AP.)—Senate Republicans held the main plank of their $200,000,000 tax reduction scheme in the revenue bill today in obtaining a 12½ per cent corporation tax, but only after Democrats had upset their program earlier by voting into the bill a graduated scale of lower rates on corporations with small incomes, a cut involving $24,000,000.

The 12½ per cent corporation rate was put into the bill over the 11½ per cent figure approved by the House—by a vote of 40 to 34. The present corporation levy is 13½ per cent.

Senator Smoot of Utah, in charge of the Republican fight, announced he would ask for another roll call on the graduated scale of corporation rates.

State police mounted guard over the Glory Barn at McKeesport Saturday night to protect the Rev. John W. Sproul, evangelist, and his 8,000 or more followers from a repetition of the rock barrage which disrupted the services Friday night. Gangs of rowdies, the troopers were told, bombarded the Glory Barn with large rocks.

Mr. Sproul says he does not think there is anything personal in the attacks.

"It is only the work of rowdies and I don't think they have a thing in the world against me or my work here," he said.

The troopers were sent to McKeesport following receipt of a petition signed by several hundred mill workers who attend the Glory Barn meetings nightly. Corp. William Hanna is in charge of the detail which patrolled the district in automobiles while the meeting was in progress.

Keating, West Penn Vice President, Dies

Raymond B. Keating, vice president of the West Penn Company and affiliated companies, died late Saturday in the West Penn Hospital following a short illness. Mr. Keating, who was aged 48, had been associated with the West Penn interests since 1914 when he assumed the vice presidency of the West Penn system, the offices of which were then in New York.

In 1916 he came to Pittsburgh in connection with the refinancing of the West Penn interests. At the time of his death he was, besides being vice president of the West Penn company, vice president of the West Penn Electric Company, West Penn Railways Company, West Penn Power Company, the Allegheny-Pittsburgh Coal Company, Windsor Power House Company, and the Wheeling Traction Company and vice president and director of the Monongahela-West Penn Public Service Company and a director of the [illegible] Steel Company and other co[illegible]

PEOPLE PAYING TO ROB SELVES, PINCHOT SAYS

Cost of Influencing Schools To Favor Utilities Add to Consumers' Bills.

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—Propaganda and lobbying by the so-called power trust, revealed in the Federal Trade Commission investigation, are "an attempted threat to free institutions, in the same class with the stealing of votes," former Gov. Gifford Pinchot, of Pennsylvania, declared today.

In a letter to the Washington Times, a Hearst newspaper, Pinchot stated that "you and I and all other consumers under the electric monopoly are paying part of the cost of debauching the schools and distorting the news and deceiving the people every time we pay our electric bills."

His letter, in part, follows:

"The purpose of this unprecedent attack is to create in the young and old a bias against the effective control of the electric monopoly and against a reduction of the extortionate rates charged to small and moderate consumers of electric current.

TO HIDE TRUTH

"The method employed is to block with propaganda the different avenues by which young people and the public generally might learn the truth about the extortion, over-capitalization and monopolistic practices of the electric public utilities.

"Nothing and no one is neglected. Teachers in the schools are sweetened.

"The writing of text books on economics favorable to the utilities is procured and their publication under supposed neutral auspices is arranged.

"The adoption or rejection of text books is secured through school superintendents or other school authorities, as the interests of the utilities may dictate.

BIG SUBSIDIES PAID

"Subsidized writers, editors converted to safe views, canned news, canned editorials, sweetened news syndicates already punctuate the story, of which as yet but a small part has been told. Procured propaganda is sneaked into magazines, movies, radio books and even into government publications. Plans to reach clergymen are under consideration.

"Chambers of Commerce are influenced, associations of bankers enlisted, organizations of women heavily assisted, governors given money, members of important committees or conferences are put on secret payrolls, ex-governors secretly retained, ex-senators hired, ex-cabinet members are on salary, ex-congressmen paid under cover to appear before committees without disclosing their employers, university professors on secret pay oppose bills the electric interests oppose. Even a former ambassador takes money for writings printed under another name—and all this in addition to Samuel Insull's attempt to buy a United States Senator in Illinois, and other iniquities we know about already.

NATION-WIDE MOVE

This thing is nation-wide. In nearly every state in the union—in all but five—the electric interests, by their own testimony, are carefully organized to do what is above described. They have also a special national organization to stimulate the state organizations and assist them, and a lobby at Washington which alone has just spent $400,000 in little more than half a year."

No Vet Unit Envoys At French Dedication

Guard recruited to war strength by drafted men.

Neither was any member of the Eightieth Division Veterans' Association included in the delegation. A $25,000 fountain in the town of Nantillois, Meuse-Argonne district, is to be dedicated May 30 to the men of the Blue Ridge Division, who, although familiar with the village, did not capture it.

NO 79TH MEMORIAL

The town was taken by the Seventy-ninth Division, to whose service a monument was to have been erected at Montfaucon, two miles away. Owing to complications, that monument never has been erected, and the Seventy-ninth, which included Eastern Pennsylvania troops trained at Camp Meade, has no memorial to be dedicated. One may be erected later, it is said.

In fact, some members of the division—although not its Veterans' Association—laid claim to the Nantillois fountain when they learned of the situation.

The third monument to be dedicated is a collonade at Varennes where $150,000 was authorized for a memorial to all Pennsylvanians who served in the war.

A fifth memorial—to have been erected at Audenarde, Belgium, commemorating the Fifty-third Field Artillery Brigade of the Twenty-eighth Division, which served there—has not been built, so far as can be learned. It was to have cost $15,000.

FUND COMPLETED

The Monuments Commission of five men was appointed by Gov. William C. Sproul, authorized by Legislature, six years ago. A fund of $200,000 was to be obtained by receipts from the State Boxing Commission, which was to receive a fee from every boxing exhibition. It was said Saturday at the Boxing Commission's office that the entire appropriation had been paid the Monuments Commission.

The Eightieth Division's engineers, machine gun battalions and half its infantry, besides other units came from Pittsburgh and Western Pennsylvania. Its position was announced Saturday by George J. Kller, Distinguished Service Cross, who left a leg somewhere beyond Nantillois. Kller now is resident secretary of the Eightieth's Veterans' Association.

He said:

VETS RETICENT

"We learned of this dedication expedition through invitations sent our officers to attend the Nantillois dedication. We said nothing, fearing we might be misunderstood as envious, as jealous of other divisions or of the guard itself. We decided just to let it all go, except for asking Bernard Ragner, former Pittsburgher now in newspaper work in Paris, to go to Nantillois for the exercises.

"Today an officer of the Twenty-eighth's Veterans' Association told me their organization had had similar treatment.

"It will be 10 years Thursday since the Eightieth started sailing for France from Camp Lee. Naturally, we should have liked to have some one in this delegation.

"I do not know why our memorial was built at Nantillois instead of up the road at the Fermede Madeleine or around Cunel. However, we did lose a lot of men in Nantillois itself, but the Seventy-ninth took it.

KEPT IN DARK

"Our files show that when the commission was appointed it included five men, of whom I understand two represented the Guard, one the Seventy-ninth, one the American Legion and one from the Governor's staff.

"On learning this, our officers wrote the Governor, asking that Brig. Gen. Lloyd M. Brett be included. They were told all places had been filled.

"Our officers wrote once again. Since then we have known nothing of site selections or anything else connected with the memorials."

The news from Harrisburg which precipitated inquiry as to the personnel of the 200 members of the honor guard was that the guardsmen would report at the Philadelphia armory. There they will be drilled as a company by Maj. L. L. Deininger. One Hundred and Eleventh infantry, in the week preceding their sailing tourist class on the George Washington from Hoboken, May 19.

The Fismes bridge, replacing the wooden span erected in battle by the Twenty eighth's engineers, will be dedicated May 19, the two others next day. The expedition will take part in exercises at the tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Paris and will sail from Cherbourg June 7.

Twelve officers will accompany the enlisted men. The selection of the 200 was made from the guard, it was said at Harrisburg, on the basis of "faithful service, drill attendance, military bearing, attention to duty, knowledge of military courtesy, and character." How many are war veterans is not known.

EXTEND SCOPE OF RUM PROBE

The Federal grand jury liquor probe has spread to the South Side wards and some of the boroughs on the south side of the Monongahela River.

This became known Saturday afternoon when a score of prohibition agents began serving subpenas on 200 hotel men, saloonkeepers, proprietors of confectionery stores, owners of clubs and others, ordering them to appear before the grand jury.

While the majority of the summons were directed against persons in the South Side and West End, there were many served on persons in Carrick, Allentown, Beltzhoover, Castle Shannon and other districts on the Hill Top. Various days of this week were designated for the recipients of the subpenas to report before the grand jury.

While the probe was originally directed towards an alleged bootleg ring on the North Side, and persons believed to be closely associated with illicit liquor traffic, there were indications late last week that the investigation was being enlarged in its scope, but what new sections were involved were not definitely disclosed until Saturday when the latest bunch of subpenas was issued.

Among the persons receiving subpenas yesterday were many hotel and saloonkeepers, whose places have been raided and who have figured in liquor suits in the Federal District Court. Many reputable citizens have also been summoned, whom the government believes will be able to enlighten the grand jury as to ramifications of the liquor traffic on the south side of the river.

The grand jury recessed yesterday and will resume its deliberation tomorrow morning.

Mellon Not Tied To Hoover, Watson Says

WASHINGTON, May 12.—Secretary of the Treasury Mellon's statement on the candidacy of Secretary Herbert Hoover at the meeting of the Pennsylvania Republican State Committee in Philadelphia today reacted as a bomb shell in the ranks of Republican presidential aspirants here.

For the most part those who chose to comment on his declaration interpreted it as meaning the certain nomination of Mr. Hoover, if not on the first ballot, then early in the Kansas City convention.

In a formal statement, Senator James E. Watson of Indiana had the following to say:

"The significant phase of the Mellon statement is that he does not directly indorse the candidacy of Secretary Hoover. He makes the statement that the Secretary of Commerce measures up to the required standard more than any other candidate mentioned, but insisted that the delegation from Pennsylvania go to the convention with an open mind and without instructions."

In any event, coming at this time when Mr. Hoover's candidacy needed bolstering up from the defeat he suffered in Indiana this week at the hands of Senator Watson, the Mellon statement carries the greatest political significance. It should mean, as everyone construes it, that the commerce head can count on Pennsylvania's powerful block of 79 votes.

Senator William E. Borah of Idaho and Senator George Norris of Nebraska, two of the Republican presidential candidates who consented to comment, expressed the opinion that Mr. Hoover's nomination should now be assured. Neither has been regarded particularly as a Hoover adherent before.

A similar statement came forth from Senator George Moses of New Hampshire, one of the Hoover lieutenants, while former Representative James W. Good of Iowa, in charge of the Washington Hoover-for-President committee declared simply:

"The statement of Secretary Mellon in Pennsylvania favoring Secretary Hoover foreshadows the nomination of Mr. Hoover."

At the same time Mr. Good gave expression to a new claim of support Mr. Hoover would have in the convention, listing a total of 467 votes, which he said the commerce head would command. Pennsylvania's 79 were not included, but by adding them would give Hoover the nomination.

delphia, Pittsburgh and the "hard coal" regions.

Eight out of very 10 admitted the likelihood of trouble in the event Smith gets the Democratic nomination.

The meeting of the state committee was quiet, although hectic conferences had caused the leaders lack of sleep the night before. The results, all unanimous, follow:

State Chairman—Auditor General Edward Martin, Washington.

Vice Chairman—Mrs. Charles F. Stauffer, Lancaster.

Secretary—Charles Johnson, Montgomery.

Treasurer—Sheriff Thomas W. Cunningham, Philadelphia.

National Committee Members—General W. W. Atterbury, of the Pennsylvania Railroad, and Mrs. Worthington Scranton, Scranton.

It was known before the meeting that W. L. Mellon would like to retire as state chairman. Martin is his personal selection. The election of Johnson is a personal victory for Joseph R. Grundy, head of the Pennsylvania Manufacturers Association, as is the selection of Mrs. Stauffer. The new vice-chairman is not well known politically throughout the state but is a supporter of Congressman W. W. Griest, of Lancaster who, in turn, is allied with the Grundy faction.

VARE BACKS CUNNINGHAM

Cunningham was named treasurer through the insistance of Senator W. S. Vare of Philadelphia, in spite of the fact that the former has been indicted for refusing to tell the Senate investigating committee what he knows of expenditures in Pennsylvania's $3,000,000 primary campaign of 1926. Vare's first choice was George F. Holmes, but he switched to Cunningham last night through the insistence, apparently, of ward leaders here who thought the election would "vindicate" the sheriff. Atterbury, according to stories here, was first suggested by Vare and was slated after some opposition from Senator David A. Reed, Gov. John S. Fisher and Grundy.

The slating of Atterbury breaks the precedent established by Quay, which gave the senior senator from Pennsylvania the National Committee post. Reed, he informed friends today, did not want it and made no attempt to get it. Friends of Vare say he would like to have it himself, but realized he had no chance. Mrs. Stauffer succeeds as vice chairman Mrs. Scranton, who was named to the National Committee, succeeding Mrs. Barclay Warburton, Philadelphia, who did not seek re-election. Miss Nancy Highly, Montgomery, was named assistant secretary.

MELLON GETS OVATION

Secretary Mellon received an ovation at both meetings. So did Senator Reed, who declared vigorously against "Partnership With Europe in the League of Nations" and for "sanity in taxation and economy in expenditure" and demanded "a continuance of the commonsense patriotism that has distinguished the administration of President Coolidge."

Auditor General Martin, nominated by Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong of Allegheny, who also was greeted with considerable applause, declared against outside interference with the state's affairs, declaring that Pennsylvania pays more Federal taxes than 29 other states.

The time has come when Pennsylvanians must assert their rights he said amid applause, "outside interference must not be tolerated."

Believe Hoover "In" On Mellon Indorsement

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, May 12. SECRETARY OF TREASURY MELLON'S pro-Hoover statement at the Pennsylvania Republican caucus in Philadelphia today was regarded by Republican leaders here tonight as virtually assuring the nomination of Secretary of Commerce at the Kansas City convention.

They considered it an indorsement of Hoover, which will add Pennsylvania's 79 delegates to the bag of nearly 400 already instructed, pledged or promised to the secretary.

With Pennsylvania on his list, Hoover has to pick up less than 100 delegates to obtain the 545 votes necessary for the nomination.

Nobile's Own Story Of Arctic Flight

furthermost northwest island of Amsterdam. There we directed our course north to Cape Spitzbergen.

The weather continued fair with slight snowfalls and a light wind until, when we were passing over the north point of Verbegen, I received ominous meteorological reports announcing a heavy gale and very bad visibility further on. I had to consider then whether it might not be expedient to turn to advantage, if possible, this unpleasant though not unforeseen contretemps by altering our course from Nicholas II land and trying to reach the pole instead, or, as an alternative, make straight for Greenland and returning thence to Kings Bay by way of the North Pole.

These hopes, however, were also dashed when the next message was received. From it I learned that the visibility was even worse toward the Polar regions where a cyclone was raging.

ICE PELTS BLIMP

We were sailing meanwhile amid a violent storm which hammered our sides with unrelenting rage, pelting the windows of our gondola with solid lumps of ice. Moreover, the thick fog surrounded us while a contrary wind with a speed of nearly 40 kilometers an hour almost paralyzed us. It was a hard fight against heavy odds.

I thought for a moment of taking the big risk, nevertheless, and trying to reach Greenland, but I had to give up this idea as a dash to Greenland under such conditions might well have made it impossible, owing to probable damages to the airship, for us to return to our base at King's Bay.

All things considered, there was no alternative for us but to turn back. Such disappointments as this of today are, of course, all in our program and are indeed inevitable, the Italia expedition having as its object a series of geographical and scientific explorations which require favorable conditions as to weather and visibility.

We are not here to accomplish feats of aeronautical temerity. We have a task to accomplish and we mean to bring it to a successful issue. The Italia will soon resume its flight. I am only awaiting the next favorable moment to give once again the order to go.

We left King's Bay this morning. We were planning to go to Nicholas II Land, but here all depends on visibility, the wind, and general atmospheric conditions. We had a real field day before starting, a day of hard work devoted to putting the last touches to the traveling kit of the Italia.

We were heading towards Franz Josef Archipelago, and then for the best known part of Nicholas II Land, which lies to the extreme east of that territory.

Nicholas II Land was discovered by explorers coming to it from the east, who were prevented by ice from proceeding further. Therefore, only one end of Nicholas II Land has been mapped and nobody knows how far it may extend to the west.

LANDING PLANNED

The Italia intended to follow the coast line with the object of ascertaining if possible its complete configuration. It was, moreover, my hope to effect at least one landing. Three members of the crew would form the landing party if we are able to make such an experiment: Lieut. Zappi, of the Royal Italian Navy; Prof. Malmgren and Prof. Pontremoli.

It was expected that the landing party would be in a position to determine the western boundary of Nicholas II Land, making magnetic observations and taking soundings. The geological conformation of the land was also to be studied.

If conditions permitted we hoped to anchor the airship. Should this be found impossible the landing party would be secured against danger of the airship's suddenly drifting away, by means of specially constructed cables attached to their belts.

No less important than the geological, geographical and magnetic records of Nicholas II. land will be the results we intend to achieve by thorough exploration at the pole and the adjacent regions where there may exist other islands and lands yet unknown. To this end we planned to follow a direct route on our return to King's Bay, flying, as it were, as the crow flies, over a vast strip of entirely unexplored space where, however, it is presumed no land may be found.

ON TO UNKNOWN!

Summing up, we hoped to have explored, on our return to King's Bay, a large zone on which no human eyes have yet gazed. This first dash of the Italia was in fact most important of all from the geographical viewpoint and also the most difficult from the purely aeronautical viewpoint. It should also have given valuable results from the standpoint of the astronomer.

If it had not been found necessary to return on account of the weather we should have traveled by the time we returned to King's Bay about 3,600 kilometers but we had taken aboard both fuel and supplies for a journey of at least 7,000 kilometers (4,375 miles), lasting about 50 hours. One of the minor objects of the trip was to ascertain what truth there may be in the proclaimed existence of Gillis Land, which was reported to have been seen from Franz Josef Land by a previous expedition. The existence of Gillis Land appears to be, to say the least, problematical. We will try to solve this little problem

MINE LEADERS LEAVE FOR COAL QUIZ RENEWAL

Indiana Operator to Be First Witness Monday—End Hearings in Few Days.

Word came from Washington yesterday that the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee, after a recess of 10 days, would resume Monday its investigation of conditions in the soft coal industry.

Philip Murray, international vice president of the United Mine Workers, will drive to Washington today, accompanied by his wife, Oliver K. Eaton, Pittsburgh attorney for the union, will go tomorrow. The organization stands in readiness to produce in Washington this week, if their oral testimony is desired, a number of members who have made affidavits concerning alleged brutal conduct by the coal and iron police. But it is probable that the affidavits will merely be filed for the record.

PENNA IS FIRST CALLED

Phil Penna, of Terre Haute, Ind., secretary of the Indiana Operators' Association, is expected to be the first witness tomorrow. He is a union operator, but the officials of the union do not know whether his testimony will be friendly to their side or not. The Johnson resolution, under authority of which the inquiry is being made, calls for investigation of conditions in Pennsylvania, Ohio and West Virginia only; but the Indiana operators expressed a desire to be heard also, and Senator James E. Watson, chairman of the committee, who comes from Indiana himself, decided to let Penna be heard.

Senator Harry B. Hawes, of Missouri, has requested the situation in Illinois also be presented, but it is doubtful that his request will be granted.

Frank E. Taplin, of Cleveland, principal stockholder of the Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Corporation, is scheduled to follow Penna on the stand. There is curiosity as to what his testimony will be, because Horace F. Baker, president of Pittsburgh Terminal, covered its affairs fairly comprehensively in a statement filed with the committee.

MELLONS IN BIG N. Y. GAS DEAL

By JAMES P. MAHER.

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, May 12.—Directors of the Consolidated Gas Company of New York meet next Tuesday to ratify the plan to take over the Brooklyn Edison Company as the first step in the gigantic $1,000,000,000 consolidation of all the Greater New York lighting and power companies. This was reported in the most reliable banking circles.

As soon as the Consolidated Gas directors formally vote to make an offer for control of Brooklyn Edison the directors of the latter company will hold a meeting. Both boards, it is expected, will recommend approval of the merger and call a special meeting of stockholders for such action.

Upon acquisition of control of the Brooklyn Edison the Consolidated Gas Company will have total assets of more than $350,000,000.

Shortly after Consolidated Gas and Brooklyn Edison are grouped, it is understood an offer will be made for control of Brooklyn Union Gas, which furnishes gas service to Brooklyn and certain sections of Long Island.

Mellon interests of Pittsburgh have been big buyers of Brooklyn Union Gas stock for many months and are generally believed to have obtained control. They also are said to hold a fairly large block of Consolidated Gas stock.

The General Electric group has an interest in the planned consolidation, also, as when all the local companies are combined it will bring even closer together the dominating power and light companies of New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Connecticut and other eastern states.

CHINESE ASKED TO GOVERN CITY

LONDON, May 12.—(AP.)—Having cleared Tsinan of Nationalist troops, the Japanese consul and commanders in the Tsinan zone have asked the Chinese Chamber of Commerce there to take complete control of the administration of the city, including the telegraph, telephone, lighting and police service.

Advices received at Tsingtao from Tsinan say that the Japanese propose to control banditry by plain clothes guards at various strategic places. The large shops at Tsinan are still closed, but the smaller ones, as well as the restaurants, are now running as usual.

Meanwhile the Southern forces, skirting the Tsinan zone, are continuing northward and reports from Tsinan say that cavalry regiments attached to the army of Feng Yu-Hsiang, who is now allied with the Nationalists, have occupied Tehchow on the Shantung-Chihli border in continuation of a drive on Pekin.

Richardson's reply to Robertson's suggestion, as disclosed in the Washington investigation, was as follows:

"If the utility companies could in a discreet way foster a movement for adequate remuneration of teaching personnel in our public schools, I am convinced good results would come. The reason some of these superintendents approve the use of so-called government and municipal ownership propaganda in textbooks is the usual reason for indorsing such stuff. They are sour. Their outlook is distorted and their judgment warped through personal disappointment."

REVEALS TRUST PLANS TO WARP PUBLIC OPINION

Norris Also Lays Before Senate Revelations in Trade Commission Probe.

By SENATOR THOMAS J. WALSH of Montana.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—The Hearst papers are again rendering a public service of a high order by calling attention to the sinister character, not to speak of the magnitude, of the effort to warp public opinion, and particularly the minds of our youth, with respect to public utility problems, as revealed in the investigation being conducted by the Federal Trade Commission under order of the Senate.

Some uprising consequent upon the introduction into the schools of Connecticut of books and pamphlets prepared by the paid agents of the utilities companies is in evidence.

Can it be that the apathy elsewhere shown is due to the failure of the press generally to acquaint the public with what is going on?

REPORT GIVEN SENATE

WASHINGTON, May 12.—Aroused at the revelations of power lobby activities striking into America's public school system, Senator Thomas J. Walsh, Democrat, of Montana, and Senator George W. Norris, Republican, of Nebraska, today read into the record voluminous reports by the Hearst newspapers of the Federal Trade Commission investigation.

Senator Walsh called attention of his fellow members to the reports of the investigation appearing in the Hearst papers. He also introduced into the record power lobby editorials.

"It would be fine if we had time to read all of this correspondence," declared Senator Norris as he read excerpts from the Hearst papers on the investigation. "This is all evidence given before the Federal Trade Commission."

Both Walsh and Norris introduced articles and letters regarding power interest propaganda in school text books.

Norris criticized the publication under Smithsonian Institution auspices of a pamphlet by Samuel S. Wyer, consulting engineer on the Canadian hydro-electric projects as "misinformation under the guise of scientific information."

NO LOCALITY ESCAPES

"This man was paid by the power trusts for his efforts," declared Norris. He called attention to the many states in which the power lobby has been at work.

"If we follow the evidence, we find that no locality in the whole United States has been missed by this great corporation.

"It starts with the children in the schools. It works under deceptive pretenses. It puts forth information by men secretly drawing pay from this great trust."

I should be glad to comply with your suggestion if I had something of a complimentary nature to say of Pittsburgh as a musical center. Unfortunately Pittsburgh has not been able to attain its place in that respect in proper proportion to its wealth and size, and it is, therefore, better for me to say nothing at all.

The recent opposition to symphony concerts on Sunday afternoons was significant as a demonstration that the real importance of music as a spiritual force has not yet been properly understood in your community. Pittsburgh should have a symphony orchestra properly maintained by its wealthy citizens with a subsidy of at least $150,000 a year. This would put it in line with Cleveland, Cincinnati, Minneapolis and Detroit, not to mention Chicago.

Churches and Lodges Will Honor 'Mother'

"Mother" will be the theme in pulpits and in lodge celebrations today in the twenty-second observance of "Mother's Day."

Special sermons, music and decorations have been arranged in practically all the churches of the city, and various fraternal and civic organizations will hold observances of the day.

Elks, Eagles, Moose and Hibernians have arranged for exercises, as has the One Hundred and Seventh Field Artillery Association. In some sections of the city, churches have united in Mothers' Day observance.

Michael O. Burns, past grand worthy president, will be the Mother's Day orator in Moose Temple. Division No. 1, Ancient Order of Hibernians, and Division No. 2, Ladies' Auxiliary, have selected County President James Kelly as the speaker at exercises on the South Side.

Hoover's Campaign To Date, $241,274

WASHINGTON, May 12.—(AP.)—Revising his figures on the basis of more complete information, James M. Good, former representative from Iowa and a leader of Herbert Hoover's presidential campaign, testified today before the Senate campaign funds committee that expenditures reported to date totaled $241,274.

This total, which compares with the $225,000 given yesterday, includes the approximately $40,000 which Good said had been spent in the Ohio primary campaign, but does not take into account money that may have been spent in northern California and in Florida, Maine, Missouri and New Hampshire.

Good promised to keep the committee advised on expenditures, saying that he would have to revise his figures upward before the end of the pre-convention campaign. When it was suggested that the total might be "$300,000 or more," he said he did not think it would go that high.

GOOD ARGUES

As was the case during his first appearance, Good alternately argued with and declaimed before the committee and again was warned by the investigators that they did not care to hear campaign speeches.

He emphatically denied that he is the directing manager of the Hoover campaign, contending that there was no directing head [illegible] the Washington organization.

Reiterating that the expenditures on behalf of the Hoover candidacy had been "modest," Good declared that it was the first time "in the history of the republic" that a candidate or his manager had appeared before a congressional committee and disclosed all expenditures by local committees over the country, insisting that the statement made by the campaign manager for Gov. Alfred E. Smith, leading candidate for the Democratic nomination, had not contained this information.

CITES EXPENDITURES

In this connection he referred to past expenditures on behalf of those seeking a presidential nomination, mentioning especially the evidence before the Senate committee in 1920 showing that $414,987 had been spent on behalf of Frank O. Lowden, now runner-up to Hoover in the present fight for Republican delegates, and $1,773,339 on behalf of Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood, who was the chief contestant with Lowden in the 1920 pre-convention campaign.

During the hearing today, Senator Steiwar (Rep.), of Oregon, chairman of the committee, announced that Lowden would appear here Monday to make his statement. Afterwards, the investigators will call in Senator James E. Watson, who won the Presidential primary in Indiana last Tuesday against Hoover, and one of the two remaining candidates for presidential nomination honors yet to be heard.

Replying to Senator Barkley (Dem.), of Kentucky, Good said he assumed that it was the attitude of the secretary that wherever possible he would seek second choice delegates, but he would not concede that wherever agreements could not be obtained with the "favorite sons" for second choice support, Hoover had entered the primary contest in their states.

Asked why Hoover had not entered the contest in Pennsylvania, Good explained that Secretary Mellon lived in that state and that "it perhaps would have been an act of impropriety" for Hoover to enter there. He added that the relations between Mellon and Hoover always had been cordial.

"You thought that on account of those relationships things would take care of themselves in Pennsylvania?" inquired Senator Barkley.

"Yes, there is a good sentiment for Secretary Hoover in Pennsylvania," Good replied.

"Well, Secretary Kellogg lives in Minnesota," Senator Barkley said, "but I notice Mr. Hoover was entered in that state."

"The movement there was initiated by the local organization," the witness explained.

Denying reports that the great farming section of the Northwest is against Hoover, Good said he knew something about that country and knew that Hoover was strong there.

Rail Officials Meet Here Monday to Fix Coal Rates

Date of Lake Tariff Changes to Be Decided

A good omen for Pittsburgh through increased prosperity in local coal fields and a chance for business to regulate its own affairs without interference, is seen by Pittsburgh business men in the voluntary action of the northern railroads in reducing rates on lake cargo coal from this territory.

That Pittsburgh should no longer "be made the victim of short-sighted and selfish southern politicians and business interests" was the expression made Saturday in behalf of the whole Pittsburgh community. When railroad rate officials meet here Monday to prepare the tariff schedules according to the 20-cent reduction, they will hear repeated the hope that the example of railroad executives in the present case will be followed in future dealings with the Pittsburgh district. At the rate meeting the definite date will be fixed at which the reduction becomes effective.

IS GOOD EXAMPLE

Speaking for the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce, James Francis Burke, its general counsel, issued the following statement:

"The railroad presidents' action is the most important and most logical factor in this long controversy. It is a matter that primarily and eventually belongs to the domain of business and never should have required government interference.

"I hope the example the railroad executives have set in this decision will be followed in their future dealings with the Pittsburgh industrial district. What Providence and man's enterprise have done for Western Pennsylvania should not be destroyed by government intervention, nor should we be made the victims of short-sighted and selfish southern politicians and business interests. In a word, it is a great victory founded on fundamental principles of sound business, and at last gives us the justice we have been demanding and are entitled to."

Pointing out the resumption of activity in the mining industry as relieving depression on business generally, T. P. Gaylord, president of the Chamber of Commerce, added:

"The Chamber of Commerce is gratified by the success of its efforts to secure relief for the local coal industry, in which it was effectively aided by City Council."

SOME OF NEW RATES

Some of the new rates per ton agreed upon at conferences in Washington and Cleveland are: From Fairmont district (Pennsylvania), $1.61; Connellsville district (Pennsylvania), $1.36; Pittsburgh district, $1.36; Ohio district, $1.23.

The reductions amount to 20 cents in each case, except in the Fairmont district, where a 10 cent cut was agreed upon. The new prices restore the differential on Pittsburgh and Ohio coal to 45 and 46 cents, respectively, which is the basis approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission several months ago.

The principal roads involved are the Pennsylvania, New York Central, Baltimore & Ohio, and the Wheeling & Lake Erie. Other roads are expected to follow the reduced scale.

The reduction by the Northern roads is a voluntary one. It follows the action of Southern railroads who took a voluntary cut of 20 cents in the rates on Southern coal several months ago, bringing the differential to 25-28 cents, where it had been for four years.

When the Interstate Commerce Commission attempted to intervene the Southern roads obtained an injunction. The latest action of the Northern roads, however, automatically brings the differential to the figures approved by the commission.

Return of Horse Renews Hope Of Smithies

HARRISBURG, Pa., May 12.—(AP.)—Eighty blacksmiths—representing an association of 500 members—met in convention here yesterday and were told that the horse population of the United States is increasing.

"Increased use of the saddle horse for outdoor exercise and absorption of the acetylene welding trade as a side line has given the average blacksmith at least 20 per cent more business," W. E. Murphy, of Philadelphia, secretary of the National Association of Master Horseshoers and Blacksmiths, informed the Pennsylvania association at the opening of the two-day meeting here.

Bomber Granted New Trial; Out on Bail

MERCER, Pa., May 12.—A prisoner in the county jail since April, 1927, Frank Capano, Farrell business man, has been released on $2,000 bail. He was tried and convicted of attempted arson in connection with the bombing of the home of Fred Fish, former Farrell burgess. He has been granted a new trial.

Girl Scouts in Annual Field Day

LUNCH—This is the most important event, to these girls, at the Girl Scouts' annual field day, held at Schenley Oval. It's lunch, as you can see for yourself. Miss Jeanne Christy was in charge.

BUGLING—Among other things, the girls bugled. Here's Margaret Thomas, Troop No. 4, Homestead, doing just that. Field events of various natures were on the program.

Marker to List All Arsenal Blast Dead

After research, covering 66 years, an authentic list of names of the 78 victims of the Allegheny Arsenal explosion, September 17, 1862, at last has been compiled. These names, inscribed on bronze tablets, will be placed on a new monumnet over their graves in the "Arsenal plot" in the Allegheny Cemetery. The dedication will take place Sunday, May 27, with special memorial exercises.

The monument will replace a stone obelisk erected shortly after the Civil War. This memorial contained only 40 names and the action of the weather has obliterated nearly all inscriptions. The Sons of Union Veterans of the Civil War and auxiliaries formed a committee under the chairmanship of A. G. Trimble, and raised a fund to place a massive granite monument bearing four enduring bronze tablets on the site. At the same time a canvass was made to obtain the names of 38 victims omitted in the inscription on the old monument.

After years of effort the names have been compiled and are published with a view of having their surviving relatives attend the memorial exercises. Three-fourths of the victims were women and young girls, some of the employes in the munition plant at the arsenal being only 11 years of age.

Following is a complete list of the names of the victims inscribed on the monument:

Inertia Forces Are Neutralized in This Balanced Engine

THE Cadillac crankshaft, being short and rigid, is not affected by the twisting forces of engine operation, as the longer crankshafts in other types of 8-cylinder engines must be affected. When we say that the Cadillac engine is perfectly balanced, we mean that all inertia forces set up by the revolving crankshaft and travel of the pistons, which translate themselves into vibration, are scientifically brought under control and neutralized. The result is surpassing smoothness at all engine speeds. When other manufacturers successfully design and build 90-degree, V-type eights, duplicating Cadillac's compensated crankshaft, then only will they discover the secret of the enduring satisfaction enjoyed by Cadillac-La Salle owners.

THANKS to its large and unusual fine car following, the V-type 8-cylinder Cadillac is able to accomplish results that, for continuous satisfaction, can only be approximated by others.

In varying percentages—for twenty-five years—the bulk of the choicest motor car market has consistently given its patronage to Cadillac and, more recently, La Salle.

The class and luxury market remaining outside of Cadillac is so small today that Cadillac and La Salle stand almost alone in their field.

There is only one way to give what Cadillac and La Salle give and that is by this great market-volume.

In no other way, for example, would it be possible to endow these cars with the performance supremacy of the famous 90-degree, V-type, 8-cylinder Cadillac engine—its exclusive quality of smooth, surging, velvety power; its freedom from vibration that has not been approached; such amazing flexibility; and an enduring continuance of these performance superiorities that occasions the same joyous satisfaction in even second and third owners.

Lesser volume must of necessity mean surrender in some one or a dozen important essentials of fine manufacturing. The only way that others can even appear to be in the Cadillac-La Salle class is by surrender and compromise—cutting out value where they cannot cut down price. And the remorseless result of this is that they eventually eliminate themselves entirely from the Cadillac-La Salle class.

And all the while Cadillac goes on, giving more and more, steadily raising quality and consistently holding down prices to points impossible to any other fine car in the world.

New lower LaSalle prices, $2350 to $2875. Cadillac prices, $3295 to $3950. Exclusive Fisher and Fisher-Fleetwood custom-built bodies up to $5500. All prices f. o. b. Detroit.

DIVERS SEEK PILOT'S BODY LOST AT SEA

Believed Victim of Heroic Plunge to Save Comrade In Ship Landing.

SAN PEDRO, Cal., May 12.—(AP.)—Resources of the Navy today were directed to the attempt to recover from the waters 15 miles off San Diego, a naval fighting plane and the body of Lieut. Joseph John Rooney, strapped in its cockpit, the victim perhaps of a heroic plunge taken to avoid endangering a comrade.

SEARCH IS VAIN

After the fall of the plane into the water while Rooney was attempting a landing on the aircraft carrier Lexington, a patrol of boats were thrown about the area and divers ordered from San Diego. They were kept vainly in the search throughout last night and today.

Fleet officials said a board of inquiry would investigate the accident, but no formal announcement of the calling of such an investigation was made.

Witnesses of the accident expressed the opinion that Lieut. Rooney, sweeping over the deck of the Lexington, saw another airplane about to be launched from the deck. His plane swerved, fell into a side slip and dropped into the sea. Previously he had shown remarkable skill in bringing his plane to the deck of the carrier as she drove through the sea.

SIXTH THEATER BOMBING STIRS SEATTLE PANIC

Police Mystified at Terror Campaign — Labor War Believed to Blame.

SEATTLE, Wash. May 13.—(AP.)—A theater bombing leaving as clues only a sheet-iron stage door riddled by scrap iron slugs any the conflicting stories of a half dozen witnesses today turned into a mystery to investigating police.

The bomb, manufactured with a motion picture film can and dynamite and loaded with rusty scrap iron, exploded in the alley between the Colonial and Capitol theaters here last night while both show houses were filled. It was the sixth theater bombing here since the first of the year.

NEAR PANIC AT SHOW

The detonation, shattering windows in the alley and rocking the business district, alarmed theater visitors and crowds in adjacent streets and caused a near panic in the audience of the Colonial Theater. This house was the apparent target of the bombers.

The only arrest made since the inception of the bombing campaign was that of Thomas J. Woodhouse, a former amateur boxing champion, taken April 23 on a charge of bombing the Embassy Theater, and released in $4,000 bail.

Labor disputes were given by the police and owners of the theaters as reasons for the bombings.

CHAIN STORE SALE SCOUTED

H. L. Myers vice president of the Keystone Grocery Company Saturday said he knew nothing of negotiations which a published report from New York said are being carried on for the sale of the Keystone's 205 stores in Pittsburgh to the Kroger Grocery and Baking Company large chain-store operators. The Kroger interests invaded Pittsburgh two months ago with four stores.

"If there's anything to it we should certainly know of it here where our headquarters are" Myers said. "If anything turns up we'll let you know."

Germany Reveals Subterfuge in Narcotic Trade

TURN MORPHINE INTO CODEIN, NO TRAFFIC LIMIT

No Restriction on Bi-Products Of Opium Bi-Product in International Rules.

By ELLEN N. LA MOTTE,
Well-Known Author and International Authority on the Traffic in Narcotics.

GENEVA, May 12.—Like a bombshell in the opium committee the revelation burst this week that of the 50 to 60 tons of morphine made annually, half of it freely finds its way into restricted nations in the form of codein. Codein is a by-product of morphine, and as such is not covered by international restrictions.

These restrictions apply to the by-products of opium, but not to the by-products of the by-products. Thus codein escapes, and thus it freely finds its way into countries striving to free themselves from the scourge of the poppy.

It was the German delegate to the committee who set off this explosion, and now I shall tell you how the world was given a chance to learn about codein. You have heard of the stable being padlocked after the horse is stolen. Here is a case of the stable being thrown wide open and the padlock tossed into the depths of Lake Geneva.

REVEALS ONLY PART

I told you before of that large graph prepared by Mr. Brenier, the assessor—a graph in which he showed production of opium and manufacture of drugs, and incidentally, a dozen other things besides. And how both the British and the British-India delegate had demurred at displaying the graph, and in circulating it in small copies. Said it wasn't accurate. No more was it. They were quite right—it wasn't at all accurate. It was a tremendous understatement.

Well, Mr. Brenier won his point, and his day finally came when he could hang up his graph at one end of the room, and point it all out with a fishing rod. He adores statistics and revels in them, and is never so happy as when he can get up a picture of this kind and explain it at length. His day came on Wednesday, April 18, and though he said that his graph could be understood at a glance, he took two hours to interpret it.

There was a large square block showing the manufacture of drugs. Incidentally, the graph was such a crowded affair, with everything on one page, and all sorts of oddments tucked into any nook or corner left over, that the thing was indeed hard to grasp, and violated the first principles of graph making. Everything in but the kitchen stove.

GERMAN SPRINGS SURPRISE

But Mr. Brenier was happy. He pointed and explained and described, and then waited for the translator to turn his French remarks into English, and then went right on with more and more explanations and descriptions, till the committee seemed to get restless. The restlessness grew quite marked. The German delegate, Mr. Anselmino, could finally stand it no longer.

Now Germany, as I said before, is an immense maker of morphine. Twenty tons did she make in 1926. Dr. Anselmino is a chemist, rather than a politician, a quiet man with a yellow beard and silver-rimmed spectacles, and a low, gentle voice. Suddenly we became aware that Anselmino was speaking — saying something important in his low, scarcely audible voice, and at once the shuffling and restlessness of the committee stopped—all leaned forward attentively to hear what it was Anselmino was saying.

Mr. Brenier's figures, he said, were all wrong as to morphine manufacture. His big block representing morphine was all wrong. It was too small—much too small. Too low, much too low. Mr. Brenier had not taken into account the amount of morphine turned into codein. The graph simply showed the opium that had been made into morphine and STAYED as morphine. It did not show the morphine that had been used to make into codein. To show that, the block should have been twice the size.

CODEIN FROM MORPHINE

Had any one noticed the extensive manufacture of codein, which comes from morphine, not from opium direct? All the drug factories in the world were not making codein. His own country, Germany, had made 20 tons of morphine last year, and turned 15 of it into codein. All other countries were doing the same. Why? Because codein does not come under the convention, and is therefore exempt from supervision, and has no difficulty in getting from one country to another. The amount of codein made today is enormous—every factory is turning it out by the ton. Germany turns at least 70 per cent of her morphine into codein; Great Britain turns 50 per cent; Switzerland 33 per cent. All this because codein is exempt from control, and can move about freely. This wide manufacture of codein represents the intensive struggle of the manufacturers for the drug markets of the world. Each one in a scramble for its share of the international trade. The annual output of morphine is between 50 and 60 tons—and fully half of that was turned into codein, because codein was exempt from restrictions and could be sold anywhere.

GOES UNCHALLENGED

This bombshell was dropped amidst profound silence. Not a contradiction, not a word in protest. No one challenged the German's statement. For every delegate at that table, representing countries with vast manufacturing interests, knew full well that the statement was true.

How on earth Germany came to make such a remark, no one can imagine. Is Germany going to break away from the international drug ring? Going to put her house in order? Does this statement mean a change in policy? A decision that the profits of the manufacturers are worth less than her reputation? The question is still unanswered. Why should the whole show have been given away? For what reasons?

Here now is a fine situation, a fine state of affairs! Morphine made to the tune of 50 or 60 tons a year, and half of that turned into codein! or —IS IT REALLY TURNED INTO CODEIN? Do the manufacturers just content themselves by saying that it has been turned into codein —and let it go at that?

ITALY CALLS FOR ACTION

Signor Cavazzoni, the Italian delegate, sprang into action at once. Why, he asked, is all this morphine being turned into codein—into a derivative of opium outside all control of international agreements? We must draw our own conclusions! The time, he said, has now come for the opium committee to act! And for the League of Nations to act!

The poor, harassed chairman, Dr. Carriere, representing Switzerland, which does a colossal trade in drugs, was hard put to it for an answer. There wasn't much he could say. Perhaps the manufacture was not really so great—perhaps—

But again Cavazzoni leaped in. Why did this opium committee meet two or three times a year and solemnly discuss seizures of contraband—small amounts, a few pounds or a few kilos—WHILE ALL THE TIME FULLY AWARE THAT THERE ARE 15 OR 20 TONS OF MORPHINE EVERY YEAR CIRCULATING ROUND THE WORLD COMPLETELY UNACCOUNTED FOR AND NOT UNDER CONTROL? Able to cross—and to cross leagally—nearly every frontier of the world? And if the manufacturer says he has turned 10 tons of morphine into 10 tons of codein, what proof have you that he has really done so?

The French delegate, hard pressed, murmured something to the effect that if a manufacturer signed a book saying he really had made codein—if his foreman signed the book too, independently—why who could question that?

At which Cavazzoni smiled.

Well, here is a first class scandal, so to speak. The whole drug ring in cahoots to manufacture codein. And codein can be turned into other things. Into eucodal and dicodid, and heavens knows what more besides. Only—with no effective check upon the manufacture of codein itself, why bother to manufacture eucodal or dicodid, when any one can buy a ton of SOMETHING any minute?

And, as Mr. Cavazzoni says, for six or seven years the opium committee has been sitting in solemn session once or twice a year, uttering pious regrets that the illicit traffic was so large, and expressing the earnest hope that "close international co-operation" would improve the situation. Yet knowing all the while that the international co-operation of the international drug ring was keeping the thing booming!

Sixty tons of morphine manufactured every year! Yet not one word said, nor one step taken to cut down the production of raw opium, which feeds the factories that grind out these sixty tons of drugs!

Missing—Two Idols That Swayed Lives, Loves, Death

AND MAIDENS PRAYED—In their Oriental Temple vestal maidens prayed for the return of the two ivory idols that played such a vital part in the lives of a beautiful white woman; a strong, violent white man. On this theme, illustrated above by girls from "Swance Moon," at the Penn Theater, Frank L. Packard has built his mystery story, "Two Stolen Idols," which begins tomorrow in the Sun-Tele. Murder, shivering nights in storm-tossed seas, shipwrecks, loves, hatreds, Oriental cunning—all these move through the story. You'll thrill to it if you begin it tomorrow in the Sun-Tele.

Link Lindy's Name With Giant Air Service

RUMOR SENDS PLANE STOCKS TO NEW LEVEL

International News Service.

NEW YORK, May 12.—That Col. Charles A. Lindbergh is believed to be involved in plans for the formation of a gigantic air service throughout the United States and possibly extending beyond the borders of this country, was held in Wall Street circles Saturday to be one of the chief reasons for the aggressive movement in airplane stocks.

Both Wright Aeronautical and Curtiss Airplane shares have been leaping upward upon heavy buying. There was no session of the stock market Saturday, but Wright moved upward approximately 10 points Friday, while Curtiss closed at 142. Only recently Wright was selling below 100 and Curtiss around 53.

MERGER SEEN

Wall Street traders are convinced that something big is brewing behind the wall of silence, possibly a gigantic merger involving the Ford Airplane Company, Wrights, Curtiss and the Mahoney Aircraft Construction Company.

But, in addition to rumors of a possible merger, the magic name of Lindbergh is playing an important part in the speculation of the stock traders. The recent mysterious trips of Lindbergh and his equally secret conferences were believed to be linked up with the forthcoming event.

5 K. of C. Councils To Hold Meeting

Five Knights of Columbus councils will hold an inter-council third degree meeting this afternoon at 2 o'clock at St. James' auditorium, West End, followed by a banquet at Hotel Chatham at 6:30. District Deputy William A. Ryan will be in charge of degree ceremonies, with Charles T. Doyle as district warden. M. J. Hoban is banquet chairman. The Rev. George J. Bullion will deliver the banquet invocation; P. J. McArdle will be toastmaster, and addresses will be delivered by Leo G. Griffith and F. W. Ries, Jr., past state deputies.

Aspire To Be First

TERPSICHOREALLY—Peggy Dunkle and Mary Bodish are just two of the 234 who aspire to dance championship honors at stake in John E. Stahl's marathon dancing contest which will start at 12:05 a. m. Monday morning, May 21. The contest will be staged in Stahl's Garden and Stahl's Theater, Eighth avenue, Homestead, and for the first 12 hours the dancers will appear in both the dance hall and the theater. Burgess John J. Cavanaugh will be master of ceremonies at the opening, introducing the dancers and vaudeville entertainers. Of the entrants, less than 80 are from Homestead.

MURDER CASES TO INTERRUPT VOTE TRIALS

Lull in Election Prosecutions Looms—10 Boards Up Next Week.

Criminal Court will experience a lull in the disposition of election cases this week to prevent an accumulation of murder cases. Following the disposition this week of three murder cases listed for trial, intensive prosecution of election cases will be resumed, with 10 election boards charged with fraud at the September primary slated for disposition next week. District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner said this number is scheduled to eliminate any halt in the prosecutions in the event pleas are entered.

Pleas have been entered in the cases of 10 election boards and two other boards have been convicted in the continuous disposition of charges against 40 boards comprising 200 election officials, with additional boards to be prosecuted.

Two murder cases are listed for Monday. Gladys Franklin, Negro, is accused of killing George Clyd, Negro, 29, shot to death in his home, 119 Twelfth street, McKeesport, November 18. Normay Bly, Negro, is accused of the death of William Vordy, Negro, 45, of 9 Buffington avenue, who suffered a fractured skull as the result of a blow on the head from an iron pipe, December 17. Luther Sutton, Negro, is listed for trial Wednesday on a charge of murder in connection with the death of Frank Snapp, Negro, 29, shot at Brucelon, September 26.

Frederick West, of Fairmont, W. Va., is listed for trial Monday on a charge of robbery. He is accused of entering the Aldine Theater, December 11, and holding up Gerald Murphy, manager, taking $2,400 in cash.

Insured for $100,000, Lindy Files No Claim

PHILADELPHIA, May 12.—(AP.)—Although he carries a blanket public liability aviation insurance policy for $100,000 on any aircraft he may be flying, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh has not presented a single claim for damages in the thousands of miles he has flown since he piloted the Spirit of St. Louis from New York to Paris.

This was announced today by the Independent Fire and Independent Indemnity Insurance companies of this city, which issued the policy to the trans-Atlantic flier before he left on his "good will" flight to Central and South America. The Spirit of St. Louis also was insured by these companies for $15,000 from the time Lindbergh left San Diego, Cal., in it about a year ago until the famous machine was turned over to the Smithsonian Institution.

The Independent companies also revealed that Alfred Loewenstein, Belgian capitalist, who is making an air tour of the United States in a 10-passenger Fokker, carries the largest aviation insurance policy ever issued by them. The plane is insured against fire, accidental damage, windstorm and theft for $15,000 in each instance. The policy covers everything except personal liability to the passengers. In addition Loewenstein holds a public liability policy, excluding passengers, for $100,000 and a property damage policy with a $25,000 limit.

FIRING AT TWO AUTOISTS STIRS CONGRESS ROW

Prohibition Headquarters Warns Force—Won't Defend Gun Play.

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—Determined to rid the prohibition, customs and coast guard services of men who use fire arms carelessly, the Treasury Department today promised co-operation in a move to bring adequate justice to all officers and men guilty of such practices.

With nation-wide indignation aroused over the shooting of Jacob H. Hansen, officer of the Elks Lodge at Niagara Falls, N. Y., by a coast guard agent, new orders were issued by the Treasury that firearms must not be used except in self-defense or to prevent commission of a felony.

OFFICER FACES TRIAL

Officials here understood that the coast guardsmen who after ordering Hansen to halt and then shot him would be tried by the United States Court at Buffalo instead of an official court-martial.

Closely following the Hansen shooting, a federal agent operating in Southern West Virginia who shot into an automobile near Huntington, W. Va., was dismissed from the service.

Since many of the shootings by prohibition agents has resulted from failure of pedestrians and automobilists to halt when ordered to do so suspecting that the federal men were thugs the suggestion has been made that uniforms be provided for dry officials.

Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Seymour Lowman, in charge of prohibition, however, declared that uniformed dry agents would be useless and that such a move is not seriously considered.

"The Treasury makes no effort to shield agents who use firearms unnecessarily and will co-operate with state agencies in prosecutions when it appears the federal men are at fault," Lowman declared.

ROW IN CONGRESS

The Hansen shooting has aroused widespread criticism both in Senate and House, with prospect of an investigation being ordered.

Representatives Mead (D.) and Dempsey (R.), of New York—both representatives of the Niagara section—denounced the action of coast guardsmen on the House floor.

Mead declared he would inaugurate a fight to "drive the gunmen out of the coast guard" and Dempsey proposed an investigation. He said that he consulted the Treasury Department in the case, but declined to divulge the result of the conference.

DEATH ROLL

County Parks Proving Mecca for Picnickers

The county's North and South parks are proving popular centers for picnics and outings. The picnic season will officially open Monday, Park Director Paul B. Ris, in an effort to give the public unlimited freedom in both parks, has decided not to issue permits for picnics or outings to organizations or individuals on Sundays or holidays. These days, the director said, will be reserved for the general public.

So far 165 permits have been issued, City Manager of Parks John Jay Burke, announced. The following permits have been issued during the past two weeks:

North Park—Calvary Club, Calvary Episcopal Church, May 19; Gulf Refining Company, June 9; Men's Club, Y. M. C. A., June 13; Calvert Memorial U. P. # Figures Reveal "Knifing" of Flinn

4,257 VOTES BEHIND KLINE, RUNNING-MATE

Official Returns Show G. O. P. Slate Candidates Far Ahead.

The story of the "knifing" of George H. Flinn, running mate to Mayor Charles H. Kline for delegate to the national convention, Thirty-fifth District, was told in official figures made public Saturday by the returning board canvassing the vote of last primary election. Flinn was County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong's personal candidate.

As returns began to filter into the organization's headquarters, Henry Hotel, the morning after election day, figures showed Mayor Kline was running far ahead of his mate. Political leaders at that time openly charged that Flinn was being knifed.

KLINE FAR AHEAD

The official figures show Mayor Kline received 22,901 votes to Flinn's 18,644, or a difference of 4,257 votes. George P. Kounta, pledged supporter to Herbert Hoover, attempting to crack the organization slate, polled 10,686 votes.

The organization's entire slate, the official figures show, went over the top. United States Senator David A. Reed polled 109,662 against his nearest rival, William S. Adams' 11,920. State Treasurer Edward Martin and Auditor General Charles A. Waters polled large majorities over rivals. William D. Porter, to succeed himself for judge of Superior Court, had a walkaway over Judge James P. Rossiter, Democrat. Judge Porter received 118,689; Rossiter, 5,859.

HOOVER LEADS SMITH

For President, Herbert Hoover polled a little less than two to one Republican votes over Gov. Alfred E. Smith. Hoover received 12,648, Smith 6,292. President Calvin Coolidge received 1,169.

Congressman Harry A. Estep, Thirty-fifth Congressional District to succeed himself, polled 23,550 votes to James M. Magee's 14,175.

Benjamin Howard Patterson, candidate for general assembly from Tenth district, lost the nomination by 48 votes. Carl C. Baldridge, fourth place candidate, received 7,353 to Patterson's 7,810.

Miles Bryan, political leader of McKees Rocks, and James S. Crawford were nominated delegates to national convention from Thirty-sixth district. William S. Haddock, burgess of Dormont, pressed Bryan. Figures show Crawford received 17,685; Bryan, 14,057 and Haddock, 13,515.

In the alternate delegate, fight, Thirty-second district, Belle M. Johnson and H. P. Brandt received a like number of votes. Each polled 15,078.

OHIO CIVIL WAR HERO, 83, DIES

NEW PHILADELPHIA, O., May 12.—A familiar figure in blue with a tattered flag will be missing at the Memorial Day parade here this year.

Simon H. Darst, 83, one of the few sons who fought in the Civil War side by side with their fathers, died last night of pneumonia. Darst grasped the regimental colors when they were shot from the hand of his father, Jacob Darst, his comrade-in-arms at Mission Ridge. The son was captured, but retained the flag all the while he was a Confederate prisoner—15 months.

Darst for years carried that same flag in Memorial Day parades here. He and his father were members of Company G, Eightieth Ohio Volunteer Infantry.

Homestead Robbery Suspect Identified

Accused of attacking and robbing Charles Noll, 45, of 541 Ammon street, Homestead, of a watch and cash, Saturday, John Novak, 21, of 221 Larimer avenue, Pittsburgh, is being held in Homestead police station. Novak was arrested on a description and later identified by Noll. Andy Pastor, 19, of 298 River avenue, Whitaker, is held as a witness.

The Sports Shop Presents Smartness for the Outdoor World

KNITTED SUITS
Hail From Vienna

These trig suits will sprinkle the greens with pastel hues. The pull-over top is striped in beige, green and yellow, with metallic threads in glistening effect. The beige angora skirt is pleated. Sketched above. Sizes for women and misses. $25.

Other Knitted Suits 16.50 to 97.50

SILK FROCKS
In Pastel Shades

You'll find fashion and low score in these sports frocks of silk crepe. The one sketched above is a dusky rose shade. A jersey top pulls over the long-sleeved tailored silk frock . . . and there are bands of a deeper tone of rose. 49.75.

Other Silk Frocks 16.50 to $59

THE SILK SKIRT
With Sweater Top

A skirt of soft green silk crepe is pleated in the front—and there's a bodice top. The pull-over top is wool knitted in a novel stitch forming a diagonal pattern—and there's a suggestion of stripe of darker green and white. Sketched above. 19.75.

Other Sports Frocks 16.50 to 39.75

Sports Shoes Are Not Always Golf Shoes

The mode now recognizes the wider interpretation of spectator sports . . . And I. Miller beautiful shoes display how exquisite that sports mode may be. We suggest three models representative of the mode:

Top . . . Undeniably of the sports mode and equally as undeniably of the NEW mode . . . a low heeled one-strap slipper of pliant, reed-like Santoy. $14.

Center . . . A high-low heel marks this opera pump as belonging to the spectator sports mode no less than its material, genuine water snake. $20.

Labor Elects Casey

WILKES-BARRE MAN NOW HEAD OF FEDERATION

Democratic Congressman Beats Phillips and Otis for State Organization Office.

PHILADELPHIA, May 12.—John Joseph Casey, of Wilkes-Barre, one of the two Democratic congressmen from Pennsylvania, today was elected president of the Pennsylvania Federation of Labor.

He was elected by a majority of 215 votes over John A. Phillips, of Philadelphia, and John Otis, of Pittsburgh. The vote was: Casey, 546; Phillips, 331, and Otis, 75. Otis was the representative of the "left wing" or radical group.

James E. Kelly of Wissinoming, Pa., was re-elected secretary-treasurer. Tobias Hall, of Philadelphia, was elected delegate to the convention of the Federation of Labor.

Auditors for the coming year will be James McElroy, of Philadelphia; John Garraghan, of Wilkes-Barre, and Charles Lahr, of Wyoming. Vice presidents elected included Vernon Fletcher, of Philadelphia; John K. Metz, of Nanticoke; A. P. Bower, of Reading; W. L. Cooney, of Scranton; Edward Barry, of Erie; Thomas G. Robertson, of Pittsburgh, and Lawrence J. Katz, of Harrisburg.

Harry Keck, James J. Long, Charles J. Doyle and a host of other stars keep their eyes on the sports events of the day. Read the only real sports section in Pittsburgh every day, and of course, in The Sun-Tele.

Smiles From the Navy

CHEER HERE—Secretary of Navy Curtis Dwight Wilbur cheering one of the little patients in the Children's Hospital during his recent visit here.

Good Will Industries To Exhibit Its Work

An exhibition of fancy work and useful garments will be held at the Good Will Industries, Twenty-eighth street and Liberty avenues, next Wednesday and Thursday afternoons. An operetta will be given in the evening. About 1,200 boys and girls of the Lawrenceville district are being taught by Misses Ella M. Fieger and Madeline Lary, and 40 volunteer workers from various churches.

CHILD HOSPITAL DAY DRIVE SAT.

The annual flower day of the Children's Hospital of Pittsburgh is to take place next Saturday, May 19. Funds raised from public subscription, on the highways, in the office buildings, clubs and other places of public gathering will be devoted to the maintenance of the institution, which is doing such a splendid work among suffering kiddies.

Many of the city's most prominent women folk will be among the army which will go upon the streets Saturday, asking alms for the hospital, offering in return for the widow's mite and the millionaire's check, a modest little flower.

Mrs. Herbert Dupuy, Mrs. William Henry Sliter and Mrs. Benjamin Page are marshaling their forces for a drive on passersby, which it is hoped will realize sufficient money to keep the work going at full speed throughout the year. They have called to their support a battalion of workers, who will be found at every street corner, in every public building, at all railroad stations, hotels and theaters early Saturday morning and late in the evening.

LIFE SENTENCE FACES HERRON

NEW PHILADELPHIA, O., May 12.—William D. Herron, found guilty of murder in the second degree for the slaying of his sister-in-law, Viola May, will be called for sentence Monday or Tuesday. The verdict automatically imposes a life sentence, but parole is possible after 10 years.

A motion for a new trial may be made as a precautionary measure, but it is not likely to be pushed, it is said. Herron, silent since the verdict was announced, is understood to be satisfied with the outcome of the trial. The jury reached a decision at 5 p. m. Friday after deliberating less than six hours.

5,000 SAIL FROM N.Y. FOR EUROPE ON EIGHT LINERS

Many Stage and Social Notables Among Passengers Sailing From Gotham.

NEW YORK, May 12.—(AP.)—Five thousand passengers, including many well known figures of the financial, stage and athletic worlds sailed for Europe on eight liners today.

August Heckscher, financier and philanthropist, sailed shortly after midnight on the White Star liner Majestic to represent New York at the international housing conference at Munich.

SCOTTI SAILS

Other passengers on the Majestic were Countess Szechenyi, the former Gladys Vanderbilt, wife of the Hungarian ambassador, and her three daughters; Antonio Scotti, operatic baritone, and Arthur M. Anderson, of J. P. Morgan & Co.

Aboard the French liner Paris, which also sailed early today, were Grace Moore, Metropolitan Opera star, on her way to her villa in Southern France for a vacation; Molla Mallory, tennis star, bound for the Wimbledon matches; Mme. Paul Claudel, wife of the French ambassador at Washington, and her three daughters; Beatrice Lillie, stage star, and Florence Vidor, film star.

Prince Edik, of Denmark, who with his wife and daughter have been visiting the United States and Canada, sailed for home today aboard the Scandinavian-American liner United States.

Sailing on the Conte Biancamano and the Gripsholm were Lady Isabel Howard, wife of the British ambassador, and Mrs. Gertrud Bostroem, wife of the Swedish minister to this country.

300 Acres of Timber Destroyed at Dawson

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., May 12.—A force of 150 fire fighters under Warden H. L. Redorick, of Confluence, subdued a blaze that destroyed 300 acres of timber owned by Joseph B. Davis & Sons Lumber Company, of Dawson, after battling for many hours.

SALES ROOMS PERMITTED TO REMAIN OPEN

Used Car Dealers May Display Machines, but Sales On Sunday Are Banned.

The edict against used car dealers doing business on Sunday still stands, Public Safety Director James M. Clark so announced Saturday.

Director Clark a week ago yesterday clamped the lid down on Sunday sales. The Rev. Dr. Robert M. Blackwood, general secretary of the Sabbath Observance Association, filed a complaint with the director. He pointed out that the "blue" laws were being violated.

"My edict still stands and a check-up by police will be made on dealers who operate Sunday," Director Clark said. The director said that no action would be taken against those who remain open. "Only those who complete a sale will be dealt with."

I-ON-A-CO

I Can Sincerely Recommend the I-ON-A-CO to Sufferers From Lumbago

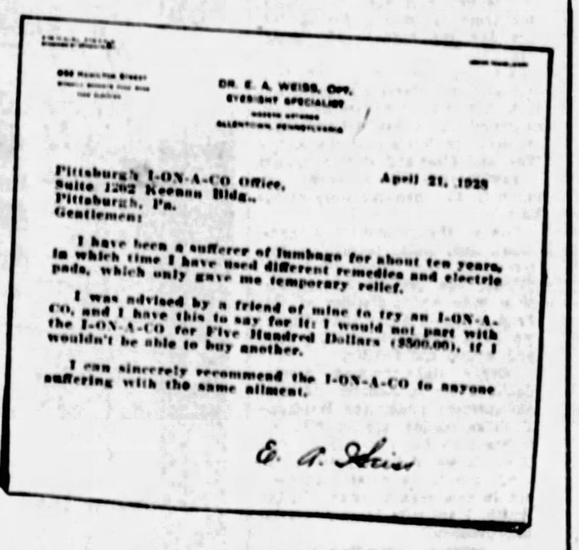
—Writes E. A. Weiss



DR. E. A. WEISS, OPT. OPTICIAN SPECIALIST

Pittsburgh I-ON-A-CO Office, Suite 1202 Keenan Bldg., Pittsburgh, Pa. April 21, 1928

Gentlemen:

I have been a sufferer of lumbago for about ten years, in which time I have used different remedies and electric pads, which only gave me temporary relief.

I was advised by a friend of mine to try an I-ON-A-CO, and I have this to say for it: I would not part with the I-ON-A-CO for Five Hundred Dollars ($500.00), if I wouldn't be able to buy another.

I can sincerely recommend the I-ON-A-CO to anyone suffering with the same ailment.

E. A. Weiss

What I-ON-A-CO Is and Does

I-ON-A-CO is a thoroughly scientific device based on the theory that human ailments result directly from accumulated natural poisons and waste matter in the system. I-ON-A-CO simply turns electricity into electro-magnetic energy and is designed to speed up the action of the body in eliminating these poisons and waste matter.

Following is a partial list of ailments which have responded to I-ON-A-CO:

Arthritis, Asthma, Bladder Trouble, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Constipation, Diabetes, Eczema, Heart Trouble, Hemorrhoids, High Blood Pressure, Indigestion, Insomnia, Lumbago, Nervous Disorders, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Sciatica and Varicose Veins.

The I-ON-A-CO is attached to the light socket and placed about the waist or shoulders. Because the electrical energy is converted into magnetic energy there is no shock, no discomfort. On the contrary, the experience is altogether delightful.

Try I-ON-A-CO Free

Although we have thousands of letters on file of what I-ON-A-CO has done for others, we do not ask you to take the word of these other people. We want you to try I-ON-A-CO for yourself and judge it entirely on what it does in your own case. Come into our offices and use I-ON-A-CO, or phone us and we will arrange for you to use I-ON-A-CO in your own home. Either trial is absolutely free and without obligation on your part.

WHEELER OUT FOR AL SMITH AS 'BEST BET'

Western Senator Boards Governor's Band Wagon; Calls Him Liberal.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—(AP.)—Another Western Senator—Wheeler, of Montana—was riding aboard the Smith bandwagon today, firm in the belief that the New York Governor "is now the best bet of the Democrats" for the presidency.

Wheeler, who bolted his party in 1924 to run for Vice President on a third party ticket headed by the late Senator LaFollette (Rep.), Wisconsin, indorsed Smith's candidacy in a letter to W. W. McDowell, chairman of the Montana Democratic Central Committee.

CALLS SMITH LIBERAL

Senator Walsh, Wheeler's colleague, recently withdrew from the race for the nomination at Houston, declaring the results of the California primary, in which he and Senator Reed, of Missouri, were defeated by Smith, showed the apparent futility of contesting further with the Governor.

Wheeler said that in his judgment Smith should be nominated by acclamation. He described the leading Democratic candidate as a "Liberal in the best sense of the word," a "born Democrat" and a man who, standing as he does for "law enforcement," would improve conditions as they have existed under the Harding-Coolidge administrations.

The Senator mentioned in his letter that he had hoped at one time that Walsh would be the Democratic standard-bearer, but that it had become apparent to his colleague, as it did to many of his friends, "that the Democrats of the nation were in favor of the candidacy of Gov. Smith."

McDowell was a leader in the Montana movement to gain the support of that state's eight delegates for Walsh, but with the latter's withdrawal Smith supporters claimed the way had been cleared for the Governor to bag this western block to be selected next week. Smith has the support of the state's national committeeman, J. Bruce Kremer.

"CLOSE TO PEOPLE"

Smith further was described by Wheeler as a man who had "not been weaned or educated or frightened away from the principles of fundamental Democracy."

"His heart beats close enough to the hearts of the plain people for them to hear it throughout the day and night," his letter said.

As to the farm question, the Senator said the Governor's record was such that "I am confident he would, as President, use his best endeavors to place the farmers of the Middle West and West and other producers of raw materials on an equal footing with the manufacturers of the East."

"As to the prohibition amendment, Gov. Smith favors law enforcement," the letter continued. "Under the present administration with an ex-distiller at the head of the Treasury Department, we have theoretical enforcement and actual nullification.

"Every right-thinking person deplores the breakdown of law enforcement under the Harding-Coolidge regime, accompanied as it has been by wholesale corruption. It would be impossible for conditions to be worse than they are in this regard today. Under Smith, I am sure there would be improvement"

PHARMACISTS LOOK TO OUTING

More than ordinary interest is being shown by the retail druggists of Western Pennsylvania in the coming anniversary celebration, summer meeting and outing to be held at Conneaut Lake Park on Friday, June 1. The pharmacists were first organized in Pittsburgh in the summer of 1898 in the old Hostetter Building. The original organization has increased to 18 county units, all of which will take part.

J. C. Sims, of Pittsburgh, has been appointed general chairman. The membership embraces retail druggists in Armstrong, Beaver, Butler, Blair, Cambria, Clearfield, Center, Erie, Fayette, Indiana, Jefferson, Lawrence, Mercer, Somerset, Washington, Greene, Westmoreland and Allegheny counties.

East Liberty Trade Ass'n to Hold Picnic

The East Liberty Trade Association will hold its second community picnic for residents of the East End section the early part of August, it was decided by the board of governors at a meeting last week. The date will be announced later. The outing in all probability will be held in Highland Park, where upwards of 10,000 gathered at last year's outing sponsored by the business men's group.

No solicitation or advertising propositions were sanctioned by the association last week, and there were two refusals. Members of the trade group refuse solicitors unless they present certificates from the association.

CLARIFICATION OF MINE PEACE RUMORS ASKED

Operator Demands Lewis Confirm or Deny Four-State Settlement Report.

INDIANAPOLIS, May 12.—(AP.)—E. D. Logsdon, president and receiver of the Knox Consolidated Coal Company, has challenged United Mine Workers' officials to confirm or deny rumors that the union is on the verge of a settlement regarding mine wages. These rumors, Logsdon declared, are preventing Knox county miners from accepting the wage scale offered by his company.

The international officers of the United Mine Workers could not be reached Saturday at their headquarters here.

The Knox Consolidated Coal Company opened its three mines in Knox county, Ind., on May 1, offering a wage scale which the union rejected as being below the Jacksonville agreement of $7.50 per day. Only a few miners reported for work, not enough to operate the mines, which had been closed for 13 months.

One story, Mr. Logsdon said, "was to the effect that a four-state agreement between the United Mine Workers of America and the operators of Western Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois was about to be perfected; another, to the effect that on May 16, the United Mine Workers were making concessions which would place these mines in operation." The challenge to confirm or deny the rumors was addressed to John L. Lewis, international president of the United Mine Workers, and to Harvey Cartwright, president, and William Mitch, secretary of District No. 11 of the organization, both of Terre Haute, Ind.

NO MYSTERY IN PILSUDSKI ILLS

WARSAW, May 12.—(AP.)—Reports that the illness of Marshal Pilsudski, Polish premier, is a mysterious one were denied today by the Polish Telegraphic Agency, which stated that it was authorized to deny all such rumors circulating in the foreign press.

The marshal's illness was described by the agency as an attack of neuralgia and a return of rheumatism, from which he has suffered many years. He is stated to have recovered and to have no plans to go abroad for a cure.

Yesterday the premier discussed at length current political questions with Foreign Minister Zaleski, while today he received the Rumanian minister, having returned to his usual official labors.

Bishop Exiled From Mexico Dies in Texas

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, May 12.—(AP.)—The Rt. Rev. Ignacio Valdespino, exiled bishop of Aguas Calientes, Mexico, who has been ill in a hospital here, died at 1:45 a. m., today. A brother, Juvinal Valdespino, of Aguas Calientes, was at his bedside.

The bishop, who suffered from kidney and heart trouble, was taken to the hospital three weeks ago today upon his return from Havana with the most Rev. Jose Moray del Rio, archbishop of Mexico, who died April 22.

M. E.'S PLEDGE CONFIDENCE IN M'CONNELL

General Conference Appealed to for Action to Quell Charges Against Bishop.

KANSAS CITY, May 12.—(AP.)—Bishop Francis J. McConnell, of Pittsburgh, was given a unanimous vote of confidence by the Quadrennial General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church here today when a complaint against him of "maladministration and immorality" was ordered expunged as wholly without foundation.

Several ovations were given the bishop following his dramatic floor appeal that the conference take immediate action in order that he might be relieved of the embarrassment in connection with the technical charge of "immorality."

Bishop McConnell strongly protested use by the Rev. George A. Cooke, of Wilmington, Del., of the word "immorality" in charging him with certifying to incomplete reports of the Wilmington annual conference in March, 1927, and in giving approval to the teachings of evolution.

The conference condemned "the utterly false and mischievous use" of the questionable word and ordered the whole complaint dismissed on a resolution by E. H. Cherrington, of Westerville, O., and amended by Dr. Harold Paul Sloan, of Haddonfield, N. J.

Today's appeal was Bishop McConnell's first recognition of the charges, filed a week ago, although leading churchmen then strongly protested Mr. Cooke's use of the word "immorality," because of the wrong impression it gave.

"NO WHITEWASH"

In order that "it can never be charged we have whitewashed a bishop" the conference ordered the episcopacy committee to examine the Cooke complaint and to make a complete report May 15.

Bishop McConnell was the first of four of the church's 37 effective bishops to be cleared of various charges brought against them in the present conference. Bishop Anton Bast of Copenhagen now is on trial before an ecclesiastical court on charges of imprudent conduct.

Complaints that they withheld certain information from church officials in America in connection with Bishop Bast's civil trial in Denmark in 1925 on charges of misuse of charity funds are on file against Bishops John L. Nuelsen of Zurich, Switzerland, and Edgar Blake, of Paris.

"EMBARRASSING POSITION"

The Rev. Andrew W. Shamel of Pasadena, Cal., who brought the complaints, has stated he would push his charges if Bishop Bast is convicted.

Mr. Cooke was scored by inference in Bishop McConnell's appeal when he said, "It may be that I can assume that the apparent lack of concern on the part of the general conference on the complaint indicates that it is not taking these charges more seriously than annual conferences have been taking similiar charges issuing from the same source against Methodist officials during the past 25 years, but such assumption does not relieve me of the embarrassing position I have been placed."

The bishop asked action so that he could make definite replies to many "sincerely disturbed Methodists" who were writing him from all over the country.

TRABERT FINED ON DRY CHARGE

Medart Trabert, proprietor of the Moerlein Cafe, 3810 Fifth avenue, was fined $400 by Federal Judge R. M. Gibson Saturday, when he pleaded guilty to violating the prohibition law August 13, 1927, by selling two glasses of high test beer. A preliminary padlock injunction is now pending against the cafe, pending a final hearing on a complaint filed by the prohibition authorities.

Pitt Women's Glee Club Plan Concert

Miss Helen Bell Rush, soprano, and Mrs. Henrietta Bodycombe, pianist, will be soloists at the annual home concert of the Women's Glee Club of the University of Pittsburgh to be held on Thursday, May 17, in Carnegie Music Hall. Mrs. James H. Greene, pianist and composer, will direct the club.

Seventy-five women at the university will take part in the concert, on the program for which will be included a large variety of songs, selections from operas, Negro spiritual songs, folk songs and college songs.

OPEN COURSES TO TRAIN BOY SCOUT LEADERS

Outdoor Meetings Will Follow Indoor Study — To Cover Period of Years.

Progressive training courses for Boy Scout leaders, which will probably run over a period of four or five years, have been announced by the Allegheny County Council, Boy Scouts of America. The first meeting will be held Wednesday evening, May 16, in the Frick Training School for Teachers, Fifth avenue and Bouquet street.

The course will include five indoor sessions during the next two months, and several outdoor meetings, the dates and places of holding which will be announced later. Indoor meetings will be held at the training school May 23, June 6, 13 and 20. At least one of the outdoor sessions will be held at Guyasuta.

Several groups, in addition to the sponsors and educational committee are co-operating to increase interest and attendance, which will be open to all over 18 years of age.

ARMY TAG COMES BACK

WHEELING, W. Va., May 12.—By a prank of fate, Frank M. Sheets, local ex-service man, has just received a "dog tag" which he had turned over to a chaplain when Sheets was pronounced mortally wounded in France 10 years ago.

Told he was about to die, Sheets says he gave the metal tag bearing his name and "A. F. & A. M. Nelson No. 30, Wheeling, W. Va.," to the chaplain and asked him to notify Sheets' family, requesting a decent burial. Sheets recovered but the chaplain was shell-shocked and died later in this country.

The chaplain's widow, it seems, told the story of the tag to Russell A. Appleton, Trenton, N. J., who wrote to the secretary of Nelson lodge asking for information as to Sheets' relatives. Sheets answered the letter personally, thanking Appleton for the tag.

SHOW AUTOS IN SEWICKLEY

Sewickley automobile dealers this week will display nearly $100,000 worth of new automobiles. The show, which will open Wednesday night, will continue every afternoon and evening until Saturday on the Sewickley Y. M. C. A. athletic grounds. With every Sewickley dealer represented, nearly all of the well-known makes of cars will be on display. The small cars, the large ones and the popular medium-priced makes will be shown. All the new models, from the handsome and spiffy sport jobs to the more sedate and conservative sedans will be displayed.

Stewart Indictment Hearing Postponed

WASHINGTON, May 12.—(AP.)—Inability of Justice Frederick L. Siddons to hear the plea of Robert W. Stewart, chairman of the board of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, to dismiss an indictment charging him with refusing to answer questions asked by the Senate Teapot Dome Committee Saturday, caused the hearing to be postponed until May 15. Stewart has answered the questions since being indicted and his counsel argued the indictment was now barred.

Vanderbilt Marks Lodge Anniversary

Kept Phone Silent to Save Birds; Honored

Associated Press.

SANTA BARBARA, Cal., May 12.

DAVID GRAY'S wealth was measured in millions, but friends in Santa Barbara who today abandoned their usual pursuits to pay their last tribute the multimillionaire, gauged kindness and the fullness of heart by his gift of a family tiny birds.

It was a gift paid for, not at the expense of the huge fortune gained from early-day partial financing of Henry Ford's automobile enterprise, but at the cost of daily inconvenience to the wealthy man.

For two years the house telephone system of his mansion, Grayholm, here, has been out of order because two wrens built their nest in a grilled door of the front entrance telephone box. To have opened the door to make repairs would have destroyed the nest and Mr. Gray gave orders that it was not to be touched.

After private services at the home, a ceremony open to friends was held at the family mausoleum here where the body rested. Business was suspended here during the funeral.

Chapel Blessing to Open Social Center

Blessing of the new chapel of the Mission Helpers, Servants of the Sacred Heart, St. Peter's parish, North Side, is scheduled for next Thursday. The Right Rev. Hugh C. Boyle, bishop of the Pittsburgh diocese, will officiate, assisted by the Rev. Vincent Burke, deacon; the Rev. James Garahan, sub-deacon, and the Rev. Thomas Devlin, celebrant. The Rev. Joseph A. Clougherty will be the first master of ceremonies and the Rev. Paul B. Tomlinson will be second.

The sermon will be by the Rev. Lawrence A. Carroll, pastor of St. William's Church, East Pittsburgh. Bishop Boyle will offer his blessing at the solemn high mass at 11 o'clock. A surpliced boys' choir will sing a new Ecce Sacerdote hymn, dedicated to Bishop Boyle and composed by Vincent B. Wheeler, choirmaster and organist at St. Peter's.

SOCIAL CENTER

The blessing of the chapel comes as a celebration of the opening of a social center for women and girls at 717, 719 and 721 Arch street. The first of the three houses was opened on May 17, 1925, through activities of the Rev. Father Devlin. The Little Flower Club was organized under the direction of four Mission Helpers.

Welfare work and educational classes form the main part of the activities of the Mission Helpers. Classes have been organized for teaching dressmaking, millinery, china and textile painting, lamp shade making, home hygiene and care of the sick, first aid to the injured, shorthand, typewriting, business English, voice training, beauty and physical culture, dramatics, bridge and swimming. During the past three years 1,067 pupils have been enrolled from 32 parishes.

ALL CONVENIENCES

Nothing in the way of recreational attractions have been overlooked for the enjoyment of the club's members. Every Monday evening a social is held, two hostesses being selected each week from among the members. In addition, the girls go on hikes and take part in theatrical offerings, concerts, euchres and receptions.

Welfare work also comes in for its share of consideration among the activities at the Little Flower Club. During the past three years food has been obtained for 157 families; nurses for 12 and doctors for 19 patients. Hospital care has been given to 15, and 14 persons were provided for at the Home for the Aged and Incurables. Employment was obtained for 90 men and women; baskets of food given to 72 families; 1,078 pieces of clothing were distributed.

With the opening of the new building and blessing of the chapel facilities of the club will be greatly increased. The first floor contains parlors, lounge, cloakroom, kitchen, dining room for residents, chapel, office and reception rooms; the second floor is given over to classrooms, reading room, housekeeper's room, Sisters' refectory, community and sleeping rooms. The third and fourth floors will be used exclusively as sleeping rooms for residents.

WILL INSPECT CREDIT BUREAU

A score of credit bureau secretaries from various parts of the state will inspect the Pittsburgh Credit Bureau Monday and will be the guests of the officers of the Retail Credit Men's Association while in Pittsburgh. The secretaries are stopping off here before proceeding to New Castle to attend the convention of the Associated Credit Bureaus of Pennsylvania, which convenes there Tuesday and Wednesday. A. B. Buckeridge, manager of the Pittsburgh merchant-owned bureau, is the president of the state body.

Announcement is made that the spring frolic of the credit body will be held at The Pines, Tuesday night, May 22. President Leon Michaels has named A. C. Dunn chairman of the entertainment committee, and he will be assisted by C. E. Young, Miss Emma Rauh, Mrs. J. C. Joyce. There will be no speechmaking, the entertainment being for the members of the organizations, their friends and families. Transportation will be provided. President Michaels announces that the enrollment in the credit body has now passed the 775 member mark.

GRAB BAGS FOR SCHOOL PICNIC

More than 6,000 grab bags will be given to the school children of the Squirrel Hill district at their annual picnic, June 6, in Kennywood Park, it was announced by George W. Lupton, general chairman of the event, yesterday.

The picnic is being staged by the Squirrel Hill Board of Trade and will include every private, parochial and public school in the Squirrel Hill district.

A baseball game, races, dancing and other events will feature the day.

A checkup is being made to ascertain just how many street cars will be needed to convey the children to the park. A schedule of the leaving time of the cars is being prepared and will be announced soon, Philip Kumpf, chairman of the safety committee, announces.

Final arrangements were made at the monthly meeting of the board in the Morrowfield Hotel Monday night.

Why Procrastinate With Deafness?

There's only one way to find hearing, and the health and happiness that go with it. And that's to look for it. Each day that you put off the search is only another lost day of nervous irritation and social embarrassment.

So why not look for hearing today? And why not start the quest in the private consultation rooms of the Acousticon?

We honestly believe that you will find it there, as so many others have, through the medium of the new and finer Acousticon—a scientific hearing aid with a tiny receiver, or earpiece no larger than a silver dime.

TEN-DAY FREE TRIAL

Take the instrument home with you if you wish. Test it for ten days. Be sure that it's the sort of hearing aid you've always hoped to find. Learn how clearly, how distinctly it transmits sounds to subnormal ears. Probably you'll keep it, but if you don't, you may return it without charge or obligation.

If you find a call impossible, merely send your name and address to Dept. 41 for a free home test. Dictograph Products Corp., Fifth Ave. and Wood St., Pittsburgh, Pa.

DANGER

Your tongue is the best barometer of your physical condition. Look at it every morning before breakfast. If it is coated with white, yellow or brown coloring, and does not have a clean red appearance you are constipated and not well.

Heed Its Warning

Constipation causes more ailments than all other diseases, and is the result of not having a daily bowel movement. Sick-headache, indigestion, biliousness and sallow complexion follow. Ask your druggist for a 25c red paper package of CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS "Safe Laxative". Take a dose to-night and continue one pill after each meal. Don't stop—until your tongue is clean. You will be surprised at the tonic effect this doctor's formula will have on you.

Diabetics

If you have the slightest symptoms of Diabetes—such as excessive thirst, inordinate hunger, with loss of weight in spite of keen appetite, with nervousness, irritability, restlessness, anxiety over trifles and loss of strength—lose no time in reading one of the most remarkable books of the day, "Is Diabetes Curable?"

It will be mailed free to anyone who will send merely name and address to Sanborn Laboratories, 3611 Sanborn Building, Battle Creek, Michigan. It describes the Sanborn home treatment and relates the experiences of men and women of national prominence who restored themselves to perfect health after other treatments had failed.

The book has 78 pages bound in board covers and is a mine of authentic information for those who are suffering from Diabetes.

For 16 Years I Have Recommended Arbolone to Reduce

By Dr. Theodore Beck

WITH fashion demanding the slim silhouette for both men and women, there have been countless pleas for guidance and help from those who are many pounds overweight, yet who do not want to weaken themselves by too strict diets, or go to the bother of systematic exercises, both of which methods have oftentimes proven of little or no help, and in some cases have actually done more harm than good.

To them I have explained the teachings of science, that obesity or excess fat, is quite often the result of a partial failure of a certain gland to secrete and disperse through the blood an iodine gland substance which nature provided as a regulator of fat absorption from the food we consume. In these cases, and they are by far in the majority, the problem is to simply administer small, harmless amounts of this gland substance, thus lending the necessary aid our bodies need in the control of fat accumulation.

Many years ago, by experiments and analysis, I found that Arbolone tablets have the correct ingredients which go to control the condition I have outlined above, and as a consequence, I have unhesitatingly recommended them to thousands of my readers residing in all parts of our beautiful United States. Taken as per directions which are contained in each package. I have never known them to be harmful. On the contrary, many have written grateful letters, telling of reductions of from 10 to 75 pounds, and of enjoying better health and greater happiness with their new, slender, graceful figures. Leading drug stores dispense Arbolone tablets.

"Have taken one box of ARBOLONE and have lost 11 pounds. Before beginning it, I could not walk upstairs without being exhausted and out of breath, but now it does not wind me in the least. I feel so much better, I intend to continue taking ARBOLONE until my weight is back to normal." Mrs. Joseph A. P——, ——— Reba Place, Evanston, Ill.

"It is with great pleasure that I write you of the benefit derived from ARBOLONE. I am now reduced to the desired weight and in addition, I am enjoying better health." Mrs. H. F——, El Dorado, Ark.

"ARBOLONE has certainly done for me and another member of my family what nothing else could do, though we had tried for years." Miss N. M. St C——, Reg. Nurse, New York City.

"Thank you for the good ARBOLONE has done for me. When I first began taking the tablets, I noticed that I no longer had that stuffy feeling, so I kept on, and so far I have reduced from 180 pounds to 161 pounds. I am telling my stout friends about ARBOLONE because I know it did not do the least harm. But it does reduce." Mrs. H. A. P——, ——— Erie Ave., Renova, Pa.

Floods in Ontario Abate

RIVER LEVELS STILL MENACE TO LOWLANDS

Lumber From Mills Swept Into Lake and Many Idle As Factories Shut Down.

TORONTO, Ont., May 12.—(AP.)—Advices to William Finlayson, minister of lands and forests, today indicated that the flood waters which had been sweeping northern Ontario were abating but were still at menacing levels in some streams.

The greatest damage was at Field, above Sturgeon Falls, and at Cache Bay. Lumber from the mills at Cache Bay went over the dam at Sturgeon Falls and was carried down into Lake Nipissing. At Field many persons were driven from their homes. The greatest distress was suffered among the people of that district.

RIVERS CEASE TO RISE

The Ottawa and Gatineau rivers have ceased to rise and if no further waters swell the streams it is believed the danger to the residents of the lowlands will have been averted. The high water was still interfering with several factories near Ottawa, however, and many men have been thrown temporarily out of work.

The waters of Lake Temiskaming were within a foot of the Haileybury dock and threatening the municipal pumping station nearby. The plant of the Canada Northern Power Corporation at Indian Chutes on the Montreal River also has been flooded, but conditions elsewhere in that district were believed not serious.

In the vicinity of Montreal the rising waters have threatened many lowland homes, but it is Minister Finlayson's belief that the bulk of the snow and ice has melted and that further floods now are improbable.

Exhibit to Be Held By Schwab Students

Handiwork of the students of Schwab Manual Training School will be on exhibit in the school, Ninth avenue and Amity street, Homestead, next Thursday evening. All departments of the school will be represented, including the courses open to girls.

'Going Over'

FRANCE—First Sergeant Roup Clark, 28th Signal Company, Penn Armory, has been selected to represent his unit in the escort to the Pennsylvania memorial commission, sailing for France, May 19. Clark is a son of Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Clark, Knoxville, and grandson of the late Rev. Dr. Alexander Clark and the late Rev. Dr. W. W. Roup. Two older brothers of his are also World War veterans.

Beaver Jews Join in Cornerstone Laying

ROCHESTER, Pa., May 12.—A practical step toward Jewish unity, hailed as the first to be taken in this country, will be signalized tomorrow with the laying of the cornerstone of the Tree of Life Synagogue and Community Center at 3 p. m.

THREE BRANCHES JOIN

Three branches of Judaism, Orthodox, Conservative and Reformed, will be represented under one roof and religious service will be conducted "in a manner appealing to all elements and factions."

"Rabbis and leading laymen in America have been urging union and harmony from pulpit and through every public medium," said one of the leaders of the movement. "They have been pleading for broadmindedness among Jews of the various camps. It remains for 150 Jewish folk of the lower Beaver Valley to take the initial, practical step in this direction to express in unmistakable, concrete terms their belief that all Jews may worship from the same pulpit and under a single roof in promotion of this social, recreational and educational needs."

Rabbi Benjamin A. Lichter, Pittsburgh, will deliver the principal address at the cornerstone laying. Burgess John W. Hartzell will speak in behalf of the borough. The Rev. W. F. Bostick, pastor of the First Baptist Church, will speak on "The Jews." Judge Frank E. Reader will represent Beaver county and William Barnett, the local Jewish community. Samuel Cohen, Rochester, will be master of ceremonies.

STRUCTURE COST $25,000

The new synagogue, at Pinney street and New York avenue, will be of two stories. On the first floor will be the auditorium, classroom, business meeting room and kitchen. The synagogue proper will be on the second floor. The cost will be about $25,000.

I. I. Ecker is president of the organization. Ben Riesberg is chairman of the building committee.

Fayette Legions to Hold Joint Memorial

CONNELLSVILLE, PA., May 12.—American Legion posts at Vanderbilt and Dawson will hold a joint observance of Memorial Day, May 30. Members of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union at Perryopolis have arranged to decorate graves of Revolutionary War soldiers in two old cemeteries there.

IMPORTANT SALES POSITION NOW AVAILABLE

A position requiring contact with business executives in Pittsburgh and surrounding territory is now available. The important requisite is a demonstrated ability to secure interviews with important and busy people. Fully developed sales experience and ability is essential.

The thing to be sold is an intangible and its selling requires imagination and ability to build a picture in the other man's mind. It has been sold successfully in this territory, and the profit possibilities are much above the average.

Write briefly about yourself, giving age, education, business experience and earnings. If satisfactory, an interview will be arranged in the immediate future. Our own organization are informed regarding this advertisement.

The NEW FORD BUSINESS COUPE

An unusually good car for the business and professional man because of its

Beauty
Safety
Comfort
Reliability
Low first-cost
Economy and
Low up-keep

This illustration shows the new Ford Business Coupe. Top covering and rear quarter are of long-wearing heavily coated leatherette. Rear deck has a luggage space of 14 cubic feet and the opening is 35 3/8 inches wide. Large parcel shelf behind seat is another convenient feature.

THE new Ford Business Coupe has been specially designed to meet the needs of business executives, salesmen, physicians, and the thousands upon thousands of other men and women who use an automobile for its practical utility in their daily work as well as for pleasure in their hours of leisure.

You will like its low, trim, graceful lines—its beautiful colors—its snug protection from all kinds of weather—the generous seat room—the unusually large luggage space provided in the rear deck—the rich simplicity of its finish and full-nickeled appointments—its alert speed and quick acceleration.

Security in driving is another feature you will appreciate in the new Ford Business Coupe because of the safety of the steel body, four-wheel brakes and Triplex shatter-proof windshield.

Long trips over rough roads and long hours at the wheel are made easier because of the restful tilt of the deeply cushioned seat and the easy-riding comfort of the new transverse springs and Houdaille shock absorbers. The economy of 20 to 30 miles per gallon of gasoline means a considerable saving in the cost of running this car for your own use or the use of your business.

But greater even than this beauty and these details of operation, comfort and convenience is the mechanical reliability which is such an outstanding feature of the performance of all the new Ford cars.

This reliability means a great deal to every motorist and is of special importance to men and women who drive a car many miles each day the whole year through. It is the direct result of the simplicity of mechanical design of the new Ford and the rugged strength and enduring quality which have been built into every part of it.

The new Ford Roadster is another good car for business use. Top may be raised quickly and easily. Furnished with rumble seat if desired at slight extra cost. Your choice of a variety of colors.

For the low price of the new Ford is not due to cheapness of material or to cheapness of construction, but to established Ford methods of manufacture and production which cut many dollars off the price that you would ordinarily have to pay for a car of this kind.

Every purchaser of a new Ford shares the benefits of the established Ford policy of selling at a small margin of profit—of owning the source of raw materials—of constantly giving greater and greater value without increased cost.

Because of this policy, the new Ford is not just a new model—not just a new automobile—but the advanced expression of a wholly new idea in modern, economical transportation.

The new Ford Business Coupe sells for $495, which is the same price as the regular Coupe and the Tudor Sedan. The Roadster sells for $385, the Phaeton for $395, and the Sport Coupe, with wide, substantial rumble seat, for $550.

All of the new Ford cars are furnished in a pleasing variety of beautiful two-tone color harmonies.

The prices given are F. O. B. Detroit. They include four Houdaille hydraulic shock absorbers, mechanical, internal expanding-shoe type four-wheel brakes, Triplex shatter-proof glass windshield, gasoline gage on instrument panel, windshield wiper, dash light, mirror, combination stop and tail light, theft-proof coincidental ignition lock, and high pressure grease gun lubrication.

MALONE STARS AS BEARS RUN WIN STRING TO SEVEN GAMES

Ott Gets Three of Only Six Hits Garnered by McGraw's Sluggers.

O'Farrell Gets Pinch Single In Debut; Terry Back in Lineup.

CHICAGO, May 12.—(AP.)—Pat Malone had the better of Larry Benton in a pitching battle here today, and the Cubs won the first game of the series from the Giants, 4 to 2, to chalk up their seventh straight success. One big inning sufficed—the sixth, in which the Cubs scored three times on Malone's walk, Maguire's single, Webb's triple and Wilson's sacrifice fly.

Malone held the Giants to six hits, three of which were credited to Melvin Ott.

Bill Tery returned to the game today.

INDIANS STOP MACKS, 3 TO 1

PHILADELPHIA, May 12.—(AP.)—The Cleveland Indians broke the Athletics' winning streak of six straight today when Walter Miller beat Ossie Orwoll in a hurling duel by a score of 3 to 1.

The Indians broke a 1-1 tie in the eighth when Fonseca's single scored Gerken and Summa's sacrifice fly tallied Joe Sewell.

Joe Hauser accounted for the Athletics' lone run by hitting his seventh home run of the season. The score:

Ruth, Gehrig Hit Homers As Yanks Top Tigers, 8-7

NEW YORK, May 12.—(AP.)—The big bats of the Yankee home run twins functioned simultaneously today and enabled New York to nose out the Detroit Tigers, 8 to 7, in the ninth inning of a hectic game.

Lou Gehrig registered his fifth circuit blow of the season in the third with Owen Carroll pitching and Babe Ruth sent one of Lil Stoner's shoots spinning in the sixth for the eighth Ruthian round trip of the season. The bases were empty on each occasion.

The Tigers battered the veteran Stanley Coveleskie from the mound in the third after having touched him for four runs in the second. Johnson was sent into retirement in the sixth and Al Shealy, who got

Fumble Gives Bucs Win

BOBBLE PROVES COSTLY—Harvey Hendrick, third baseman of the Brooklyn Robins, had a woozy day of it against the Pirates in the opening game of the series between the clubs at Forbes Field Saturday, culminating it with a fumble in the ninth inning that let in the winning run, as diagrammed above. He also fumbled Scott's grounder in the sixth inning and in the fifth fanned with the bases full. He failed to get a hit in five times at bat. But every day isn't as bad as this one proved and Hendrick can find consolation in this thought and make an effort to keep on living and hoping to get by in the hard, hard world.

RED SOX DOWN BROWNS, 15-2

BOSTON, May 12.—(INS.)—Boston made 11 runs in the third inning off three St. Louis pitchers today and eventually defeated the Browns, 15 to 2.

This is what happened in the third. Flagstead walked. Todt singled. Myer singled, filling the bases. Flagstead scored on K. Williams' sacrifice to Grannon. Regan got an infield hit, filling the bases. Taitt singled, scoring Todt. Gerber walked, forcing in Myer. Berry singled, scoring Regan and Taitt. Hoffman replaced Stewart in the box for St. Louis. Russell forced Gerber, Hofmann to Melillo. Both runners advanced on a wild pitch. Flagstead singled, scoring Berry and Russell. Todt singled, Myer singled, scoring Flagstead. Manush let the ball go by him and Todt scored, Myer taking third. Beck replaced Hofmann. K. Williams knocked a home run into the right field stands, scoring Myer ahead of him. Regan was safe when McNeelly dropped a line drive. Regan stole second. Taitt walked. Gerber popped to Blue, ending the rally. The score:

PIRATES COME FROM REAR TO GRAB VICTORY OVER DODGERS

Error in Closing Inning Allows Lloyd Waner to Score With Winning Run.

Glenn Wright Drives Ball Into Stands With Paul Waner on Base.

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

THE Pirates gave 10,000 fans a real treat Saturday afternoon by coming from behind in the ninth in a Frank Merriwell fashion to score two runs and snatch a victory right out of the grasp of the Dodgers. The score was 5 to 4.

Fred Brickell, 26-year-old outfielder, sprinter and former scholastic football star, gave the hard-fought contest a dime novel touch in the ninth when he ripped off with a slashing single to right as he batted for Bunker Hill of Corry.

The Pirates were beaten by a run as they entered the ninth. Brickell's hit was followed by a blow from Sprout Waner's bat. This hit took Doug McWheeny off Fogarty knoll in favor of Knoxville Bill Doak. Doak was not on the mound long until ar error scored the winning run.

WRIGHT TIES SCORES

Adams greeted Doak with a sacrifice and Uncle Robbie ordered Bill to walk Brother Paul, thus putting the important issue up to Glenn Wright, who was a big hero in a game that provided many headliners. Wright smacked in the tying run on a long fly to Babe Herman in right and L.

CHILLY SAUCE
By CHILLY DOYLE

THE speed shown by Catcher Jimmy Wilson in getting out of a Philly uniform and into the spangles of the Redbirds was not the least interesting angle of the swap between the Quakers and Cardinals. It was quite right and proper for Jimmy to join up with his new mates as soon as the trade was announced; nevertheless the situation is an amusing one to those who appreciate the feelings of a player who has a chance to leave the Phillies for a flag-contender.

The system of running the Quakers is not conducive to contentment among the rank and file of the club's players. Athletes who like to be on winning combinations often fall into a lethargic state while performing for the cellar champs, especially if the player is a high-strung individual.

CASEY STENGEL offers a rather amusing spectacle in so far as his career with the Phillies is concerned. Casey's troubles in Pittsburgh, it will be remembered, came to a sort of dull climax when Hugo Bezdek traded him to the Phillies for George Whitted. Charles was not pleased with his Pirate connections, but he figured he was in bondage when he learned of his transfer to the Baker Bowl.

Anyhow, it was not long before Casey was out of the Quaker lineup with a bad back. No doubt Charles had an attack of lumbago and he could not see the percentage of taking chances with the sore spine on the short fence with nothing at stake but a position in the coal hole. About this time, however, John McGraw saw the need of an infielder. He thought Stengel would help his championship outfit, so he arranged a deal with President Baker.

IMAGINE Casey's embarrassment on a certain rainy afternoon in Philly. The game had been called off and the Quakers were having a little card game in the clubhouse. Enter a messenger with an announcement to the effect that Casey had been swapped to the Giants.

"Well, well," Charles is supposed to have yawned. "Do you know, fellows, that my back is quite a bit better today? Will someone please dress with me and come out to hit me a few fungoes?" And Casey caught the evening train for Manhattan.

JAMES COTTON TIERNEY was with the Phillies on one of their disastrous western trips. The Quakers, under Art Fletcher, made some swell invasions of the West, Redland Field in particular, being a burying ground for Philly hopes. The team just could not win against the Reds.

Fletcher is a fighting guy and naturally a long series of setbacks would have a toll on his nerves. Well, the Quakers were battling the Reds one afternoon with the usual parade of Philly pitchers from the bullpen to the mound in evidence. Eventually Arthur ran out of pitchers and in the emergency he had to use one of his utility players as a sharpshooter. This boy relieved one of the late victims and was greeted with a fusilade of safe swats.

FLETCHER, according to Cotton, was just about ready for a doctor as this was occurring. Finally Art could stand it no longer. Grabbing a big white bath towel that is a part of the bench equipment, Fletcher rolled it up and was about to throw it onto the diamond as a signal of defeat.

It is reported that Bert Shotton is beginning to feel the same way Fletcher did when he wanted to toss in the towel.

BRICKELL'S pinch single in the ninth was a real drive. The young outfielder is an improved ball player who might be able to hold up his end if he were played in a big league garden.

ADAM COMOROSKY'S shoulder is on the mend. After Joe Harris had batted for Scott in the eighth, Commy went to left field.

THE Pirates and Dodgers left Saturday night for Brooklyn. They will play a single game in the Flatbush Sunday afternoon, after which they will return to Forbes Field Monday to resume the fight.

BURLEIGH GRIMES went to Brooklyn a day ahead to be primed for the Sunday game. Burleigh will be on the slab against his old teammates. Jim Elliott is due to face the Pirates.

WOODLAWN WINS

Hitting the offerings of Maurer and Tucker freely, the Woodlawn Independents swamped the J. W. Reineckers by a 17-to-9 score at Woodlawn Saturday. Ertz was the hero of the home team, hitting a homer with two on in the second stanza. Liggett starred for the visitors with a brace of hits. The score:

PHILADELPHIA COMPANY ONLY NEW ENTRANT

McClintock, of University Club, Re-Elected President Of Net Body.

Extensive Tournament Program Planned for P. A. A. Courts in June.

THE backward tennis season will gather further impetus here this week with the Pittsburgh Tennis Association Inter-Club League campaign swinging formally into action Saturday on Stanton Heights, Edgewood, and Westinghouse courts. The local circuit gets under way this year with virtually the same array of contestants as of yore, the lone change involving the Second Division wherein Ted McQuiston's Philadelphia Company outfit replaces the West Penn Power aggregation which has withdrawn because of lack of playing facilities. The Philadelphia Company is constructing several clay rectangles in the Point Breeze district and will be at home there within a very short time.

At the recent meeting of the Pittsburgh Tennis Association, Frank S. McClintock, of the University Club, was re-elected to the presidency. New officers to enter upon duties are G. A. Sawin, Westinghouse, first vice president; H. E. Campbell, College Hill, second vice president; Don Mattern, University Club, treasurer, and Paul G. Sullivan, P. A. A., secretary. Plans are in motion for an extensive match and tournament play season, the tourney jousting getting under way under P. A. A. auspices in mid-June.

COLLEGE HILL IDLE

The inter-club opening six days hence will find only First Division squads doing battle, the lower loop inaugural being billed for a week later. In the top sector, College Avenue, captained by J. Howard Moore, will invade Marion Rinehart's Stanton Heights domain; Dave O'Loughlin will take his Winged Head racqueters to Edgewood, and Don Mattern's University Club crew will be entered by G. A. Sawin and his Westinghouse followers. College Hill, Beaver Falls entry, under the management of Howdy Campbell, will be idle. The association's 1928 schedule:

FIRST DIVISION.

Hill, Former Grid Star at Chicago, Dies

CHICAGO, May 12.—(AP.)—Melville A. (Bubbles) Hill, tackle of the Western Championship University of Chicago football team of 1905, died today in St. Luke's Hospital after 45 people had volunteered to submit to a blood transfusion which physicians hoped would save his life.

Mid-Atlantic Umps, Chief

STRONG AGGREGATION — The Mid-Atlantic League boasts a colorful aggregation of umpires, including Charley Schmidt, former Detroit catcher; Frank Delahanty, formerly of the New York and Cleveland Americans and member of a famous baseball family; Denny O'Keefe, veteran arbiter, who is past 50; Sam Richardson, who stands 6 feet 3 inches tall and formerly worked in the Piedmont, South Atlantic and other leagues; Danny Friend from the Virginia League; Bill Ragan, from the Cotton States League, and George McNally of Altoona and Red Robinson of Pittsburgh, who worked in the loop last season. Robinson is a former boxer and now a boxing referee. He umpired in the Eastern League before hooking up with the Mid-Atlantic. Picture above shows President Elmer Daily of Windber and his umpiring staff. Left to right they are: Back row—Danny Friend, Dennis O'Keefe, Sam Richardson and Charley Schmidt. Front row—Frank Delahanty, George McNally, President E. M. Daily, Red Robinson and Bill Ragan.

PIRATES

Waner carried the winning marker to third on the same play.

Pie Traynor made a determined effort to drive in the winning counter. Pie hit a hard grounder toward left which should have resulted in the third out, but Harvey Hendrick, a made-over outfielder playing the hot corner, fumbled the ball momentarily and then pulled Harry Riconda off second as he sought to make a force play. Sprout Waner went over with the winning run.

Wright was deep in the victory of the Pirates with a homer into the right field stands that also scored P. Waner, a double that was wasted and his sacrifice fly that had so much bearing on the tying and winning runs.

HERMAN MAKES FINE CATCH

The battle brought out one of the greatest and grandest catches that Forbes Field fans have witnessed in many years, Babe Herman being the hero. The crowd arose in the sixth to follow the fly of a smack off Earl Smith's bat that seemed to be ticketed for the right field stands.

Herman running fast, but measuring the zone beautifully, jumped high up the wall and made a backhand catch of the ball an instant before it was due to fall against the stands. The fans gave the enemy player a remarkable ovation, they realizing that the player had turned in a circus capture of the ball.

Carmen Hill pitched the entire game for the Pirates and really deserved a victory. Bunker made a wide throw to second in the eighth inning trying for a double play, the misplay leading to a run for the Dodgers that broke a tie at this late stage.

Bissonette singled with one out, Riconda hit to Hill, who threw wide to Wright, and both runners were safe. Bancroft's hot smash was nailed by Traynor, who tried for a smart play by way of Adams, but Pie's hurried throw was wide and Bissonette scored.

Out in front with a run, Manager Robinson decided to put Scoops Carey in left instead of Rube Bressler to strengthen his defense. It was a good idea, but the Pirates were able to get to McWeeny in the ninth.

Bill Clark, a young left hander who has been starring for the Robins, worked four rounds against the Pirates before Tyson batted for him. McWeeny entered the battle in the fifth.

Wright tried to get the Pirates into the scoring column in his first joust with Clark. Glenn banged out a double to left to open the second inning. Traynor's hot shot started out like a single, but Clark nailed it, threw out Pie and held Wright at second. Grantham and Scott were both retired, leaving Glenn at second.

Neither side was able to dent the home plate in the first three rounds. One was out in the fourth when Paul Waner whipped a single to right, and then Wright threw the multitude into an uproar with his homer into the stands.

GRANTHAM SCORES PIE

Traynor stepped up and pulled a double to left and Grantham sent the Pirate captain speeding to the plate with a single to center. It looked like more scoring for the Pirates when Scott, with the hit-and-run on, singled to left, sending Grantham to third.

Smith's bad leg seemed to hurt the Pirate case at this junction. Earl hit a grounder to the left of Riconda, but the Dodger infielder was able to whip over a double play to retire the side as Grantham went over the plate.

The Dodgers forced a deadlock in the fifth when they made four safeties off Hill. Bancroft and Hargraves singled and Tyson batted for Clark. Al also singled, scoring Bancroft. Partridge batted for Statz and drew a walk that filled the bases. Hill fanned Hendrick in the clinch, but Herman doubled to score Hargreaves and Tyson.

Jack Johnson Kayos Booze In Talk on Prohibition

KANSAS CITY, May 12.—(AP.)—A technical knockout over John Barleycorn before an audience of churchmen has been added to Jack Johnson's long list of triumphs.

Appearing before a world-wide prohibition meeting at the general conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church here yesterday, the former heavyweight champion was applauded by bishops and ministers when he attributed his physical condition to "not drinking, not carousing and getting a good night's rest."

The veteran Negro fighter was introduced by Dr. Clarence True Wilson, of Washington, D. C., Methodist dry leader, who announced Johnson as an impromptu prohibition speaker.

"I want you to know," said Johnson, "that I am absolutely against whisky, beer and all intoxicating liquor, because I do not believe liquor helps the human body at all."

After extensive applause, Johnson said he felt as well at 50 as he did when he was 18 and that he believed his good health was due to abstinance from liquor and getting his rest regularly.

"To serve God," he continued, "you must train the mind as well as the soul. Liquor and other things deprave the mind and soul. I wish you success in your battle to drive liquor out of America."

Johnson then retired to a gymnasium where he is training for a bout with Big Bill Hartwell, local Negro, in Kansas City, Kan., Tuesday next. The former heavyweight titleholder recently was knocked out at Topeka, Kan., by Bearcat Wright, of Omaha.

Tech Beats State At Tennis, 4 to 2

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., May 12.—Carnegie Tech defeated Penn State at tennis here today, 5 matches to 2. FIRST OVER HURDLES — Vance, of Greensburg High School, winning the final heat of the 220-yard hurdles. He finished second in the low hurdles. Last week, he starred in the Carnegie Tech interscholastic meet.

CHAMPS SCORE CLOSE VICTORY IN FAST MEET

Miller Sprints to Triumphs In Three Events for High Point Score Crown.

South Brownsville and Peabody Press Hank Day's Squad; 22 Teams Place.

By JESS CARVER.

WASHINGTON HIGH SCHOOL'S Blue and Black clad track and field team made it black and blue for 22 other members of the W. P. I. A. L. when it carved out a second consecutive championship in the annual track and field meet in the Pitt Stadium Saturday afternoon.

Hank Day's proteges held an advantage of 6 points over their nearest competitors when the final results were tabulated. The boys from the home of W. & J. scored a total of 23 points, taking three firsts, one second, two thirds and one fourth place. The three firsts were won by Bill Miller, Washington's sensational sprinter, who captured the 100, 220 and 440-yard dashes, and won the individual high point trophy.

Second to Washington was South Brownsville, winner of the Carnegie Tech interscholastic championship the week previous. South Brownsville scored 17 points, its athletes failing to tally with any punch in the running events. Peabody High of Pittsburgh surprised the field by finishing third, 5-6 of a point ahead of Beaver Falls.

Peabody eased into the "money" when its relay team, composed of Parsons, Glassburn, Coulter and Williams sped to a fine triumph in the mile relay event. The time was 3:37, which is considered fast when the chill weather that accompanied the meet is considered.

MONOGAHELA FIFTH

Monogahela High, which made a bid for honors early in the day was fifth and New Castle sixth.

One record was broken. In the high jump, Cooper of Westinghouse, a Negro star, leaped 5 feet 11¾ inches to set a new W. P. I. A. L. mark. It was the best effort that has been made in tri-state competition so far this year, collegiate records included.

Miller's performances were the features of the meet. The blond Washington star raced to fairly easy victories in the century and quarter-mile events, but somewhat tired when it came to the 220. He was closely pressed by Williams of Peabody. Indeed, it was the opinion of myself and a number of coaches and officials who saw the finish of the race that Williams had won and should have been awarded the gold medal.

FALLS TEAM TRIES

As in the Tech meet a week ago, Beaver Falls made a valiant effort to bring the beautiful title trophy back to Beaver Valley, where it has not been since Beaver High won it in 1926. The Heckathorn team took two first places and one third, but two-fourths and one-sixth of a point in the pole vault spoiled the score.

South Brownsville, with Striblin, Cesarone and Shelton trying hard, made a determined bid for the victory, but Miller's fine running almost assured a Washington triumph before the meet was half over.

Cesarone hurled the discus the fair distance of 124 feet, 4 inches and upheld his reputation of being the best scholastic discus tosser in the league, or, for that matter, the entire tri-state section. Striblin placed first in the broad jump and second in the century. It was up to him to hold Miller in check, but he failed to accomplish this end.

Vance, Greensburg's hurdler, failed to win both events as it had been expected he would. He got away with the high timbers O. K., but ran second to Moore of Beaver Falls in the low ones.

Peck Lee brought a surprise package down from Ellwood City and scored seven points, his man McMurdo winning the shot put and placing third in the gruelling 880-yard run.

New Castle was just one-sixth of a point ahead of New Brighton, which produced an all-around star in Dyson. This lad took second in both the shot and discus and third in the javelin. Westinghouse tied with New Brighton with eight points.

Jeannette and Allentown split the low score medal, tallying a bare one-sixth of a point, and if you don't think one-sixth of a point is bare, you have another think coming. The summary:

TRACK EVENTS

100-yard dash—Won by Miller, Washington; Striblin, South Brownsville, second; Wertz, Greensburg, third; Brooks, Beaver Falls, fourth. Time, 10 2-5 seconds.

Javelin—Won by Craft, New Castle; Bezes, Aliquippa, second; Dyson, New Brighton, third; Schmidt, Donora, fourth. Distance, 159 feet 8½ inches.

Pete Zivic Is Stopped

NEW YORK, May 12.—(AP.)—Bushy Graham, Utica, N. Y., bantamweight, knocked out Pete Zivic of Pittsburgh in the fourth round of a scheduled 10-round bout at the Olympia A. C., here tonight.

Zivic went down three times for counts of nine before he went to the floor for the full count. Graham weighed 120½ pounds and Zivic 121½.

Jack Casey and Joe Baker Enter Bridgeville Races

Jack Casey and Joe Baker, both of Pittsburgh, will renew their automobile racing feud in the opening events of the season, scheduled Wednesday afternoon, May 30, (Decoration Day) on the famous half-mile speedway at Bridgeville.

Among the first batch of filled entry blanks received by Henry Coslow, director and manager of the famous Bridgeville Speedway, were those of Casey and Baker, two drivers who have been rivals for years in the racing sport.

Casey has made rapid strides in the racing sport in recent years and looms as a real threat in the Decoration Day events at Bridgeville. A veteran campaigner of the dirt and board tracks, Casey is hopeful of carrying off high honors on Decoration Day. Baker, however, does not intend to permit his old rival to have things his own way and is just as confident that he will lead the way in the inaugural classic of the season.

Judging by the number of drivers entering the three events scheduled Decoration Day a record-breaking entry list will face the starter. Drivers from all sections of the tri-state district have entered cars in the two 25-mile races and the 50-mile event in an effort to share in the distribution of the huge cash prizes.

The Bridgeville Speedway has undergone numerous improvements, according to Director Coslow, and will be in fine shape for the opening races of the season. Interest in the inaugural is reported high throughout the tristate district and indications are that a large throng of racing enthusiasts will turn out for the three events on the program.

RACES AT MON CITY

Seven events are carded for Memorial Day at the Monongahela Speedway which marks the inaugural of the racing season at the popular upriver tracks. The races will be under the supervision of the American Automobile Association, and only A. A. A. drivers, of good standing will be eligible. The program which has been arranged by C. H. Trask, the manager of the speedway, differs radically from the races held in previous years. The seven events will be made up as follows: One mile trials, four five-mile races, one 10-mile race, and one additional five-mile event.

DANCE, RACE CARDED

BUTLER, Pa., May 12.—Western Pennsylvania will have its first outdoor marathon dancing contest Decoration Day at the Butler county Fair Grounds. It will be held in conjunction with a big automobile racing program on that day and date.

The distance to be covered by the entrants in this new and novel sort of a dance event will be over the accepted regulation length of 26 miles and the bit more yardage that has been written in the book for marathon running competition. The terpsichoreans who will vie with each other for victory to garner in the alluring prizes offered will do their fast and fancy stepping on a specially constructed platform directly opposite the spacious grandstand at the Butler course.

HELEN WILLS NET VICTOR

American Champion Defeats Kea Bouman, 6-1, 6-2.

THE HAGUE, May 12.—(AP.)—Helen Wills thrilled a crowd of from 2,000 to 4,000 spectators today in winning a whirlwind match from Kea Bouman, who was able to annex but three games in two sets. The American girl seemed in top form, driving with overpowering speed and placing with almost unerring accuracy. The match was over in 30 minutes.

Rollin Couquerque, the Dutch woman's champion, won from Penelope Anderson in straight sets, the Dutch girl's steadiness proving the decisive factor.

The Dutch won the series of matches, 3 to 2. Miss Wills defeated both Miss Couquerque and Miss Bouman, while Miss Anderson lost her matches and the Dutch team won the doubles.

French Score Tennis Tax, May Refuse Cup Play

NET LEADERS, ANGERED, PLAN FINAL ABROAD

British Agree to Permit Staging of Challenge Round at Wimbledon.

Outcome of Suits Against Racquet Clubs, Now Pending, to Decide Stand.

PARIS, May 12.—(AP.)—The Davis Cup challenge round may be played in England instead of France, holder of the championship tennis trophy. The French Tennis Federation is seriously considering staging the matches in England — Wimbledon preferred—unless the government abandons its policy of taxing not only gate receipts at tennis tournaments, but dues members pay various clubs as well. An official statement from the tennis federation, issued this evening, reveals that a change of venue is under consideration.

The entire question depends on the outcome of several suits instituted in Paris courts by the treasury against tennis clubs for recovery of taxes claimed and which clubs have refused to pay. The suits will be heard before the end of May. Should the decision go against the tennis clubs, the Federation will insist that the Davis Cup challenge round be played at Wimbledon. Wimbledon officials have been sounded as to their possible reaction to such a proposal and the suggestion is said to have been received with enthusiasm.

CLUBS DISBAND

Several tennis clubs in the North of France have disbanded and others are expected to follow suit.

"With real administrative unconsciousness the tax collector is now wrecking France's magnificent tennis career," the Federation communique says.

"No one except the tax collector is unaware that if France now occupies the top position in the world of tennis it is due to tournaments where players like La-Coste, Borotra and Cochet have been developed and it will be impossible to continue such tournaments if the treasury maintains its present attitude."

OTHER SPORTS NOT TAXED

Rugby, soccer and other athletic games are not taxed but tennis is not classified as a sport but as mere recreation and is held subject to taxes like music halls and theaters. A heavy percentage of the receipts goes for taxes.

Representations have been made to the ministry of foreign affairs which has a special bureau working with the French Olympic committee and a delegation from the Federation has been promised a hearing.

CUP NET STARS IN ST. LOUIS

ST. LOUIS, May 12.—(AP.)—Wilbur Coen, Jr., of Kansas City, arrived today and with four other members of the Davis Cup tennis squad practiced at the Triple A. courts preparatory for the trial matches which open Thursday.

Capt. William T. Tilden of Philadelphia, Arnold Jones of Providence, George Lott of Chicago and Wray Brown of St. Louis worked out with the Kansas City youth, now an alternate on the team, who hopes for a permanent place.

John Hennessey of Indianapolis and Wilmer Allison of Austin, Tex., are expected to arrive Monday morning, when formal practice will begin.

The official schedule, released tonight, includes three singles matches each afternoon, starting at 1:30 o'clock, Central Standard time. Several doubles matches probably will be played later in the week.

The singles schedule follows:

Thursday—Hennessey vs. Brown, Jones vs. Coen, Lott vs. Allison.

All matches will be for the best three out of five sets.

Pirates Doing Well Considering Handicap of Ailing Pitchers—Wisdom of McKechnie's Trades Apparent — Barnhart Likely to Be Regular in Left Field — Mandell - McLarnin Fight, Kentucky Derby and Hagen's Comeback Discussed

THE second week at home was not nearly so successful for the Pirates as the first, and the team did not show to the same advantage as during the opening lap of the first long stand of the season on the local grounds, but when conditions are considered the work of the club was fully up to any reasonable expectations.

No fault can be found with the Bucs for their slight skidding recently, as when you take a look at the state of affairs in the pitching department it will become apparent that Donie Bush and his ballers have been up against a heavier handicap than any other outfit in the major league.

Rival clubs have been shouting alibis from the housetops because they were deprived of a few players for a few days through attacks of grip, but if you sum up their exaggerated casualties and weigh them against Pittsburgh's, you will find that they have been having a smooth trip down the pennant stream as compared with the rough weather encountered by the Pirates.

Star Pitchers Out

It is unnecessary to look any further than that fact for three of the most valuable pitchers on the home staff have been practically out of commission all season, and the loss of a star hurler is a hardest blow that can be dealt to a club.

All told last season, Hill, Kremer and Meadows won 60 ball games for the Buccaneers, but this year, with more than a month of the season gone the same three slabmen have won a grand total of only three victories.

Imagine how hard the Giants would be hit if they were to lose Benton, Barnes and Fitzsimmons; how the Cubs would be weakened by the loss of Root, Blake and Bush; how the Cards would be lessened in strength by having Alexander, Haines and Sherdel on the shelf; how hard the Reds would be pressed without Rixey, Lucas and Luque or Donohue, and how much the Dodgers would miss Vance, Petty and Elliott.

Proves Team's Class

The fact that the Bucs have managed to stay in the fight and keep from falling below the .500 mark in spite of the latest injuries to these star hurlers proves the class of the team. It has gone ahead, batting its way to a reasonable number of victories behind pitching that was at times below par, and their success in keeping up among the leaders under such conditions speaks volumes for the class of the team and paints a bright future for the Bucs when they get their full strength assembled later in the season.

The locals are so close to the leaders at that that a few days could put them right up near the top. Indications are that the National League will have the closest and most open fight it has known in years.

To date six clubs have been in the running, the going being so close several days ago that only a game and a half separated the first and sixth teams. If the Pirates can keep in that fight with three of their best pitchers missing, it follows that they may be depended upon to take care of themselves when they regain the strength that is now missing.

Offensively the Pirates have been going in good style, barring an occasional game in which they ran into exceptionally good hitting and the chances are that this hitting will be even harder soon.

While on the subject of hitting, it is amusing to note the results of the attempts of the opposing teams to silence the bats of the Waner brothers by sending left-hand pitchers against them. Left-handers are just as easy for the whaling kids from Oklahoma as right-handers generally are. In 22 times at bat against southsiders, Lloyd has made 12 hits for an average of .375, including three triples and a double, and in 30 times at bat against right-handers [illegible]

BIG DEALS

BILL M'KECHNIE was suspected by some of the fans hereabouts of having pulled a boner when he traded Catcher Bob O'Farrell to New York Thursday night for Outfielder George Harper, but thinking baseball followers were inclined to give him at least an even break on the exchange because he obtained a left-hand hitter whom he needed sorely to hit home runs into that short right-field stand, whereas McGraw had grabbed only a second good catcher, and you can't use two catchers in a club's lineup at one time.

If any doubt remained that McKechnie knew exactly what he was doing when he made the swap with the Giants, it must have been dispelled Friday night when the announcement came that Bill had put over an even more surprising deal and had acquired Jimmy Wilson, of the Phillies, the best catcher in the National League, unless Leo Hartnett, of the Cubs, may be given an even break with him.

Big Sum Figured

The announcement that in return for Wilson the Cards gave up only Virgil Davis, a rookie catcher; Homer Peel, a second youngster from their Houston farm, with others promised, and then gave First Baseman Donald Hurst, of their Rochester farm, to the Phils for Pitcher Leo Decatur and First Baseman Joe Kelley, brought only a laugh from fans in general. They were too well acquainted with the money-grabbing policy of the Philadelphia club not to realize that the rookies were only a weak attempt at a coverup, and that the owners of the Phils had received a barrel of coin as the real price for Wilson.

It's a mysterious tangle all around, and there may be another deal or two before it is finished. It is not strange that St. Louis wanted to get rid of O'Farrell, not only on account of his reported $20,000 salary, but because it has come to be recognized that it is not a wise policy for a new manager to retain on his club the man who preceded him as pilot.

Sisler Went, Too

It stands to reason that a preceding pilot must have made some warm friends on the team, who would resent the coming of a new boss, and who would side with the man deposed in some ways that might prove harmful to the welfare and harmony of the club. Dan Howley tried it as boss of the Browns by retaining George Sisler, but he finally had to let him go.

In the opinion of many, Harper was a more valuable man to New York than O'Farrell can be, for McGraw has to work Frank Hogan behind the bat often to make him a star and it is a costly luxury to have $20,000 extra catcher sitting on the bench. Besides his arm is bad at times and he has not caught since April 29. O'Farrell can help coach young pitchers, but a catcher could have been obtained for that service without giving up a man as valuable as Harper, though it is true that as far as left-hand hitters for the outfield are concerned McGraw can spare Harper, as he still has Roush, Welsh and Ott to hit from the south side of the plate.

Another point in McKechnie's favor is that he needed a left-hand hitter for the outfield, as all of his other dependable Hafey, Douthit, Blades and Roettger—are right-hand batters.

It looks as if McKechnie has made a big gain by the exchange and that St. Louis will be more dangerous than ever as a pennant rival for the Pirates.

The bad taste of the proceedings is caused by the action of the Philadelphia club in committing the same old offense it has committed often in the past by selling a star player for cash. The club has sold every star player it ever owned. It is putting money before sports and giving a raw deal to the Philadelphia fans. How the latter stand for Mr. Baker and his methods is a prize puzzle.

Baker did not even play fairly in his latest selling operation, for during last winter the Pittsburgh club offered him as many as four players for Wilson, and told him to name his own price in cash, only to receive the reply that Wilson positively was not for sale. The New York club is suspected of having furnished some of the money to put the Wilson deal through for St. Louis, but if they were in a position to buy Wilson why did they take O'Farrell, who is not as good a catcher as Wilson?

SECOND D SHIFT

LAST Monday saw Manager Bush make the second shift he has tried this season in that vacant outfield post. Pete Scott is the latest man on the job in left field, following Clyde Barnhart and Adam Comerosky.

This time the change was forced by an accident. In last Sunday's exhibition game at Johnstown, Comerosky fell over a spectator in trying to catch a fly in left field, and though he felt no ill effects of the tumble at the time, his right shoulder was so sore on Monday that he could not throw.

True to his word that Scott would be given the next chance in the port pasture—inasmuch as he desired to give all the candidates a thorough looking over and trying out before making a choice for the job—Manager Bush sent Scott to the only position on the team that may be called open.

Pete has been there ever since, and doing right well, too, both in the field and at bat, barring a defensive slip on Thursday, though it is not to be expected that he will get as many safeties against right-handers as against left-handers. Southpaws always were Scott's favorite prey.

Best Bet Overlooked

As a result of Scott's good showing since he was given his first chance, local fans seem to be having quite an argument among themselves as to whether Scott will be named as the regular left fielder for the remainder of the season, or Comorosky will be given the place again regularly when his injured shoulder has recovered.

As a matter of fact, no one has been named or selected as the regular man for that vacant post on the picket line. Donie Bush is too smart a manager to take a chance on one man right off the bat without putting on a sort of elimination contest to determine what player among the three was entitled to first consideration. He announced that all three men would be given tryouts in turn and that one of the three would have to show him that he was better than the two others before he would make any award.

So you may paste it in your hat that neither Scott nor Comorosky has been definitely or finally chosen for the left-field job.

Indeed, from this corner, it looks as if the fans who are arguing about the relative merits of Scott and Comorosky are overlooking the best bet of the lot and are forgetting the presence in the background of the man who has a better chance than any one else of eventually being chosen for the place.

Barnhart Likely to Win

That man is Clyde Barnhart, one of the most popular, and deservedly so, players that ever wore a Pittsburgh uniform.

Don't overlook Barnhart in this left-field fight. He was taken out of the position because he wasn't hitting, but as a general rule Barnhart's hitting slumps are not of any great length, and it is usually only a question of a short time until he is cracking those line drives to the outfield or smashing the ball up against the fences, incidentally knocking runs over the plate that would probably stay on the bases and perhaps cause the loss of the game if Pooch were not in the lineup and delivering his timely wallops.

How can a player of that type be kept out of there when he settles into his normal form and shows a recovery of his batting eye? It simply can't be done without weakening the team, and Manager Bush rarely overlooks even the slightest point that would tend to strengthen his forces.

Barnhart may not be a blaze of color in the Pirate lineup, and he makes less noise probably than any other player in the league, but he sure can hit that old agate regardless of what pitcher in the circuit is on the slab against him, and that's what counts.

It takes runs to win ball games, and it takes base hits to knock them in, and when the run-producing qualities of Scott or Comorosky are weighed against those of Barnhart it is a mighty hard matter to figure how Pooch is going to be kept out of the lineup.

It may not be immediately, but when his slump is over and he is cracking the ball on the nose in his old time style it will not be surprising if Barnhart is found playing left field regularly in the lineup.

TWO IN FIGHT

OVER in the American League signs are pointing more strongly with each succeeding day to the probability of a race that will have only two clubs in it, the Yankees and the Athletics.

Possibly in the end there will be only one team in it, running along at a wide distance ahead of the pack, for that's what the Yanks are likely to do eventually, but for the present the Mackmen are speeding right along with the New Yorkers and away from the other clubs in the chase.

Question of Legs

Of the two the Yankees appear to be constructed of the better material, to have greater hitting power and more youth, and it is quite within the bounds of possibility that they will draw steadily away from the A's after the race is a month or two older.

The chief cloud in the Athletics' sky is the doubt as to the ability of their old players to hold out to the end of the campaign.

Tris and Cobb look all right now, but it must not be forgotten that the season is only a month old and that the severest strain on the creaking legs of this aging pair is yet to be undergone.

Even at this stage, Cobb and Speaker are said to look good in the outfield only when the ball is hit near where their sense of judgment has taught them to play for it. When they have to run for it they do not shine so brilliantly.

In other respects Cobb, drawing near to 42, and Speaker, past 40, may look like great helps toward the pennant. Their eyes are keen and they can think as fast as ever, but those legs cannot be expected to carry them along, particularly when the hot weather comes and the baked ground jars their venerable limbs.

It was weakening legs that caused Honus Wagner to retire after the 1917 season. He could hit and throw as well as ever, but his legs could not stand the strain of playing every day. Cobb and Speaker will have the same experience and it doesn't promise to help Philadelphia's pennant chances in the Barnard loop.

TOUGH FIGHT

AS a general rule it takes a heavyweight bout of unusual importance or promise to make fistic fandom wax enthusiastic, but there is many a fight follower who, for real fireworks, would prefer to see that opening outdoor battle in New York next Thursday night to any clash that could be arranged among the present crop of big fellows.

The bout in question is that between Sammy Mandell, titleholder, and Jimmy McLarnin, challenger, with the lightweight championship of the world at stake on the 15-round engagement.

It is to be a meeting of a quick and terrific hitter with a fast, smart, skillful boxer, and trying to pick the winner of it is one of the toughest propositions that has confronted ring followers in some time.

When McLarnin flattened Sid Terris in a fifty, he became the rage of the glove world, and in their enthusiasm over his soporific punch the fans would have made him a strong favorite in the betting if the meeting with Mandell had been held at that time.

Mandell Stock Rises

But since that date the fightgoers have had a chance to study the proposition, and the result is that Mandell has been found to possess some extraordinary qualities of his. This has caused the champion's stock to rise, with the outcome that probably the majority of fightgoers are now picking him to win.

They realize that Mandell is a master of the boxing art, too smart to be caught napping by any ancient tricks, the owner of a fine left hand, able to unleash some forceful punches himself when the opportunity offers, and, while not as fast as he was a couple of years ago, still much faster than Terris was when McLarnin brought him down.

In a general sense the fight shapes up as a meeting between a puncher and a boxer. Though Mandell is almost two years older than McLarnin, he has not yet reached the age at which a fighter starts to go back from natural causes, and in the matter of experience, a huge item in the fight game, the Italian-Albian has tremendous advantage over his Irish opponent. The only thing that leaves any doubt about his present condition is that the majority of the 13 men he met during 1927 were second or third raters. This kind of opposition may have failed to keep him on the right edge.

Punch Against Skill

It's a gamble between the punch and the boxing skill. What doth it profit a man, as was asked in Peter Maher's time, to have a punch if he cannot land it? And McLarnin will have his troubles hitting Mandell, for the latter is about as clever as they come and can pile up points with a busy left hand while at the same time keeping himself protected against McLarnin's wallop.

In a case like this it is easy to figure either principal as a winner. You know how Jim Corbett and others who depended almost exclusively on boxing ability cut heavy-hitting opponents to pieces, but, on the other hand, you will also recall that Terry McGovern's murderous punch knocked out the clever Pedlar Palmer in the first round; that Dal Hawkins, with nothing but a punch, almost put Joe Gans away on two occasions; how Aurelio Herrera stopped Eddie Santry and others much cleverer than himself; how Stanley Ketchel brought down the skillful Philadelphia Jack O'Brien, and how Jack Dempsey came within an ace of winning his title back from Tunney.

The dope says that you've got to hit a man to knock him out, and on that account Mandell's cleverness and tight defense will give him an edge on McLarnin in the dope of the majority of fight critics, but through it all you must bear in mind that the man with the punch always has a chance.

DERBY NEAR

HORSE-RACING interest in the United States will reach its peak next Saturday, when the fifty-fourth running of the Kentucky Derby will take place at Churchill Downs.

As the classic of American turfdom, the blue ribbon of the racing game in this country, the Kentucky Derby always attracts wider and greater interest and causes more "horse talk" than any other event of that nature held within the borders of the United States.

This year the interest is higher than ever. It is estimated that fully 100,000 persons will see the race and in every part of the country the news of the outcome will be eagerly awaited.

Favorites Often Lose

The popular choice does not always win the Derby. In fact, being made the favorite has come to be considered a handicap or a jinx, and the first choice rarely goes over in the classic.

In fact, being made the favorite doesn't mean much at any time. Consider the Preakness at Pimlico Friday. Nassak was the favorite at 3 to 1, but when the finish was reached Victorian was first, Toro was second and Solace was third.

Perhaps Reigh Count, the Derby favorite, will suffer the same fate, in spite of the fact that he has displayed great form in trial after trial and shown up in every way as a horse with all the qualifications to win. But generally it is a comparative outsider that takes the honors.

History of Race

Following is the completed list of winners of the great race since it was first won in 1875:

| Year. | Winner. | Time. | Jockeys. |
|---|---|---|---|

HAGEN'S FEAT

IT was a proud week for Uncle Sam in golf, and he made another addition to his huge collection of international sport trophies when Walter Hagen won the British open championship at the conclusion of competition on Friday, with a score of 292 for 72 holes on the Sandwich course.

That makes five years in succession in which American players have won the British open, one of the highest golf titles in the world, and Hagen's glory is all the greater on this occasion because it marks the third time that the honor has been won by himself.

Uncle Sam had an extra smile coming because the second man at the finish also was an American, Gene Sarazen, the former pro of the Highland club in Pittsburgh, coming in only two strokes behind Hagen and one stroke ahead of the best British score, that of Archie Compston.

Great Money Player

The result shows again the ability of some players to rise to their greatest heights when there is most at stake. These are what are called "money players" and Hagen is one of that type if there ever was one.

It may be called a matter of being lucky enough to be in top form at the right time, and to some extent it is. Only two weeks ago, for instance, Hagen was beaten by Compston, the British player, by a score of 18 up and 17 to play, the worst defeat possible in golf with the exception of a score of 19 up and 17 to play.

Other golfers and players in sports of different types have shown the same reversal. One day they are unbeatable and at another time they are easy victims. The baseball pitcher who holds a club runless or even hitless on one occasion, may be knocked out of the box the next time he faces it.

Wins on His Nerve

That is what is called being in form or off form, having control or lacking it, but at the same time when you consider that Hagen has turned this big trick on British links no fewer than three times, you've got to stop and ask yourself if he did not have something else to back up his form.

A man could not be expected to time his form so perfectly as to win the British open three times, particularly once against a man who had beaten him, 18-17.

The answer seems to be that it is the old "money stuff" that wins; that Hagen may play only an ordinary game when there is nothing at stake, but that when there is a big prize and title to be fought for the king of putters is able to put on just enough more steam to win. And Sarazen is able to run just about neck and neck with him in that respect.

Crafton-Ingram Church League

STANDING OF THE TEAMS.

| | W. | L. | Pct. |
|---|---|---|---|
| St. Phillips | 1 | 0 | 1.000 |
| Methodist | 0 | 0 | .000 |
| Hawthorne | 0 | 0 | .000 |
| C. Presbyterian | 0 | 0 | .000 |
| Ingram | 0 | 1 | .000 |

GAMES THIS WEEK.

Monday evening, C. Pres. vs. Methodist; Tuesday evening, Methodist vs. Hawthorne; Thursday evening, Ingram vs. Hawthorne; Friday evening, Methodist vs. St. Phillips.

Last week's opening of the league started Crafton's ninth season and judging from the apparent pep and enthusiasm, both by players and fans, this year should be the best.

South Junior High Natators

COMPILE GOOD RECORD—Swimmers on the South Junior High School squad won a majority of their indoor meets this season. While they did not do so well in championship competition, opponents in other matches were upset by one-sided scores. Capt. Frugo broke the scholastic backstroke record. At the Pitt meet the relay team copped the cup shown in the picture above. Photo shows, left to right: Back row—Manager Prosser, J. Sherie, A. Kuhar, L. Hamak, S. Nash and Coach Russell. Front row—Shack, A. Ferry, P. Manko, Capt. Frugo, W. O'Brien, J. White and Milkonick.

KECK FAVORS BOXING SKILL OVER WALLOP

Sammy One of Ring's Most Skillful Performers and Figures to Win.

McLarnin's Only Chance Thursday Night Rests in Scoring Knockout.

By HARRY KECK,
Sun-Telegraph Sports Editor.

CLASS will tell, and that is why I am picking Sammy Mandell to retain his world lightweight title in his 15-round bout with Baby Face Jimmy McLarnin at the Polo Grounds, New York, next Thursday night.

McLarnin has the punch, but Mandell has the all-round class and, at 24 years of age, has matured and is strong and sure of himself. In his last start, against the veteran Eddie (Kid) Wagner, about a month ago, he gave an exhibition that left little to be desired and he has trained faithfully and well for the test with McLarnin and should go into the ring in the finest condition of his career.

As for McLarnin, his chance rests almost solely in scoring another such sensational knockout as he did against the weak-chinned Sid Terris to earn the right to box Mandell for the title. He stopped Terris in the first round, causing New York to go wild over him. As a result, his bout with Mandell will draw one of the biggest lightweight gates in history.

When this match was made, McLarnin was a prime favorite to win, but this partisan enthusiasm has cooled down somewhat and Mandell now is an 8-to-5 favorite in the betting and will retain that edge when they step into the ring.

DOPE FAVORS CHAMPION

A BOXER with as much skill as Mandell is known to possess naturally figures to beat a right-hand puncher of the type of McLarnin. There is about one chance in 10 of the dope going wrong.

Jim Corbett, one of the greatest boxers of all time, not long ago remarked that any ringster who permits himself to be nailed by a right cross to the jaw is NOT a good boxer. He was absolutely correct. McLarnin will have his fists full trying to catch Mandell on the button. And suppose he does! Sammy can take punishment, although he seldom has been called upon to do so. Frankie Garcia once spilled him for a count of nine and Sammy, although dazed for the remainder of the 10 rounds, finished on his feet. In another bout, Joey Sangor was credited with a technical knockout over him at St. Paul, in 1923, when he floored Sammy and the latter arose after a short count and then went down again without being hit and the referee stopped the fight. Sammy has been boxing since 1920. He won the title from Rocky Kansas at Chicago in 1926.

McLarnin, who is 22 years old and was born in Ireland, started fighting as a flyweight in 1923, and, among others, fought and defeated the late Pancho Villa when the latter was flyweight champion. He took on weight rapidly and rambled through the bantamweight, featherweight and junior-lightweight classes and now has all he can do to make the lightweight limit. He is a fair boxer and a better puncher. He is easy to hit and invites his opponent's attack to get an opening to cross his right. Terris was dancing nimbly about stabbing him with lefts when he ran into the sockdologer that put him to sleep. The tipoff on what is likely to happen when Jimmy stacks up against Mandell's class may be found in the fact that McLarnin has lost three 10-round decisions to Bud Taylor, the bantamweight champion, and also bowed to Johnny Farr and Doc Snell. Tommy Cello fought him a 10-round draw early last year, and Fidel La Barba and the veteran Pal Moore also are credited with four-round draws with him.

JIMMY BANKS ON PUNCH

McLARNIN'S best work has been done in the last year, during which time he has knocked out Louis (Kid) Kaplan, former featherweight champion, in eight rounds, and Terris in one and won a no-decision victory over Billy Wallace, who also stopped Kaplan. However, Kaplan twice sent McLarnin to the floor with short left hooks before being stopped himself in a hurricane fight.

While this will be the first meeting between Mandell and McLarnin, their trails have crossed more than once before. Mandell has won and lost in bouts with Jackie Fields of California, whom McLarnin stopped in two rounds, yet Fields himself says he believes Mandell will prove too smart for McLarnin. And Joey Sangor, who holds a technical knockout victory over Mandell, was stopped in three rounds by McLarnin in 1926, three years later.

In addition to being considerably short of Mandell in boxing skill and experience, McLarnin also never has boxed more than 10 rounds, and, unless he wins early, may find 15 rounds too great a distance to carry on, especially if he should have some trouble making weight. Mandell has boxed 15-bouts with Terris and Jack Bernstein and a flock of 12-round battles.

Obviously the Mandell-McLarnin bout will be a test of a master boxer against an exceptional puncher. The fans will be pulling for the latter to win for two reasons, one that they prefer the puncher to the boxer and the other that they always like to see a new champion crowned—the old, old story of off with the old and on with the new, the king is dead, long live the king! For my part, I'll string along with skill and class to win this one.

ODDS AND ENDS

JOE BASCO, of Barberton, O., sends me a clipping from the Rand Daily Mail of Johannesburg, South Africa, of March 12, which tells of victories scored there by two of his boxers, Frankie Wine, Montana heavyweight, and Benny Burns lightweight of Akron. The account says Wine landed Johnny Squires, heavyweight champion of South Africa, a bad beating, treating him worse than Tom Heeney did in two earlier battles, while Burns knocked out Ralph Minshull in the tenth round. Wine and Squires were booked for a return bout Saturday, when Burns also was slated to meet Ernie Eustice, whom he has defeated in 15 rounds since winning over Minshull. Squires recently knocked out Ermino Spalla, the Italian, in three rounds, and has a victory in 20 rounds over George Cook of Australia to his credit and planned to come to the United States last winter to enter the heavyweight eliminations.

Terry Lingo, who recently defeated Steve O'Malley at Washington, Pa., appears in another main bout there Monday night, against a substitute for Jack Baty of McKeesport, who is unable to go through with the match, and Frank Monroe boxes Chuck Semack in the semi-final, with Tommy Ward opposing Joe Randall and Young Johnson boxing Young Bailey in the preliminaries.

Joe Elrene of the North Side is returning to Louisville, where he is a favorite, for the Derby and will engage in several bouts there before he returns.

Eddie Meyers, 122-pounder of McKeesport and formerly of Detroit, is in condition and ready to fight anybody his weight. He has made a flock of friends with his willing work since coming into these parts.

NEW DREAMLAND ARENA

San Francisco will have a new Dreamland arena ready for occupancy July 1, built on the site of the historic old Dreamland. It will have a seating capacity of 10,000, with receipts of $25,000 at popular prices. A park two blocks long adjoins the arena, providing noncost parking space and it will be possible to park 250 more cars in the basement of the building. The ring comes up on a platform from the basement and the boxers will be in their corners when it rises into view. It will be one of the finest appointed arenas of modern times. Frank Schuler will be matchmaker and he plans to stage shows every Friday night.

Tommy Loughran is out with a challenge directed at Gene Tunney. The light-heavyweight champion, who boxed Gene when he was only 19 years old, claims he can build up to 185 pounds of solid bone and muscle for the fray, which would enable him to meet Tunney on close to even terms in the matter of weight. With his boxing skill he figures to give Tunney a better fight than anybody else in sight, as has been pointed out before in these columns.

Johnny Morton, Negro featherweight of Homestead, is anxious to box anybody his weight around here and prefers a return bout with Tommy Murphy, to whom he lost recently at McKeesport after subbing on short notice. Tommy Madden, Morton's manager, may be reached by calling Montrose 8776.

Patsy Gallagher, South Side featherweight, who bested Frankie Rio of Cleveland at Youngstown last week, boxes Young Sweeney of Mingo at Steubenville Monday night in an eight-round windup. Joe Pace of the Pittsburgh Lyceum and Petey Roberts of Wheeling will box the semi-final.

DUNDEE VS. DEMPSEY

Joe Dundee, welterweight champion, engages Eddie Dempsey in a 10-round open-air bout at Tamaqua, Pa., Monday night.

Tommy Loughran, light-heavyweight kingpin, and Joe Sekyra of Akron do the honors before the Derby crowd at Louisville Friday night. They are booked for 10 rounds at catchweights. Jackie Dugan of Louisville and Joe Medill of Chicago, junior lightweights, box another 10-rounder.

Tony Canzoneri, featherweight champion, appears in his old home town, New Orleans, Wednesday night, boxing Claude Wilson of Birmingham in a 10-round bout.

Cooney Martin, Johnstown promoter, is "sold" on Ike MacFowler, the Negro heavyweight protege of Frank Burke of the Flood City, and is trying to sign an outstanding heavyweight of the East to meet him in a bout June 4. MacFowler is a clever boxer and a hard hitter and can take punishment. He has had 16 professional bouts, winning all of them, according to Martin, and knocking out each of four opponents in Martin's shows in four or less rounds.

PHILLY ARENAS BUSY

While Pittsburgh's outdoor boxing program, if any, still is up in the air, other fistic centers are moving along speedily in arranging their plans for the open-air campaign. Philadelphia, for instance, will have bouts at the Phillies' park under the auspices of Jules Aaronson, at Shibe Park or the Sesqui-Centennial Stadium under the direction of Taylor and Gunnis, at Harrowgate Park in Kensington with Johnny Burns as promoter, at the Elks' park with Al Nash in the saddle and at West Manayunk with Joe Kennedy putting on the matches.

Jim McGirr has a natural for his initial open-air offering at Cycler Park, McKeesport, some time next month, between Larry Brignolia of Erie, who last Thursday night repeated an earlier victory over Phil Scello, and Joey LaGrey of Johnstown. These two hard-hitting welters should pack in the fans.

Pete Latzo, former welterweight champion, now fighting as a light-heavyweight, meets Bing Conley of Maine in a 10-round bout at the St. Nicholas arena, New York, Monday night. Conley went 10 rounds with Paul Berlenbach last year and mussed up Paul considerably.

Al Foreman of Washington and Johnny Jaddich of Philadelphia box the eight-round semi-final to the Mandell-McLarnin titular match in New York Thursday night. Baby Joe Gans meets Manuel Quintero and King Tut battles Sid Barbarian in other eight-rounders and there will be a four-round opener.

Mandell in Shape to Defend Title Thursday

TOUGHENED UP—Sammy Mandell, the lightweight champion, has done considerable work in the outdoors for his bout with Jimmy McLarnin at the Polo Grounds, New York, Thursday night to toughen himself up for the fray.

HAS NO FEAR—Mandell does not fear the challenger, despite the latter's vaunted punching prowess. He's been up against good sockers before and knows how to handle them.

Heeney Built Like a Matman

Philly to Get Local Hockey Six, Calder Tells Directors

TORONTO, Ont., May 12.—(AP.)—Negotiations for transfer of the Pittsburgh franchise in the National Hockey League to Cleveland have virtually been abandoned, Frank Calder, president of the league, announced at the annual meeting of the directors today.

The breakdown in negotiations, Calder said, made it probable that Philadelphia would succeed Pittsburgh in the league next season. Just what stood in the way of the franchise transfer to Cleveland Calder did not say.

Aside from this announcement drafting of players from other leagues was the principal business at the meeting.

The Chicago Black Hawks drafted R. O. Ripley from Kitchener of the Canadian Professional Hockey League and Gotzelag of Winnipeg.

Joe Ironstone, Niagara Falls goalie, was drafted by the New York Americans, while Detroit has obtained Dolly Dolson of Stratford, along with Lewis of Duluth.

CANUCK WINS DETROIT RACE

DETROIT, May 12.—(AP.)—Francis Hughes, Hamilton, Ontario, won the Motor City Marathon, an official Olympic tryout, here today over a field of 40 entrants, in 2 hours, 38 minutes and 20 seconds.

Clarksburg Gets Hornisk from Erie

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., May 12.—Robert Hornisk, a shortstop, has been released outright to the Clarksburg Generals by the Erie, Pa., club of the Central League, and will play in the game with Jeannette here tomorrow, it was announced today by officials.

Hornisk played with Sarasota, Fla., in the Florida State League last season.

Wise Hurls One-Hit Game, Academy Wins

The Shady Side Academy baseball team easily defeated Western Reserve Academy of Hudson, O., 11 to 0, at Shady Side Saturday afternoon. Wise, on the mound for the winners, did not permit a hit until the ninth inning, when Fogle got Reserve's only safe blow of the game. Shady Side bunched blows for five runs in each of the second and seventh innings, a home run by Smith featuring the attack. The score:

FAIRIES TOP STOGIES TWICE

FAIRMONT, W. Va., May 12.—(AP.)—Fairmont battered its way to a double victory today, winning the first game of the double header, 5 to 3, and gaining a 10-1 verdict in the seven inning nightcap. Fairmont registered four home runs in the two games, raising the team's total for the season to 12.

Apples Holland, local center fielder, hit his fourth and fifth home runs of the week. Roberts hurled a brilliant game in the windup. The scores:

Tunney in Camp; Begins Work Monday

SPECULATOR, N. Y., May 12.—(AP.)—Gene Tunney, heavyweight champion and man of letters, came back today to the Adirondacks Hills where he builded his body from that of a light-heavyweight to the 200 ponds of bone and muscle that now rules the ring.

Back in this village of fewer than a thousand citizen nestled on the shore of Lake Pleasant, Tunney will train until a few days before the gong in the Yankee Stadium calls him to defend his title against Tom Heeney, in a 15-round battle, probably July 26.

Although the sun was bright in Speculator, chill winds swept down from the hills as Tunney drove his car into town unheralded. Once in his quarters he donned heavy clothing. In a half hour he was about the premises clad in the familiar blue shirt, gray trousers and battered red sweater of training days.

COLTS SUBDUE JAYS, 4 TO 3, EVEN SERIES

Charleroi-Clarksburg and Scottdale-Johnstown Break Even in Twin Bills.

Rase Bests Knetzer in Slab Duel; Drugmond Pitches 2-0 Shutout.

JEANNETTE, Pa., May 12.—(AP.)—Cumberland defeated the Jays here today in a pitchers' battle between Knetzer and Rase by a 4-3 score, evening the series.

The Jays had several opportunities to win, but failed to hit when hits meant runs.

Black was banished from the game in the sixth inning for arguing with Umpire Ragen. The game was devoid of features, but was anybody's until the last man was out. The score:

SCOTTIES-JOHNNIES SPLIT

SCOTTDALE, Pa., May 12.—(AP.)—Scottdale and Johnstown split a double header today, the local milltowners winning the first 9 to 2 and the visitors the second game, 8 to 4, in seven innings.

McKinnon and Freschi starred at bat in the first encounter, each connecting safely for three hits, the former connecting for a triple and a home run.

Scottdale's loose fielding enabled the visitors to take the twilight affair. The box scores:

Churchill Downs Ready for Renewal of Derby

GOLF and TENNIS by V. A. SWARTSFAGER

THE annual meeting and first monthly tournament of the Caddie-masters' Golf Association of Western Pennsylvania will be held under the auspices of the Caddie Welfare Committee of the Western Pennsylvania Golf Association Monday at the Chartiers Heights Country Club. Following a day of golf, the boys will elect their officers, outline their business for the coming year and confer with W. P. G. A. officials regarding betterment of caddie conditions.

Jimmy O'Donnell, of the Edgewood Country Club, president since the organization's inception, likely will be re-named to his post, as well as the other officers who have acted so nobly during the last year.

E. E. McCoy.

Edward E. McCoy, of Oakmont, former W. P. G. A. prexy, who has gained an enviable reputation for himself through his fine work in caddie welfare, again is chairman of the committee trying to bring the caddie and golfer closer together. It is through conferences with the caddie-masters that some of the real work is done.

The Chartiers Heights layout is in splendid condition, and the caddie-masters and assistant professionals likely will have a real day of it.

"WHO'S that good looking chap? He certainly reminds me of Senator Frank Harris." This came from the lips of the junior member of our sports staff, Jimmy Miller, at a banquet at for kings, much less newspapermen, of the Hotel Club and Restaurant Golf Association at the South Hills Country Club last Monday. We immediately turned our focus upon the celebrity.

Louis Tesh.

"It was none other than Louis Tesh, better known to friends and relatives as just plain "Louie," and a real scout. He's another of our friends upon whom we are wont to bestow the fitting title of "Smiling"—for when has anyone ever seen Lou but that he maps out a captivating welcome that seems to have no limit in sincerity?

Don't want to tell any tales out of school, but Lou Tesh isn't a star golfer. He's just a fair player who thoroughly enjoys every minute he spends on the links. He plays not only with the hotelmen, but also with the Stewards Club, being a meat merchant of no small reputation.

He does resemble the State Senator a little bit. But probably that's why he's so good looking. Furthermore, if you could only see his big blue eyes sparkle in merriment, you, too, would be glad you knew him, and were his friend.

AT the Pittsburgh Field Club A. J. Diebold is one of the most popular members. The former president also may be classed as one of the most enthusiastic golfers of the district. He plays through the four seasons whenever possible, and he knows golf on the coldest of days as well as the warmest.

A. J. Diebold.

Following the fire that razed the former clubhouse, it was the fine work of "Al" Diebold that caused the new, magnificent building to be completed in double-quick time. And his spirit of progressiveness continues with him despite the fact that he has been succeeded by another admirable man as chief executive.

Uncle John W. Carr, secretary-treasurer of the club, who has been ill for some weeks now, is still recuperating in his home. Whether he will be able to attend the annual meeting of the Caddie-Masters' Association at Chartiers Heights Monday is problematical.

Have we mentioned that Harry Kelly is back on the job at the Field Club as caddie-master? He sure is, and doing great, thank you.

POSSIBLY it is not generally known that Dr. J. L. McBride, chairman of the green committee at the Shannopin Country Club, is one of the fairest and squarest club-men in the district—at least, that is what most of his fellow members think of him. Dr. McBride has gained an enviable reputation for himself through his good work at the head of his committee.

We feel postive that Dr. McBride had a great deal to do with the changing of the fourth hole at Shannopin, and in the general improvement throughout the layout. And when one knows that the Shannopin course is in the best shape in its history right now, with a 100 per cent improvement over last year—he also knows that a green committee with really active committeemen is on the job, literally.

The members at Shannopin, it seems, are also well pleased with the fine efforts of their new president, L. A. Hubach, who has shown a most progressive spirit during his short term in office. There is more enthusiasm and a brighter outlook all around.

A number of new members have been taken into the fold this year, which will also bolster the club

BIG FAVORITES IN TOP STRIDE AS RACE NEARS

Turf Enthusiasts to Have Many Favorites to Pick From Next Saturday.

Reigh Count and Anita Peabody Still Ranked Among Best Bets.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 12.—(AP.)—For the fifty-fourth time historic Churchill Downs, charged with that subtle expectancy known only during the last week before Derby Day, is being set in order for America's premier test of the speed and stamina of the country's finest 3-year-olds.

While a record number of the fleet sons of blue-blooded sires may not face the barrier on May 19, the 1928 Derby field will not lack class. Few seasons have produced more promising colts than a number of those nominated for the classic and none has known a more successful training period, free from all kinds of mishaps.

TWO AT TOP FORM

All of the outstanding eligibles have trained well. Mrs. John D. Hertz's splendid pair of racers, Reigh Count, favorite in the winter books, and Anita Peabody, outstanding filly of the season, are at top form. The latter is being pointed for the Oaks and may not run the Derby, but there are those who think she will. The pair will be hard to beat.

Other horses will not lack a following. Misstep, out of St. Theresa, by Upset, which stepped a mile in 1:40 4-5 in a trial run this morning and then finished the Derby distance in 2:07 3-5, and Victorian, winner of the Preakness, are encroaching rapidly upon the popularity of the Hertz colt. The Le Mar hopeful, between the legs of Joe Kezeris, opened up the eyes of work watcher with one of the best trials of the season this morning and set the tongues of railbirds awagging. Misstep undoubtedly will be in the running when the field gets off. As for Victorian, Harry Payne Whitney's entries always are dangerous.

Cartago of the Lechleiter stable made a good showing today, running second in the Clark Handicap at Churchill Downs. Jock, third in last year's derby, won the mile and one-sixteenth race in 1:45.

Reigh Count had another run this morning, but was not urged. He will have his first start of the season under colors Monday.

"Wait until you see him run," said Trainer B. S. Mitchell, who believes the Son of Sunreigh will repeat the victory he achieved over Victorian in the Belmont Futurity last fall.

But the darby may not be a test of the relative ability of Reigh Count and Victorian alone. Dodgson of the Blue Grass contingent, Blackwood, son of the famous sire Black Tony, J. N. Camden's Hiram, Dark Eagle, Reproduce, Golden Racket, Strolling Player, Braybany, Longridge and other eligibles also have trained well and past experience has taught that early season defeats do not mar the brilliance of the performance of a colt on Derby day.

Dowagiac, likely starter of the Bloomfield stable, showed a fast seven-eighths in a trial run this morning, covering the distance in 1:27 2-5. Nick Cullop went a mile in 1:42, hard held. Charlie Bergin breezed a half in :52. Colonel Shaw, an almost certain starter, which conquered Lucky Hit in his first time out this season, was timed for the mile in :24 3-5, :51 3-5, 1:17 and 1:43 2-5. Jack Higgins, winner of the Louisiana Derby, went a mile in 1:42 2-5 handily and looked fit for good going in any company.

Kiski Is Winner Over W. Va. Frosh

SALTSBURG, Pa., May 12.—The Kiski baseball team defeated the West Virginia Freshmen here today, 9 to 2. Werts led the attack with a triple, home run and two singles. The score:

India Gains Lead In Davis Cup Play

ZURICH, May 12.—(AP.)—India today assumed a lead of 2 to 0 over Switzerland in second round play of Davis Cup tennis competition, Sleem defeated Aeschiliman, 6-3, 9-7, 6-2, while Robb won from Wurain, 6-3, 6-1 6-2.

Aeschiliman was unable to cope with Sleem's sensational backhands. Wurain, a newcomer in international tennis, played a nervous game.

Anita Peabody Leads Reigh Count in Workout

UPSET IN PRE-DERBY DOPE—Reigh Count has been the favorite from the start to win the Kentucky Derby, scheduled for next Saturday at Churchill Downs, but a stablemate of the entry of Mrs. John D. Hertz of Chicago may steal the spotlight and victory from him when the bell rings for the classic. This stablemate is none other than Anita Peabody, winner of the last Futurity stakes, which has been kept in the background while Reigh Count has had all the play in the headlines. The other day, however, the pair worked out under the watchful gaze of their owner and the above picture shows what happened. Anita Peabody led throughout the mile route, which is one-quarter of a mile less than the Derby distance. Last Friday, Anita Peabody easily defeated a fine field in a six-furlong event at the Downs and showed further signs of being ready for a great race. The filly is eligible for the Derby and it is likely now that she will start along with Reigh Count. If she does, she will get a heavy play in the betting.

OLYMPIC ROOTING RULES

AMSTERDAM, Holland, May 9.—(AP.)—All noise-producing instruments of every description will be taboo during the Olympic contests. The human voice reinforced by the clapping of hands and the tramping of feet, will remain as the only means of rooting.

COUNTY LEAGUE SET TO OPEN NEW SEASON

Beltzhoover and Homewood-Brushton to Clash at Homewood Playgrounds.

Bellevue to Travel to Dormont to Assist Falconer's Club in Opener.

By TOM BIRKS.

OFF to an excellent start despite adverse weather conditions, interest in sandlot baseball activities in the Greater Pittsburgh district is expected to soar this week when the Allegheny County League opens its schedule.

Although the league this season boasts only four clubs interest in its progress has not diminished and indications point to large crowds on Tuesday when the four nines swing into action for the first time this year.

FOUR CLUBS READY

After several weeks of intensive training, reports from the various clubs indicate that all have strengthened their rosters and will take the field in excellent condition. Hank Daly, manager of the Homewood-Brushton entry, is confident his club will carry off the premier laurels; Jimmy Greenough, Bellevue's leader, likewise feels his club is due to carry off the spoils; Manager Hite, of Beltzhoover, is certain that the addition of Crandall and Kelly will bolster his outfit, while George Falconer, who directs the Dormont club, is confident his team will stay in the running despite the fact that it is not as strong as last year.

But last season's experience in the County League prevents any prognostication in the matter of pennant winners, for when that second half started very few fans would have picked Beltzhoover to beat out Homewood, but the boys fought every inch of the way and managed to turn the trick.

Some classy performers will be on show in the county loop in the openers this week. Big preparations are being made for the opener at the Homewood playgrounds Tuesday evening when Beltzhoover meets the East Enders. The local booster organization, 500 strong, will be on hand with a band. And Homewood's club will probably line up with Bimmy Steer pitching, Schulties catching, Bind on first, Waite at second, Geisler at short, and Heinie Boll, captain, at third.

CRANDALL TO PITCH

Manager Hite probably will start Crandall on the mound with Susco catching. Dick Goldberg at first, Carter at second, Kestner roving around the shortfield and Harrison at third. Hite has six classy outer gardeners, so outside of Eddie Kelly it is hard to say who will work.

Bellevue will pry off the lid at Dormont and what a fight that should be. Will Falconer's battery of Mills and Leo Carroll be able to stop that wrecking crew from the North Borough? Greenough will present murderers' row for the fans' approval at the South Hills in Nixon at first, Miller on second, Boyle at short and Cy covering the hot corner. The outfit will show Art Rooney, Lefty Hughes and Bill Mullen in the field. Fancy a pitcher passing one of these birds to take a chance on the next fellow. It is possible that the much heralded Hilty will pitch with Lees catching. If Hilty is not present then Carl Stewart will get the assignment. Falconer has a wonderful sandlot battery in Mills and Carroll, and given the proper support should win plenty of games. Backinger is at second base, Ben Carnegie at short, with Fuchs, Cagni and Joe Lauth roaming the outfield.

Those are the probable lineups for the four contenders for honors in the Allegheny County League. The league is going to be keen and any club losing a couple of games in either half of the race will be at the bottom of the heap.

SANDLOT BASEBALL by TOM BIRKS

MANAGER BOBBY BURKE has booked quite an extensive schedule for the Jimmy Smith club during the next few days, all the games being scheduled away from home until the Born playgrounds are put into playing shape. On Tuesday the Smith club will travel to Sullivan Field to meet St. Johns. Wednesday will find the former Chapel boys meeting old rivals at Unity in the Universal club.

Thursday Stowe will be met down at the Rox grounds, and on Sunday a ride will be taken to Garfield to meet the Independents. The Smith club still is booking. Call Schenley 0338 for games.

The Homewood-Brushton club will open its season on Tuesday with Beltzhoover providing the opposition. A band has been engaged and Scott Morgan, president of the club, will throw out the first ball. On Saturday Tommy Martin will bring the Homestead Aces to the playgrounds and the Steelers are expected to put up a good battle. Homewood is still booking. For games write Hank Daly, 7322 Kelly street.

The McKeesport A. B. C's, a new Negro aggregation, is going to cut into local semi-pro with a good club. The outfit expects to play its games at Cycler Park, but this is occupied until in the early part of June. Until that time the A. B. C's will be on the road. Duquesne Steel will be met at Duquesne on Monday and Zanesville Grays on Thursday. The Portsmouth (O.) Giants will be met May 18 and 19 and the Woodfield Grays May 20. Miller, Wallace and McCann will carry the pitching burden of the club for the present, with Green and Wood catching.

The B. & O. Traffic Department baseball team has again organized for the season and will meet any firstclass team in the district. Call Lehigh 5347-J for games.

Billy Hammers and his West Newton-Monongahela City aggregation will be in town Sunday to meet the Jordons at Stewart avenue. Manager Hammers has lined up a good pitcher in Corsons who had nine strikeouts in his opening game at Irwin last Wednesday. The West club is building up an extensive schedule. It will meet Mt. Washington Agathons on May 16 and Homestead Grays, May 17, at Mon City. The West Newton club is booking games. Write Billy Hammers, Smithton, Pa.

With Tommy Ray, the old Jersey City player, starring around the keystone sack, Manager Jack Collette of the W. J. Reineckers is leaving no stone unturned in order to strengthen the club. On Sunday the Reineckers will travel to Allison Park.

Manager Collette still has Decoration Day open for a good club away from home. Write Jack Collette, 626 Herron avenue, or call Linden 1628-R.

With five big wins under their belts, the Kirk-Mangans will tackle the City View team Sunday. On Monday Mt. Lebanon Orioles will be met. Kirk-Mangans are still booking. For games write 1616 Carson street, or call Hemlock 2107.

The North Versailles A. A. will be the attraction Sunday at the W. O. W. No. 283 nine at McKees Rocks and a large crowd is expected. The visitors are coming to the Rox with a big reputation and Manager Roscoe is grooming his best bet for the game. W. O. W. is still booking with the best clubs in the district on a home-and-home basis. For games write Joe Roscoe, 221 Churchill avenue, McKees Rocks, or call Federal 1939-J.

The big attraction out at Sullivan field at Liberty avenue Sunday, will be Stowe club with Nifty Gardner making his first appearance in a managerial role. Manager Bill McGrady is making preparations to handle a capacity crowd. Monday night will find the Strippers at Boston, Pa. Tuesday will be a big night for the Smith club, better known as Cathedral Chapel, will meet St. Johns. Swissvale will be met on Wednesday. Reliance Life on Friday, and Stowe in a league game on home. St. Johns is still booking with the best clubs in the city and tri-state district. For games write W. B. McGrady, 412 Pearl street, or call Schenley 2950.

The Mt. Washington C. M. C'S are booking with the best clubs in the district. Whitaker will be met in a league game on Tuesday. For games write S. Minsterman, 239 La Belle street, or call Lafayette 5738-R.

The California Eagles baseball nine will be back on the diamond again this season with a strictly first-class club. Memorial Day is open abroad. For games write W. Moody, California, Pa., or call California 3992.

Hermes-Grove, of the City league, will put in a busy week starting Sunday with a game at Kirwan. Monday Pleasant Valley will be met. On Tuesday Reliance Life will travel to Dean field, and on Thursday Book Shoe will be met at Olympia Park. The dairymen still have a few open dates. Write T. E. Carson, Hermes-Grove, Forbes street, or call Cedar 0158-R in the evenings.

Homestead Grays will make their first trip of the season to Youngstown, O., Sunday for the initial games of the series with the General Tires. On Monday the Grays will meet Beltzhoover at McKinley Park, and on Tuesday play at Clairton. During the week Johnny Beckwith brought his home run total up to 10 and expects to add to this total this week.

Penn Tops Rivals In Olympic Points

NEW YORK, May 12.—(AP.)—Athletes of the University of Pennsylvania have won more points for the United States in the Olympics than those of any other collegiate institution, according to a tabulation published by the Olympic Journal of the Intercollegiate A. # Lions Defeat Panthers In Dual Track Meet

And So It's Come to This -:- -:- -:- -:- By Ed Kromer

THE GREAT OUTDOORS — By GIB MARSH —

DURING the past week there was much discussion by the small and big-game hunters in Pennsylvania in reference to the changing of the hunting program for next fall by the Board of Game Commissioners. The action of the commissioners is approved by some, while others disagree with the game solons of the Keystone State.

Gib Marsh

That the game commissioners had entertained any plan of changing the shooting seasons for small game was more or less a surprise to the sportsmen, who thought the only problem the commissioners were wrestling with was the disposition of the surplus deer. To eliminate the surplus does the commissioners decided that doe will be shot next fall instead of bucks. The decision provides one doe per hunter during the shooting season, December 1 to December 15.

Hundreds of hunters are opposed to shooting does and this group was loud in its protest against the game commission, but something had to be done to eliminate the surplus does and the only practical method was to declare an open season on does and protect the bucks. I observed that the majority of the hunters, declaring their opposition, reside in municipalities and are not in a position to thoroughly comprehend the menace and annoyance these surplus does are to the farmers and those engaged in orchard enterprises in the rural districts.

NOW the farmers and orchardists approve the action of the game commissioners. The game commissioners had to consider the wishes of these groups. It was impossible to please both factions so the merits of the claims of those groups were considered. Now the orchardists and farmers are engaged in their work for a livelihood. The hunter is only interested in the sport. I know that several members of the board of commissioners are engaged in handling large industrial and r anufacturing enterprises. So it did not require much time for those men to determine the merits of the problem. An open shooting season on does was their decision.

One open season may dispose of the problem. So the deer shooting program for next December likely will not be permanent. If the big game hunters experience the same conditions next December that they have in the past three years they will observe thousands of does.

I KNOW of scores of deer hunters during the last three years, who returned to this city after an unsuccessful pursuit for a buck, state: "I saw a hundred does, but not a legal buck." There was no doubt they could have killed a doe every day they spent in the mountains. Now we will conclude there are 100,000 deer hunters going into the woods next December. It has been estimated that annually 200,000 deer hunters go into the mountains of Pennsylvania, but I have always doubted the accuracy of that claim.

So we will conclude 100,000 deer hunters journey into the mountains next December and each hunter bags a doe. Reducing the herds of surplus does 100,000 head will almost dispose of the problem. The deer hunters will go to the sections where the surplus does are to be found in numbers. They will not journey, for instance, into sections where there are about 30 head. So small herds will not be molested in sections near municipalities.

THE flavor of doe meat is favored to that of a buck. Any old-timer, especially the plainsmen of the former frontier days, will confirm that. And 100,000 hunters will bring back to their homes, especially those residing in the municipalities, some deer meat for the family larder. Last season there were 14,374 legal bucks killed, and it was estimated there were 200,000, or nearly that number, of hunters in the deer hunting sections. So there was no deer meat brought into the households of quite a number of hunters last December. I heard some hunters state last week they did not intend to go deer hunting next fall, but I doubted the sincerity of their declarations. When December 1 rolls around the old longing for a stay in their mountain hunting camp will manifest itself. They will think of the good times to be enjoyed there. Finally the hunter will decide:

"Well, I don't care about shooting a doe, but I will go up to the hunting camp anyway."

And when he hears the barking of the rifles, realizes other hunters are having some enjoyment, probably eats a good venison supper, this hunter will conclude:

"Oh, well, I will knock off a doe and take it back to the family."

THE doe problem must be disposed of and the game commissioners hope the hunters will help them by going into the mountains next fall and kill the does.

The commissioners made some unexpected changes in the shooting program for small game. The season on all game birds will open, October 15, or to be exact, October 18, as hunting will only be permitted on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of each week during the season. The bird season will close November 30.

The rabbit season will open November 1 and close December 15. During November shooting will be limited to the last three days of the week, but during December gunners can hunt every day, except Sunday. Raccoons may be hunted from October 15 until November 30. The raccoon hunter may enjoy his sport every day during the season except Sunday. The bear season will open November 1, and during that month the three-day hunting schedule will be followed, but from December 1 to 15 bear can be hunted daily.

THESE changes harvested a lot of discussion, much of it unfavorable to the decision of the commissioners. But the commissioners tried to arrange a plan which would accommodate all hunters, the woodcock shooter and those gunners favoring the grouse, quail, ringneck, rabbit, etc. Three days each week from October 15 until November 30 certainly should provide an opportunity for all small game hunters. I know that many bird shooters were not satisfied with the shooting program of last year, which was the first 10 days of November.

That group of men prefer to hunt over their favorite dog, and quite a number of them told me at the conclusion of the small game season in 1927 they did not have much of an opportunity to use their dogs. They claimed they went to the expense of keeping a dog 52 weeks of the year and were only permitted to use them 10 days. Hundreds of gunners wanted to shoot woodcock, but could not do so last year because November 1 was too late, the birds migrating from this region by that time.

Often bad weather prevents the gunner from going into the field, but certainly with a period of six weeks to hunt birds, three hunting days weekly, should provide an opportunity to all bird and rabbit shooters.

400-Meter Dash Record Is Broken

STANFORD, Cal., May 12.—(AP.)—Emerson Spencer, brilliant Stanford sprinter, broke the world record in the 400-meter race here today when he sped over the distance in 47 seconds flat, four-tenths of a second better than the time made by Ted Meredith in 1916. The event was one of the Olympic games tryouts.

Another world record was equaled when Swede Leistner, San Francisco Olympic Club, raced over the 110-meter high hurdles in 14 4-5 seconds, tying the mark made in 1920 by E. J. Thompson.

NINE FIRSTS FAIL TO WIN FOR LOCALS

Penn State Takes Advantage Of Seconds and Thirds to Score Triumph.

Welch and Webecan Stand Out as Leading Point Scorers.

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., May 12.—Scoring at least three points in every event and a major share of seconds and thirds, Penn State defeated Pitt in a dual track meet here today in spite of the Panthers' strength in taking first places. The score was 80 to 55.

Penn State took only six first places of 15 places, but overcame this by scoring slams in three events.

Welch and Webecan of Pitt were the leading scorers, the former with 18 and the latter with 15. Bates was high for the Lions, with 14½; Welch took firsts in the discus, shot and javelin, second in the broad jump. Bates broke the track record in the broad jump with a leap of 24 feet 9 inches.

Bill Cox turned in a mile of 4 minutes 21 1-5 seconds for the best time of the meet. He won his race handily and was followed by Offenhauser and Heilfrich. Offenhauser returned a few moments later to win the half. The Lions took all three places in this event and also in the two-mile. The Panthers took all firsts in the weights and the vault, but failed to count enough seconds and thirds to put them in the running at any time after the first few track events.

WEBECAN STARS

Pittsburgh held its own in the track events, chiefly through Wibecan's performances in the dashes, but a State man was on his heels in each case. Koblack took the other first for the Panthers on the track by nosing out Eggers in the high hurdles. He failed to keep pace with Bates, however, in the 220 race and had to be content with a second.

In the longer runs, none of the Panther men was able to push a Lion competitor, even for third place. Wibecan and Karback staged a pretty duel in the 440, the Pitt man winning by a step, after heading Karback in the stretch.

The Lions' all-around superiority was evident in the fact that they took a first or second in every event and thirds in 10 events. The summary:

100-yard dash—Webecan, Pitt, first; Bartholomew, State, second; Filkins, State, third. Time not taken.

220-yard dash—Webecan, Pitt, first; Bartholomew, State, second; Filkins, State, third. Time 21 4-5 seconds.

440-yard dash—Webecan, Pitt, first; Karback, State, second; Davis, State, third. Time, 51 1-5 seconds.

880-yard run—Offenhauser, first; Kittle, second; Davis third, all State. Time 1 minute 58 seconds.

Mile run—Cox first, Offenhauser second, Heilrich third, all State. Time 4 minutes 21 1-5 seconds.

Two-mile run—Haskins first, Bass second, Lee third, all State. Time 9 minutes 53 seconds.

120 high hurdles—Knoblach, Pitt, first; Eggers, State, second; Volet, Pitt, third. Time, 15 2-5 seconds.

220 low hurdles—Bates, State, first; Knoblach, Pitt, second; Marzucco, State third. Time, 24 4-5 seconds.

High jump—Bates and Sullivan, State, tied for first; Wood, State, and Stoup, Pitt, tied for third. Height, 5 feet 8 inches.

Broad jump—Bates, State, first; Welch, Pitt, second; Brownstein, State, third. Distance 24 feet 9 inches. New record.

Pole vault—Pickard, Pitt, first; Montey, State, second; Bates, State, and Brinker, Pitt, tied for third. Height 11 feet 3 inches.

Shot put—Welch, Pitt, first; Hamas, State, second; Robb, Pitt, third. Distance, 42 feet 5½ inches.

Discus throw—Welch, Pitt, first; Eschbach, State, second; Robb, Pitt, third. Distance, 139 feet 6½ inches.

Hammer throw—Gwinn, Pitt, first; Morrill, State, second; Mahoney, State, third. Distance, 161 feet 1 inch.

Javelin throw—Welch, Pitt, first; Lee, State, second; Hamas, State, third. Distance, 182 feet 3 inches.

Cram of Vanderbilt Wins Tennis Title

NEW ORLEANS, La., May 12.—(AP.)—Donald Cram, 19-year-old Vanderbilt sophomore, won the singles tennis championship of the Southern Conference here today by defeating Gustave Feuer, 19-year-old sophomore of the University of Florida, 6-2, 9-11, 6-3, 6-3.

Cram had little difficulty in winning three of the four sets, but the brilliant playing of his opponent in the second set was too much to overcome and he lost the skirmish after 20 games had been played.

The doubles final, which was to have been played today, was postponed until tomorrow.

Skibos Beat Westminster In Dual Meet; Plebes Lose

By JAMES MILLER

Carnegie Tech's varsity track and field team partially made up for the defeats suffered earlier in the season at the hands of Pitt and Geneva by winning a hard-fought and deserved victory over the Westminster College trackmen in the Tartans' Bowl Saturday afternoon. The score was 69 to 66.

In the preliminary to the varsity meet, the Kiski Prep track team defeated the Carnegie Plebes, 70½ to 60½.

Hutchinson, wearing the Blue and White colors of Westminster, emerged from the meet with the honor of being high scorer. He scored 13½ points. The half point accounts for the fact that he and McFarland of Tech were tied for first place in the high jump. He won the discus by throwing the plate for a distance of 111 feet, 6½ inches.

McFarland of Tech also had a good day, being second best scorer of the meet with 11½ points. McFarland's best event was the broad jump, which he captured when he jumped 20 feet.

The U. P.'s made things fairly hard for the Tartans, keeping within a few points of them during the entire meet, and in the dying moments threatened to steal it from the Skibos, when they won first and second places in the discus throw.

The cinder path in the bowl was in very poor condition, which accounts mostly for the poor times made in the track events. The meet originally was scheduled for New Wilmington, but was shifted to Pittsburgh due to the soft mud that overlaid the field. The summary:

VARSITY MEET.

TRACK EVENTS

100-yard dash—Won by Kennedy, Tech; Herbst, Tech, second; Osborne, Westminster, third. Time, 10 4-5.

120-yard low hurdles—Won by Lockart, Tech; McFarland, Tech, second; Fresenyl, Westminster, third. Time, 14 4-5.

120-yard high hurdles—Won by Dewhunty, Westminster; Lochard, Tech, second; McFarland, Tech, third. Time, 17.

880-yard dash—Won by Mirtz, Westminster; Myers, Westminster, second; McCombs, Tech, third. Time, 2:06.

One mile run—Won by Mirtz, Westminster; Myers, Westminster, second; Campbell, Tech, third. Time, 4:44 2-10.

PITT FRESHMAN TRACKERS LOSE

Panther Cubs Bow to Penn State Yearlings by 96-to-39 Score.

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., May 12.—The Penn State Freshman track team defeated Pitt this afternoon, 96 to 39, in a preliminary to the varsity meet, scoring firsts in 11 of 15 events and getting more than an even share of the seconds and thirds.

The Lion yearlings scored slams in four events and took first and second in two others. Fullerton, of State, took three firsts, but Lewis, of Pitt, carried off high scoring honors with two firsts and two seconds.

Mesinger, of State, ran a pretty race in the two-mile, hanging at Moore's heels until 100 yards from the finish, when he opened up with a sprint that left the latter far behind. Musser, of Penn State, turned in the best performance of the day with a javelin throw of 180 feet 1 inch. The summary:

Many Records Likely to Fall in "Big Four" Meet

DISTRICT TRACK STARS IN TEST HERE SATURDAY

Panthers Expected to Beat Out W. Va., Carnegie and W. & J. for Tri-State Title.

Mountaineers Strong; Tartans and Presidents Regarded Last-Place Rivals.

By JESS CARVER.

RECORDS of the cinders and turf will be endangered here Saturday afternoon as the University of Pittsburgh plays host to the second annual Big Four Intercollegiate Association's track and field championships in the Stadium. Five, possibly six or seven, records are going to be attacked by specialists in the Tri-State district's annual classic.

The Pitt team will be defending its championship, won at Morgantown last spring. West Virginia, conceded as being the only one of the four members of the association, which includes Tech and Wash-Jeff, having a chance to spill the Panthers, is expected to furnish strenuous opposition. Wash-Jeff, last-place finisher last year, is touted as having the potential power to edge past Carnegie Tech and finish third in this '28 carnival.

The records that will assume the most of the record-breaking efforts will be the 220-yard dash, the hammer throw, pole vault, javelin and the 120-yard high hurdles. The broad jump and shotput marks may also be taken over by new owners at the conclusion of the events.

PANTHERS FAVORITES

Of the 15 events on the card, Pitt men are expected to win nine, West Virginians three and Wash-Jeffers one. Carnegie Tech can look forward to a first in one event, the 220, provided Capt. Lockhart runs as he did against the Panthers in the dual meet last week.

The 120-yard hurdle race is the only other doubtful event. At Morgantown, Knoblock of Pitt was beaten by a hair's breadth by Maxwell of the Mountaineers. The time was within one-fifth of a second of the district record, and this is one of the records expected to fall Saturday.

Gibby Welch, Pitt's all-around captain, will make feverish assaults on the marks in the javelin, shot and discus, two of which, the spear hurling and platter tossing figures, are held by himself. He stands a fair chance of breaking both, and may add Davis' (of West Virginia) shot put crown to his collection.

Ken Webecan, Pitt's Negro flier, after having failed by a mere one-fifth of a second of equaling the 21 2-5 mark for the furlong, twice so far this year, will make a final try at the 220. This is one of the older Tri-State records, having been set six years ago by Kelly, of Carnegie Tech, while running against Ohio Wesleyan in a dual meet here.

Don Gwinn will taper off his preparations for the Olympic tryouts and I. C. 4-A. meet in the hammer throw by attempting to best his 162.8 mark in that event. Vic Pickard, who broke his own record in the pole vault here this week when he cleared 13 feet, 1⅜ inches, will try for 13.3.

In 1915, Sheehan, of Pitt, broad jumped 23 feet, 5½ inches. Truehart Taylor, of West Virginia, who has gone 23 feet on occasions, will seek to crack this mark.

Buvinger, West Virginia's crack half-miler, given a dry track and a suitable day, should press very close to Jerry Allen's half-mile mark of 1:58 2-5. Alberts and Roy of Pitt would like to shatter this mark themselves, and will certainly give Buvinger all the pressing he might need in his attempt.

Victories in the 100, 220, 440, mile, shot-put, javelin, hammer, pole vault and discus are expected to be won by Pitt men. West Virginia firsts are looked for in the 880, 2-mile and broad jump. Wash-Jeff figures to cop in the high jump, if Slater can continue the fine jumping he has been doing all spring. The winners in the two hurdle races are doubtful, but Tech, Pitt and West Virginia are conceded a great edge over the Presidents in these eve

PANTHER STARS IN MANY ROLES— The football season long has been dead, but Gibby Welch, all-America halfback and one of the greatest gridiron stars ever turned out at Pitt, is not without a "world to conquer." Gibby is one of the stars of the Pitt track team and weight-throwing is his specialty. Although a very adept shot-putter, the discus throw is Gibby's "pet" and it is at tossing the platter that he takes rank with the nation's leaders. In the above pictures Welch shows how he "winds up" for the throw and how he "lets 'er go."

CARDS ANNEX SIXTH IN ROW

ST. LOUIS, May 12.—(AP.)—Winning the sixth straight game for the Cardinals, and the seventh out of eight starts this week, Flint Rhem scored his third straight triumph of the year in a 5-to-3 contest with the Boston Braves here today. Rhem has yet to lose a game this season.

Facing former teammates, Rogers Hornsby crashed out a home run in the first inning.

Wilson and Harper, newly acquired performers, worked creditably. Wilson hit a pair of singles and cut off two runners who attempted to steal second. Harper went in for Blades in the right field in the second inning, connecting with a pair of singles and driving in one run. The score:

MISS COLLETT SEEKS BRITISH TITLE MONDAY

Five Other Americans Entered; England's Best Not to Compete.

HUNSTANTON, Norfolk, England, May 12.—(AP.)—Seeking the only major British golf title never won by an American, the British women's open championship, Glenna Collett, former American champion, on Monday launches her third attack. For 30 years British women successfully fought foreigners back as they reached for the cup, but last year Mlle. Simone Thion de la Chaume of France took it at Newcastle, County Down. Miss Collett and the champion play in the first round Monday.

Five other Americans support the New England girl's challenge to a record field of 168 entries, including the French title holder and four compatriots, three Australians and a German girl.

The Americans are Miss Madge Miller, Birmingham, Mich., Miss Elizabeth Curtis, Clinton, Ia.; Mrs. Stewart Hanley, Grosse Pointe Shores, Mich., and Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd of Philadelphia, British born, who has won the British, American and Canadian women's championships.

PLAYED ONCE BEFORE

Although this is Miss Collett's third entry in the British title event, she has played in it but once before. After losing to Joyce Wethered in 1925, she returned for another try in 1926, but the championship was postponed on account of the nation-wide strike, and she could not wait.

Joyce Wethered, who won the title three times, has retired from championship golf after mob scenes at Troon in 1926 when she defeated Cecil Leitch at the thirty-seventh hole. She was battered and bruised by a thundering gallery of golf enthusiasts trying to see her every shot. This year she will be fishing in Scotland as the tournament play goes on.

Should Miss Collett be swept away in a burst of Gallic golfing brilliance, an Anglo-American player may carry on. Miss Maude Hunnewell, a New England girl who has lived in England for some time and will be married in June to Ray Atherton, counsellor of the American embassy in London, plays a good steady game and may seriously be considered as a finalist. Her clubs are Sunningdale and North Berwick, in Scotland.

CHAMP IN TOP FORM

Mlle. Thion de la Chaume plays much golf on British links and has been practicing steadily to defend her title. She recently won the French title for the third straight time. Judging from her play at Stoke Poges, near London, she will give her American rival a sturdy battle. Should she fall at the first hurdle, a worthy compatriot, Mlle. M. le Blan, who reached the semi-finals last year, may remain to fight for France.

Neither of Britain's leading players are at Hunstanton, for Cecil Leitch, like Miss Wethered, has remained out of the play. Mrs. E. F. A. Guedalla, the former Edith Leitch, present English ladies' native champion, is entered, as are Miss Dorothy Pearson, runner-up in the championship last year; Mrs. Garon, runner-up in 1926; Molly Gourlay, native champion of 1926, and Enid Wilson, former girl champion and a semi-finalist last year.

Two rounds will be played the first day, but only one Tuesday, two each on Wednesday and Thursday, and the 36 holes final Friday.

Another Golf Course On U. S.-Canada Line

VANCOUVER, B. C. May 12.—(AP.)—International golf courses on the United States-Canada boundary may become quite the thing in the future.

While announcement was being made at Boston of the establishment of a golf club on the Vermont-Quebec border, another international course was being planned at White Rock, B. C.

Samuel Hill of Seattle, good roads enthusiast and peace advocate, is sponsor of the plan and expects to have the first nine holes built by July. The course will be near the Peace Arch, built by Mr. Hill some years ago to commemorate 100 years of peace between

W. VA. DEFEATS BISONS, 110-25

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., May 12.—West Virginia University defeated Bethany College in a dual track and field meet here today by score of 110 to 25. The Mountaineers scored 13 firsts, 13 seconds and six thirds to accumulate their total, while the Bisons scored two firsts, two seconds and nine thirds.

The Bethany team was without the services of Virgil Elliott, its high point man, who suffered an ankle injury and could not enter the meet, while West Virginia's brilliant captain, Stender, was ill with grip, and was withheld from the meet. The summary:

100-yard dash—Tarr, Bethany, first; Morris, Bethany, second; Fasick, Bethany, third. Time, 9 4-5 seconds.

220-yard dash—Tarr, Bethany, first; Montgomery, West Virginia, second; Rork, West Virginia, third. Time, 22 1-5 seconds.

440-yard dash—Montgomery, West Virginia, first; F. Glenn, West Virginia, second; Espey, Bethany, third. Time, 51 3-5 seconds.

Half-mile run—Buvinger, West Virginia, first; Morgan, West Virginia, second; Markley, Bethany, third. Time, 9 minutes 2 4-5 seconds.

Mile run—Reiley, West Virginia, first; Markley, Bethany, second; McDonald, Bethany, third. Time, 4 minutes 48 3-5 seconds.

Two-mile run—Reiley, West Virginia, first; Young, West Virginia, second; McDonald, Bethany, third. Time, 10 minutes 40 2-5 seconds.

120-yard high hurdles—Maxwell, West Virginia, first; A. Glenn, West Virginia, second; Epsing, West Virginia, third. Time, 15 3-5 seconds.

220-yard low hurdles—Sturbois, West Virginia, first; Maxwell, West Virginia, second; Harsh, Bethany, third. Time, 26 4-5 seconds.

Shot put—Goldstein, West Virginia, first; Montgomery, West Virginia, second; Lewis, West Virginia, third. Distance, 38 feet 5 inches.

Broad jump—Taylor, West Virginia, first; A. Glenn, West Virginia, second; Montgomery, West Virginia, third. Distance, 20 feet 3½ inches.

High jump—Aultz and A. Glenn, West Virginia, tied for first; Riery and Fiers, Bethany, tied for third. Height, 5 feet 9¾ inches.

Pole vault—Ruble, West Virginia, first; Aultz, West Virginia, second; Cashman, Bethany, third. Height, 11 feet 6 inches.

in activity. Charley Manning, its pro, is getting on great, as is his brother, Pete. Good old Charley Heath is still on the job, too. He's sure a popular chap. And a new manager is in the clubhouse—one A. Shubert, who is having a successful administration, so we are told.

VALLEY HEIGHTS COUNTRY CLUB plans on opening its season Saturday, according to an announcement of the tournament and events committee, which includes Clarence V. Tiers, R. B. Blackburn, Dr. Walter T. Gregg, Clarence E. Lee and Robert Woodings. The qualifying round of its spring tournament will be played on that day, the final round being slated for Decoration Day.

Partners for the spring event will be matched at the first tee. Suitable trophies will be awarded the winners. The qualifying round will be at medal play and the remaining rounds at match play. Players will be assigned to flights according to their gross score. They also will be put on teams. Unless challenged and beaten by a player on a lower team who has had two better 18-hole cards, a man's status will remain the same throughout the season.

One of the objects of the teams is to match them against other clubs and to enter a first team to represent the club in the Inter-Club League, recently sponsored by the W. P. G. A. Handicap sweeps within each team will be played each week-end all season and team trophies will be awarded.

Harry Zimmerman, the club's new professional, will handle the handicaping exclusively. Members will be obliged to turn in a signed score card to him after each game throughout the season so the handicaps may be kept up to date.

WHAT could be more fitting for a slogan for a country club magazine than "When friends meet—Hearts warm." That is the saying we read directly under the masthead of The Forecast, official organ of the Aleoma Country Club. No wonder that the club expects this year to be one of the most successful in its history. It's the right sort of spirit.

Aleoma plans putting on a big "Carnival" on May 29 and 30, according to the organ, in which every member of the club, from the elderly to the kiddies, will be able to participate.

With the resignation of John A. Cowan as House Secretary, Aleoma's office management has been taken over by George Rhodes. And the new club steward is Frederick O. Winters.

Work is progressing rapidly on the addition to the clubhouse, and it is hoped that construction will be entirely completed early next month. There will be a thousand and one added conveniences for Aleomans when all is ready.

THE first tournament of the year for the Traffic Club of Pittsburgh, will be held at the Shannopin Country Club on Monday, according to J. W. Mathews, of the committee in charge of the affair. It is anticipated that a real turnout will be recorded, for it is a lively organization and marks its every tourney with success. It will be the last chance for the Traffic Club's entertainment committee of the present regime to "show its stuff," inasmuch as its term of office expires at the club election in June.

Members and their guests will participate in eight events. Prizes are to be awarded for low gross and net in classes A, B and C, which are divisions according to handicap. Another prize will be given for the lowest number of putts for 18 holes and still another for bling bogey, the number ranging somewhere in between 80 and 90. All playing will be under U. S. G. A. rules.

The grand affair will get under way around noon time, when a buffet luncheon will be served. Following the golf play, an elaborate dinner is on the program, beginning at 6:30 o'clock. Entertainment of a higher sort also will be provided.

The general committee is headed by the afore-named J. W. Mathews, and H. M. Corbett is vice chairman. They have appointed the following sub-committee to handle the tourney details: J. G. Dwyson, chairman; C. E. Scott, J. P. Brannagan, Benjamin S. Thomas, H. L. McLaughlin and E. L. Blandford.

A COUPLE of chuckles. And a laugh up the sleeve. Walter Hagen, supposedly at his worst, stepped up to the tee and showed his best. For the third time in seven years, or in 1922, 1924 and 1928, The Hage holds the British open championship. He succeeds Bobby Jones this time. They call it the British open, but Americans have won it seven times in the last nine years.

The remarkable thing about the achievement to our mind is the complete reversal of form of Hagen, one of the most conspicuous instances showing the imperative necessity of practice to success in the game of golf.

As one English golf writer put it: "Compston didn't know Hagen was only practicing when he defeated the American, 18 and 17, in their special match." Maybe Walt was getting in a few practice strokes; but, at the same time, he possibly couldn't have played any better at the time had he wished to, for, if we know Hagen as well as we think we do, he wouldn't intentionally throw away 750 pounds sterling.

But that 18-and-17 defeat was a great incentive. Hagen knew, no doubt, that the only thing he could possibly do to keep from being a laughing stock was to perk up and take that British title—which he did, and admirably. Compston was too "hot" during his special match to have the edge Hagen had during the championship rounds. From little or no playing before his match, Hagen indulged in some real practicing before the tourney, and, as a result, was "just right" when the finals came around. We are proud of him.

GALE SIMON NYCUM reports that the Nemacolin Country Club links are in the best of shape, and "more beautiful than ever." Nemacolin has a wonderful layout, and the members take full advantage of it. We believe it is one of the most popular layouts in the district.

Jimmy Devlin, who has had something of a cold in his throat since his return from Porto Rico (as testified by the fact that he couldn't render even one selection at a recent testimonial to the golf pros) is getting along in fine shape. He has put on a little weight, and hopes to show some real golf this summer.

DESPITE the warm weather, the downtown indoor course is going great guns, according to Manager Martin. The number of girls who have taken up the game on the indoor links is quite remarkable. Almost each and every one is a novice; but, according to Martin, they are improving rapidly.

The girls seem to find it a lot of fun to play after finishing work—most of them being working girls. They take the time they formerly used for bowling and shop-gazing for indoor golf now—which goes to show how golf grips one once it gets under the skin.

THE British women's golf championship is slated to begin at Hunstanton Monday. It will wind up Saturday. Glenna Collett, foremost woman golfer of this country, will be our main siege. She has a tough task confronting her in her very first round, for she meets none other than Mlle. Simone Thion de la Chaume, present French titlist and defending champion. Among others whom she likely will face before all is said and done is the greatest woman golfer in the world, Cecil Leitch.

A couple of other matches on foreign links will see Ireland playing Scotland at Ayrshire on Thursday, while on Saturday, the Amateur International, between Scotland and England, at Prestwick, is carded.

THE St. Clair Country Club started its regular golf season with a bang Saturday. Its first tournament, a dinner match, was one that few members of the Bridgeville club will forget.

Beautiful prizes were awarded the winners, no expense being spared in putting the event over in the right way. St. Clair, with its course in better shape than ever before, (which is saying something,) looks forward to a big season.

Grantham, Kress Retain Swat Leads in Majors

BUC REGULARS AMONG LEADERS IN NATIONAL

Browns' Youngster Still Holds Top Position in Junior Circuit With .458.

GEORGE GRANTHAM, of the Pirates, and Ralph Kress, of the Browns, retain their leads in the major league batting races this week, according to the official figures, including games of last Wednesday. Grantham leads the National with .455 and Kress the American with .458.

Frankie Frisch, Cardinals, leads the National in runs scored with 23, while Babe Ruth holds this distinction in the American, also with 23.

Taylor Douthit, Cardinals, leads the National in driving out the most hits, 40, while Heinie Manush, Browns, sets the pace in the American with 35.

Pie Traynor, Pirates, has connected for 11 doubles and leads the National League in this department, while Bob Meusel, Yankees, with 10, tops the American sluggers.

Lloyd Waner, Pirates, leads the National in triples with five, while Elford Langford, Indians, Manush, Browns, and Bill Regan, Red Sox, divide the honors in this department in the American, each having hit four.

Ruth, Yankees, holds the home run lead in the American with six to his credit, while Del Bissonette, Dodgers, leads the National with a similar total.

George Pipgras, Yankees, leads the American League pitchers with four victories and no defeats, while Fred Blake, Cubs, leads the National with three victories and no defeats.

Columbia's Crew Wins

PRINCETON, N. J., May 12.—(AP.)—Only a week after taking the wash of Yale's shell on the Schuylkill River, Columbia's intercollegiate championship varsity crew staged a sensational comeback today to trim Pennsylvania and Princeton in the feature race of the Childs Cup regatta on Lake Carnegie.

Rowing without their captain, Alastair McBain, who was forced from the boat by illness only a few days ago, the Columbia eight nevertheless came through in sparkling and convincing fashion. They set the pace from start to finish, beating Pennsylvania by two and a half lengths with Princeton another length and a half behind the Quakers.

Rusty Callow's Pennsylvania varsity, with a new stroke oar in W. E. Taeffner of Germantown, Pa., displayed marked improvement over its showing of a week ago, when the Quakers trailed both Yale and Columbia. The big shock of the race was Princeton's defeat by so decisive a margin.

Princeton captured all four of the preliminary races, including the freshman and junior varsity contests of the main regatta program as well as two opening contests for substitute oarsmen.

The summary:

Varsity (1¾ miles)—Won by Columbia, 9 minutes 5 seconds; second, Pennsylvania, 9:16; third, Princeton, 9:22.

Junior-Varsity (1¾ miles)—Won by Princeton, 9:13 4-5; second, Columbia, 9:19; third, Pennsylvania, 9:21.

Freshman (1¾ miles)—Won by Princeton, 9:20 1-5; second, Columbia, 9:27 2-5; third, Pennsylvania, 9:34 4-5.

150-pound Freshman (1 mile)—Won by Princeton, 5:27; second, Pennsylvania, 5:28. Only crews entered.

Special Race (1 5-16 miles)—Won by Princeton freshman seconds; second, Hun school; third, Pennsylvania freshman seconds (Penn No. 2 broke oar and crew stopped). No times taken.

ACCIDENT BEATS YALE

DERBY, Conn., May 12.—(AP.)—Yale's 150-pound varsity crew was defeated by the Massachusetts Institute of Technology light crew over the Housatonic course this evening when a broken oar put the Elis out of the race in the final half-mile after they had led the start. Yale had taken a lead in the first quarter-mile and seemingly had the race well in hand when the No. 2 oarsman in the Yale shell broke his oar. The Tech crew forthwith picked up on the Eli boat and won easily by a length and a half.

Tech's time for the mile and five-sixteenths distance was 7:01. Yale's time was 7:05.

Harvard won from Yale in the 150-pound freshman and class crew races.

HARVARD IS VICTOR

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., May 12.—(AP.)—Rowing through rough water and semi-darkness, Harvard's powerful varsity crew defeated Cornell and Massachusetts Institute of Technology over the mile and three-quarters distance on the Charles River here today. As the crews swept across the line in the gathering dusk, Harvard was a good length in the lead, with Tech's shell hanging a quarter of a length behind Cornell.

Cornell won the junior-varsity event, finishing two lengths ahead of Harvard. The Technology Bayvees were a poor third, trailing the Crimson by more than three lengths.

GRANT VICTOR AT SANDWICH

SANDWICH, England, May 12.—(AP.)—Douglas Grant, native of California, now residing in London, today won the St. George's challenge cup of the Royal St. George's Club, scoring 71-74—145 in 36 holes to beat 80 competitors. T. P. Perkins, former English amateur champion, had one more stroke.

ERIE DEFEATS SPRINGFIELD; CANTON WINS

Whaley and Beckwith Clout Home Runs as Sailors Triumph, 12 to 3.

Shinn Baffles Dayton; Akron Nosed Out by Fort Wayne, 11 to 9.

ERIE, Pa., May 12.—Springfield's losing streak was stretched to four games here today when the Erie Sailors went on a batting spree and snowed the Ohioans under a 12-to-3 count.

Heavy hitting by Whaley and Beckwith accounted for most of the Sailors' runs, Whaley getting two homers, two singles and a walk in five trips to the plate, while Beckwith connected for a homer and two doubles in five trips.

Springfield got off to a two-run lead in the opening inning when they scored twice on two hits, a sacrifice fly and an error. Erie scored once in the first and then went into the lead in the fourth when they tallied three runs on three hits and an error. They shoved four more runs across in the fifth and added two in the sixth, after driving Boble out of the box. The score:

WORLD'S BEST SOCCER TEAMS TO PLAY HERE

Peerless Glasgow Rangers to Appear at Pitt Stadium on June 30.

St. Louis Amateurs to Oppose Heidelberg in Miners' Benefit Game May 26.

INTEREST in soccer, on the wane here since the closing of the local league competitions, has been revived by the announcement that teams ranking with the world's greatest in both the amateur and professional ranks are to appear in Pittsburgh.

Arrangements to have the Glasgow Rangers, the greatest professional team in the game, appear at the Pitt Stadium on June 30 have been completed and on May 26, at the Bridgeville Speedway, the greatest amateur soccer team in the United States, the St. Louis Municipal eleven, will meet Heidelberg, Western Pennsylvania amateur champion, and last year's national amateur champion, for the miners' benefit fund.

Of course it has always been the aim of Pittsburghers to bring to the Steel City the crack St. Louis outfit, and this feeling has been strengthened since St. Louis kept Heidelberg from representing America at the Olympic games.

The visit of the great Glasgow Rangers means the realization of the wildest dreams local soccer followers ever had. The Rangers, unquestionably the soccer champs of all time, have just won the Scottish cup and league, the greatest feat in British soccer history.

When the trip was first broached the fee of $5,000 as a guarantee seemed to put Pittsburgh out of the way. But some real soccer sports have been gathered together and put up the guarantee, together with the stadium guarantee so it is an assured fact that the famous club will be here. A committee made up of keen soccer men in the district has been formed to put the game over.

And the best amateur outfit in Western Pennsylvania will take the field against the Famous Blue and White. This will be the greatest day in Scottish history in Western Pennsylvania, and this is the club that Americans should see, for the Rangers play soccer as it should be played.

HEIDELBERG NOTICE

Manager Balsarini of the Heidelberg soccer team requests that all players report at his office Sunday at 2 p. m., daylight saving time. Heidelberg will meet the Chartiers Valley League All-Stars in the first of two games to get the Heidelberg club in trim for the big game with St. Louis at the Bridgeville Speedway on May 26.

RIFLE STARS OPEN SEASON

The Fort Pitt Rifle Club began its shooting season Saturday with a fair attendance of members and friends who took part in the several matches and very good scores were recorded.

Big Party Assured For Bill Regan Day

Applications for inclusion in the trip of the local baseball fans to Cleveland to see Bill Regan, Brookline star, play second base for the Boston Red Sox against the Cleveland Indians at Dunn Field on Sunday, June 3, have been coming in at such a rapid rate that the committee anticipates a group of not less than 500 when the train pulls out from the P. & L. E. station on the morning of the contest, according to H. L. Alm, of Brookline, chairman.

Several local industrial firms have ordered blocks of tickets and many of the fans are taking along their families for the day's outing. Reservations are being made at Alm's pharmacy in Brookline; Honus Wagner's sporting goods store, downtown; the P. & L. E. station ticket office; consolidated ticket office, downtown, and the stores of Henry Hirschberg and Gus Miller in Oakland, and will close a week before the trip. A flat rate of $7.50 per person includes railroad tickets for the round trip, luncheon at the Hollenden Hotel in Cleveland and taxicab facilities to and from the baseball park.

Despite the fact that the Red Sox are not up among the leaders in the American League, Regan is playing a bang-up game daily, hitting timely and fielding faultlessly, and his local admirers are keen to see him perform. They gave him a big testimonial banquet at the Roosevelt Hotel prior to his departure for the Red Sox training camp in March.

Errors—Holmes 2, Davis, Williams, Bell, Goodwin, Stigma. Two-base hits—Chyka, Goodwin, Berg. Three-base hit—Davis. Home run—Rishney. Base on balls—Off Korch 6, off Sullivan 5. Struck out—By Korch 6, by Sullivan 3, by Stienburg 1. Umpire—Sunchar.

FLYNN A. C. WINS

Flynn's A. C. nosed out the Vickory A. C., 5 to 4, at Washington Park yesterday afternoon. A three-run rally in the ninth inning enabled the Flynn diamondmen to win. The score:

Two-base hit—Carey. Three-base hits—Dean. First base on balls—Off De Genes 3, off Dean 4. Struck out—By De Genes 10, by Dean 8. Umpire—Corey.

THIEL LOSES TO ALLEGHENY

MEADVILLE, Pa., May 12.—Scoring clean sweeps in the 100, the 440, the mile run, the high hurdles, the high jump and the hammer, Allegheny piled up a 98-36 victory here today over Thiel College in the locals' second track meet of the season.

Had it not been for the field events, the Lutherans would have been badly subdued, for no less than 26 of their 36 points were made in these numbers. The summary:

100-yard dash—Won by Danner, Allegheny; Lunn, Allegheny, second; Green, Allegheny, third. Time, 10:05.

440-yard run—Won by Shafer, Allegheny; Brown, Allegheny, second; Smith, Allegheny, third. Time, 23 seconds.

880-yard run—Won by Bost, Thiel; Richards, Allegheny, second; Ellis, Allegheny, third. Time, 2:08.

Mile run—Won by Wycoff, Allegheny; Dreibelbis, Allegheny, second; Gill, Allegheny, third. Time, 4:51:7.

Two-mile run—Won by Minnis, Allegheny; Pele, Thiel, second; Dean, Allegheny, third. Time, 10:33:3.

High hurdles—Won by Stehle, Allegheny; Eighmy, Allegheny, second; no third place. Time, 16:9.

Low hurdles—Won by Stehle, Allegheny; Hutchings, Allegheny, second; Booth, Thiel, third. Time, 28:5.

Pole vault—Won by Long, Allegheny; Johnson, Thiel, second; Dickson, Thiel, third. Height, 10 feet, 9 inches.

Shotput—Won by Jackson, Allegheny; Eighmy, Allegheny, second; Tuller, Thiel, third. Distance, 37 feet, 4½ inches.

Discus—Won by Bliston, Thiel; Shelling, Thiel, second; Eighmy, Allegheny, third. Distance, 115 feet, 3 inches.

High jump—Won by Long, Allegheny; Eighmy, Allegheny, second; Siple, Allegheny, third. Height, 5 feet, 9 inches.

Hammer throw—Won by Jackson, Allegheny; Pike, Allegheny, second; Billings, Allegheny, third. Distance, 101 feet, 6 inches.

Broad jump—Won by Shilling, Thiel; Green, Allegheny, second; Rexford, Allegheny, third. Distance, 19 feet, 5½ inches.

Javelin—Won by Bliston, Thiel; Pirrung, Thiel, second; Weissel, Allegheny, third. Distance, 136 feet, 6 inches.

Total score—Allegheny, 98; Thiel, 36.

St. Johns Wins Lead In City League

St. Johns went into the lead of the City League when it defeated the Pleasant Valley nine by a 10-to-4 score at Sullivan Field Saturday.

Schmean gave 11 hits, but managed to keep them well scattered. Dugo and McInerney both collected a brace of hits for the winners. The score:

Errors—Young, Kinny, Heanel, H. Kinny. Two-base hits—Klespin, Young, O'Toole, Dugo, Mattis. Home run—Brown. Base on balls—Off Trosky 3, off Neuly 4. Struck out—By Trosky 1, by Schramm 4. Umpires—Baird and Hangan.

SMITHS BEAT VERONA

The Jimmy Smith club traveled to Verona and defeated the Firemen by a 10-to-2 score in a seven-inning game. Crookshank was in fine form and allowed only seven hits. Karabinos kicked in with three hits and Hornish two. The score:

| | | | | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Verona Firemen | 0 | 0 | 0 | 2 | 0 | 0 | 0 | —2 |

Error—Fawcett. Two-base hits—Karabinos, Collins, Hoag. Base on balls—Off Crookshank 2, off Polly 4, off Davis 5. Struck out—By Crookshank 7, by Polly 4. Umpire—Al Jessup.

HICKORY VICTOR

Hickory defeated the Crescent nine by a 12-to-6 score at Atlantic Park Saturday. Foley featured with four hits. The score:

Error—Morgan. Two-base hits—Foley, Welsh. Home run—Foley. Base on balls—Off Foley 1, off Freed 4. Struck out—By Foley 8, by Freed 6. Umpire—Welsh.

STEEL OUTPUT PROCEEDS AT RECORD RATE

Production Now at Higher Rate Than Any Previous Year at This Time.

By R. E. V. LUTY.

Steel production is proceeding at record rate this year. There was only a trifling gain in the first three months, but April brought the unusual showing of a gain over the March rate whereby the year's steel ingot production to May 1 was 3.6 per cent above that in 1927 and 3.0 per cent above that in 1926, the record year. Production is now at a much higher rate than at this date in any previous year.

General feeling in the trade is very conservative and predictions are not ventured to any extent. The statistics to date suggest strongly that additional favorable records are going to be made. This much at any rate can be said with confidence, that if circumstances developing in the future alter the course of affairs those circumstances will be very remarkable.

The average daily rate of steel production in April was slightly above that of March, whereas in the last four years April brought a marked decrease. The familiar downturn in production has occurred, but only within the past two or three weeks, and the present rate is hardly as much as 5 per cent below the highest rate.

STEEL TONNAGE

Only from a very superficial viewpoint was the Steel Corporation's unfilled tonnage statement unfavorable. Unfilled obligations cannot always change favorably. There are seasonal swings. Both last year and year before there were unfilled tonnage decreases in each of the first five months. This year opened with approximately the same tonnage as last year, but there were increases in January and February and only a small decrease in March. The April decrease, as just reported, was 462,073 tons, but even with that loss the May 1 unfilled obligations were 3,872,133 tons, or 416,000 tons more than on the same date of last year. As last May brought a decrease of 406,191 tons, it would take a similar decrease this month to make the June 1 comparison less favorable than the May 1 comparison.

It is the common view that the larger order books this year are associated with the price advances made at intervals during the last five months, customers being allowed to cover on the eve of these advances. A year previous prices had been showing a declining tendency. Some of the advances, those in bars, shapes and plates, are a success. The sheet and strip advances have not been a permanent success as prices are practically back to their low point of late last year. The advances in wire products are at least a partial success, not having been fully tested as yet. The pipe advance is an apparent success, but as it dates only from April 2 not enough time has elapsed to prove the case fully.

PRICE TREND UPWARD

Almost continuously for three years the steel price trend had been downward, although only very slightly so, the total loss being only between $3 and $4 a ton. Lately the trend has been upward. Invoice prices follow market prices at an interval, and realized prices were only a shade higher in the March quarter than in the December quarter. Present indications are that the average in the present quarter will be distinctly higher. A conservative estimate is that shipments will be at least equal to those of the March quarter, hence the plain prospect is that steel company earnings will show a material though not large increase for this quarter.

Notions recently entertained that steel buyers had accumulated stocks early in the year have been dispelled by the remarkable manner in which steel mill operations have held up when precedents suggested seasonal decrease, and by the fact that there is insistence upon prompt shipment of orders and specifications now being placed.

Total steel consumption in the year to date has evidently been slightly above that of last year. As there have been losses in two important outlets for steel there have been gains elsewhere. Shipments of tubular goods have been decidedly lighter than a year ago. The oil and gas fields took a large tonnage in the fore part of last year and a small tonnage in the latter part, conditions this year resembling those of the latter part of last year. Freight car building was not heavy last year, but it has been still lighter this year. It is doubtful whether the automobile industry has used more steel this year than last. Certainly there has been no increase sufficient to count in the general steel showing.

STEEL GAINS

The gains have been in fabricated structural steel, in the farm implement industry and in miscellaneous. In the late months of last year and in the first three months of this year fabricated structural steel awards ran far above those of a year previous. The agricultural implement industry, while it ran well last year, has been running still better this year. Needs of miscellaneous users, who cannot be viewed in detail, have undoubtedly increased.

The season cotton tie price has been announced at $1.23 per bundle, f. o. b. Gulf ports, for lots of 2,000 bundles and over, single carloads being $1.27. There is a three-cent advance from the 1927 basis. Years ago the quantity basis was 3,000 bundles. A bundle is 45 pounds, covering five bales of cotton, and total requirements are about 2,000,000 bundles, or 60,000 gross tons. About 10 per cent of the requirements have been imported.

Bars, shapes and plates remain firm at 1.85 cents, and specifications on contracts at this figure are coming in as freely as is to be expected at this time of year. Sheets and strips, which recently declined to approximately their low points of late last year, seem to be sticking quite well at that level. Standard pipe is holding firmly at the 5 per cent advance of April 2 and it is said that nearly all the orders taken on the eve of the advance are now completed.

The scrap market has been a shade easier in the past week, but not quotably lower.

Dinner Speakers' Time Is Limited By Alarm Clock

Associated Press.

CHICAGO, May 12.

ONE solution of the problem of the after dinner speaker has been found.

At the Illinois Medical Men's Association banquet last night, Miss Florence Kohn was handed a list of the speakers, their time allotments, and an alarm clock.

None was in doubt as to when he was "through." The clock cared for that.

"It even hurried a lot of the speakers," said Miss Kohn.

Coffee Market

NEW YORK, May 12.—The market for coffee futures was irregular today. Prices showed a tendency to ease off under further realizing or liquidation, accompanied by talk of a slightly easier tone in the cost and freight situation. Rio contracts opened 4 points lower to 5 points higher. September sold off to 15.22c, but closed at 15.28c with the market closing net 10 points lower to 5 points higher. Santos contracts closed net unchanged to 11 points lower. Sales estimated, Rio, 17,000 bags; Santos, 21,000 bags.

Closing quotations: Rio—May, 15.00c; July, 15.22c; September, 15.28c; December, 15.18c; January, 15.13c; March, 15.13c; May, 1929, 15.10c. Santos—May, 22.65c; July, 22.45c; September, 22.20c; December, 21.85c; January, 21.80c; March, 21.60c; May, 1929, 21.46c.

Spot coffee quiet. Rio 7s 15⅛c; Santos 4s, 23½@23¾c. The few cost and freight offers reported were about unchanged to 10 points lower.

Rio exchange on London and dollar buying rate unchanged. Rio market 50 to 75 reis higher; Santos 50 to 100 reis lower. Brazilian port receipts, 38,000 bags; Jundiahy receipts, 16,000 bags.

Turpentine and Rosin.

SAVANNAH, May 12.—Turpentine firm, 47½; sales, 206; receipts, 275; shipments, 120; stock, 12,245.

Rosin firm; sales, 608; receipts, 914; shipments, 3,558; stock, 67,213.

Quote: B, 640; D, 665; E, 710; F, 725; G, 735; H, 735; I, 740; K, 745; M, 745; N, 820; WG, 875-90; WW, 925; X, 925.

Duluth Flaxseed Market.

DULUTH, MINN., May 12.—Flax on track, $2.34½@2.38½; to arrive, $2.34½; May, $2.34½; July, $2.35½; September, $2.32½.

Steel Prices.

NEW YORK, May 12.—Steel unchanged.

Silk Market.

NEW YORK, May 12.—Raw silk steady.

GENERAL TRADE IMPROVEMENT IS REPORTED

Purchasing Power of American Dollar at Highest Level Since 1923.

By W. S. COUSINS.

NEW YORK, May 12.—General improvement in business and a rise in the purchasing power of the American dollar to the highest level since 1923, were reported this week by reliable statistical agencies.

Steel, automobile and building construction industries have retained their position of leadership in the upward industrial procession, but noted improvement has been recorded in copper, oil, sugar, rubber and tire, railroad equipment and other industries more or less closely related to the basic lines.

MARKET AND STOCK PRICES

Reckless buying of non-dividend common stocks at prices which appear somewhat at variance with current or prospective earning power of the corporations behind them, continues to be the outstanding feature of the financial markets.

The singular thing about this movement is that it was inaugurated at a time when business and industrial accomplishments showed up very poorly as compared with those of the previous year, and when the major trend of the so-called Wall Street sentiment was bearish. Perhaps the extent of this bearishness, and its actual reflection in the huge short interest that had grown up in General Motors, Steel, General Electric, Radio, etc., was the most important factor in violent turning of the market upward. The big interests and insiders proved their confidence in their own enterprises by buying heavily of their own stocks at peak prices, and the general public was not slow in following their example. This is the condensed story of the 1928 bull market to date, and the full story will not be written for a considerable period.

MONEY MARKET RELATIONSHIPS

In the three weeks that have elapsed since the raising of the rediscount rates of the Boston and Chicago Federal reserve banks, there has been comparatively little liquidation of stocks by the outside public. On the contrary, brokerage houses in Wall Street frankly admit that public demand for stocks was never before as great as today, and that thousands of investors and speculators who have heretofore hardly dared to venture far from the thresholds of the savings banks are now "loaded up" with speculative stocks.

It needs no special argument to prove that, when the Federal Reserve bank authorities sought by higher bank rates to check speculation and "put the market on a sounder basis," they were stepping outside of their legal sphere and undertaking things considerably remote from the specifications of the Reserve Act.

PROFESSIONALS AND POOLS

Whether or not they have more than met their match in the strong, defiant and skillful pools and professionals who have been churning up the speculative leaders at a violent rate in the last few weeks remains to be seen. One of the most outspoken of these "pool operators" recently called attention to the "silly but persistent" references to Federal Reserve Board policies, and the real or apparent conflict of interests between them and the stock traders.

By what authority do the reserve bank heads attempt to "check speculation and put the market on a sounder basis?" And in whose interests are they operating? If it is to the best interests of the country as a whole, then their course is wholly justified; if based upon an erroneous conception of their relation to speculative matters, the country might pray to be delivered from its friends. As a rule the reserve board has been master of the situation, mostly because the stock jobbers fled in confusion at the first signs of official disagreement with the stock market's behavior, but this time it appears that the irresistible force has met the immovable object, and the battle of the titans in the financial world is on, in full force.

BOARD MISJUDGED

The power of the reserve board heads in the banking world is unquestioned, and doubtless has been exerted always for the best interests of industry and business. It has apparently misjudged the effect of the diversion of a large sum of money to speculative channels, the error arising from the failure to realize the enormity of the expansion in bank resources in the last 10 years, coupled with the fact that the borrowings of the big corporations have been compartively small.

Because of that fact the banks are glad enough to be able to loan safely and profitably an additional billion dollars in the call market, where it is subject to daily withdrawal, and loaned at rates above the market for prime commercial paper. What is there to cause such a tremendous pow-wow and clatter? That is the question arising in the minds of many non-prejudiced students of financial conditions.

No tree has ever reached to heaven and all bull movements in stocks have finally reached their terminals. As pointed out recently, stocks of well chosen calibre are worth more today than at any other time in American history, and the widespread recognition of that fact is seen in enthusiastic buying of the shares at a seeming reckless disregard of prices.

Clearing House Report.

NEW YORK, May 12.—(AP.)—The weekly statement of the New York Clearing House Association shows: Total surplus and undivided profits, unchanged; net demand deposits (average), $124,072,000, decrease; time deposits (average), $32,361,000, decrease; clearings week ended May 12, $7,903,697,798.69; May 5, $9,492,815,142.74; clearings this day, $1,417,327,511.21.

Small Holder of Stock Fails to Take Action

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER.

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, May 12.—Although the number of small investors has doubled since the beginning of the century, there is no evidence that their actual influence in the direction of the affairs of corporations has increased. The "economic revolution"—to use Prof. T. N. Carver's description of the wider diffusion of securities — has to a marked extent freed management from the domination of large outside capitalists, but the small investor is for practical purposes still in effect disfranchised.

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., who, though holding with associates 15 per cent of the stock, is an outsider in the management of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, has in effect thrown out a challenge to small investors in the company in demanding the resignation of Col. Robert W. Stewart, chairman of the Standard Oil of Indiana, on account of his part in the oil scandal.

Mr. Rockefeller's decision squarely raises the question of whether the general run of outside investors shall impose any higher criterion on managers than the status of the annual income account and balance sheet.

WATCH OIL MEETING

Except for the lure of the Rockefeller name, the annual meeting next Wednesday of the Sinclair Consolidated Oil Corporation may prove equally significant. The issue is not so much whether an effective enough opposition can be developed to oust Harry F. Sinclair from his post as chairman, but whether any of the smaller stockholders, either singly or as a group, will arise at the meeting to express disapproval of Mr. Sinclair's activities in respect to Teapot Dome and the Continental Trading Company.

The Chamber of Commerce of the United States, at its convention which just closed, adopted a resolution which put the issue directly up to the stockholders, in whom the legal power lies to discipline executives of companies, saying:

"It (the chamber) maintains that stockholders of corporations owe it to themselves, to the government and to the profession of business publicly to repudiate those who misrepresent them. Such stockholders cannot accept the profits flowing from corruption and escape the moral stigma which inheres in such profits. Neither can they permit those who act for them to profit personally through corrupt corporate transactions or shield others who do so."

The most authoritative agency for the expression of business sentiments has spoken out plainly, yet the generalizations will prove empty unless translated into action in particular instances. Accordingly, the good name of business, of which the chamber is so jealous, depends somewhat on the public spiritedness of the stockholders in the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, the Sinclair Company, the Midwest Refining Company, of which Harry M. Blackmer until recently was a director, and the Prairie Oil and Gas Company, of which James E. O'Neil was formerly head.

NEED REPRESENTATION

But the democratization of finance, of which so much has been heard, will scarcely have been accomplished until the outside investors get direct representation in management. Prof. William Ripley, of Harvard University, has suggested that stockholders' committees be formed to conduct independent audits of corporate funds. Another remedy would be to give definite representation through one or more public directors to the minority interests of small stockholders. Until the charters of corporations or the state laws are modified to take cognizance of the rise of the small investor, the most hopeful means of organizing the outside viewpoint is through the development of investment trusts.

Like the small investor, whom they serve, well-managed investment trusts are not insiders in management, but outsiders. Unlike the small investor, investment trusts like a sufficiently large stake in particular companies whose securities they hold to justify a substantial expenditure for keeping an independent check on management. Investment trusts could heighten their power by pooling votes with other investment trusts and thus get representation on boards of directors, not for the purpose of control, but merely to act as watchdogs to make sure that management is efficient, honest and public spirited.

SURVEY SHOWS POWER PLANT OUTPUT GAIN

NEW YORK, May 12.—Growth in output of individual companies and a continuation of the process of consolidation of smaller units or groups into larger systems are indicated in the annual survey of light and power systems with more than 100,000,000 kilowatt hour output a year by Electrical World. Of the systems operating in the United States the Buffalo, Niagara and Eastern Power Corporation again led the field in output for the year 1927, with the Commonwealth Edison Company of Chicago second and the Edison-United of New York third.

141 BIG SYSTEMS

The survey shows that there are 141 systems in the 100,000,000 kilowatt hour classification on the North American continent, of which 124 systems are in the United States, 15 in Canada and two in Mexico.

Plants operated by the 124 systems in the United States totaled 1,423 and have a total rating of 24,275,311 kilovolt ampere, divided into 17,255,891 kilovolt ampere in fuel burning plants and 7,019,420 kilovolt ampere in hydro-electric projects. These plants generated 64,380,010,246 kilowatt hour during 1927. The energy generated by all electric light and power plants in the United States in 1927 was 74,753,227,000 kilowatt hour, according to latest figures.

Power sales account for 33,698,000,000 kw.-hr., almost 46 per cent of the total output of the large systems and more than three times the sales for residential and commercial lighting.

INCREASE SHOWN

The number of systems with more than 1,000,000,000 kw.-hr. output a year has risen to 21, three more than in the preceding year. The combined output of these companies in 1927 was 39,671,078,953 kw.-hr., or considerably greater than that of all the other systems put together.

The largest system in Canada is the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario, credited with an output of 4,133,501,842 kw.-hr. in 1927. The Shawinigan Water and Power Company produced 3,021,201,950 kw.-hr., and the Duke-Price Power Company, Ltd., 1,719,820,538 kw.-hr.

Cottonseed Oil Market.

NEW YORK, May 12.—The cottonseed oil market ruled quiet and distinctly easier, breaking 17 to 25 points under liquidation and stop-loss selling promoted by the reaction in cotton and surrounding markets as well as the bearish April consumption report. The actual consumption last month was 274,168 barrels, sharply below expectations. It compared with 375,104 barrels consumed in March and 205,785 in April last year. Sales 3,700 barrels. Prime crude nominal; price summer yellow spot, $10.50; May closed $10.50, July $10.55, September $10.83; October $10.85, December $10.75.

Nation's Bank Clearings.

NEW YORK, May 12.—Bank clearings in the United States for the week ended May 10, as reported to Bradstreet's Journal, aggregated $12,222,488,000, as against $14,067,323,000 last week and $9,750,320,000 in this week last year. There is here shown a decrease of 13.1 per cent from last week, but an increase of 25.3 per cent over the like week a year ago. Canadian clearings aggregated $432,185,000, against $460,003,000 last week and $322,795,000 in this week last year. Following are the returns for this week and last, with percentages of change shown this week as compared with this week last year (000 omitted):

RAILS LAG AS INDUSTRIALS FORGE AHEAD

Prosperity for Industry Much Greater Than Carriers; Prospects More Alluring.

NEW YORK, May 12.—The Railway Age points out that even in the present great "bull" markets the stocks of representative railways are selling for prices averaging only about 2 per cent higher than they commanded in 1906, while the stocks of representative industrial corporations are selling for prices averaging 108 per cent higher than in 1906.

"Probably the truest measure of the prosperity of an industry," says the Railway Age, "is the return earned upon the total investment in it. The average earned by the railways on their property investment in 1927 was 4.4 per cent, which was less than was earned in 20 out of the immediately preceding 27 years. Why, then, have railway stock prices recently reached new high levels? Because of unusual financial conditions during the last four or five years which have caused the prices of all kinds of securities to advance phenomenally.

"Until very recently the prices attained by railway stocks in 1906 were the highest in history. This is significant because it was in that year that effective federal regulation of railways was begun. The price averages published by Dow-Jones offer the best basis for comparisons.

RAIL STOCKS RISE

"Between January, 1897—when the country began to recover from the effects of the panic of 1893—and January, 1906, the average price of the 20 representative railroad stocks included in the Dow-Jones index advanced 157 per cent and the average price of industrial stocks 138 per cent.

"The railroads whose stocks have been included in the index have most of them been much more prosperous than the average railway, and, therefore, their average prices always have been higher than the average prices commanded by the stocks of all railroads. In January, 1906, the average price of the railroad stocks included in the index was $138.36. On March 20, 1928, it was $140.92. This was an increase in 22 years of effective government regulation of less than 2 per cent.

"What happened meantime to the prices of the stocks of the 20 representative industrial corporations? The average for them in anuary, 1906, was $103, and on March 20, 1928, it was $214.45, an increase of 108 per cent. In other words, prior to effective government regulation of the railways the prices of their stocks advanced more than those of the industrials, while in over 20 years of effective government regulation the prices of their stocks have advanced hardly at all, while those of the industrials have more than doubled.

GAIN SMALLER

"The present 'bull' movement in the stock market has been under way almost continuously since the early part of 1924. From January, 1924, to March, 1928, the increase in the average for railroad stocks was 70 per cent, while the increase in the average for industrial stocks was 113 per cent.

"From the beginning of 1906 to the beginning of 1918, when government operation of railways began, the average price of railway stocks declined 40 per cent, while the average price of industrial stocks declined 22 per cent, but prior to 1918 the average price of railway stocks was usually higher than that of industrial stocks. This has never been true since 1919, excepting in 1921. The advance in railway rates made in 1920 was in effect throughout 1921, while in the latter year industrial corporations suffered from the effects of the collapse of commodity prices. In 1922 freight rates were reduced, while prices of commodities advanced. Since then the prices of industrial stocks always have averaged higher than the prices of railway stocoks, and the difference between them has constantly been increasing.

"The explanation is to be found in the fact that the prosperity of industrial corporations has been much greater than that of railroads, and they have been able to pay investors in their securities larger returns, and also to hold out to them more alluring prospects of future earnings and dividends."

Crop Report Change Sends Wheat Down

CHICAGO, May 12.—(AP.)—Staggered by an unexpected jolt from official sources, the wheat market reeled heavily downward today in the late trading. Revision of the government may crop report added 7,392,000 bushels to the 1928 probable yield of domestic winter wheat, and brought about a series of rushes to the selling side of the market.

Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled, 2⅝c to 3⅛c net lower, with corn ⅝c to ⅛c off, oats varying from ⅛c decline to ⅛c advance, and provisions unchanged to a setback of 10c.

Wheat finished at nearly the day's bottom level. Changes in the government crop figures made the forecast of winter wheat production 486,478,000 bushels, as compared with 479,086,000, the total given from Washington a few days ago. In itself, the difference was not of great importance, but the announcement happened to come at a time when the market was sensitive to any kind of bear influence.

Corn held better than wheat, but nevertheless reflected the action of the bread grain. Good cash demand for corn was in evidence.

May and July oats rose temporarily to the highest prices yet this season. Frost in part of the oats belt led to more or less apprehension of crop damage.

Provisions were easier on account of scattered selling. Weakness in cotton and grain had some influence.

A Profitable Investment

A Conservative Investment

The second largest organization of its kind in the world invites you, without obligation on your part, to investigate the tremendous possibilities of the silver fox fur industry

The Addison Fur Corporation has for eight years and more been engaged in the development of its business. During those years, it has served almost 2000 customers, and we take particular pride in being able to refer to any one or all of these customers, with the assurance that they will gladly speak in highest terms of this organization, of their dealings with it and of their satisfaction with the profits derived from this connection.

We make no promises of unreasonable return from an investment with our Company. We make no exaggerated statements of its possibilities, but we know our position, we know the stability of our company—banks will confirm it—and we know that a business organized as ours is, operated on sane, conservative lines, offers unusual opportunities for investment to those who are seeking soundness rather than risk; a little better than reasonable return on the investment, rather than hope of unusual though risky profits.

We invite the strictest investigation. We ask you to satisfy yourself as to our responsibility. We ask you to get to the bottom of the situation and we will help you find out just what you want to know about us—our responsibility and the stability of our business.

LOCAL STOCK MARKET RUSH SLOWS DOWN

Traders Dubious of Situation in New York Exchange Use Caution in Dealings Here.

The week started with a rush of dealings in certain leaders on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange, but the movement petered out the last two days and Friday saw the smallest turnover for some time. There was no definite reason for the slackening of interest at the end of the week, but one explanation was to the effect that traders are a little dubious of the situation on the New York Stock Exchange where a sudden turn in sentiment may bring an ugly break at any time with sympathetic reactions in the other exchanges, including Pittsburgh. However, the tone noted in some of the speculative leaders on the New York market in Friday's session was conspicuously strong and as far as surface indications went, the long-awaited reaction seemed to be no nearer than at any time in the last four weeks.

The big business in the earlier markets of the week on the local exchange centered around Lone Star Gas and Standard Sanitary, the activity in these issues being a sort of carry-over from the previous week. Lone Star was pushed up to 54, the top of the movement so far, but met rather heavy selling there and settled back to an average level of 52 after dipping to 51 on the first flood of selling. The 52-figure seems to be the level at which the stock wants to hold for the time being, and for this reason there is little disposition on the part of traders to try to move it out of the narrow range it has been working since it balanced itself at that price.

MERGER STILL RUMORED

Future trend of the shares will depend on what arrangements have been made or will be made to turn the property over to the Columbia Gas and Electric Corporation as many insist that it will be. There had been rumors that the program of consolidation would be carried out on a basis warranting much higher prices for Lone Star, but these stories were either premature or away out of line, not to mention the possibility of there being nothing whatever to the gossip about the link-up with Columbia.

Standard Sanitary was admitted to the list on the New York Stock Exchange Thursday and the debut was celebrated with a little run-up in the stock to the 40-level where it was in new high ground. Listing in New York will broaden the market for these shares considerably, as it will bring them to the attention of traders and investors who rarely venture beyond the official New York list for their trading vehicles. The company's record readily will bear the scrutiny to which it probably will be subjected, as the New York traders seek to acquaint themselves with the merits of the shares and it is quite likely there will be some active dealing in the issue from time to time.

ON "BIG BOARD"

Another Pittsburgh stock admitted to the New York list during the week was McKeesport Tin Plate. This company's capital was recently revamped, and while it is not listed on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange there has been a fair measure of trading in the local curb market. McKeesport Tin is one of the largest independent tin plate companies in the world, and up to the present, as a closely held company, has been much better known in the trade than in stock market circles.

Arkansas Gas showed a little activity toward the end of the week, as traders took on some of the shares in response to gossip that another deal is in the air and that the Arkansas Gas Corporation (the new company) will figure in another consolidation. The Arkansas Gas Corporation at present represents a merger of the Arkansas Gas Company with two gas properties of the Henry L. Doherty group. Holders of old Arkansas received one share of common and .365 of a share of preferred in the corporation. The latter securities are handled on the curb here, the common selling up to 3¾ on Friday and the preferred at 7. Arkansas Gas Company, in the official market, sold up to 96, a new current high.

Miscellaneous issues generally were quiet and narrow, with a slight downward tendency noted in the majority of stocks.

TRADE SHOWS IMPROVEMENT

The R. G. Dun & Co., weekly trade review says regarding trade conditions in the Pittsburgh district:

Weather conditions have been more favorable this week, and trade at both wholesale and retail has shown a moderate improvement. There is a fair movement of dry goods at wholesale, but future orders are comparatively light. Demand for men's and women's wearing apparel has been below normal, but is slightly better, and is expected to improve with more seasonable weather. The shoe trade is not particularly active, but is in fair volume. Seasonable lines of hardware, and builders' hardware are showing increased activity. Demand for drugs and sundries continues somewhat below normal. The grocery and provision trade continues at about 10 per cent below the ordinary volume for this season of the year, and these, as well as other jobbing lines, are affected by the continuance of inactivity in the coal-mining sections.

Operation of industrial plants in this district shows a slight falling off, steel plants operating at about 80 per cent of capacity, while some other lines are at lower rates. There has been a decided improvement in the demand for sanitary and heating equipment, and prospects appear to be quite favorable. Electrical equipment orders are in lesser volume than they were a year ago, and plants are not operating as fully. There has been no particular change in the operation of plate glass plants, demand for which continues quite satisfactory. Sales of window glass have been exceeding production for a number of weeks, and announcement of a 10 per cent advance in prices, effective May 11, has stimulated business to a considerable extent. Crude oil production showed a material increase last week, but demand for gasoline is increasing, and prices are holding steady.

The production of bituminous coal is estimated at between 8,000,000 and 9,000,000 tons weekly, which appears to be ample to take care of the light demand prevailing at the present time. Prices continue low, and Western Pennsylvania grades per net ton are quoted as follows: Steam coal, $1.40 to $1.50; coking coal, $1.50 to $1.75; gas coal, $1.75 to $1.90; steam slack, 90c to $1; gas slack, $1 to $1.10, and domestic sizes, $2.50 to $2.75.

SUGAR MARKET.

NEW YORK, May 12.—The raw sugar market was quiet today and prices were unchanged. The only sale reported was about 25,000 bags of Cuban to an outport refiner for June shipment at 4.25c delivered, with additional quantities available at the same price. Local refiners were showing no interest and it was believed that bids of fractionally below this would probably be accepted on some nearby duty frees.

Reflecting the inactivity in the spot market, there was only a small turnover in raw sugar futures, with price movements narrow. The undertone was a little easier under liquidation for over the week-end and some selling believed to be for Cuban or European account with final prices showing net declines of 1 to 2 points. May closed 2.60c; July, 2.71c; September, 2.82c; December, 2.90c; January, 2.82c; March, 2.78c.

The refined sugar market was quiet and unchanged at 5.95c to 6.00c for fine granulated.

COTTON CLOSES DAY AT DECLINE

NEW YORK, May 12.—(AP.)—The cotton market was lower today under week-end liquidation and some trade or commission house selling evidently inspired by reports of rains in Texas. July sold off to 21.06c and closed at that figure, with the general market closing steady at net declines of 25 to 34 points.

The opening was steady at declines of 5 to 14 points, with active months soon showing net losses of 26 to 30 points on the Texas rain reports and the failure of Liverpool fully to meet yesterday's local advance. This decline brought in considerable covering, some trade calling and a renewal of commission house demand. Prices steadied in consequence, showing rallies of 10 or 15 points during the middle of the morning, but reports of rains in the Southwest continued to come in, and the market weakened in late trading under renewed selling. May sold off to 21.32c and October to 21.02c late in the morning, and the close was within a point or two of the lowest.

Trading was fairly active at the start, but became comparatively quiet during the middle of the morning. There was another spurt toward the close, probably on liquidation by early buyers.

NEW ORLEANS, May 12.—Cotton futures closed steady at a net decline of 25 to 32 points. May 20.88c bid; July, 20.83c; October, 10.60@10.62c; December, 20.55@20.56c; January, 20.57c bid, spot quiet 30 points down. Middling, 20.93c.

LIVERPOOL, May 12.—Cotton, spot in light demand; prices higher; American strict good middling, 12.24; good middling, 11.94; strict middling, 11.84; middling, 11.74; strict low middling, 11.59; low middling 11.44; strict good ordinary, 11.24; good ordinary, 10.94. Sales 3,000 bales, including 2,300 American. Receipts 11,000, all American. Futures closed quiet; May, 11.29; July, 11.24; October, 11.12; December, 11.04; January, 11.04; March, 11.04; May (1929), 11.03.

Narrow Changes in Wholesale Markets

31 Advances, 20 Declines

NEW YORK, May 12.—Price movements this week in the wholesale markets for the articles of major consumption were confined within a somewhat narrow range, but, in the main, displayed well-defined resistance to any lowering of values, 31 out of the 51 changes that appear in the list of quotations collected by Dun's Review being advances as compared with 20 declines. In last week's compilation 34 increases contrasted with 30 recessions; in a similar comparison for the corresponding week a year ago 35 gains and 34 reductions were recorded.

Food Index Lower

NEW YORK, May 12.—Bradstreet's Food Index Number for this week is $3.35, as compared with $3.37 last week, $3.38 two weeks ago, and $3.30 for the week ending May 12, 1927. This week's number shows a loss of three-tenths of 1 per cent from last week, but a gain of 1.2 per cent over the like week a year ago.

Of 83 commodities of all kinds, 16 advanced as compared with last week, 12 declined, and 55 remained unchanged, as follows:

Increased—Flour, oats, barley, lard, sugar, raw; coffee, cottonseed oil, eggs, hogs, cotton, hay, steel scrap, Pittsburgh; antimony, tin, spelter, rubber.

NOTES AND COMMENT

EXCHANGES CLOSED SATURDAY

Stock exchanges throughout the country were closed yesterday, the fourth Saturday this year on which trading was suspended to relieve congestion in brokerage offices resulting from the unprecedented volume of business transacted during the past 10 weeks. Banks were open and the commodity markets were in operation as usual. Grains ran into some selling due to upward revision of crop estimates and there was professional selling from sources feeling that the rebound from the recent break had carried the figures a little too high. Cotton sold off on bad weather reports, a six-inch rain fall being reported over an important section of the belt. As was the case on other dark Saturdays, the brokers' offices were not closed and the clerical and order staffs were on hand taking care of routine business and untangling the snarl of delayed reports on transactions. Whereas, in an ordinary market a trade is usually reported back within two minutes or so, it is often the case, in the present circumstances, that a trader has to wait from one hour to the next day before ascertaining whether his stock has been bought or sold.

RASKOB ON GMO DIVIDEND

John J. Raskob, chairman of the finance committee of General Motors Corporation, returned on the Steamship Roma yesterday. With reference to the $7 extra dividend just declared, Mr. Raskob said that this could not be construed as a regular event in the future. "The policy of General Motors," he said, "is to have the stock on a regular dividend basis that can be maintained permanently through good times and bad with extra disbursements as earnings warrant." Asked if there were any possibilities of a stock dividend in the near future, Mr. Raskob said: "It is anybody's guess. Where a stock is selling at a high figure it is always more advantageous both to the corporation and to the public to split these shares and create wider distribution of the stock."

SEES NO OVER-PRODUCTION

As to the outlook for the automobile industry in general, Mr. Raskob said; "I see no danger of over-production in the industry. The point of saturation is that point where there will not be an increase in the number of cars in use. The normal output I should judge to be about 4,500,000 cars per annum. Figuring the life of a car about five years, replacements should bring the annual normal output up to around 5,000,000 cars. This figure has not yet been reached." Earnings of the company for the second quarter, he stated, would be in excess of the same quarter last year. As to the full 1928 year, he said: "Present indications are that the increase will be continued and this year's earnings should prove larger than in 1927." Mr. Raskob said further that he anticipated no price cuts in the automotive industry.

MEEHAN BULLISH ON RADIO

M. J. Meehan, who engineered the sensational advance in Radio several weeks ago, also returned from Europe on the Roma yesterday. He said he was still bullish on Radio, "both as to the stock and as to the management of the company." Mr. Meehan, one of the younger members of the New York Stock Exchange, was credited with having rolled up a profit of $15,000,000 on the rise in Radio which took place immediately after the first spurt in General Motors in the early days of the current market, that is, the phase dating from about March 1.

COPPER MARKET STRONG

Copper stocks have been conspicuously strong the past few days on expectations of an advance in the price of the red metal. Demand is growing, for both foreign and domestic account and it is said some of the agencies no longer will to sell at 14½ cents a pound, Connecticut delivery. Foreign sales of copper were about 12,000,000 pounds on Friday and about 8,000,000 pounds Thursday. Domestic demand is strong and the trade is looking for a price of 14⅝ or 14¾ cents this week. Foreign destinations are unchanged at 14½ cents a pound, c. i. f., Hamburg, Havre and London.

AERO STOCKS IN DEMAND

Aeroplane stocks were in urgent demand as the week closed and new high records were established in the two leading issues on the New York Exchange as well as in Niles-Bement-Pond on the Curb. The latter controls Pratt & Whitney, makers of an air-cooled engine similar to Wright's "Whirlwind." One factor bearing on the rise has been that holdings of aero stocks have not been disturbed by the latest advance and that the floating supply in this group is steadily contracting. This has resulted in immediate response when new buying orders appeared in the market. Several houses report that there must be quite a short interest in Wright judging by the requests for stock from sellers. A few traders never were in sympathy with the advancing trend in this stock and have attempted to pick the top on several occasions. In each instance they have been forced to cover in a rising market, because their buying has disclosed only small offerings.

CERTAINTEED'S PROFITS DROP

Certainteed Products Corporation reports for quarter ended March 31, 1928, net income of $3,042 after depreciation and interest, equivalent to 7 cents (par $100) earned on 41,200 shares of 7 per cent first preferred stock. This compares with $342,797 or 72 cents a share on 307,000 no-par shares of common stock, after allowing for dividend requirements on first and second preferred stocks in first quarter of 1927.

TOBACCO COMPANY EARNINGS

There will be little reduction, if any, in earnings of the main tobacco companies as a result of the recent cut in cigaret prices, according to Edmund Brown, Jr., vice president of the Brookmire Economic Service, who thinks the cut will be offset by increased consumption, and other factors entering into the situation. "Cigaret consumption has increased amazingly in the past 15 years," Mr. Brown said. "For example, in the five-year period from 1909 to 1913 the average consumption of cigarets was 117 per capita. In 1927 this figure had increased to 844 and per capita consumption for 1928 should run over 900 cigarets. The more liberal attitude towards cigaret smoking and the increased consumption by women have been factors in this increase and the trend is still decidedly upward. This price cut was not a mere gesture. A competitive situation had developed which was getting beyond all bounds of sound economic policy. The big companies decided to shift the emphasis from quality, or the extravagant advertising of quality, to that price."

AIKMAN DIVIDEND PASSED

The Collins & Aikman Corporation omitted the regular quarterly dividend of $1 on the common, due at this time. Corporation declared regular quarterly dividend of $1.75 on preferred payable June 1 to stock of record May 22. Statement accompanying the dividend announcement said: "This action is necessitated by the provision in the certificate of incorporation for a surplus of $1,500,000 against preferred stock. The officers regret the situation, but are glad to announce that conditions show marked improvement. If the present rate of progress is maintained the surplus of the corporation should improve steadily." General Motors is understood to have large stock holdings in Collins & Aikman. The company is a manufacturer of materials for automobile upholstering.

SURPLUS CARS DECREASE

Class I railroads on April 30 had 320,762 surplus freight cars in good repair and available for service, car service division of American Railway Association states. This was a decrease of 19,846 cars compared with April 22, at which time there were 340,608 cars.

LONE STAR EXTENDS LINES

During 1927 Lone Star Gas Company laid 469 miles of new pipe lines, giving it a total of 2,455 miles of gathering and distributing lines at end of the year. Company also added 20 compressor stations and six casing-head gasoline plants to its system during 1927.

YOUNGSTOWN PAYROLLS SMALLER

April payroll of $6,671,557 was $174,166 higher than March but more than $1,000,000 under April, 1927. Wage disbursement in the first four months totaled $2,020,-613, against $28,079,588 for the corresponding period last year.

MONEY WARNINGS IGNORED

Irregular conditions in the market, with reactions followed by upturns in some special stocks of a dozen points or so, illustrate the unsoundness of the present situation, according to Henry Clews & Co. In ordinary times, action of this kind would have been accepted as proof positive that a serious reaction was impending and while there is room for this no one can state with certainty that it is close at hand. The present market is indeed unique;—a fact which is well appreciated by many and is undoubtedly responsible for the dangerous reasoning which tends to make light of the official credit warnings that have been furnished in such large numbers. This complete ignoring of danger signals gives the clue to the temper of the trading public at the present moment, and illustrates the irresponsibility with which a good many commitments are being undertaken. Under such conditions it goes without saying that the present market is one that calls for utmost caution on the part of operators and the taking of profits whenever favorable opportunity presents itself, as quotations for many stocks are undoubtedly high beyond their present merits. The sloppy action of the market as a whole, this week, indicates that it is taking less kindly to sales and is therefore becoming more vulnerable.

SEES FLORIDA IMPROVING

"Florida is slowly, but steadily returning to a condition of prosperity," declared Frederick H. Rawson, chairman of the board, Union Trust Company, Chicago, returning from a two months' stay in that state. "Despite the difficulties which the state has had in the last few years, there is a cheerfulness and a splendid spirit of co-operation among the people. Real estate values are now on a sound basis, and the most thoughtful and far-sighted leaders do not wish to see any more boom times. The Tamiami Trail has just been completed," said Mr. Rawson, "and provides a fine highway from Miami on the east coast northwest across the state to Fort Myers on the west coast. The road will be continued north to Tampa. Completion of this great highway is the first step in the agricultural development of the Everglades which include millions of acres of virgin soil. The railroads are working on a new approach to Florida from the north so that travelers bound for the west coast and other places will be saved 10 hours in time, with a corresponding decrease in railroad fare."

APRIL POWER CONSUMPTION

Electrical energy consumption by large manufacturing plants in April was close to 1 per cent higher than in the preceding month and 2.2 per cent greater than in the same month last year. Returns received from 3,000 companies scattered throughout industry reveal that the rate of production for the first four months of this year was 3.7 per cent higher than that witnessed in the corresponding period in 1927. The index of activity in general industry, based on consumption of electrical energy, stands at 119.3 for April, as compared with 118.2 in March, and 116.9 in April, 1927. The average for the first four months is 120.9, as against 116.5 in the same time last year. Ferrous and nonferrous metal working plants reported a 3.5 per cent increase in operations during April, and the rate of operations was about 14 per cent above last year. The automobile plants, including the production of repair parts, gained in April to the extent of 9 per cent. The stone, clay and glass group also moved ahead last month, the gain over March amounting to 10.3 per cent. Compared with a year ago, the textile and pulp and paper industries registered a drop. The rate of activity in the textile industry was almost 15 per cent under April of last year.

STRONACH OFFERS NEW NAIL

Offering of securities of the Stronach Nail Company in the open market was the first acquaintance of the public with this company's product, the only radical change in nail shape in the history of the business. The Stronach nail has a triangular entering end which, its backers claim, has been demonstrated as non-splitting and as providing a stronger grip on the material penetrated. The trade is said to have received the new nail favorably. The nail was invented and patented five years ago, but the company did no public financing until recently. It is a Pittsburgh product, backed by local money, with headquarters in the Union Bank Building.

COTTONSEED OIL REPORT

The Census Bureau places production of linters from August 1, 1927 to April 30, 1928 at 847,426 bales and amount shipped out 782,570 bales. Supply on hand April 30 was 111,038 bales. Amount of cottonseed oil received at mills for the nine months totaled 4,539,979 tons. There were 4,516244 tons crushed and 4,113,019 tons on hand at the end of April. The bureau will issue a cotton consumption report tomorrow morning.

RAISE WINTER WHEAT ESTIMATE

The Department of Agriculture has raised its winter wheat crop estimate from 479,086,000 bushels to 486,478,000 bushels, or an increase of 7,392,000 bushels. The error was due to computing of Ohio's crop at 1,428,000 bushels instead of 8,870,000 bushels.

CANADA'S WHEAT DAMAGED

One-fourth of Canada's wheat crop has been killed by frost, the Department of Commerce was advised yesterday. The report stated that the proportion is the highest in 10 years. Fall rye also has suffered a 4 per cent frost killing.

JAPANESE BONDS DECLINE

In their weekly comment on the bond market, A. E. Masten & Co. say: "Interest in the bond market continues to lag and nothing of any marked importance has transpired during the past fortnight, with the possible exception of the weakness that has embraced all Japanese securities since the announcement of the opening of hostilities between Japan and China. The news was greeted by heavy liquidation in all Japanese obligations, both government and industrial. The remainder of the foreign list is maintaining a very good tone with strength especially noticeable in the Italian group, which has attained the highest level ever recorded. Italy has made remarkable progress in the rehabilitation of her industries since the close of the World War. A large proportion of new securities which have been recently offered are in the form of stock rather than bond issues, which is, of course, the natural result of the improvement in the financial structure of our eminently successful business enterprises. A plentiful supply of funds available for investment has also been an important factor in the present changed conditions. The great majority of our industries have taken advantage of the current favorable conditions and have fortified their financial well-being for years by means of long-term borrowing under extremely low rates."

SOUTHERN RAILWAY

A further indication that Southern Railway directors would place the common stock on a $10 basis before the end of 1928, was seen in the action of Alabama Great Southern which, on Friday, increased its regular dividend on the common and preferred stocks from $3.50 to $4 annually besides authorizing the usual extra of $1.50 on both issues. Southern Railways controls Alabama Great Southern, owning 126,-612 shares of common and preferred.

WABASH HOLDS GAINS

Although Wabash has been moving steadily forward in recent sessions, there has been but little profit-taking by interests who accumulated the stock at lower levels. Most of the selling has come from outsiders who followed the early strength and who are realizing on part of their profits. This supply has had little effect on the stock because there have been supporting orders on all the recent recessions.

INVESTMENT RAILS FAVORED

Standard dividend paying rails are being recommended by a number of the leading commission houses. It is maintained that these stocks are likely to assume market leadership in the not distant future and that they are safer in the event of a reactionary trend because less forced liquidation would come into them. The public following in these issues has not been as large as in many of the industrials and specialties which have enjoyed substantial upturns in recent weeks.

GULF LOW ON FUEL BID

Bids to supply the U. S. Navy with bunker fuel oil recently opened in Washington, it is understood, were bid lowest by Gulf Oil Corporation for all ports on the Atlantic and Gulf coast.

EASTERN CRUDE STOCKS DECREASE

Crude oil stocks held in Eastern pipe lines at the end of April totaled 11,740,125 barrels, a decrease of 449,601 barrels from March, says the Oil City Derrick. Receipts were 1,782,135 barrels, a decrease of 77,774 barrels, while shipments amounted to 5,178,043 barrels, an increase of 221,658 barrels.

PANHANDLE PRODUCING CUTS LOSS

Panhandle Producing and Refining Company reports net loss of $12,532 for the March quarter after interest, depletion, depreciation, etc., as against loss of $140,813 in the March, 1927, quarter.

RETAIL TRADE IMPROVING

Better weather, particularly in the northern section of the country, has brought slight improvement in retail trade buying and sentiment, according to the weekly trade reviews. Wholesale and jobbing trade is somewhat below retail distribution but a fair volume of business is developing.

SHEET BARS ADVANCED

Valley and Northern Ohio makers of sheet bars have advanced quotations to $34 a ton for the third quarter, compared with a nominal quotation of $32.50 to $33, which prevailed the past few months.

Army Enters Three Teams in Balloon Races Here

U. S. AIRMEN ADDED TO LIST IN PGH. FLIGHT

Entries Participated in International Contest Last Year; Many Notables Invited.

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—Three Army teams from Scott Field, Illinois, were entered by the War Department today in the national elimination balloon races in Pittsburgh on May 30. The winners will compete in the Gordon Bennett international race in Detroit on June 30.

The teams are:

Capt. William E. Kepner and Lieut. William O. Eareckson, Capt. Edmund W. Hill and Lieut. H. G. Fisher and Lieut. Paul Everet and Lieut. U. G. Ent.

Capt. Kepner and Lieut. Eareckson participated in last year's race and won third place with 595 miles, earning the right to fly in the international balloon race in which they finished tenth.

This year's international race will start from Detroit on June 30. It will be a contest between six teams, three each from the United States, Belgium, France and Germany, and one team each from England, Switzerland, Argentina and Denmark.

NOTABLES ARE INVITED

A distinguished list of the nation's notables in governmental, aviation and military circles, including three members of President Coolidge's cabinet, has been invited to attend the national balloon races at Bettis Field, McKeesport, on Memorial Day, by Mayor Kline.

This announcement was made Saturday at the headquarters of the National Aeronautic Association in the William Penn Hotel. The list includes Secretary of War Dwight F. Davis, Secretary of the Navy Curtis D. Wilbur and Secretary of Labor James J. Davis. Others invited are Orville Wright, pioneer plane inventor; Maj. Gen. James E. Fechet, chief of the air corps, United States Army; Admiral William A. Moffett, chief of the Bureau of Aeronautics, United States Navy; Assistant Secretary of the Navy Edward P. Warner; Assistant Secretary of War Trubee F. Davison, and Assistant Secretary of Commerce William P. McCracken.

"It is with sincere pride," Mayor Kline wrote, "that the City of Pittsburgh will be host on Memorial Day to the daring men entered in the race. We hope to make it a meet that will be long remembered."

Pittsburgh Prepares for National Balloon Races Here Memorial Day

PLANS RUSHED— Officials of the annual National Balloon Races, to be held at Bettis Field Memorial Day, May 30, are rushing plans to take care of large crowds expected to attend the event, one of national significance. Above is a panoramic view of the crowd attending at the races in Akron last year. The Litchfield trophy is at stake in the event. The races here will be in the nature of eliminations for the International Balloon Races.

Ask $40,000 of Buc Shortstop

Glenn Wright, Pittsburgh short stop made defendant Saturday in a $40,000 damage suit for personal injuries, is fully covered by insurance.

Wright's car hit an automobile driven by Melvin Morgan and owned by W. W. Wright, the latter no kin to the ballplayer, injuring a number of persons in the W. W. Wright machine, the plaintiff alleges.

The accident occurred at Shady avenue and Darlington road, October 9, 1927, the day following the World's Series. Wright furnished bond of $1,000, a copias having been issued by Judge Josiah Cohen, after Attorney Jacob Schulgold, representing W. W. Wright and others injured, had asked that the Pirate player be placed under bail.

W. W. Wright and his family and the Morgan family live in Wilkins avenue and are neighbors. The Morgans were in the former's car at the time of the accident. Mrs. Adda Morgan, Mrs. Belle Wright, Harry Charles Morgan, Melvin Morgan and Betty Wright were all severely hurt and the automobile demolished.

CHICAGO PAYS FLIERS HOMAGE

CHICAGO, May 12.—(AP.)—Chicago today gave mighty acclaim to the Three Musketeers of the air—Fitzmaurice, Koehl and Von Huenefeld of Bremen trans-Atlantic fame.

Along flag-draped Michigan avenue where the inter-twined colors of three nations furled and eddied in the sunshine of a bright May day, the city gave one of the greatest and most spontaneous demonstrations ever accorded any official guests.

Chicago came do hero-worship and would not be denied.

Irish-Americans, German-Americans and just plain every-day Americans without any hyphens—all united in the stadium for the German and Irish songs, the music, the athletics and the speeches that turned the day into a semi-official holiday to pay homage.

Von Huenefeld showed signs of breaking under the strain of the receptions. Shortly after noon he complained of feeling ill and was treated by a doctor. Later he said he was fully recovered.

Fitz Sees Real Chicago; Thief Purloins Belt

CHICAGO, May 12.

THEIR first Chicago visit has been a hectic one for Maj. James Fitzmaurice, of the Bremen crew, and his wife.

First, someone stole "Fitz's" Sam Browne belt for a souvenir. The thief left no clue. The belt was among his most treasured possessions, the major said ruefully.

Then Mrs. Fitzmaurice burned her hand on an electric curling iron. She had asked the hotel management for an old-fashioned one, but it was not obtainable. She was not accustomed to using the more modern article.

It remained for Chief White Eagle, a full-blood Chippewa tribesman, to save the day for the Fitzmaurices. Fitz shook the chief's hand enthusiastically when they were introduced and said he was "glad to get his first look at a real Indian."

Havey Boyle, viewing the life of Pittsburgh and Pittsburghers, translates it in his every-day column, "The Sidewalks of Pittsburgh." A real feature for you daily in The Sun-Tele.

Amazing OFFER to Motorists

10 DAY FREE TEST

Ten days free use of the remarkable new Indian Shock Absorbers. Pay no money. Enjoy smooth rides over rough roads at any speed. Save wear and tear on car and tires. Positively no obligation.

IF we can show you absolute motoring comfort, comfort over rough roads at any speed, will you try it?

If we can give you an ease of driving you've never known before, will you tell your friends about it?

Then it will pay you to read this advertisement from start to finish.

It's the story of a way to make autos ride smoothly. A way that banishes bouncing and tossing. Ends all galloping. And prolongs the life of the whole car.

It's a new and better way. A less expensive way. And a way that you can prove to yourself at absolutely no cost to you.

Pay No Money

Remember, we don't ask you to believe. We just urge you to try the new Indian Shock Absorbers on your car . . for ten days . . at our expense.

Put them to test. Take them over all kinds of road . . . ruts, "washboard", cobblestones and car tracks.

The results will amaze you.

No bouncing. No tossing. No racking and wrenching of car body. No strain or discomfort.

You just step on the gas and let her go. Smooth. Contented. Relaxed. Thrilled by the ease with which you speed over the bumps.

So, by all means, accept the free trial offer today. See coupon below. You can't lose. You're the judge . . the only judge. And there is no obligation whatsoever.

How Indians Work

Indians are based on a radically new and scientific principle. They work both ways . . . in exact proportion to the amount of shock received. Both Bump and Rebound are smoothed right down to a minimum. Indians eliminate most of the spring vibration, the thing that causes springs to weaken and break under the blow of some unexpected bump.

Less Wear and Tear On Car

With Indians eliminating the bouncing, tossing, and spring vibration, the motor will last longer . . the car body will have fewer squeaks and rattles. And tires, too. Keeping the tires from skipping and bouncing, saves wear and tear . . increases mileage.

Get these Results

1. No bouncing. No tossing.
2. No bad jolts. No bad jars.
3. Increased tire mileage.
4. Less wear and tear on body.
5. Less wear and tear on motor.
6. Fewer squeaks and rattles.
7. Greater safety in driving.

Five Year Absolute Guarantee

We absolutely guarantee Indians for five years. There are no straps to break. No need for repairs.

20 Minute Installation

A set for every make of car. Takes only 20 minutes to install the complete set of four.

There are no holes to drill, as in the case of other shock absorbers. Thus your frame is not weakened. There is no danger of breakage.

Accept Free Trial Now Save Plenty of Money Later

If your car is not equipped with shock absorbers, or if your present shock absorbers are unsatisfactory, straps broken, or other parts out of order, you simply cannot afford to let another day go by without trying Indians.

And remember, we won't let you pay a cent until you know you want them. We are jealous of our record of 100% satisfied Indian owners. We want you to be one of those enthusiastic owners, or we don't want you to pay us a penny.

SPECIAL NOTICE TO TAXPAYERS. Office of Treasurer of Allegheny County, Room 107 Court House Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania. May 1, 1928.

In pursuance of the 21st section of an "Act relating to Allegheny County," approved the 1st day of May, 1861, and of the amendment to said section, approved the 30th day of March, A. D. 1866, I do hereby give notice that the duplicates for the several wards of the cities of Pittsburgh, McKeesport, Duquesne and Clairton, boroughs and townships, will be open, and I will be prepared to receive the county, poor, road, bond interest, personal property and park taxes for the year 1928 on May 1st. Said taxes may be paid during the months of May, June and July at 5% discount, during August at face, 10% penalty being added on and after September 1st. Statements will be furnished promptly upon written request, if given name, location by ward in the cities of Pittsburgh, McKeesport, Duquesne or Clairton, or by boroughs or townships. If statement of Personal Property or Occupation Tax is desired, please give street address also. Use of the mail is advised for requesting statements and in making payments of taxes. Remittance may be made by bank draft, certified check, or postoffice money order, (payable to John Francies, County Treasurer) accompanied by stamped and addressed envelope for return of tax statement or receipt. JOHN FRANCIES, County Treasurer.

MY WIFE, Anna Corton, having left my bed and board, I will not be responsible for any debts contracted by her. Frank R. Corton, 5105 Black st., Pittsburgh, Pa.

Pledge to the Public
On Used Car Sales

1. Every used car is conspicuously marked with its price in plain figures and that price, just as the price of our new cars, is rigidly maintained.
2. All Studebaker automobiles which are sold as CERTIFIED CARS have been properly reconditioned, and carry a 30-day guarantee for replacement of defective parts and free service on adjustments.
3. Every purchaser of a used car may drive it for five days, and then if not satisfied for any reason, take it back and apply the money paid as a credit on the purchase of any other car in stock—new or used. (It is assumed that the car has not been damaged in the meantime.)

2 cars for the price of 1

Open Evenings.

Sounds almost too good to be true, but it's a fact these practically new Good Will used cars offer you an opportunity to own two cars at no added cost above the price of one new car. After all, every car is a used car when it has been driven a few weeks. At these low prices you can choose two of these slightly used Good Will cars for the amount you would pay for one new car in the medium-priced field. See them today!

GOOD WILL OAKLAND Says—

"Two cars in the family save a lot of trouble for everybody—especially if they're reliable Good Will cars."

Banker Kidnaping and Attack on Scientist Unsolved

2 VICTIMS IN CASE BROUGHT FACE TO FACE

Weird Affair No Nearer Solution — Financier Won't Name Anyone.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—(AP.)—After bringing the two men together to talk over their experiences, police are in as much a quandary as ever over the Wednesday night attack on Leonard W. Kephart, Department of Agriculture agronomist, and the kidnaping of E. Percival Wilson, Washington banker, in which Kephart's car was used.

Kephart met Wilson in the former's home in Takoma Park, Md., just outside of Washington, at the suggestion of Maryland authorities, and afterward Wilson said he would not attempt to identify anyone as his abductor unless he was sure to get the right man, explaining he would prefer to drop the case rather than involve an innocent party.

Police believe the stories told by both men are beyond dispute. Kephart, en route to his department to work on a report on a recent exploration to British East Africa, as his story goes, was attacked by a man of huge proportions, who probably had an accomplice, and was left unconscious and without his trousers and shoes in a dark road in Soldiers Home grounds.

The scientist says he was lured to the roadside by his attacker on a plea that a companion was ill, and then was struck on the head. When he regained consciousness several hours later his clothes and car were gone. He staggered to a hospital in the grounds, had his wounds dressed, and went home.

Later in the night, Wilson was forced into an automobile near his home in nearby Chevy Chase, Md., across northwest Washington from the Soldiers Home, by a man he believes to be about 25 years old. With a revolver at his head and in a kneeling position, Wilson says he was driven a mile before he tackled his abductor, seized his gun, and drove him off. The automobile later was identified as Kephart's.

A jar of makeup cream, found in the car, has set police on a search to establish where it was sold. A mail sack that Kephart had in his automobile before he was assaulted was found near a window of Wilson's house.

Police also have learned that a valuable manuscript disappeared from the scientist's car the night of the attack. Entitled "East African Safari," it was Kephart's account of his recent trip to Mount Kenya in British East Africa in search of forage crops adaptable to American climate.

NEW ALLOTMENT IN BRENTWOOD

A new real estate development in Brentwood has been announced by the Brentwood Land Company which has purchased from the Bennett heirs 200 lots in the Brightside plan and the entire acreage in Jordan athletic field, adjoining Brownsville road at the Carrick car loop and Bennett Gardens. The lots will be placed on the market soon.

The entire tract is surrounded by attractive homes. The new Brentwood Park, recently acquired by the borough from the Davis heirs, is a short distance away. The park includes a recreation field and swimming pool.

The Brentwood Land Company already has a force of men at work in preparation for grading, sewering and paving operations. Much of the property is in timber, and wherever possible the forest trees will be allowed to remain.

The purchase is one of the largest acreage deals made in the South Hills this year. The sale was negotiated through F. A. Goedecke and the Fidelity Title and Trust Company. D. Carapellucci, Thomas J. McGovern and W. G. McClure are the officers of the land company.

DORMONT BRICK DUPLEX SOLD

A brick duplex dwelling at 2946 Glenmore avenue, Dormont, has been sold through M. B. Cain for Hanford and Ernestine Lefurgy to Dr. R. W. Hughes for $19,500. The same broker sold a bakery business and real estate at 810 Brownsville road for Patrick H. Haney to Charles Munsinger for $28,500. Mr. Munsinger deeding in part payment an eight-room frame house at 7825 Hamilton avenue, Homewood, for $8,500. He also sold for Thomas J. Stanton to Ross B. Johnston an eight-room brick house at 607 Greendale avenue, Edgewood, for $12,500, and for James Blanchfield to Anna Frankovich a hotel business known as the Oakland Hotel at Fifth avenue and De Sota street for $7,500.

Preventive Measures For Diseases of Chicks

By WM. H. WINETE.

Individual treatment is necessary for gape worm. Insert a twisted horse hair or a gape worm remover into the windpipe and remove the worms. Clean and disinfect the brooder houses and remove the chicks to clean ground. Plan to raise chickens on ground on which no chickens have been raised or poultry manure been spread for three years as a preventative measure.

To prevent colds maintain satisfactory brooder house temperature, clean and disinfect, eliminate dampness from the brooder houses, guard against drafts in the brooder houses, prevent crowding and huddling of chicks, and use an antiseptic in the drinking water.

Oftentimes the poultryman confuses true bacillary white diarrhea with the form of diarrhea that might be caused from overheating, chilling, or improper feeding. True bacillary white diarrhea is a germ-borne disease, transmitted from the parent stock to the chick through the egg. Losses from this disease usually start soon after the chicks are hatched and continue for the first two weeks of the chicks' lives. Improper brooder management and improper feeding will lower the vitality of the chicks and make them more susceptible to this disease. The germs are voided in the droppings of the chick and the disease is very infectious. A laboratory test is necessary to definitely diagnose the disease.

MILK HELPS

The use of an antiseptic in the drinking water will eliminate the danger of spreading the disease through this medium. Use of milk either liquid, condensed or powdered, in the ration, will do much to build up a resistance to this disease. In the case of an outbreak, kill and burn all affected chicks, feed liberally on milk, clean frequently, and add an antiseptic to the drinking water. To avoid this disease purchase chicks from sources known to be free from the disease.

Chicks brooded in houses where dusty litter is used frequently develop eye trouble. Use cut straw, clean shavings or peat moss for litter. Sand on the brooder house floor is unsatisfactory, not only from the dust standpoint, but droppings remain on top and are a source of danger to chicks. Chicks frequently become crop bound from eating litter. To guard against this do not put the chicks in the brooder house until they are old enough to be fed, and then have feed waiting for them. Keep the chicks in the chick boxes in a room where the temperature remains between 60-70 degrees until old enough to be fed.

If the chicks' crops are filled with gas, add one teaspoonful of baking soda to each quart of drinking water. Clean out litter if feed is laying around, and feed nothing but clean, wholesome feed. Give all feed in boxes or troughs after the chicks are a few days old. Do not feed chicks until they are 48-72 hours' old.

Follow approved brooder management and feeding recommendations. Feed liberally on milk in some form.

Leg weakness usually shows up when chicks are two to four weeks old. It is caused by lack of direct sunshine or lack of cod liver oil in the ration. Feed a cod liver oil that has been tested for its vitamin content. Use the oil at the rate of one pint to each hundred pounds of mash. If the chicks have access to direct sunshine, either on a platform or on the ground the cod liver oil may not be necessary.

Occidiosis usually appears in chicks three to 12 weeks of age. Clean brooder houses every other day and in damp weather every day.

FEED FORMULA

Keep chicks confined and when cured remove to clean ground. The following mash has given very good results in curing occidiosis:

40 lbs. powdered milk.
30 lbs. yellow corn.
10 lbs. wheat bran.
20 lbs. reground rolled oats.

Access to unlimited supply of liquid skim milk is also good. Another treatment is to give nothing but condensed buttermilk to eat for several days.

Blackhead treatment is the same as for coccidiosis.

Aspercillosis is often caused from mouldy poultry litter or mouldy feed. For treatment change litter frequently and correct feeding practices. Feed everything in hoppers or boxes.

Cannibalism is a vice acquired by broods of young chicks and is difficult to correct. Some poultrymen report favorable results from the use of a teaspoonful of iodized salt to each gallon of drinking water.

KEEP CHICKS BUSY

The best results in combatting this vice have been obtained by keeping the chicks busy. Feed them smaller amounts at a time and oftener. Give small amounts of green food several times a day.

Do not overcrowd the chicks but if they are closely confined provide more room. Remove the picked chicks and paint the injuries with tar, returning them to the flock when healed. Darkening of the brooder house also helps in combatting this vice.

Homestead Man Buys Farm Near Butler

The E. A. Strout Farm Agency sold 129 acres near Butler, Pa., for Mrs. Mary Graham to Jacob Stein of Homestead, and 38 acres near Coshocton, O., for George Hall to Anton Zadernuk of Donora.

Chicken Cackles

By HARRY SINGER

By HARRY SINGER.

Herman Bandi offers a hot tip to poultry fans and I think it is a good one. Due to the unusually cold and wet spring there was a noticeable falling off in orders for day old chicks, some farmers failing to secure even their usual quota from the hatcheries. Eggs went into cold storage at 27 cents last year and present prices are 35 cents. So order more day-old chicks and get in on the larger prices that eggs will bring this winter.

The annual gathering of the poultry clans, which will be held this year at the Harry Singer farm on the Lincoln Highway on the first Sunday in July, promises to be the biggest event of its kind ever staged in this district. An old hen show will be held and we understand that Bill Auerswald and Jake Bedell have volunteered to act as judges. Plenty of amusements and refreshments will be furnished.

Visited McNeese at Imperial recently and found a real he-man poultry farm in operation. One thousand trap-nested white leghorns, well taken care of and all producing, are the features, and the side issues are 140 acres of ground, on which McNeese hopes some day to raise most of his feed. McNeese didn't say that he is going after Baldesberger's crown as our champion, but we suspect he intends giving him a chase.

The third generation of Hilldorfers is here. He arrived three weeks ago at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bennie Hilldorfer, in Perrysville avenue. His grandfather, Joe Hilldorfer claims that he will be a black minorca fan, while his father, Joe's son, emphatically declares he will raise buff leghorns.

AUTO DEALERS PLAN BUILDING

A new two-story brick-and-steel automobile display room is planned by Page & Lawler on ground purchased by them at Baum boulevard, Liberty and South Atlantic avenues, East End.

To assemble the plot, the Henry Schuster property fronting 45 feet on Baum boulevard with a one-story brick automobile salesroom was purchased for $50,000, the Archibald Macarell lot fronting 44 feet on Liberty avenue and Baum boulevard and 128 feet on South Atlantic avenue was acquired for $35,000, and the Bernard Alpern property 50x129 feet in South Atlantic avenue was acquired at private terms.

Black Realty Co. Moves to 5th Floor

Through an error, the new location of the Samuel W. Black Company real estate brokers, was mentioned in these columns as the fifteenth floor of the Farmers National Bank Building. The firm is located on the fifth floor.

Realtors Will Fly To National Meet

The importance of the airplane in the real estate business is seen in the large number of realtors who will fly to Louisville, Ky., for the convention of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, June 18 to 22.

L. T. Stevenson, of Pittsburgh, a member of the board of directors of the national association, will take three members of his firm to Louisville by plane.

Many realtors from other cities are coming by the air route. A plane will bring Harry H. Culver and his family from Los Angeles.

Winter Voyage for Round-World Ship

The Empress of Australia of the Canadian Pacific fleet, which made its first round-the-world cruise last year, will be used again in the 28,500-mile voyage this year, according to C. L. Williams, general agent of the lines in Pittsburgh. The ship will leave New York December 1 and return April 15.

A notable addition to the itinerary is a call at Siam. The Empress of Australia docks at Bangkok on February 6. This new call has been included because Bangkok has much to offer the visitor. The temples, or wats, of which there are more than 300, illustrate an architecture which has been slowly evolved by the Siamese people, and form a pleasing vision with their glittering tiled roofs, gilt carvings and flashing spires.

During four and a half months of cruising, the Empress of Australia will traverse 29,100 miles of ocean, and will visit 26 ports in 21 countries. Her passengers will spend Christmas in the Holy Land, and the New Year in Cairo; they will be in India during the cool season in January and will see Japan in March.

Optional excursions will be made from many of the ports visited, one of the most attractive of them being the across-India trip by special train from Bombay to Delhi, Agra, the Taj Mahal, Benares, Calcutta, Darjeeling, Madras and Colombo in Ceylon.

The first call of the Empress of Australia after leaving New York will be at Madeira on December 8, and from there the ship will proceed to Gibraltar, Algiers, Monaco, Naples and Haifa, reaching the Holy Land port on Christmas Eve. On Christmas Day the world-tourists will be in Jerusalem, and will be able to visit all the scenes of Bible story, including Bethlehem, the Shepherds' field, Gethsemane and the Mount of Olives.

Excursions will be made to Nazareth, Tiberias, the Sea of Galilee, Jericho and the Dead Sea.

On New Year's Eve the Empress of Australia's passengers will be in Cairo. The program for Cairo covers four and a half days of sightseeing, during which there will be included trips to the Pyramids and Sphinx, and optional excursions for those who wish to see Luxor, Thebes, Karnak and the Tombs of the Kings, where Tut-ankh-Amen lies buried.

Alaska Boat Sailing for North

FROM VICTORIA—The steamer Princess Kathleen of the Canadian Pacific Steamship Lines is seen leaving the dock at Victoria, B. C., on her way to Skagway, Alaska, by way of the picturesque inside passage. The mountain scenery along those protected waters of the Pacific is said to compare favorably with anything of its type in the world.

Reading Acquires Bus Line in Atlantic City

ATLANTIC CITY, May 12.—Announcement during the week by the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad of the acquisition of a motorcoach line between Cape May and Atlantic City is believed to be the first in an aggregate campaign against independent motorbus operators against whom the railroads declared war some six months ago. Approval of the purchase has been asked of the New Jersey Public Utilities Commission.

For several months there have been persistent rumors to the effect that the railroads have been planning an active campaign against the buses. Their first move was in the nature of an ultimatum to the city authorities that unless the city would provide them with some sort of protection against the bus competition train service would be curtailed. The city passed an ordinance aimed at the bus operators, prohibiting them from crossing Atlantic avenue and requiring terminals on private land two blocks away from the boardwalk. The ordinance was attacked and is now pending in the Supreme Court. It is scheduled for argument this month and there probably will be no decision until October or November.

Residents of Pittsburgh registered recently at Atlantic City hotels include: Hotel Traymore, Mr. and Mrs. I. A. Bennett, Dr. and Mrs. R. R. Huggins, Mrs. George C. Wilson, Jr., Miss Marie P. Wilson, Mrs. George H. Clapp, Mrs. William A. Galbraith, Mrs. A. S. Toomey, Mrs. George N. Witmer, Mrs. John P. Harris, Miss May C. Harris; Chalfonte-Haddon Hall, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Neall, Mrs. M. ### 399-Mile Non-Stop Run Made by Train

The "Royal Scot," express train on the London, Midland and Scottish Railway, made a new world's record recently with a non-stop run from Euston to Edinburgh, a distance of 399 miles. Previously the train was run from Euston to Carlisle, 299 miles, without a stop. The engines were equipped with large tenders to hold the fuel necessary for the run.

GRACE LINER ON MAIDEN VOYAGE

The new Grace Line motor-ship Santa Maria sailed last week on her maiden voyage from New York to Valparaiso, South America. The journey is being made by way of the Panama Canal and the West Coast. The round trip will require about six weeks.

Among the passengers is J. F. Mellott, president of the First National Bank of Bellaire, O., and Mrs. Mellott, chosen to represent the Association of American Bank Travel Bureaus on the first voyage of the new Grace Line steamer. The Mellon National Bank, the First National Bank and the Diamond National Bank are represented in the association.

Company Arranges New England Tours

The Merchants and Miners Transportation Company has announced a series of tours to historic spots in New England. These include steamer transportation from Baltimore to Boston and return and motor trips to Lexington, Concord, the White Mountains and Hudson River valley. A trip to Nova Scotia is also arranged in co-operation with the Furness-Withy Line. A trip on the St. Lawrence River is planned with the Canada Steamship Lines.

Iceland Cruise Director Here

James Boring of James Boring's Travel Service, Inc., who has chartered the White Star liner Calgaric for a summer cruise to Iceland and North Cape, was in Pittsburgh last week to talk with agents here about the new cruise. The ship will sail June 21 from Montreal, and passengers will have the option of returning either by Montreal or New York.

Announce "Triangle Tour" to West Indies

A "triangle tour" from New York to the West Indies and return has been announced by the United Fruit Company. Passengers will make use of the United Fruit fleet from New York to Cristobal. Transportation from Cristobal to Barbadoes is arranged through the Royal Netherlands Steamship Company, and from Barbadoes to New York through Lamport and Holt, Ltd.

U. S. Consul Sails On French Liner

Raymond Davis, United States Consul in Paris, and Mrs. Davis sailed last week on the French Line steamer De Grasse for Havre.

PITTSBURGHERS READY TO SAIL

Charles G. Andrews, manager of the travel department of the Diamond National Bank, reports these bookings:

Homeric, New York to Southampton, Mrs. Elizabeth Burns; Nerissa, New York to Halifax, Charles F. Edwards; Aquitania, New York to Cherbourg, Mrs. Charles N. Davis, Anna May Davis, Virginia Davis; Minnekahda, New York to London, Mrs. Anna Jamieson; Oscar II, New York to Bergen, the Rev. Ralph K. Merker; Scythia, New York to Liverpool, Mrs. Sarah J. Berry, Mrs. M. A. Broome; Transylvania, New York to Londonderry, Catherine Porter; California land cruise, Nellie E. Johnston; France, New York to Paris, Mrs. Eugenia Oudry; Berengaria, New York to Cherbourg, William H. Robinson, Ida B. Robinson, Elizabeth J. Robinson.

CHANGE EUROPE TOURING PLANS

The traditional way of touring Europe is disappearing and tours are becoming more sensible according to Cunard Line officials. The old expensive way of visiting England, France, Italy, Germany, Scotland and Ireland in the order named has given place to a more practical scheme.

Today most travelers land in Ireland or Scotland, proceed to England, to France, to Switzerland, to Italy. Many sail from Naples. Others return by way of Germany to Cherbourg or Liverpool. The most striking outgrowth of this new route is that Scotland has now become the popular landing place, and that England is visited after the Highlands.

SOVIET VISIT, CRUISE FEATURE

A trip through Soviet Russia will be one of the features in connection with the world cruise of the Franconia, sailing from New York in January under the direction of Thomas Cook & Son.

Special arrangements have been made with the Soviet Union for transportation over the Trans-Siberian Railway. The Franconia will reach Japan during the cherry blossom season in April, and the journey across Russia can be made in the month of May. It is now possible for the traveler to go from Peking to Paris in 12 days.

Excursion Starts For Ireland June 2

George G. McClorey, traveling passenger agent of the Cunard Line, New York office, was in Pittsburgh last week in the interests of the special Irish excursion which will sail on the Franconia June 2. The tour will last three weeks.

Hand-Propeller in New-Type Life Boat

The new hand-propeller type of life boat will be used on all the vessels of the government of New Zealand now being built in British yards. This life boat is equipped with levers fitted on each side which work back and forth and operate gears which turn a propeller.

A boatload of shipwrecked people can work the levers in relays. Any person of reasonable physical fitness can aid in the operation and no previous experience is required. The big difficulty in the past has not been so much a lack of equipment, but trouble in launching a sufficient number of boats safely with the inexperienced help of the passengers.

Loss of life may occur even in smooth water on account of the boats smashing into each other and against the ship's side through inefficient handling. In the case of the hand-propeller boat, a speed of four knots can be maintained, so that a fairly quick getaway from the side of a vessel is assured. One skilled man only is necessary to be at the helm and to work the reversing gear and the wireless outfit. For the outfit includes wireless, the magneto being worked from the gear.

A pump is also fitted to the gear. Provision in the shape of a folding hood is made for shelter and a sea anchor also is part of the equipment. So provided a boatload of persons can propel themselves to a safe distance from the sinking vessel, and with hood up and riding to the sea anchor can in safety and comparative comfort signal for assistance and await a rescuing vessel.

When such a boat is lowered and water borne and has taken on a full complement of passengers it can get away at once. There is no breasting away from the vessel with oars, no struggling with long and heavy oars by persons who may be unused even to river boats. It minimizes the risk of collision by boats and the risk of stoving in.

Mays Back From Paris Celebration

Mr. and Mrs. Walter A. May, who recently celebrated their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary in Paris with 61 guests from Pittsburgh, returned last week on the Cunard liner Berengaria. The majority of the party came back on the same ship.

Pittsburghers Sail On French Liner

Roy A. Hunt, vice president of the Aluminum Company of America, and Mrs. Hunt, of Pittsburgh, were among the passengers who sailed recently for Havre on the French Line steamer France.

Airman May Parachute Down to Fly Bremen Off Isle

LEAP PLANNED IF U. S. PLANES FAIL TO LAND

Army Machines Speeding to Greenley to Recover Ocean Heroes' Craft.

NEW YORK, May 12.—(AP.)—An air expedition of two United States Army amphibian planes today was on its way to Greenley Island to aid in bringing out the trans-Atlantic monoplane Bremen.

Taking off from Washington yesterday afternoon, the fliers spent the night at Miller Field, Staten Island, where Fred Melchoir, chief mechanic of the Junkers Company, builders of the Bremen, joined them. They hope to reach Greenley Island Monday, making stops for fuel along the way at Portland, Me., Pictou, Nova Scotia, and St. George, Newfoundland.

AIR CHIEF ALONG

The two planes are in charge of Maj. Gen. James E. Fechet, chief of the Army Air Corps. One plane is piloted by Lieut. Muir Fairchild, with Maj. Gen. Fechet as passenger, and the other by Capt. Ira Baker.

The flight was undertaken at the request of the German ambassador and Miss Herta Junkers, who pointed out that unless the Bremen was flown from her island prison within a few days the rapidly softening ground would make a take-off impossible.

If a landing by the two amphibian planes at the island is found impossible, Melchoir plans to drop to the island by parachute. The Army planes then will turn back to their fuel base at St. George.

The Junkers mechanic will fly the Bremen out if a take-off is possible.

MAY WAIT FOR STEAMER

After dropping Melchoir at Greenley Island, the Army fliers plan to wait 24 hours and if no word is received from him in that time to fly back to the island and attempt a landing in open water. If Melchoir can do nothing with the Bremen he will fly back in one of the planes to make further plans. If it is found impossible to fly the Bremen out, the plane will be left on the island until a steamer can get through.

Two parachutes will be taken along, a regular Army model, 24 feet in diameter, and a training "chute," 28 feet in diameter. The Army fliers plan to instruct Melchoir in their use.

The most nerve wracking part of parachute jumping, the drop through space before the ring is pulled releasing the silk bag, is to be eliminated for Melchoir's benefit.

Capt. Baker plans to throttle down his motor while the Junkers mechanic climbs out on the wing of the plane, where he will pull the ripcord and let the opened parachute pull him off into the air for the drop to earth. Ordinarily a flier in making a parachute jump dives off into space and then counts three before pulling the ring.

U. S. GETS PERMISSION

The State Department obtained permission from the Canadian and Newfoundland governments for the army planes to fly over their territory.

The Bremen has been earthbound on the barren little island off Labrador since April 13, when Capt. Koehl brought her down to a precarious landing after wandering around in a snowstorm over Newfoundland and Labrador at the end of their ocean flight.

The Ford relief plane, piloted by Bernt Balchen, flew in to the Bremen on April 23 carrying repairs, a spare propeller and fuel. The plane's motor, however, failed to function properly and a take-off on wheels also was found impossible. Koehl, Maj. Fitzmaurice and Baron Von Huenefeld then flew out in the relief plane.

Planning for Many Festivities

AT PITT— Commencement festivities at the University of Pittsburgh will be arranged this year largely by the students. Commencement Week also will be known as senior week and plans are being formulated by members of the graduating class. These three seniors, Jane Smith, Ruth Cheney and C. Stanton Belfour, have been named to the senior week committee.

U. S. Autos Haul Tourists Over Desert

American-built automobiles are carrying passengers in record time through the heart of the desert wastes between Damascus and Bagdad. A trip of 536 miles can now be made with comfort in 24 hours, according to passengers who returned recently from a round-the-world trip on the American Mail liner President Grant.

At the Rutba Wells, midway along the route and 200 miles from anywhere, there is a halfway house equipped with electric lights, fans, an ice plant and wireless. As an oasis it is modern and up-to-date. Brackish water from a mud hole churned up by the feet of camels, and a flapping tent under a palm tree are things of the past.

Architect Asks New Trial in Church Suit

F. J. Osterling, an architect, awarded a verdict of $751.82 in his 22-year-old suit against the Third United Presbyterian Church for plans furnished for a church, on Saturday filed a motion for a new trial. Osterling submitted plans at first in a competitive competition, the cost of the proposed church then being placed at $250,000. He later was directed to reduce the cost to $100,000, but these plans were finally rejected. He sued to recover 5 per cent commission.

New Hamburg Ship Ends Maiden Voyage

The new motorship San Francisco of the Hamburg-American Line arrived at San Francisco recently, completing her maiden voyage from Germany. A committee of city officials extended the greetings of the city to Capt. Wilhelm Walther. The ship is the first of four new motor vessels being built by the Hamburg-American Line for its European-Pacific coast service.

First Air Mail Flight for Canada

Canada's first air mail flight was scheduled for last Saturday with the arrival of the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Scotland from Southampton at Father Point near Quebec. The ship was ready to drop the mail in the pilot's boat at Father Point, where a plane was prepared to go to St. Hubert Airdrome, Montreal.

Steamer Reliance to Sail Northern Seas

The steamer Reliance of the Hamburg-American Line will sail June 3 from New York on a 35-day cruise through northern seas. The route will include Iceland, Spitzbergen, North Cape, Norway and the Scandinavian capitals.

Expo to Promote Traffic in Norway

Norway is having a national exhibition to promote tourist traffic. It will be held in the city of Bergen May 25 to June 9, and will deal with modern methods in giving service in the tourist trade.

Luxuries Served on Sea Liners' Tables

To provide the table of a trans-Atlantic steamship with its luxuries one trip will often call for a supply of 250 turkeys, 500 pigeons, 300 ducks, 200 pheasants, 1,000 quail and 5 110-pound turtles.

'Petting Patty,' a new comic strip of a sweet, gay young thing; 'Just Kids,' another strip with the new 'Safety Club' are features that will interest you on the comic pages of The Sun-Tele every day.

Doughboy Dons White Gloves; Best Dressed

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, May 12.

THE American Doughboy stepped out today in his new white gloves!

With his smart Pershing cap, regulation rubber heels and doggy white mitts he will present henceforth on parade and ceremonies the world's best-drilled soldier—zip from head to toe.

Quartermaster regulations effective today prescribe the new whites for enlisted men only for ceremonial occasions. The present olive drab woolens will continue good form for cold weather, and buff leather remains for mounted troops.

Officers have been authorized for some time to wear dress gloves of white washable chamois or doeskin.

CREDIT MEN TO NAME OFFICERS

Officers and directors of the Credit Association of Western Pennsylvania will be elected at the annual meeting to be held in the Pittsburgh Athletic Association, Tuesday night. The nominating committee will present the following nominees for directors, with seven to elect:

Sidney B. Congdon, the present president; Cyrus Lewis, P. O. Eitel, F. M. Welkal, J. C. Nevin, Cadman Orr, Eugene Jones, Oliver Felinas, Harry M. Smith, W. H. Sanner, James Turnbull and Roy S. Harvey. The nominating committee follows: B. A. Leise, chairman; F. W. Reisacher, H. V. Magill, E. P. Herrington, R. W. Sloan, Oliver Gelinus, E. G. Dill.

As an entertainment feature there will be four boxing bouts, together with a musical program. Prizes also will be distributed to the winners of the duckpin tournament, the building supply group having won the first half of the season and the general team the final.

C. E. Willis will speak on "Intelligence" at Tuesday's luncheon of the Credo Club of the association in the Chamber of Commerce.

47 Companies Named In Fire Insurance Suit

Forty-seven individual suits were filed in Common Pleas Court Saturday by the Butler Candy Company, of Butler, Pa., against as many fire insurance companies, which they claim have failed to pay claims following a $125,000 fire at the plant. The insurance companies have not paid the claims because they claim the candy company failed to take care of the salvage properly. The suits were filed in Allegheny county because the insurance companies have their offices or central agencies in Pittsburgh.

Woman Defendant in $25,000 Damage Suit

Charging that his left knee and right wrist had been fractured when knocked down by an automobile driven by Martha Wolf, suit for $25,000 damage was entered against her Saturday in Common Pleas court by George L. Nikolopolor. The accident occurred July 3, 1927, he says, while crossing Brownsville road near Carrick avenue, Carrick. He charges the woman was driving recklessly.

Bankers to Speak At Meeting Friday

Col. Leonard P. Ayers, vice president of the Cleveland Trust Company, and Carl Snyder, statistician of the Federal Reserve Bank, New York, will be speakers at the dinner meeting of the American Statistical Association in the University Club Friday. Alexander C. Robinson, president of the Peoples Savings and Trust Company, will be toastmaster.

PITT '28 CLASS GIVES OUT LAST WEEK PROGRAM

Opens June 8 With Receptions—Dr. Holland Commencement Speaker.

Final plans for the week of the annual June commencement of the University of Pittsburgh have been completed and announced by Joe Cupp, student chairman of the week's activities. Students graduating in the June class are to have a greater part than they have had before in the program and the week is to be called "Senior Week." Extending from Friday, June 8, to Wednesday, June 13, the annual commencement celebration will include receptions, dances, banquets, presentation of a Shakespearian play, and other events of a social nature as well as baccalaureate services and graduation.

FACULTY RECEPTIONS

A reception by Dr. Grover H. Alderman, dean of the school of education, to students graduating from that school and one by Dr. Elmer A. Holbrook, dean of the schools of engineering and mines, to graduating students in engineering, will open the senior week program on Friday. In the evening the annual senior ball will be held at the Hotel Schenley.

Interfraternity sweepstakes and panhellenic scooter races will be held at 10 o'clock Saturday morning, June 9. Open house luncheons are scheduled for 12 oclock of the same day; inter-departmental track meet, 2 p. m.; final university tennis championship, Pitt Stadium, 4 p. m.; Mrs. John G. Bowman's and Dean Thyrsa Amos' reception, Faculty club, 4 p. m.; sunset dinner, Heinz House, and gridiron banquet, Hotel Schenley, at 6 p. m.

The sunset dinner is held annually by members of the alumnae and the gridiron banquet is given each year by members of Sigma Delta Chi, national journalistic fraternity.

BACCALAUREATE SERMON

Baccalaureate services will be held in Carnegie Music Hall at 10:30 o'clock on Sunday, June 10. Dr. Joseph Fort Newton, pastor of the Memorial Church of St. Paul, Overbrook, will preach.

Pitt Players, dramatic organization of the university, will present "A Midsummer Night's Dream" on Monday in the auditorium of the Young Men's and Young Women's Hebrew Association on Bellefield street at 8 p. m.

Senior women will hold their annual "breakfast" in the Heinz House at 9 a. m. Tuesday. Coronation of the senior queen, elected by members of her class to receive the honor, will take place in the Heinz House immediately after the breakfast. A coronation dance will be held at 2 in the afternoon at Webster Hall.

Engineering students will hold their annual luncheon at 12 o'clock on Tuesday, and a banquet for dental students and faculty members is scheduled for 6 p. m.

COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES

The annual commencement exercises of the university will be held in Syria Mosque at 10:30 a. m. Wednesday. Dr. William J. Holland, 80-year-old chancellor emeritus of the Carnegie Museum and a former chancellor of the University of Pittsburgh, will deliver the commencement address. Nearly a thousand students will be graduated at this time.

The chancellor's annual reception to members of the graduating class will be held at 2:30 Wednesday in the Faculty Club and the annual alumni banquet at 6 in Syria Mosque.

Canal Trade to Use 3 Electric Liners

A third electric liner of the same type as the California and Virginia is included in the ship-building program of the Panama Pacific Line of the International Mercantile Company. It will be used in the intercoastal trade in which the California has already proved popular.

Like the Virginia, now under construction at Newport News, the third ship will be equipped with luxurious passenger accommodations and a large refrigeration capacity. A name for the third ship has not yet been selected.

SUPPLANT HISTORIC SHIP

The building of the new liners has caused the passing of the steamer Finland, which left New York recently on its last voyage. After 25 years of service, the vessel will be junked by an English company.

The Finland was built at the William Cramp & Son yards at Philadelphia. Until 1914 she was operated in the New York-Antwerp service of the Red Star Line.

In October, 1915, after a short period of service in the coast to coast service of the Panama Pacific Line, the Finland re-entered the trans-Atlantic trade, plying between New York and Liverpool until taken over by the United States Army Transport Service in 1917.

TORPEDOED IN WAR

With a load of troops, mostly American ambulance drivers, the Finland was torpedoed 150 miles off the French coast on October 28, 1917, but managed to limp into St. Nazaire, where she was repaired and put back into service. As a transport she carried 20,594 officers, enlisted men and civilians.

Reconditioned for the passenger service after the war, the Finland made 28 voyages as a Red Star liner and then returned to the coast service of the Panama Pacific Line, in which she made her last voyage in March.

TRIP ON SEINE HOLDS BEAUTY

From Paris to the sea as the bird flies is only about 112 miles, but as the Seine flows it is nearly 360 meandering lengths of the same measurement. The broad sweeping curves of the river, its countless islands, looking more like barges of fresh cut hay than tree-covered isles, its frequent visits to bankside towns and villages, all hold fascination. Tourists attempting to do France in a week might well spend the whole of that period from Paris to the sea.

At its confluence with the Epte, the Seine enters lovely Normandy, opposite the little village of Givery, where Claude Monet did so much of his impressionist painting, then come the leafy groves of Vernon, and the Forest of Bizy, then it bends 'round toward Les Andelys and the high Chateau Gaillard, and on and on—it seems through the Middle Ages—till Havre and the homeward bound ship is reached.

Go Abroad for a Nickel

National Airplane Reliability Tour starts from Detroit June 30

The thrill of setting foot on foreign soil! The adventure of traveling under a strange flag!

A nickel is your only passport. You board a ferry at Detroit's frontier and get off in a busy metropolis of Canada.

You'll find the spirit of Great Britain just as it is in London. The customs, the shops, the speech are fragments of the Old World.

If you tour, the ferry has facilities for transporting your car. Be sure to carry your license registration card to conform with customs regulations—simplified for tourists. Your Automobile Club membership card gives you special consideration in detouring red tape. Bring it with you too.

Fine paved roads lead you past the famous Kenilworth and Devonshire race tracks. Through quaint villages. Along miles of charming Great Lakes beaches.

Plan your tour via Detroit. Visit the beautiful parks, notably Belle Isle—the impressive art center—historic sites—interesting buildings giant automobile factories—aviation fields, and a host of other vacation attractions.

27TH WARD TRANSFORMED IN LAST DECADE

Construction of Many Fine Homes Develops New Neighborhood in Twenty-Seventh Ward

Farm Lands Change Over to Home Sites

Changes within the last 10 years in the Twenty-seventh Ward, North Side, have made it one of the attractive residential districts of Pittsburgh. New construction has kept the ward around third place among the wards of the city in home building.

The character of the new homes has been high. Many of them range in price from $15,000 to $35,000 and show unusual individuality in architecture. Most of the new buildings are single dwellings. Last year the building record for the ward was 131 homes for 137 families at a total cost of $840,850.

The neighborhood is centered in the region around the Twenty-seventh Ward park at Davis and Shadeland avenues, Termon avenue and its intersections with Brighton road and California avenue. North of Termon avenue a considerable acreage in the D. B. Oliver property still remains to be sub-divided and reminds of other days not so long ago when much of the region was in farms and orchards.

ACREAGE DEVELOPED

Recent developments include the sub-division of the former Darlington estate of 15 acres at Brighton road and Marshall avenue, where the General Homes Company has started a new development of moderate-priced homes. Plans for the first of these were filed last week.

The new addition to the David B. Oliver High School in Brighton road near Marshall avenue is nearing completion. This addition is a stone structure costing $400,000. At the rear grading is being done for a large athletic field.

At 2696 Shadeland avenue, corner of Davis avenue, is the new home of Milton Englert, costing in the neighborhood of $35,000. At the north corner of California and Termon avenues is a new brick residence erected by Dr. J. E. Andrews, and just opposite it on California avenue is the new home of Dr. J. Wade Elphinstone.

Brandon road is a new street developed by C. A. Pearson. A large number of new duplex dwellings and single homes have been constructed along this street.

BUILDING ACTIVE

The P. J. DeMuth Company has constructed a number of moderate-priced homes in Wittmer and Cambronne streets. The Shadeland Realty Company has four new houses started in Oakhill street. Evans & Newhans have begun work on a group of six dwellings in Dickson street.

Richey-Barnhart, Inc., have a new housing development in Richbarn road. The Martin Construction Company has a number of homes under way there.

The volume of sales of property in the Twenty-seventh Ward this spring has not been heavy. Much of the new building is being done by individual owners. Quite a few of the smaller homes erected by builders have been sold, but there have been few changes of ownership among the larger homes.

An indication of Shadeland avenue values, however, is seen in a recent sale made through the E. A. Hess Company of a house at 3623 Shadeland avenue for Margaret Lippert to Dr. W. H. Thompson, lot 61x113 feet, for $26,000.

Most of the ward is zoned as residential property, but there are a few small areas where stores are permitted. These furnish the neighborhood with retail shops.

Charles Heinz Plans Home At Aspinwall

Land Co. to Build 4 Homewood Houses

The Miller Land Improvement Company is planning four houses on ground fronting 140 feet on McPherson street between Lang and Homewood avenues, Fourteenth Ward. The lot was purchased from the R. Harry Marshall Company through George W. Brown.

U. S. Real Estate Heads Talk Here

HENRY G. Zander, president of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, and Herbert U. Nelson, executive secretary of the national association, will address the Pittsburgh Real Estate Board following a dinner Tuesday evening at the Fort Pitt Hotel. Mr. Zander has been a leader in fighting for changes in the Federal revenue act to overcome inequalities in the present tax law with respect to real estate.

Watching Real Estate

By M. V. BURGESS

RAPID growth in large cities creates strange contrasts. This is illustrated in the Twenty-seventh Ward on the North Side, where a community of modern homes has surrounded the landmarks of rural days. The Conrad Dietrich residence pictured above is one of the few homesteads remaining. It is more beautiful in its way than the ultra-modern creations of the architect, but it is of a different style and born of a different period.

A BROKER recalls that 23 years ago he laid out a plan of lots in the Twenty-seventh Ward. He wanted to buy a little farm from several rather eccentric bachelor brothers who kept about 15 dogs in the house and did their talking from the second-story window. When the broker attempted to talk price and terms, his voice was not heard. It was drowned by the howling of the dogs. He never did get the property. The brothers died and when the estate was wound up it went to others, who subdivided it. Now the fine new homes stand in orderly lines on the location of the old farm.

ONE of the tracts which enhanced considerably in value was the Phillips farm, located along Brighton road between Davis and Termon avenues. The Phillips home stood near to the present Orchlee street. When the plot was first laid out 20 years ago, the lots sold for around $50 a front foot. At the present time buyers are paying better than $100 a front foot and there is little vacant property remaining.

WHEN the Termon avenue district was still a wilderness, Ridge avenue on the North Side was in the flower of its glory as the home of rich and influential people. Society rolled along Ridge avenue in horse-drawn Victorias. The years have brought big changes to the Ridge avenue district. Today the warehouse and industrial district has crept over the borders. Many of the fine old mansions are remodeled as apartments. But the quick access of Ridge avenue to downtown Pittsburgh must not be overlooked. Some day it may regain its old prestige; this time as a street of big apartments.

IN THE East End, the sale of the Flinn and Hamilton properties now under articles of agreement presents more evidence of the changing times in real estate. Situated at the left-hand side of North Highland avenue looking toward the entrance of Highland Park, these two large homes are rated among the show properties of Pittsburgh. Strange to say, the houses have become a liability. Harry Mellon, the buyer, will have to pay money to tear them down, as he plans to lay out the spacious grounds in 49 lots. The purchase was made through Smith Brothers and the Colonial Trust Company and is scheduled for closing next week.

FOUR of the new downtown office buildings have been open to the public for some weeks now, and the demoralization prophesied for the office rental market has not made its appearance. The Clark Building is more than 85 per cent rented and numbers among its tenants a number of nationally known firms. C. C. McKallip & Co. report the American State Bank 90 per cent rented. The Plaza Building is 85 per cent rented, according to W. L. Fleming, the agent, who rented all four ground floor shops in the week following the opening of the Liberty Bridge.

PERHAPS the steady condition of the rental market accounts for the decision to resume work on the Insurance Exchange Building. It is understood that a refinancing has been accomplished by the Washington interests in control of the property and that workmen will soon be back on the job. The new Law and Finance Building has attracted a number of high class real estate and financial firms. Its renting is now in the hands of Kane Brothers. Many distributors of nationally advertised products are gradually coming to the realization that Greater Pittsburgh represents a city of 1,500,000 people rather than the 600,000 in the census figures. Office requirements here are expanding accordingly.

THE growth of another Pittsburgh industry was noted last week when the Homestead Valve Manufacturing Company took title to 16½ acres along the Narrows road below Coraopolis. This includes the former plant of the Sewickley Electric Company. The Homestead Valve Company will move within the next few weeks from its present location in Sixth avenue, opposite the Pennsylvania Railroad Station, Homestead. The new quarters allow for an increased plant capacity.

PITTSBURGH builders are still finding a good market for small homes, according to those in close touch with the building situation. Kapp Brothers have sold 14 out of 15 built recently in Rosewood street, Fourteenth Ward. They have started three more on the Dallas avenue frontage of the Clover Crest plan, Point Breeze. Philip Goodman has been selling quite a number of new homes in Bellerock street, adjoining Murdoch Farms, Squirrel Hill.

THE University of Pittsburgh last week turned over the deeds for nine properties in Madison avenue, Peralta and Suisman streets and Lovett way, North Side, through the Commonwealth Real Estate Company. These are little homes and stores ranging in price from $2,000 to $4,000. The interesting thing is that the properties were purchased by former tenants. The movement toward home ownership among tenants of all classes is steadily gaining strength.

Former Livingstone Home Purchased

The former Livingstone home, a stone center-hall residence on 50x169 feet at 5426 Plainfield avenue, Fourteenth Ward, has been sold through Leo J. Coyle and Brother for the Fifth Avenue Bank of Pittsburgh to K. S. Hunter.

Jacob H. Aronson Forms Realty Co.

Jacob H. Aronson has organized the J. H. Aronson Company with offices at 444-50 Fourth avenue, first floor of the St. Nicholas Building. He will deal in real estate, mortgages, investments, chain store leases and property management.

Higgins Plans $100,000 Home At Sewickley

H. B. HIGGINS, of the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company, is planning a new home in Woodland road, Sewickley, to cost in the neighborhood of $100,000. Plans have been drawn by Janssen & Cocken and are now in the hands of bidders. The home will be erected on three acres of ground, a part of the former J. S. Oliver estate, in the heart of the exclusive Sewickley residential district.

N. Y. Co. Leases Water St. Building

The Fidelity Title and Trust Company has leased for the Hannah Bedilion estate to the Underwriters Company of New York the five-story building at 243-45 Water street for a long term.

A. P. Reed Home in Squirrel Hill Sold

Harvey Childs III has purchased the Alexander P. Reed home, a brick living room design center hall residence at the southeast corner of Wightman and Northumberland streets, Squirrel Hill, for $42,000, according to reports in real estate circles.

The house is a brick structure, adjoining the H. C. McEldowney and L. J. Firth homes. The lot fronts 126 feet on Wightman street and 80 feet on Northumberland street, and the garage is located on a separate lot 40x80 feet. It is understood that O. R. Minnemeyer was the broker.

MANY SALES REPORTED

A brick residence and garage in Jackson street near Wellesley avenue, Highland district, lot 50x145 feet, has been sold by Frank J. Carlson to Walter S. Church.

The Forbes-Murray Realty Company, Inc., was the broker in exchange deal in which S. J. Biederman sold to George E. McKee a business building on 46x157 feet at 5857 Forbes street. The purchaser will remodel the present structure for an office building. Mr. McKee deeded in exchange two new homes at 5356-56½ Forbes street, with a garage for four cars.

A brick dwelling at 1908 Center avenue, corner Dinwiddie street, has been sold for the Cora L. Denison estate to David Teitelbaum. The deal was made through Bernard J. Tracht of the Prudential Realty Company.

Smith & Mott sold for P. J. Holler to Catherine R. Byrne a six-room brick and shingle house on 30x120 feet in Glenarm avenue, near Berwin avenue, for Hugo Beller of Mercer, Pa., to Peter Krass, 30x120 feet in Woodbourne avenue for $1,200; for Edith M. Fisher of Jeannette, Pa., to Tagel & Meneely, 30x120 feet in Rossmore avenue, for $1,200, and to Ivar Swanson, 42x110 feet in Pioneer avenue for $1,700.

The former Sandora property at 1730 Jancey street, Morningside, consisting of two frame dwellings, has been sold to G. Indisio for $8,600. John J. McKenna of the Gribbin Company was the broker.

A lot in Cherry Valley road, Forest Hills, has been sold through the Freehold Real Estate Company for the Bryn Mawr Land Company to Minnie E. Couts, who is planning a six-room brick residence.

564 MORTGAGES RECORDED

There were 564 mortgages placed on record last week amounting to $2,729,003.25, according to the report of C. C. C. Stotler, secretary of the Title Guaranty Company.

Of these, 48 were purchase money mortgages amounting to $139,419.49, and 516 were straight mortgages amounting to $2,589,583.76. The straight mortgages included 185 amounting to $1,389,936 to corporations, 261 amounting to $806,250 to building and loan associations and 130 amounting to $393,297.76 to individuals.

In addition a trustee mortgage was recorded May 9 from the Pittsburgh Hotels Corporation to the Union Trust Company of Pittsburgh, trustee, and Lawrence Stern & Co., Inc., debt $1,650,000.

Building permit applications included.

Fourteenth Ward—H. J. Dietrich, store and tile dwelling, 2207 Beechwood boulevard, $15,000; J. J. Keys, two brick dwellings, 1247-51 Trevanion street, $12,000.

Twenty-ninth Ward—F. J. Ward, brick dwelling, 311 Meredith street, $5,000; H. Welling, brick dwelling, 328 Meredith street, $4,000.

Mission Hills Home Sells for $19,000

A brick living-room type residence with tile roof at 375 Parkway drive, Mission Hills, Mt. Lebanon, has been sold for Peter Donati to Howard R. Haines for $19,000. The lot is 60x160 feet and includes a garage for two cars. The Stevenson, Williams Company were the brokers.

Diamond St. Store Contract Awarded

The contract for a two-story and basement store building at 228 Diamond street has been awarded by the Shepherd estate to the Good Construction Company at a contract price of $60,000. The schedule calls for the completion of the building before August 1.

Keystone Club Steel Rising Fast

AT THIRD AND WOOD— Formal cornerstone laying ceremonies will be held next Thursday at 5:30 p. m. at the new home of the Keystone Athletic Club. Club officers and city and county officials will participate. The steel work has been completed on 16 of the 21 stories of the club structure at Third avenue and Wood street.

Cottage Type in Brick and Stucco

THE ALLEGHENY—This is an attractive little home in the living room design. The house contains seven rooms and one bath and the dimensions are 24x28 feet. A large porch is provided at the front and a sun parlor in the rear. The cellar has a grade entrance door. There are three bedrooms on the second floor, all of which are equipped with plenty of closet space. This plan is furnished by the Retail Lumber Dealers' Association of Pennsylvania, 730 Park Building, Pittsburgh.

CITY LIFE THE SUNDAY SUN-TELEGRAPH SUNDAY, MAY 13, 1928 STAGE & SCREEN

FIRST TYRANT, THEN SLAVE

(Copyright, 1928.)

The power of Nature that keeps the earth moving around the sun, and the sun rolling through space, supplies power that men use in their daily tasks.

Gone are the ancient days of fear. The problem of today is to make Nature's power a blessing to ALL mankind, instead of being, as it is now, largely a source of wealth for the chosen few.

"HE HATH NO POWER WHO HATH NOT POWER TO USE."

FOR more than a million years human beings, more or less like ourselves, have lived on this earth in dread of Nature's forces that are today our slaves and useful workers.

In those ancient days all power was here. Electricity was in the sky and the earth. Waterfalls were tumbling over their rocky cliffs, ready to be harnessed.

Great oil, gas and coal deposits were in the ground, waiting to produce power.

While men had power all around them, they had not, within themselves, the power TO USE that power.

These two pictures of man and Nature's power, by Mr. McCay, are encouraging to all that think.

They show what the human race CAN do, demonstrating at a glance inconceivable progress that men have made in a few short years.

Seventeen thousand years ago men were in the Stone Age, their only tools sharpened flints. And today, after a few generations of human life, men throw bridges across great rivers, and use the power of the lightning that once terrified them to wash clothes, cool refrigerators, light houses and cook food.

The great waterfall to which men offered human sacrifices and which their imagination believed inhabited by spirits, is now their servant, turning gigantic turbines, producing power controlled and used far away.

But "POWER IS EVER STEALING FROM THE MANY TO THE FEW."

That statement, by Wendell Phillips, was never more strongly emphasized than in this day.

A man of science finds new ways to conquer nature and harness her power. The labor of the many does the hard work. Then the intelligence and the cunning of the few MONOPOLIZE THE PROFIT AND THE BENEFIT.

A simple idea created the sewing machine. The eye of the needle was put at the point, so it was not necessary to push the needle all the way through, and the thing was done. Then a woman or man could do work that twenty could not have done in the old way.

But does the woman sewing with a machine today get twenty times as much as the poor seamstress got a hundred years ago? Does the "hand," the human being sitting before a machine, driven by electricity, get for himself or herself a fair part of the increased wealth that the power-driven machine produces?

NO.

The seamstress of today is better off than the miserable woman of whom Hood wrote:

"With fingers weary and worn,
With eyelids heavy and red
A woman sat in unwomanly rags
Plying her needle and thread—
Stitch! stitch! stitch!"

"Hands" that run electric sewing machines today earn in a day more than Hood's poor seamstress earned in a week.

In Hood's day handwork was a struggle against starvation, and there was no exaggeration in the lines:

"O God! That bread should be so dear,
And flesh and blood so cheap! * * *
"My tears must stop, for every drop Hinders needle and thread."

The poor woman of a hundred years ago worked her fingers to the bone and her body into the grave; and power workers of today have enough to eat and fairly reasonable hours of work. But they have little more than enough to keep them going.

Twenty-five thousand years ago our savage ancestor crouched, cringed and trembled before Nature's power. The lightning flash and thunder was a demon pursuing him. Roaring wind or shaking earth filled him with superstitious fear.

What man once dreaded is now his slave. But "POWER IS EVER STEALING FROM THE MANY TO THE FEW."

There is POWER enough and WEALTH enough to make every human being happy, independent, free from care.

But Nature's forces produce rich dividends for a few that accumulate millions, not needed, and only "jobs" for the masses of human beings.

This ancestor of ours kneeling before Nature's power could at least go where he pleased, sleep when he pleased, fight his enemies, kill his game. He got excitement out of life.

Many millions, today, chained to their sewing machines, mill machinery or office desks, would gladly change places with this ancient man—at least for a while.

Webster said: "POWER IS ALWAYS RIGHT, WEAKNESS ALWAYS WRONG. POWER IS ALWAYS INSOLENT AND DESPOTIC."

What Webster said of power the people of this country know to be true of the gigantic POWER TRUST that monopolizes and peddles out for its own profit the power that is actually part of the earth, the power of the waterfalls, power born of coal and oil, stored underground, that SHOULD add to the prosperity and happiness of the whole people.

There is useful education for the people of the United States in the present agitation about the Boulder Dam.

Through great canyons dug out in ages past the Colorado River rushes down over the Mexican border, out to sea.

Today, as in ages past, that water, its power almost unlimited, its capacity for irrigation and supplying water for many cities, ALL GO TO WASTE.

Nature, through the power of the rushing river, has created enormous natural reservoirs.

The proposed Boulder Dam, imprisoning the Colorado waters in one great reservoir, could supply irrigation to thousands of acres, supply power for factories, developing industries along the Pacific Coast and supply Los Angeles and other cities with the water absolutely necessary to their growth.

The building of the dam, conferring all these benefits upon human beings, would at the same time save from danger of flood and fearful disaster the inhabitants of the Imperial Valley.

For years the people of this country have sought to utilize the power of water now wasted and for years they have been thwarted.

The POWER TRUST, "ever stealing from the many," does not want the people's competition, does not want the cost of power reduced, and year after year it has been able to defy the will and the interest of the people.

There is nothing mysterious about the ability of a few to thwart the many. Emerson expressed it in a few words.

"CONCENTRATION IS THE SECRET OF STRENGTH IN POLITICS, IN WAR, IN TRADE, IN SHORT, IN ALL MANAGEMENT OF HUMAN AFFAIRS."

Those that want power and profit for the few understand the ART OF CONCENTRATION.

They concentrate in the lobbies of Washington, and concentrate on certain Senators and newspapers available for a consideration.

They put their own men in important political positions on important Congressional committees.

And still, as when Wendell Phillips wrote it, "Power is ever stealing from the many to the few."

The "FEW" understand their business politically and understand CONCENTRATION.

The picture on the left is not as old or out of date as it seems.

We do not, like our savage ancestors of 500,000 years ago, cringe and shiver when the lightning flashes, the earth trembles or the wind roars.

We are not dominated by Nature, but we ARE DOMINATED BY THE POWER TRUST and other selfish interests that understand CONCENTRATION.

Power that ought to make tens of millions more prosperous and happy simply makes a few more rich.

If you think that is not a fair arrangement, you might write to your Congressman and the two Senators from your State along these lines.

"Dear Sir:

"As one of your constituents I request you to work and vote for government construction and ownership of the Boulder Dam. Like many other Americans, I am convinced that only corruption would prevent or delay this government undertaking a work so important, necessary and beneficial."

(Name) .....

(Address) .....

If you are in too much of a hurry to write another letter, you might cut that out, sign and mail it.

Many million Americans will see this editorial.

If they practiced CONCENTRATION, as the Power Trust understands it, that Boulder Dam would be built in a hurry.

ROPING THE NEWS by Will Rogers

People Not Excited Over Politics, Will Avers.

WELL, all I know is just what I read in the papers. Been messing around the country a good deal lately, trying to find something to talk to you all about. All the politicians are trying to stir up some excitement in their line of work, but I can't find much interest in their graft outside the ones that are in it. The outside people have just about come to the conclusion that there ain't a worry's worth of difference in either one and they just try to forget it, and live it down if they ever did take any interest.

By the way, the way they are raiding the Treasury now there don't look like it will do anybody any good to get in. What's the use running your head off to get to a table where the food has just been all eaten up? If I was an office seeker, I would kinder be doubtful whether there was enough in there left just to pay my reagular salary, much less what I wanted to run for office for.

Cleaning the Treasury

They sure are taking the old Treasury to a cleaning. None of this million, or five million dollar appropriation. It's a half billion or nothing in a Bill nowadays. It takes a man that can think in big numbers to introduce a bill in Congress nowadays. A Bill under a hundred million would be so unusual that it wouldent pass. "We cant spend our time voting on trifles." He would be laughed out of Congress as a Small Timer.

If you got a river near your house and the Government hasent damded it up yet, why it's because you haven't sent them a blue print of where it is, and havent asked them to put one in for you. If you got some and that nothing will grow on and havent had it irrigated, why its because you dont know your Congressman. Everybody wants land irrigated by the Government. For, as anyone knows, new land with plenty of water will raise quite a bit. But so will old land if it's fertilized, so why should the whole of American Taxpayers pay for water for newly irrigated land any more than they would for fertilizer for old land? Both will do the same thing if you will put them on there. But it looks like nobody is ever original enough to think of a Bill like that.

Could Pay Off Mortgages

They just think that water is the only thing that will help land. Why my Lord there is dozens of different things that will help the farmer on his land besides water, or fertilization either. There is the Interest on the first and second Mortgage. Why don't they introduce a Bill in Congress for Congress to help the Farmer by paying off his Mortgages.

WILL IT COME TO THIS?

Thats whats eatin him up on the farm, its not lack of irrigation or lack of fertilization, its ABUNDANCE of interest. Thats the Baby that is there every minute of every day. Not when It's needed, or when you spread it, but every minute of every day and night. Talk and sing about "Old Man River." Its old man interest that keeps the old Farmer running to town every few days. He has to have a bookkeeper to keep a set of books to keep track of when his various Notes and Mortgages interest comes due. It's the thought of the old Mortgages that keep him awake at night.

But if you notice they are always trying to put through some kind of Bill in Congress, but nobody ever puts through one to do something about interest. No sir, you couldent do that, then you are getting into the business of the Boys that really hold the hoops while the jumping is going on. You could no more get a bill through to whittle the old interest down than you could to get a politician to admit a mistake.

They limit a Saving Bank from paying you over four or five per cent, but about eight is legal if you are the one to do the borrowing, and then nothing definite has even been done about the "Bonus" that the extra for the loan. But I will say there is some that are honest enough they don't do that. I wont call names, but they will be given on application.

So yu see everybody has their racket, and everybody is looking to nick the old Treasury out of something, and on

Small Town Boy Shows Odd He Knows How To Perform.

THERE was a distinguished dinner party at the Savoy in London a short while ago given by an American editor who was born and reared in Lebanon, Ind. People in Lebanon recall him as a one-gallused lad who delivered the local telegrams. He was this night entertaining the brilliant outstanding figures of English literature—cool, suave, impeccable.

Knowing my host intimately for 25 years, and with that usual doubt we have for our friends in emergencies, I confess misgivings as to his ability to swing the gathering into the easy familiarity that makes a dinner a success. Such formal gatherings are usually starchy, and coupled with this was the problem of breaking through the crust of a natural British reserve.

I had an eye peeled to see how the host would respond to the kid glove manner, and was slightly taken back to hear him greet Sir Phillip Gibbs with a "Hello, Phillip!" Arnold Bennett with a cheery: "Glad to see you, Arnold," and others who had achieved equal writing eminence as casually. Of course, he knew them, but this was England. My word!

To all purposes he might have been hailing the crowd in the Lebanon postoffice awaiting the morning mail. Yet no affair I ever attended sparkled so spontaneously with goodfellowship. There was not a creak.

This impressed me profoundly. A dinner I expected to reach a pinnacle of frostiness had been brought down to the level of homespun congeniality by the simple process of the host being natural. How few of us know how to do that.

I do not believe anyone who knows Will Hays well, or has been associated with him, has a doubt about his honesty. He has recently been a shining mark for rascals in high places to divert attention from themselves. Hays may have made a mistake in ethics, or tried to shield friends, but many honest men have done that.

* * *

It is no longer necessary to inquire why vaudeville is passing. It is apparent. An institution that features a "Peaches" Browning to secure patronage deserves to pass.

The Fame of Miss Millay

Edna St. Vincent Millay is in no wise comparable as a poet to Edwin Arlington Robinson, and yet she is far better known. One thousand know Miss Millay to one who knows Mr. Robinson. Miss Millay has written four or five graceful poems and that about lets her out, but she has newspaper friends who are plugging for her constantly. Evidently Mr. Robinson hasn't, nor is he making any effort whatsoever to acquire them.

I know of no one who can place himself in such awkward positions as myself. I have just returned from a crowded luncheon place where I tiptoed up to a table and clapped my hands over a lady's eyes. When she removed my hands and looked at me I realized I had never seen her before in my life. I have a feeling that if I were to receive fatal injuries by being run over by an automobile on Fifth avenue it would be in some ridiculous manner that would make everybody laugh.

* * *

Indeed, I am somewhat like the fellow in our town who lost a finger by accidentally touching a buzz-saw. Twice after that he tried to show people how the accident happened and each time he lost another finger.

A Very Good Travel Book

Karl K. Kitchen, who writes an excellent column of New York life, has written the best-selling travel book of the season, with the excellently hilarious title: "Pleasure—If Possible." The introduction is by Will Rogers, and the volume is a passport to gay life abroad. Mr. Kitchen is one of New York's best known cosmopolites. He has been abroad at least once every year for the past 15 years, sometimes three and four times. He is an epicure of distinction, and what he doesn't know about Europe and all the fashionable watering places is scarcely worth knowing.

"A FELLOW IN OUR TOWN——"

The most enthralling mystery story I have read since "The Bellamy Trial" is "The Greene Murder Case," by S. S. Van Dine, put out by Scribner's. S. S. Van Dine is said to be the pseudonym of Willard Huntington Wright.

Give me a gripping mystery story, a stormy night outside, a comfortable chair—and New York can have all theatrical performances for its very own. You feel that way after forty.

Nellie Revell reports passing a shooting gallery with a mechanical piano playing "Home, Sweet Home." But was it in New York—or Chicago?

The old-time Bowery antidote for barroom pests—the "Mickey Finn"—has been revived in night clubs. It is a noxious mixture with a pleasant taste that makes the drinker draw a blank. When he comes around, he is violently ill for several days. When anyone grows rough in a night club these days he gets this dose. That is in accord with usual night club hospitality. But what could you expect of such a sweet-scented bunch of cutthroats who run most of them?

Praise for Mr. Fairbanks

I come galloping in late but breathless to commend "The Gaucho" to you. It is the best movie, in my opinion, Douglas Fairbanks has ever done, or anyone else has ever done, for that matter. Mr. Fairbanks has improved vastly since the last time I walked out on his cinema didoes. He does things easily and with a poise and grace whereas it seemed to me he used to go about his capers in the manner of an acrobat—tossing the handkerchief, resining his toes and such. Today I think he is the best bet in the movies. His picture is complete, unless one complains that in flashing those on the screen who assisted him he neglected the water boy. Doubtless all this advice is wasted for most folk have probably seen "The Gaucho" by now.

ONE GIRL to ANOTHER

By LLOYD MAYER

Sandie Is Thrilled by Life in Bermuda.

"WELL, my dear, I was HONestly so exCITed I could have YODeled YAMS when this SIMply FASCinating Captain CarMUDgeon picked me UP at the ELbo BEACH place in BerMUda, my dear, because he was SIMply DARling-looking in these odd little KILtie effects that these Scotch REGiments and things WEAR, my dear, because I mean he LOOKED like a terribly GRACEful ballET dancer with a mustACHE—can you BEAR it, my dear?

"ACtually, I was ALL-of-a-DIMPus at this point because I mean he sugGESted taking a DRIVE somewheres and I said I'd SIMply aDORE to only I exPLAINED I was WITH this ELderly EScort of mine with the BOX-pleated TUMmy who at that MOment was SEARCHing inDUStrially for a bunch of ONions and ENdives for our al FRESHco LUNCHeon, no less, and this Captain CarMUDgeon was TERribly aMUSED at the idea and he HONestly had the MOST contagious LAUGH, my dear! I mean it was FULL of little GUPS and CHORtles, sort of, do you know what I mean?

"WELL, ANYways, my dear, I said I thought I ought to WAIT ten MINutes or something for this ancient FOSsil to reTURN with the Vlands because it would be TERribly RUDE to DITCH him after he'd inVIted me to the BEACH and all, only I was ABsolutely ALL-of-a-DITHer to be OFF with this Captain CarMUDgeon because, my dear, "I could SEE he was the TYPE that would be HEAPS of FUN to roar ROUND with and when I told him about this KIPpy old BEAU who'd been taking me ROUND in BerMUDA and all he was FRIGHTfully aMUSED, my dear, and after about five Minutes he said he'd bet ANYthing the old WRECK had got STRANDed on a BAR somewhere, which I thought was a TERribly clever reMARK, my dear.

"I HASTily scribbled a NOTE to LEAVE for the antique BIMbo explaining I was dePARTing because I thought it was AWfully RUDE of him to keep a lady WAITing, and Captain CarMUDgeon thought that was a simply deLIGHTful IDEA and kept HOWLing with Laughter about it for HOURS!

"SO at this point, my dear, we FLAGGED one of these FUNgus vicTORias everybody rides MADly round in, and told the DRIver to aROUSE the HORSE, if POSsible, and TAKE us somewheres so after HOURS of COAXING and caJOLing, no less, he managed to perSUADE this odd ANimal to AMble SLOWly FORward, my dear, and we ACtually had the most HEAVenly DRIVE, my dear, through these TERribly buCOLic LANES and things between BUNCHes of baNANas and FLAMing haBIScoes and things—can you BEAR it?

"I mean it was SIMply diVINE and I was HONestly TOO imPRESSED because, my dear, I simply aDORE NAture and I mean the WILD LIFE in BerMUda is SIMply irreSISTible because I mean it gets TO you, sort of, and you ACtually feel like LETting yourself GO, especially when you're with a terribly atTRACtive MAN who keeps TELLing you you're the most b'YUtiful girl he's ever MET and trying to NECK you and all, do you know what I mean?

"BUT I simply NEVer let ANY man who really inTRIGUES me NECK me, my dear, because I mean the TYPE of man who ACtually apPEALS to me is the type that REALLY hasn't any reSPECT for a girl who NECKS, my dear, although they practically spend their enTIRE time TRYing to NECK ev'ry attractive girl they MEET, but I mean they're iDEALists or something and they're ALways disapPOINTed in a girl who lets them NECK her and all, do you know what I mean?

"So when I GENtly but FIRMLY rePULSED this Captain CarMUDgeon's AM'rous SALlies, my dear, he was TOO imPRESSED and we talked awfully SERIously about LIFE and things, sort of, and I told him I was HONestly DYing to KNOW why it WAS that EV'ry man I MET always seemed to have the IDEA I was a NECKer.

"He said NObody could LOOK at anybody as b'YUtiful as me without having the YEN to CLASP them in their ARMS and NECK them so I said I was TOO dePRESSED about it because I said I'd FAR rather have people say I apPEALED to them on account of my INtellect or something—can you BEAR it, my dear?

"I was HONestly DYing to KNOW why it WAS that EV'ry man I MET always seemed to have the IDEA I was a NECKER."

"WELL, ANYways, my dear, at THIS point we'd arRIVED at this odd place where SPANish ROCK effect is, which is s'posed to be where this strange SPANish bimbo landed when he disCOVered BerMUda or something but I mean I don't see WHY they consider it such an HONor because how could he HELP it when he was WRECKED or something and ANYways, my dear, this ROCK effect is TERribly unimPRESsive.

"I mean you're s'posed to see DATES and things with the NAME of this odd soul on it but it just LOKS like a lot of HENscratches or something like SANDscript, f'r instance!

"HEAVens' GATES and SHINles, my dear! Do you REALize what TIME it is at this point? I'll have to dash MADly HOME this MINute because DOra and MILLie are coming over to play BRIDGE with I and MOTHer at FIVE, but ANYways I'll see you NEXT Sunday, my dear, because I want to tell you LOADS more about this FERvid affAIR I had with Captain CarMUDgeon, my dear—I mean I ACtually DO!"

SIDEWALKS of PITTSBURGH by Havey Boyle

Lindy Has Nothing On Havey in Being Shy of Laundry.

A VERY helpful man in Chicago writes a letter in which he says he will try to help us in finding our strong and weak points. Now, if he justs points out a few strong ones he'll have earned his fee.

In view of the fact that laundries fail to return Lindbergh's shirts, some employes keeping them as souvenirs, you can imagine how puffed up we felt only recently when our laundry came back shy two collars. It used to be the customer would call up and raise you-know with the laundry people when an article was missing, but since Lindbergh made his flight all this is changed. Most of us now instead of getting in a rage get a pleasant glow coming from the implied compliment.

NATURALLY, the laundry people can carry the idea too far. For instance, it seems here a table cloth is not the best souvenir possible.

It is natural that talk of laundries should automatically cause one to think of the Chinese situation in Pittsburgh. Every section has at least one Chinese laundry, with the checks written in their native language.

IN ANY community, in spite of early fears entertained by the boys of the neighborhood, the Chinese launderer makes an ideal citizen. He molests nothing but the clothes that come to him for cleaning. His life is that of a recluse. He may take the earnings from the week's washing to a fan-tan table, but if he does, he maintains a dignified secrecy.

Among our group—who did not come over on the Mayflower—the Chinese immigrant has less to say about his adopted country than any other. We have never heard a Chinaman in the role of soap-box orator, telling the rest of us contented ones what an awful country we have.

* * *

PITTSBURGH'S Chinatown, in the vicinity of Second and Third avenues, is as prosaic as any other section. In a back room high moguls may map and plan a tong war, and here and there may be a couch on which an Oriental dreams of golden mountains, and a paradise of poppy, but outwardly their houses have the same appearances as those in less advertised sections.

* * *

There was a time in Pittsburgh when the Chinese layout, hard by the ill-famed Yellow Row, in Second avenue, was something to stir the imagination. That was a section that represented the tenderloin that fictionists like to depict.

"THE SONG OF THE SHIRT."

YELLOW ROW always looked as if a vengeful Providence with a gust of wind might scatter it to the part of Second avenue it overlooked. A shambles of frame houses that perched perilously on a hillside, it was symbolic, after a fashion, of the loose footing of the inmates.

The pockets of many an inebriate were emptied, and many a skull was cracked in the shadows of Pittsburgh's Yellow Row, and the policeman who drew that beat as an assignment never had trouble keeping awake.

SATURDAY night was the gala night for roisterers, who, after having imbibed of 5-cent beer and 10-cent liquor, decided to tour the vicinity of Yellow Row and Chinatown hard by.

That red-light district is no more and no one is sorry. It was a dubious monument to vice flaunted where all could see. Vice, of course, has yet to say farewell, but it is slightly more in hiding. The fallen sisterhood still roams the streets, but its air is more furtive than in the days of Yellow Row.

Daniel Enters Lion Home, But Is Found To Be Lacking.

SCENE: The combined living-room and dining-room of the Lion apartment. It is evening and Mr. and Mrs. Lion are sitting around taking it easy after a hard day of doing what Lions do when they have a hard day. There is a knock on the door.

MRS. LION: Go and see who's at the door, Leo.

MR. LION: Go yourself.

MRS. LION (going to the door grumbling): Every day it's the same old thing! Never get time to sit down and take it easy! If it isn't the front door, it's the back door! If it isn't the telephone, it's the dumbwaiter! Why didn't we stay out in the woods where it was quiet instead of moving to the city? (Opens door.)

MESSENGER: Package for you. Sign here.

MRS. LION: What is it?

MESSENGER: It's Daniel.

(Daniel enters and stands around awkwardly.)

MR. LION: What is it, Cornelia?

MRS. LION: Search me! (To messenger) What's this for?

MESSENGER: I dunno. My instructions were to deliver it and for you to sign it.

MRS. LION: Where do I sign?

MESSENGER: Right here. Now down below. Now over here on the side. Now on the other side. Now just below that. Now on the back. That's all. Goodby.

(Goes away whistling "Just a memory.")

MR. LION: Who's this?

MRS. LION: Daniel.

MR. LION: Daniel who?

MRS. LION: How do I know? Just Daniel, that's all.

MR. LION: Haven't you got a last name, young fellow?

DANIEL (intensely): Woe be unto you this day!

MR. LION: Oh, pshaw! It's one of them prophets. Go home! Go on home! Scat!

MRS. LION (critically): He looks kind of thin. All them prophets are thin. Fanatics they call them. (Pleasantly) Are you a fanatic, young fellow?

DANIEL: A day is coming, a day of wrath, of wrath and desolation.

MR. LION: I'll bet he writes subtitles. Too bad. And he looks like such a nice fellow, too.

MRS. LION: Listen! Is that Junior crying?

MR. LION: Why shouldn't he cry? You sent him to bed without any dessert.

MR. LION: OH, PSHAW! IT'S ONE OF THEM PROPHETS! GO HOME! GO ON HOME! SCAT!!!

MRS. LION: We've got to have some discipline in this house.

MR. LION: The poor kid. He's hungry. Give him Daniel.

MRS. LION (indignantly): Want to make the poor child sick? Feeding him a stringy prophet? You're a fine father!

MR. LION (resigned): All right. All right. When I was a kid I could eat prophets. I don't know what's the matter with this young generation. Pampered, that's what.

MRS. LION: Maybe if you'd been a little more careful about what you ate when you were young you wouldn't have such bum teeth now.

MR. LION: They're all right. A few fillings and a little bridge work.

MRS. LION: Your mane is getting a little thin on top, too. Drat that child!

DANIEL: From generation to generation the curse will descend. Even to those unborn.

MR. LION: Oh, hush up! (To Mrs. Lion) Maybe just a little piece of Daniel wouldn't hurt him. (Reflectively) An ear, maybe? What do you say? (A pause) Oh, Junior! Come here a minute. Come to daddy.

(Junior Lion enters.)

MRS. LION: Mother's little darling. What's the matter, precious?

JUNIOR LION: I'm hungry! I want something to eat!

MR. LION: How about a little piece of Daniel there? (To Daniel apologetically) You don't mind? One must humor the kiddies.

JUNIOR LION: What him? I should say not.

MRS. LION: Don't point, Junior.

MR. LION (coaxingly): Come on, Junior. Just a little bite. It's good for you.

JUNIOR LION: Don't wanna! Won't!

MRS. LION: Now that's no way to act, Junior. How do you expect to grow up to be a nice big lion like your daddy if you don't eat?

JUNIOR LION: Won't!!!

JUNIOR LION: I won't! I won't! I won't!

MRS. LION: You mustn't stamp your feet, Junior. Naughty boy! (To Daniel) He isn't usually like this at all. I don't thing he's feeling any too well. Is mother's little precious sick?

JUNIOR LION: Aw, go chase yourself!

MRS. LION: That's no way to talk to mother, Junior.

MR. LION: Be more respectful to your mother, young man.

JUNIOR LION: Aw, button your nose!

DANIEL: The sins of the father will be visited on the children.

MR. LION (indignantly): I'll smack your sassy face.

JUNIOR LION: Ah, he's two skinny.

MRS. LION: Muvver fatten him for baby.

JUNIOR LION: No!

MR. LION: Aw, chase him to bed. I'm getting sick of this. Go on to bed. Beat it before I run you bow-legged.

(Junior Lion beats it.)

MRS. LION: You should be ashamed of hollering at the poor child like that. You'll give him an inferiority complex.

MR. LION: I'll give him something worse than that. (Folds up paper and yawns). Gosh, I'm sleepy. I think I'll roll in. Got another hard day ahead of me tomorrow.

MRS. LION: Be sure to close the back door before you come up.

MR. LION: All right.

MRS. LION: And empty the pan under the icebox.

MR. LION: (pettishly) All right, all right.

MRS. LION: What will we do about Daniel here?

MR. LION: I could take a little snack out of him.

MRS. LION: You know you shouldn't eat before going to bed. You have bad dreams.

MR. LION: Let's have him for breakfast.

MRS. LION: That's not a bad idea. We haven't a thing in the house. Tomorrow's Sunday and everything will be closed.

MR. LION: Don't run away, Daniel. We'll see you in the morning.

MRS. LION: How would you like him?

MR. LION: With poached eggs on toast. But crisp, mind you, crisp.

MRS. LION: All right, darling. Good night, Daniel.

MR. LION: Good night, Daniel. See you in the morning.

(Mr. and Mrs. Lion exit.)

CROWD (peeking through window): What do you think of that? The Lions won't eat Daniel.

VOICES: A miracle! A miracle!

DANIEL: There will be moaning in the streets, there will be crying from the housetops.

MR. LION: Shut up down there. We're trying to go to sleep.

ARTIE

Recalling the Happy Days When the Wheelman Was King.

By George Ade

THE STORY SO FAR:

Artie Blanchard is a young office worker with a great side talent for wise cracking. Each week he relates to his fellow white collar slaves, Miller and Hall, the latest sensational development of his own private life. So far Artie has related with gusto his success at a church social and a very conservative poker party. Soon after he tells the boys of his meeting a new sweetheart, Mamie; and his subsequent Lothario-like conquests, Artie confesses that he and Mamie have quarreled owing to excessive jealousy on Artie's part. Soon after the rift in the lute, however, Artie accidentally meets Mamie and diplomatically re-establishes himself in her good graces. It looks like they are in love with each other. Artie gives his timid friend, Miller, a touch of high life by taking him to see Mamie. Miller is impressed. Artie discourses upon the bicycle craze. Miller's cousin comes to town, and Artie tells him the city wise-guys are dumber than the hicks.

CHAPTER XIX.

IT was Saturday morning and Artie came in wearing his bicycle clothes.

"How do you like 'em?" he asked, turning about so that Miller and young Mr. Hall could see the hang of the coat. "Reduced from nineteen bones to seven seventy-five. Are you next to the stockin's? I guess I ain't got no shape or nothin'."

"It looks first rate on you," said young Mr. Hall.

"Well, why not, why not? I think I'm one o' the purtiest boys that works here in the office—anyway, that's what a good many people tell me."

"You didn't have it made, did you?" asked Miller.

"Aw, let's go; don't ask such questions. Don't it look just as good as if I'd coughed up twenty-five plunks for it, huh?"

"It's a dressy suit," said Miller, "but why are you wearing it this morning?"

"W'y, the minute I get through here I'm goin' out to meet the girl, and we're goin' over to the park just to show people the difference."

"You're still going out to see that girl, are you?" asked young Mr. Hall.

"My boy, you're very slow here lately. You've been overlookin' a lot o' news."

"You hadn't told me anything about her for a long time."

"That's because she ain't been sendin' any word to you. Miller's been out to see her."

"Have you, Miller?" inquired young Mr. Hall.

"Of course—had a good time."

"When you're a little older—if you're good—I'll take you out some night and let you meet some o' the real folks."

"Oh, thanks," said young Mr. Hall, with a little twitch, suggestive of sarcasm, at one corner of his mouth. "Do you think you could introduce me to society?"

"I could take you where you'd have to shake that Miss Maud business and comb your hair different or else go to the wall. If you ever went out to the Carrolls and sprung that gum-drop talk the old man wouldn't do a thing to you."

"It must be a pleasant sort of place," said young Mr. Hall, who had flushed up at the reference to the 'Miss Maud business.'

"The best ever—if you belong."

Young Mr. Hall smiled complacently and said: "Now I know why you're changed so much lately. I kind of believed you were still stuck on the girl."

"Who's changed? What are you talkin' about?"

"Why, you have. I've noticed you never chew tobacco any more for one thing. Did she make you stop?"

"No, she didn't. Well, you've got a rind, ain't you? What if she had? What's it to you?"

"Nothing, only I can notice the change. You don't cuss like you used to, nor smoke as much, and I've seen you writing letters on that square paper and looking out of the window with the funniest kind of a look—"

"Break away! Say, I believe you're tryin' to kid me."

"I'll leave it to Miller,' 'persisted young Mr. Hall. "Hasn't he changed, Miller? Gracious me, I could notice it. I didn't know what the reason was, because after that first time he never told me anything about this."

"Oh, get tired, can't you?" interrupted Artie. "You must think you're good if you can string me."

"I'll leave it to Miller," repeated Young Mr. Hall.

"Well," said Miller, laughing, "of course Artie has changed some, but—"

"There!" exclaimed young Mr. Hall, triumphantly.

"Humph!" said Artie. His face was red and he was certainly flustered. "It'd be a dead lucky thing if some more people around the shop'd change a little. They couldn't be any punker'n they are now."

But young Mr. Hall did not retort. He had made his point and was satisfied.

A few moments later young Mr. Hall put on his hat and started away on his daily round of collections. Artie turned from his desk and said to Miller: "Say, that boy kind o' had be down on the mat, didn't he?"

"Don't mind what he says."

"Yes, but he had the best of it. I didn't s'pose he'd noticed I was goin' queer. They say a man never does know it when he goes off the jump. On the level though, he's dead right. I ain't like I was the first time I met the girl. No more chasin' around at nights, no blowin' my stuff against a lot o' dubs and no more boozin'."

"I'd noticed that."

"Sure. I ain't had a package since that night I told you about, and then they made me take it."

"Package? What's that?"

"W'y, a load, a jag! Smoke up! Don't go out on me. You ought to know what a package is."

"I never had one."

"Well, I've had 'em when I had to lay down in the grass and hold on with both hands to keep from fallin' off the earth. I've had 'em when I made tracks like a man drivin' geese. I was like lots more o' them sporty boys—wanted to throw in the big bowls just to show I was real people. There ain't a thing in it. Most o' them West Side boys I started in to train with got to be dead tough. I don't want to star myself, but I think I had enough wiseness to switch. I ain't no blue-ribbon boy, but if you ever see little old Artie with a load o' peaches you can just take him and drop him in the river and say: 'Here goes nothin'.'"

"Mebbe that ain't no lie, neither. She ain't never begged me to do nothin', but I just says: 'Here, you big mark, if you're goin' to be around with a nice girl, why, you've got to be nice people.' If there's anything that makes me sore it's to see some swell-lookin' girl goin' along with a guy actin' like a Reub or a dead tough. If he done his best, you know, he couldn't belong with her. If I do say it myself, I've used Mame the best I know how and been purty square. Of course a man livin' in this Indian village may think he's on the square as long as he keeps out o' the cooler, but I know I ain't been as tough as a lot more. What knocks me is to think this mamma's boy got on to me. I must be gettin' purty far along when that guy gets next and tries to play horse with me. Everybody must be on. I s'pose them elevator boys is sayin': 'Well, about day after tomorrow they'll put his nobs into cell 13 and send for the doctors.'"

"Nonsense, nonsense," said Miller, laughing in spite of himself. "You're all right. I wish I was stuck on some girl. Then I'd know what to do evenings."

"Evenings! Say Miller, there ought to be about 10 evenings every week. If things keep on the way they've been since both of us went daffy on the bike game, I'll have to give up my job here and move Mr. Trunk up to the Carroll joint. I'm gettin' too busy to work. My job's been interferin' with me a good deal lately. I'd give it up only for one thing."

"What's that?"

"W'y, the dough, of course. You will have to smoke up, sure enough. Now I think I'll do a little work so as to get through early. Mame and me want to do a century by 4 o'clock. I went 18 miles before breakfast this morning. I may be a sloppy rider, but I'm one of the best 150-pound liars in the business."

"Well, get to work," said Miller. "I'm going to be busy myself."

"What are you hurryin' to get through for? You ain't got nothin' in this world to live for. You're nothin' but a chair-warmer."

"Never you mind. Some day I'll fool you."

"Well, if it happens I'll be fooled all right, all right."

And with that he went to work.

ROPING THE NEWS

account of this being a Presidential year that makes the nicking more juicy.

But Let's get off of sense and get back to foolishness. It looks like Hoover and Smith are about the only two the people want from what I can gather. So I doubt if either one will be nominated. Well, I guess Smith will, for his position is exactly reversed from Hoover's. Smith the Democratic Politicians want him worse than the entire people, while with Hoover it's the people that want him and not the Politicians in his party. So it may be Smith against Dawes, and that would make a colorful campaign. Dawes would make that sway-back pipe our national emblem. The "Old Brown Derby" against the "Nicotine Bowl." Now take your pick, which is the worst, a "Brown Derby" or the old Pipe. It sure would bring out the vote. The old Corncob boys out of the meadows would be there to see that cigar ashes didn't litter up the White House, and the Town "Slicker Derby" boys would be there to see that no pipe whiffer ever lowered the smoking standards that are nowadays set by advertised Gentlemen.

They will make great Campaign Posters, the old Derby, and the old Pipe. Hoover, I don't know what he smokes, and Calvin smokes Cubebs. I think Jim Reed chews Horseshoe Plug. Walsh wont chew, smoke, drink. He just wants to find out what the other fellow is doing all the time. And Jim Watson dipps snuff. Hughes smokes Cigarettes, but not too close. It's going to be a great Campaign for adds, no matter who is nominated. A man will make enough out of the adds even if he is defeated to salve his conscience. Al chews his Cigars, even if they are lighted. He lets the fire work on one end, and he starts chewing on the other, and when the fire and the lips meets why the Republicans get H—.

FUN FROM THE COMIC COLLEGE MAGAZINES

Playing Right Into Her Hand

Elsie was an inveterate and tireless bargain hunter. She often spent hours at a stretch trying to buy a dime for a nickel, and the only thing in the world that was dearer to her than a red-hot fire sale was Thomas, her handsome fiance.

One night Elsie danced wildly into her house and found Thomas waiting for her in the parlor. Spying him, she burst out:

"Gee, Tom-Toms, lookit! A half dollar handkerchief for only forty-nine cents, and such a—"

She stopped short. The seriousness of the other's expression informed her that he had something important to say.

"Elsie," he began mournfully, "I'm heartbroken. When we became engaged, I told you I had several thousand dollars. That was four months ago. Now I've just had the rottenest luck in business, and I haven't more than a couple of hundred dollars to my name. I can't offer myself to you in this reduced state; I'm afraid we must part."

But Elsie's long years of training did not desert her for an instant.

"Wow!" she shrieked. "One marvelous husband — reduced from a thousand to a hundred! What a bargain! Tomnikins, where's the nearest minister, you darling?"

Fight Talk

Don't be discouraged, fellows. Get in there and fight hard. Everybody can't be on the team, you know. But you all have as good a chance as the next fellow. Just keep plugging and your turn will come. Let me tell you something. Once there was a fellow out for football that nobody thought had a prayer of making his letter. He was small and slight and didn't know anything about the game. All during his first three years of college he played on the scrub team and sat on the bench during the games. Then came his last season and he was still on the scrubs and it looked as if he'd never make good. But although he didn't know it the coach had his eye on him and when the captain who was the star halfback got hurt during the Big Game the coach decided to give this little fellow his chance. He only made two seventy-yard runs and kicked a field goal the first fifteen minutes he was in there! Boy, that was a swell movie!

STAGE FILMS AND MUSIC

SCREEN PRODUCTIONS DOMINANT AS SEASON WANES

FILM DRAMAS AND PLAY -:- TOGETHER WITH ACTORS -:- HAVING PARTS IN THEM

IN THIS scene from "The King of Kings," Alvin photoplay attraction, are Montague Love, as a centurion; Victor Varconi, as Pilate, and Rudolph Schildkraut, as the high priest.

MATTHEW SMITH, JR. Gus Forbes and Louise Gerard Huntington are popular members of the George Sharp Players, who are to present "The Family Upstairs" as the offering in the Pitt.

CLARA BOW appears to be especially popular with the soldier boys in this scene from "Wings," entering its final week in the Nixon. As a Red Cross worker, she is handing out smokes.

Nixon Players Will Open With Goodman Drama

"The Man Who Came Back" First Offering of Harry Bannister.

By GEORGE SEIBEL.

ANOTHER stock company moves into a Pittsburgh theater Monday night, May 21, when Harry Bannister and the group of players associated with him open their season in the Nixon. This insures theatergoers an interesting summer, for with two companies here in competition each will be on its mettle. More care will be exercised in the selection of plays, the staging will be done on a bigger and better scale, and each actor will feel that success or failure of the venture depends on his doing his bit well.

When the curtain rises on "The Man Who Came Back," in the Nixon, I shall be approaching the shores of Sicily, and if there were anything going on in the old theater of Taormina I might attend the opening there. But that theater at Taormina has been a melancholy ruin these many centuries, and Aeschylus, father of tragedy, will never come back. So I'll stand on deck and look westward toward Pittsburgh, and wonder how our warm-weather experiment in spoken drama at popular prices will succeed. It ought to prosper, but you never can tell.

Both plays and players at the Nixon give us reason to hope for the best. The opening bill, Jules Eckert Goodman's drama, "The Man Who Came Back," will be followed by "The Baby Cyclone," one of George Cohan's comedies. Other plays in prospect are "The Scarlet Fox," by Willard Mack; "Two Girls Wanted," by Gladys B. Unger; "The Road to Rome," by Robert E. Sherwood, and such recent successes as "Captain Applejack," "The Nervous Wreck," "Little Old New York," "The Last Warning," "The Firebrand" and more of the same type.

Plays With a Spine

It will be seen that the emphasis has been put on the amusing aspects of the drama—which is good sense and good business during the summer; but the more serious side has not been ignored, which is also commendable, for the theater must have a backbone—it cannot live by laughter alone.

So many people prefer plays of the lightest texture because they do not have to think, and so many prefer the moving pictures because they do not have to listen. Summer is a strenuous season, and perspiration will dampen the artistic ardor of many a footlight fan. But modern methods of refrigeration make our theaters quite as cool as the ancient Ratskeller, so perhaps that will not "cut much ice." The play will be the thing—and the players.

As to the Nixon actors, also, we are entitled to forecast happy auguries. Harry C. Bannister is the leading man, and Katherine Wilson the leading woman. Bannister was leading man in Marjorie Rambeau's production of "The Valley of Content;" he has played leading roles with Doris Keane, Alice Brady and Pauline Frederick in plays like "Zander the Great," "The Czarina," "Sweet Seventeen," "Trimmed in Scarlet," "Tenth Avenue," "The Bat" and many others. He was last seen in New York in "Yellow," a melodrama produced by George Cohan, which ran for 135 performances.

Katherine Wilson has been the leading woman in Willard Mack's "Scarlet Fox," just closing its successful run in New York. She is a charming and versatile woman, who ought to win many friends in Pittsburgh, which has a hospitable heart for stock players—as witness the loyal following won here in years past by actresses like Sarah Truax, Lizzie Hudson Collier, Henrietta Crosman, Eva Taylor and Mary Hall, and actors like William Ingersoll and Robert Gleckler.

The Other Names

Other members of the Nixon company will be Josephine Whittell, Fred Sullivan, Kathryn Card, Frank Reymond, Louise Quinn, George MacCready, Howard Freeman, Joseph Thayer, Jack Hayden. It looks like an array of capable and versatile people, who ought to give smooth performances and noteworthy characterizations.

Nor must it be forgotten that Ann Harding is to give the productions her personal supervision. Miss Harding closed her long engagement as Mary Dugan this Saturday evening, when "The Trial of Mary Dugan" ended its successful New York run. Miss Harding is on her way to Pittsburgh, and has taken a house in Wightman street with her husband, who is Mr. Bannister.

While visiting some of the great theaters abroad—the Burg-Theater in Vienna, the Prinzregenten-Theater in Munich, and the Comedie Francaise in Paris, I shall often let my thoughts wander back to Pittsburgh, and our season of summer drama, and wonder whether the playgoers here have justified the hopes of the producers that real drama by real actors is also good business.

FEATURED

Penn Stage Has Variety

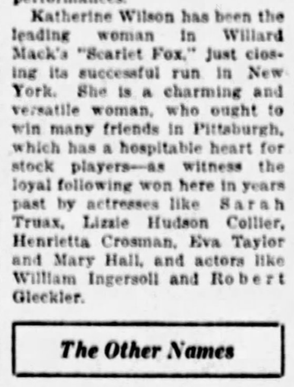
CATCHY tunes and novel scenic effects are promised in the stage revue, "Swanee Moon," headed by Teddy Joyce, in the Penn. Teddy Joyce will direct the Penn Stage Band and besides introducing the acts will offer some new specialties in dance, song and on the violin. Jack North and Cy Landry will present banjo playing, songs, dances and comedy. Kathryn Lewis, soprano, and Charles Chesney, tenor, join in duets and sing solo numbers. The Swanee Octette in songs and steps, and the screen attraction, Marion Davies in her latest comedy, "The Patsy," round out the bill.

WITH GANG



ROSCOE AILS will bring his gang of entertainers to the Harris vaudeville stage Monday.

Jazz Show In Stanley

ON the Stanley stage there will be a "Jazz Carnival." Among the featured players will be Frances White, Al and Ray Samuels, Charles Rozella, Markel and Faun, Collette Sisters, Maryon Vadie Dancers and presiding over it all will be Phil Spitalny. A special orchestral feature will be "Master Melodies," compiled from Italian operas. The screen presentation will be Richard Barthelmess in "The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come." News reels and "Topics of the Day" will complete the program.

Picture Programs And Spoken Comedy Listed Among Bills

Photoplays In Alvin and Nixon and Stock In Pitt Theaters.

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS.

WITH "Wings," photo-dramatic spectacle of the late war, stressing the thrilling exploits of the aviator, and "The King of Kings," picturization of the last two years of the life of Christ, we have two of the leading playhouses devoted to the art of the cinema as exemplified in its higher plane. Many Pittsburgh residents are familiar with both these pictures and have found them to be of the kind that can be described in favorite words of the press agent, refined and elevating, as well as being unusually entertaining.

"Wings" goes into the final week of its engagement in the Nixon, where it will close Saturday, May 19, to make room for the Nixon Stock Players, opening the following Monday. It seems unnecessary to say more than that about the picture, but it may not be out of the way to repeat that the two principal fliers in the film drama are played by Charles Rogers and Richard Arlen and that Clara Bow has the leading and romantic feminine role.

"The King of Kings" is to be presented in the Alvin, where it opens Monday night, to be presented twice daily thereafter for the period of the engagement, which is announced to be short. In this picture there are numerous well-known stars, including H. B. Warner, Dorothy Cumming, Ernest Torrence, Joseph Schildkraut and others.

The George Sharp Players in the Pitt, after a week of melodrama, go back to comedy in the presentation of "The Family Upstairs," which will enlist the services of Anne Forrest and Ralph Morgan in the leading roles. Written by Harry Delf, known to us as a vaudeville and musical comedy star, it has to its credit the distinction of a successful run in New York.

In the Davis will be Keith-Albee vaudeville and a motion picture feature, the headline stage act being that of Jay Brennan and Stanley Rogers. These two are a pair who have a novelty fun act in the conversation between the male and the "female" of the species in which "Margie" and others of the gentler sex are panned. The picture is to be a comedy, "Why Sailors Go Wrong."

Popular priced variety and feature motion pictures will be presented in the Harris, Loew's Aldine and Sheridan Square. Photoplays and elaborate stage presentations make up the programs of the Penn and Stanley.

IN VAUDEVILLE AGAIN

JAY BRENNAN and Stanley Rogers, formerly featured in "Artists and Models" and "A Night in Spain," headline the vaudeville bill in the Davis.

IN CARNIVAL

Alvin Gets Bible Film

MONDAY evening, in the Alvin "The King of Kings" will begin an engagement. This picture dramatization of the life of Christ enlisted the energies of the Cecil B. DeMille organization for a year. It included the acting of hundred of players and the construction of tremendous sets of Bible scenes, the Temple at Jerusalem, the Palace of Herod and many other historical locales of the Gospel story. It is said 10,000 objects pertaining to the primitive Christian era were made and used. Jeanie Macpherson with her adaptation and Mr. DeMille with directing genius, are said by reviewers to have made history live. With the picture is an accompanying score arranged by Hugo Riesenfeld, reproducing themes from the works of great composers as well as the more popular favorites of hymnology. The accompaniment is performed by a full orchestra. Complete presentations will be given twice daily after the opening.

Sharp Stock Has Comedy

THE George Sharp Players, in the Pitt, headed by Anne Forrest and Ralph Morgan, will present a rollicking comedy, "The Family Upstairs," described as representing any family upstairs. They are the folks who turn on the phonograph or radio at unheard-of hours of the morning when you want to sleep and who want to sleep when you want to turn on the music. Anne Forrest will play the daughter, Louise, who brings home a new sweetheart only to have him frightened away by her mother, who puts on airs for the young man's benefit as a means of impressing him with her daughter's desirability. Ralph Morgan will be the harassed sweetheart. Mabel Kroman, Gus Forbes, John Thorne, Elwin Vail, Gordon Anderson, Matthew Smith, Jr., and the balance of the company will be in the cast. There will be the usual Thursday and Saturday matinees.

How Pittsburgh Boy Met Princess and Paderewski Also

Young Pianist Misses King's Soiree, But Visits His Aunt.

By J. FRED LISSFELT

AMERICAN music students in foreign capitals have a thousand and one strange experiences while either adapting themselves to life abroad, or trying to gain recognition from the powers who can boost their careers. Norman Frauenheim, Pittsburgh pianist, who has but recently returned from a five years' sojourn in France, tells of epicurean wandering about Paris with his teacher in search of palatable delicacies, of grand dinners where Pola Negri appeared in black and white splendor, of witching hours among the artists of Montmartre, and then of days full of painstaking drudgery for his technique and art.

Once Frauenheim saw his way clear to be presented at court—that is certainly the unconfessed ambition of every musician. It was during Alexander Moore's days at Alfonso's court in Madrid. Our genial ambassador had suggested to Frauenheim the idea of playing in Spain and the latter was in no mood to refuse. He confesses he was broke, that his best clothes were not for a king's levee, but risked his last pennies on the best new outfit he could find. The date for his concert was agreed on and the young artist stepped into the most expensive train in all Europe, the Paris-Madrid express.

Madrid is awake at night, and so, no happy sight greeted our pianist when he arrived. On the way down, it also occurred to him in checking over his clothing, that a dark blue shirt would never go with court habit. That meant another hole in the fast dwindling purse for a white shirt. And so to the ambassador's.

But only sleepy indifferent servants greeted the excited traveler.

"Oh! The soiree! Well that was last night! Did no one tell you the date had been changed?"

Frauenheim, feeling he had not even been missed at the party, made a quick resolve.

"Cabby! Ho, there! To the nearest florist's!"

"But, signor, there is nothing so early."

"To the florist's just the same!"

And there he bought the only flowers left from yesterday's market, a bouquet of calla lillies.

"And now, cabby, to the palace of the Infanta Isabella!" (Isabella is Alfonso's aunt and a lady of real artistic discrimination).

The cabby almost bowed to the cobble-stones on hearing the name of the princess. Thinking his patron no less than a duke, he whipped his horse into a trot that never slowed down before the guard at the palace gate. Having passed this guard our young man could assume proper airs, reward his cabby and break into the anteroom where an astonished majordomo smiled upon him and heard his story.

"Forbearance, please, and carry these flowers to the Infanta. Tell her a sincere student prays for a word with Her Highness."

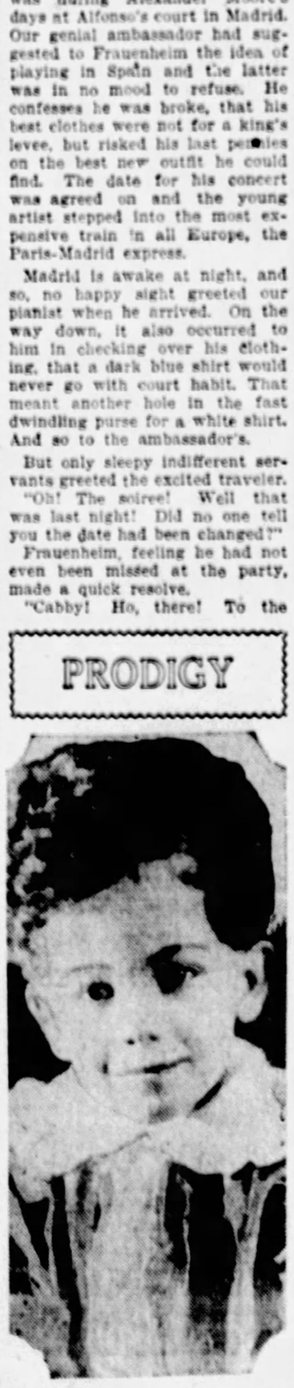
Left alone with a thousand photographs of Alfonso, minutes dragged into an hour, and then the princess called her visitor. Her manner was as simple as that of all great people. She heard his music, and had him return to play for her next reception, graciously offering to send him for further study in Berlin.

"And if you believe that was a trial," says Frauenheim, "my efforts to reach Paderewski were a hundred times more so. For he is guarded by a wife, jealous of his health and comfort, who protects him from the nuisance of undesirable visitors better than any soldiers might. For weeks I telephoned his house in Morges, up on Lake Geneva, and received in reply only the most indifferent questions. Finally my persistance must have impressed Madame and her secretary, for at last I had an invitation which sounded like 'Well, come out and have it over with.'

"I ran! Paderewski was practicing—badly, I thought—some Beethoven, and I was allowed to wander in the garden and the chicken yard until noon. But when lunch was announced and we sat down to that luxurious board, you would have thought I was the only guest present. The host and hostess were both solicitous of my happiness with them, and made an appointment with me to play for them in Paris, for they were leaving next day. Making only a mental note of our arrangements, Paderewski received me weeks later on the assigned minute, made half a dozen important suggestions about my playing, found me my fine teacher, and has since then remained a sincere advisor and friend.

"But when I see him on tour, he is still guarded better than the Infanta Isabella in Madrid, and if we talk a second too long we are always interrupted by Madame tugging at his sleeve, and drawing him away to rest."

PRODIGY



THIS BOY, heralded as a musical prodigy, will play the violin on the Sheridan Square stage. His name is Boradus Erle.

COMEDY, PHOTOPLAYS, VAUDEVILLE AND BURLESQUE

ON STAGE

CHIC HEATON is a featured member of the company that will present a stage attraction in the Harris South Hills.

"Uke" Artist Aldine Star

BOBBY "UKE" HENSHAW, lately featured in Vincent Lopez' New York night club, is announced as the headline attraction on the vaudeville bill in the Aldine. Henshaw's act is titled, "Relatives" and he has the aid of two men and a woman who provide specialties in yodeling, character impressions, etc. Ethel Parker and Fred Babb, in singing and dancing sketch, "Bits of Personality," feature a Filipino musical sextette playing native airs. George Yoeman and Lizzie in a laugh skit, "Information"; Cynthia and Claire, two girls who do some harmonizing; the Five Maxellos tumblers, equilibrists and jugglers, and the screen attraction, Laura La Plante and Johnny Harron in "Finders Keepers," complete the bill.

101 Ranch In Old Park

SIOUX, Arapaho, Cheyenne, Blackfeet and Ponca braves in war paint and headdresses; Cossacks in Imperial Russia's regimentals; vaqueros and gauchos in peaked sombreros and gaudy sashes; cowboys and cowgirls in chaps and leather skirts and rainbow shirts; elephants in wrinkled hides and several hundred bronchos in a royal bad humor are some of the vivid people and animals in the 101 Ranch Wild West, due at Exposition Park, North Side, Sunday morning for afternoon and night performances Monday and Tuesday and a street parade in the North Side business district Monday forenoon. The 101 Ranch brings a large contingent of Sioux Indians, headed by Holy Bear, veteran of the Custer Massacre at the Little Big Horn in 1876. A new opening spectacle, "Julius Caesar," has been produced with a view of adding novelty. Featured is the congress of rough riders of the world, and many famous rodeo stars, winners in contests from Calgary to Fort Worth, are on the roster. European and United States cavalry units contribute to the thrilling rough riding displays, with scores of cowgirls, headed by Grace Runyon and Claire Belcher, Fort Worth champions, in trick and fancy horsemanship. The Monday street parade will proceed from Exposition Park, at 10:30 a. m., to Robinson street, to Anderson, to Cedar avenue, to North, to Arch, to Stockton, to Federal, to Lacock and back to the grounds. Performances are at 2 and 8 p. m. daily.

Young Star In Sheridan

ONE of the vaudeville features in the Sheridan Square Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday will be Boradus Earle, boy violinist, who, it is said, plays classics that might easily tax the genius of a Kubelik or Kreisler. Another feature will be "Tampa," magician, in an elaborately staged series of illusions. On the screen will be Louise Fazenda and Clyde Cook in "Pay As You Enter." Du Bois and Babette are to appear in a skit, Wright and Marion, in "Food for the Squirrels"; Ellen Harvey, in "Art in the Air," and other attractions will be seen. For the last half of the week Homer Lind with his company of four will offer a new revue. The screen feature will be "Why Sailors Go Wrong," featuring Sammy Cohen and Ted McNamara. Bob Willis, "The Tattle Tale"; the Four Van Rippers, "A La Minstrel"; Maud Earl, singer; Dippy Diers, Flo Bennett and other attractions will complete the bill.

FRENCH?

Comics Top Davis Bill

BRENNAN AND ROGERS, comedians, will head the Keith-Albee vaudeville program in the Davis. The photoplay attraction will be a comedy drama, "Why Sailors Go Wrong." Stanley Rogers and Jay Brennan feature a comedy female characterization, with no thought of fooling the public. Steve Freda and Johnny Palace will entertain with guitar and harmonica selections while they converse in scrambled English. Jerry and Her Baby Grands, Geraldine Valliere directing, will play simultaneously on five baby grand pianos. "Cuckoo," a diversified act, will be presented by Irene Vermillion and 10 singers and dancers. Serge Flash is billed as the only Occidental expert in Japanese juggling. "Why Sailors Go Wrong" has a cast including Sammy Cohen, Nick Stuart, Sally Phillis and Ted McNamara. News pictures will close the program.

Nixon Film In Last Week

"WINGS" begins its last week in the Nixon Monday. The last two performances are to be given Saturday, May 19. This super-picture, with its marvelous effects and enlarged screen, is only ceasing its run because of a previous contract with the Nixon Stock Company, which must open May 21. "Wings" is the story of the war in the air, made with the assistance and co-operation of the United States Government because of its interest in aeronautics. Most of it was taken on an improvised battle arear of five square miles near San Antonio, Texas. The cast includes Clara Bow, Charles Rogers, Richard Arlen, Jobyna Ralston, Gary Cooper, Arlette Marchal. It is shown twice daily.

PLAYS "UKE"

BOBBY "UKE" HENSHAW will be a feature of the vaudeville show that opens Monday in the Aldine.

Academy Bill Is "Models"

AT the Academy, beginning with a Sunday midnight show, Joe Perry will present Viola Elliott, in "French Models," a burlesque of novelties and travesties. Miss Elliott is featuring her dance of "The Seven Veils." Edna Bates is the soubret. George Grafe, the tenor, is the principal vocalist. The comedians include George Hart, Hap Moore and George Banning, who are featured in various sketches. Edythe Bates appears in the ingenue role. There also is a male quartet and singing and dancing chorus. Hindu Wausau has been retained for another week and will be seen in her Oriental specialties.

Stage Acts in South Hills

DURING the first three days of this week, the stage bill in the Harris South Hills Theater will be headed by Roisman's Alabamians, an ensemble of musical and specialty performers. They will give a group of melodies, punctuated with humorous songs, eccentric dancing and other diversions. The last three days of the week, the stage bill will offer "The College Widows," an all-girl revue of song, dance and music. In this production, Adele Biddle and "Chic" Heaton are the stars. With them are the Croft Sisters and Irene Russell. Feature photoplays also will be presented.

Picnic Season In West View

ARRANGEMENTS are being made by the management of West View Park for the opening of the 1928 picnic season Wednesday, May 23. Beginning at that time, dancing will be held every night. This Sunday's band concerts, afternoon and evening, will be given by the Amerita band. All of the park's amusements and rides will be open for the day. There will be dancing Saturday night.

Harris Lists Roscoe Ails

ROSCOE AILS and his big company including a jazz band, is the feature attraction in the Harris. Ails does the longest act in vaudeville, presented in 10 scenes. He has been a headliner on the big time vaudeville stage for many years. Shirley Dahl is in the act and she scored in it in Sheridan Square Theater recently. The screen feature will be Lya de Putti in "Midnight Rose," with Kenneth Harlan co-starred. DuBoise and Babette, featuring the original unicycle chair trick, also are booked for the week. Hayes and Mae, two funmakers, have a new act this season and promise even more laughs than usual with their antics and chatter. Walter and Norman Nelson are called "Talkative Tricksters." Other acts and a song school organlogue will complete the bill.

MOVIE CELEBRITIES -:- BRING VARIED CHARACTERIZATIONS -:- TO LOCAL SCREEN

MARION DAVIES, popular screen comedienne, stars in a picturization of the Broadway success, "The Patsy," which is a Penn booking.

RICHARD BARTHELMESS portrays a boy of the Kentucky mountains and Molly O'Day is the heroine in "The Little Shepherd of the Kingdom Come," Stanley film.

ANOTHER MOVIE comedienne is Laura La Plante, star of "Finders Keepers," Aldine booking.

EVELYN BRENT supports Adolphe Menjou in his starring photoplay, "A Night of Mystery," which is coming to the Grand.

SALLY PHIPPS is one of the "reasons" in the film, "Why Sailors Go Wrong," Davis booking.

Marion Davies and Barthelmess Star In New Photoplays

Broadway Stage Success and Widely-Read Novel Serve as Screen Themes.

By MILDRED FILLMORE

GUESS who's to be with us again! None other than the popular and charming comedienne, Marion Davies. Her new picture, which is a Penn booking, is "The Patsy," based on the Broadway stage success. King Vidor, the man responsible for "The Big Parade" and, more recently, "The Crowd," handled the megaphone for "The Patsy" sequences. So, with such a talented actress as Marion and such a capable director as Mr. Vidor, the picture ought to be a fine one. Incidentally, New York critics have given it great acclaim. In the photoplay Miss Davies is seen as the "patsy" or "goat" of an American family. She is forced to take a back seat while her sisters get the beaus and the bon bons. Eventually she rebels and, with leap year on her side, she sets out to capture a handsome boy friend for herself.

All in all the new week is to be quite a gala one of the screen. Here are some of the other movie celebrities who are to emote before us: Richard Barthelmess, Adolphe Menjou, William Boyd, Lya de Putti, Louise Fazenda and Ken Maynard.

The popular Richard Barthelmess is coming to the Stanley as the star in "The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come." This, as most of you know, is a picturization of the widely read novel from John Fox, Jr. Naturally, Richard portrays the mountain boy, Chad. Quite a long time ago we had another movie version of this Fox story. Jack Pickford, you may recall, played Chad then. Molly O'Day is featured with Barthelmess in this latest picturization. Molly, by the way, recently was seen with Barthelmess in "The Patent Leather Kid."

Adolphe Menjou, he of sophisticated pose and of manner a la elegant, is coming to the Grand screen in his latest starring production, "A Night of Mystery." But don't begin to shudder. Though the vehicle is a melodrama it isn't one of those chill-inspiring "Gorilla" affairs. In the drama our Adolphe—he used to live on the South Side, Pittsburgh—portrays a captain who is in love with a girl, whose brother is convicted of murder. The captain knows the brother is innocent, but he keeps silent to protect the wife of the French trial judge. That makes for quite a situation, you admit. But leave it to the movies to turn difficult situations into happy endings.

Laura La Plante is to star in the Aldine picture. It is titled "Finders Keepers." In it Laura portrays a colonel's daughter, who falls in love with a buck private. Here's one case where the buck private job oughtn't to be so bad. And John Harron has the job. The drama is said to have a lot of comedy, with Laura dressing up as a soldier and all that sort of thing.

Those comedy boys, Sammy Cohen and Ted McNamara, who first attracted the attention of fans in "What Price Glory," are co-featured in "Why Sailors Go Wrong," Davis screen booking. Sammy is seen as a taxicab driver and Ted as the "chauffeur" of a hanson cab. Circumstances send them from a big thriving city to a tropical jungle. What happens to them among the spear-waving cannibals and the hip-hip hooray Hula girls makes the picture story.

William Boyd, who never figured very prominently in pictures until Cecil B. DeMille gave him a job dragging a boat up the Volga river, certainly is doing his share of high flying in the movie firmament now. A couple of weeks ago he was here in a starring picture, "The Night Flyer," and we're to have him again this week as the star in "Skyscrapers," Olympic photoplay. This drama, as its title indicates, offers the story of two steel workers—the second being played by Alan Hale.

Lyda de Putti is the star of "Midnight Rose," new Harris photoplay. It concerns a girl who marries an ex-crook, trying to go straight, and tells how they both come under the clutches of a bad, bad underworld leader.

After reading this far I suppose

UP IN AIR

BUT IT'S as a steel worker and not aviator that William Boyd goes up in the air in "Skyscrapers," Olympic photoplay.

some of you western fans have begun to wonder what has happened to all the movie cowboys. Well, one of them, Ken Maynard, is to do his stuff in the Regent in a picture titled "The Canyon of Adventure."

George Sidney and the rest of the night school-going immigrants in "We Americans" are moving to the Cameraphone for a week's stay.

Maria Corda, Lewis Stone and Ricardo Cortez also are moving "The Private Life of Helen of Troy" and such incidentals as the Trojan War out to the Liberty.

The Sheridan Square screen will present "Pay As You Go," starring Louise Fazenda, the last three days of the week. One of the week's attractions in the Harris South Hills will be "Old Ironsides." A Schenley booking is the "Smart Set," with William Haines. This film also is one of the attractions coming to the Kenyon.

And yes, "Wings" is to be in the Nixon for another week—its last. There's a picture for you.

Lon Chaney For Kenyon

"THE BIG CITY," starring Lon Chaney, will be the photoplay in the Kenyon Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. The last three days of the week will have "The Mad Hour," with Sally O'Neil and Larry Kent, as the screen feature. Vaudeville acts, changed twice weekly, will be offered.

WAR CAUSE

MARIA CORDA causes a war and a few other things in "The Private Life of Helen of Troy," Liberty picture.

Marion Davies Penn Feature

MARION DAVIES, popular screen comedienne; King Vidor, noted director, and a Broadway stage success, is the combination that makes up the screen feature, "The Patsy," coming Monday to the Penn. The cast includes Marie Dressler, Lawrence Gray, Jane Winton and Orville Caldwell. "The Patsy" is a story of "the great American family" with a Cinderella touch. It concerns a younger sister made the "patsy" or "goat" in the family in order that the older sisters could have their boy friends, bon bons and other pleasures of young life. Her life is just one suppressed desire after the other until finally she rebels. This rebellion, coupled with her desire to annex herself a boy friend, provides the entertainment of the pictured story.

Regent Books Ken Maynard

"THE CANYON OF ADVENTURE," featuring Ken Maynard, will open on the screen in the Regent Monday. The film story is of early California during the days of the Spanish rule, just prior to its entry into the Union. Maynard plays the role of a daring and dashing land agent, who, on behalf of the government, endeavors to save land grants for their original holders. The cast includes Virginia Browne Faire, Eric Mayne, Theodore Lorch and William Franey. Three Vitaphone offerings will be presented also.

Maria Corda Liberty Star

"THE PRIVATE LIFE OF HELEN OF TROY" comes to the Liberty Monday. The cast includes Maria Corda, Lewis Stone and Ricardo Cortez. This photoplay was adapted from John Erskine's novel of the same name. It introduces famous characters in ancient Greek history, with the events that molded their lives, in a manner that is modern and entertaining, it is said. The stage feature will be Brownlee's Hickville Follies.

Dance Contest In Homestead

OVER 100 couples have registered for the marathon dance contest to be staged in the Stahl Dance Garden, Homestead, beginning at 12:05 a. m. this Monday morning. Tickets are now on sale for the opening. Those purchasing tickets in advance, it is stated, will be admitted to the garden any time after 9 o'clock Sunday night.

"Skyscraper" Olympic Film

"SKYSCRAPER," starring William Boyd, will be shown in the Olympic this week, beginning Monday. The story of the picture deals with two steel workers—buddies, yet who are constantly fighting with each other—who fall in love with two chorus girls. The cast includes Sue Carroll, Alberta Vaughn, Clarence Burton and Wesley Barry. The Vitaphone program will offer Jimmy Clemons, vaudeville headliner; Rin Tin Tin, dog star, and Vincent Rose's and Jackie Taylor's orchestra. News pictures will be shown.

Jannings in South Hills

"OLD IRONSIDES," featuring Wallace Beery, George Bancroft and Esther Ralston, will be shown Monday and Tuesday on the screen in the Harris South Hills. The photoplay Wednesday and Thursday will be "The Last Command," Emil Jannings' starring film that deals with the Russian revolution. "In Old San Francisco" will be the attraction Friday and Saturday. Stage attractions will be added features.

ADVENTURE

Grand Offers Menjou Film

ADOLPH MENJOU plays the part of the dashing Capt. Ferreol of the French African Chausseurs in his latest starring vehicle, "The Night of Mystery," scheduled to open Monday in the Grand. The picture is an adaptation of the stage play, "Captain Ferreol," by Sardou. In the film Menjou sees a man murdered, then voluntarily confesses to the deed in order to save the reputation of a married woman, who loves him. The cast includes Nora Lane, William Collier, Jr., Paoul Paoli, Claude King, Frank Leigh and Margaret Burt.

Davis Screen Gets Comedy

WITH a background of tropical islands, Sammy Cohen and Ted McNamara, comedians, will be seen on the Davis screen this week in "Why Sailors Go Wrong." These boys are taken from a big city into a jungle and find themselves in dangerous situations. There's lions, cannibals and hula girls. The cannibals are forocious men. But the girls are more intriguing, two in particular, for whom the boys brave every danger against cannibalistic odds. The Keith-Albee vaudeville program will be headed by Brennan and Rogers, musical comedy stars.

MODERNIST

AS AN interior decorator and a modernist, Patsy Ruth Miller rebells against old world traditions in "We Americans," Cameraphone booking.

Mary Philbin Schenley Star

"LOVE ME AND THE WORLD IS MINE,' featuring Mary Philbin and Norman Kerry, will be shown Monday and Tuesday in the Schenley. The film for Wednesday and Thursday will be "The Whip Woman," featuring Estelle Taylor and Antonio Moreno. It deals with a peasant girl who wields a whip effectively in discouraging men who seek her. Friday and Saturday the feature will be William Haines in "The Smart Set," a society play in which Jack Holt, Alice Day and Hobart Bosworth play important roles. The stage attraction for the entire week will be Penja, Hindu mystic.

Harris Offers Lya De Putti

LYA DE PUTTI, who deserted foreign shores for Hollywood, will be on the Harris screen beginning Monday, in "Midnight Rose." This picture offers a story of the old Gold Coast of San Francisco, of a cafe dancer and a reformed gangster—the former played by Miss De Putti, the latter by Kenneth Harlan. Primitive passions, against a background of degrading influences, is the central theme. The cast includes "Gun Boat" Smith and "Happy George" Larkin, pugilists.

"Wings" Here Sixth Week

"WINGS," Paramount's popular screen drama of war and aviation, opens its sixth and last week in the Nixon Monday afternoon. The cast includes Clara Bow, Richard Arlen and Charles Rogers. The picture has many battle sequences high in the clouds. It also has romance and some comedy moments.

Aldine Offers Miss La Plante

"FINDERS KEEPERS," starring Laura La Plante and Johnny Harron, is to be the main attraction in the Aldine this week. It is a mystery comedy drama, based on the Mary Roberts Rinehart magazine story. Besides Miss La Plante and Harron, the cast includes Edmund Breese, Arthur Rankin, William Gorman, Eddie Phillips and Joe Mack. The plot concerns a flirtatious girl, who accepts engagement rings from all of her admirers, then protests to her girl friends that she has never been in love, and, finally falls headlong into an infatuation for a young soldier boy. Five acts of vaudeville will share the bill with the picture.

Sheridan Film Has Funsters

"WHY SAILORS GO WRONG," featuring Sammy Cohen and Ted McNamara, will open a three-day engagement on the Sheridan screen Monday. The film story is about a taxicab driver, played by Cohen, and a hansom cab driver, portrayed by McNamara, who are cast, by circumstances, from a thriving metropolis to a tropical island. This environment of cannibals and hula girls serves as the background for the comedy situations. Vaudeville acts will be on the bill.

Cameraphone Stars Sidney

EDWARD SLOMAN directed "We Americans," which will open in the Cameraphone Monday. It is based on the stage play of the same name by Milton Herbert Gropper and Max Seigel. It deals with the drama and the humor of a foreign-born family, which has migrated to America. The cast includes George Sidney, Patsy Ruth Miller, George Lewis, Eddie Phillips, Beryl Mercer and Albert Gran. News pictures and a Grantland Rice "Sportlite Revue" will complete the show.

Stanley Gets Barthelmess

"THE LITTLE SHEPHERD OF KINGDOM COME," starring Richard Barthelmess, will open Monday as the screen feature in the Stanley. The picture is based on the widely read novel of the same name by John Fox, Jr. Barthelmess portrays the mountain boy, Chad. Molly O'Day is the leading woman. The cast includes Doris Dawson, David Torrence, Eulalie Jansen, Gardner James and Claude Gillingwater. The stage attraction will be "Jazz Carnival," a revue of song, dance and comedy. As an added feature Spitalny's musicians will play "Master Melodies," a group of airs from the Italian operas.

SEX IS NOT WORST ILL STAGE HAS

By ALAN DALE

Famous Dramatic Critic of Universal Service.

NEW YORK, May 12—

IT IS really quite impossible to keep one's sense of humor latent, as all the jolly little discussions on "moral" stage questions crop up and are peppily ventilated.

In the recent combat between "Maya," on the one side, and "The Strange Interlude" and "Volpone," on the other, all that has been gained is a little unwholesome fun. For it seems that all these plays and themes are judged as they "tend to corrupt youth" or not. And in these days of ticklish age, it is so difficult to say what is youth or what isn't.

When grandma has her face lifted—and likewise her skirts—she is such a fine substitute for youth that if she went to the theater she might be corrupted. Who shall say? And if grandma went to see "Maya" or "Volpone" goodness only knows what might happen to the rejuvenated dame.

Then how is youth corrupted? What happens in the case of these plays that are alleged to "corrupt youth?" Does corruption set in instantly, or is it a process resembling gangrene?

Suppose that you sent your daughter to see "Maya." Do you imagine that as soon as she left the theater she would emulate the example of the lax ladies set forth in that play? Can it be possible that young girls and boys are so weak-minded that silly, and often ill-written, plays make such a vivid appeal to their imagination? And then, if bad plays are so pernicious, are not good ones equally beneficial? And between the two wouldn't the general effect be neutralized?

And why—I ask why—is it that nothing tends to corrupt youth but our poor old sex? Nothing else can do the trick. Boys and girls can go to see plays explaining and glorifying crime, displaying the fine art of murder and thoroughly setting forth the intricacies of the underworld, and not a word is said about corruption. In a recent play, one saw exactly schemed a daring diamond robbery. It was all as plain as a pikestaff.

And there is the lovely idea that young people are sitting waiting for plays to corrupt them. All they have to do is to go to the cut-rate office, buy two seats for a sex play, and go home to tea, corrupted. Isn't it quaint? They band in their tickets at the gate, simple, pellucid, innocent and guileless, and—two hours later emerge, defiled and corrupted.

Some days ago we had a play produced, dealing almost exclusively with sex, that was so harmless and stupid that the audience jeered at it. It was produced "of a Tuesday" and it was withdrawn the following Saturday. Its principal theme was a topic hitherto ostracized by the late Lilla Cabot Perry, and the first-night audience tinkled persistently as the [illegible] thing was set forth. The [illegible]" explaining his reasons for carrying the heroine—or any other woman—rather trespassed over the limits of good taste. Such plays are their own worst enemies. Boys and girls today are too "fly" to bother about them.

They are innocuous in their stupidity. We do occasionally see a sex play that would be better unproduced. On the other hand we more frequently see a non-sex play in the same class. And far more likely to work "corruption." Years ago, we had the famous play called "Raffles" that never encountered a protest, and yet was, to my mind, infinitely more corruptive than the most outspoken sex play ever thought of.

Sex is the compulsive idea of the reformer. He knows nothing else to reform. He sees no immortality in dishonest graft, murder, and crooked politics. Drunkenness is funny, and we are asked to laugh several times each season at the stage jag.

I am merely remarking that whilst they are on the hunt for plays likely to corrupt youth, let them pillory those plays that make of murder a fine art, and of crime in general something to be studied in the light of "entertainment." The sex play goes too far. There is no doubt at all about that.

SOLVING WEIGHTY PROBLEM

ORVILLE CALDWELL and Marion Davies have put their heads together in a manner indicating they are seeking a solution of something or other. The scene is from Miss Davies' new comedy, "The Patsy," booked for the Penn next week.

CURTAIN CALLS by GEORGE SEIBEL

That Prize Contest

A letter, unfortunately anonymous, has come to this department asking whether the recent amateur prize contest sponsored by the Drama League was judged in good faith by the seven people who made the award. If anyone has any such idea as must be lurking in that writer's head, he should have heard the discussions and arguments of the patient jury—for the decision was taken as seriously as a trial for murder. And after all, the differences that came out were only minor. My own list of awards and grading of the 11 contestants differed in only one particular from the average arrived at by a compilation of all the seven lists. Of course, there was good work done by individuals that might have been missed among the "honorable mentions." But that jury of seven would not have let any Sinclair get away from them.

German Choir Plans Concert

THE Teutonia Manner-chor, a German singing organization that was formed in 1854, will give its annual May concert in the Carnegie Hall, North Side, Wednesday evening. Prof. Theodore Koerner is director. The committee in charge includes G. F. Kappau, chairman; Edward Windisch, Henry Hoffman, Herman Goldschmidt, Henry Ringler, Matthew Puchta, George Burkharth, Frederick Freithofer, Steven Hoegle and John G. Mock.

Jones' Second Summer Dance

JOHNNY JONES' second old-time dance of the summer season will be held in Palm Gardens Monday night. They will be regular Monday night events until the fall. Jones also announces that he will continue his Thursday night dances at Odd Fellows Garden, South Side.

Plans Special Dance Course

A SPECIAL summer course, teaching the various types of dancing, will be offered by the school of dancing conducted by Mrs. Barth. The course opens Monday and will continue until June 30.

LAST WEEK

MONDAY marks the opening of the final week of Richard Arlen's appearance on the Nixon screen in "Wings."

Pony, Dog Acts In Kennywood

WILL HILL'S dog and pony hippodrome will pitch tents Thursday in Kennywood Park. The circus comes to entertain children, who will picnic in the park during the next six weeks. Thursday, May 17, marks the start of these school outings. Among the many new free features in Kennywood is Mlle. Theira and her Royal Puppet Show. Her marionettes are fashioned after comic strip figures. Commencing Wednesday, Kennywood will be open daily with all amusements in operation after noon and evening, and dancing at night. Danny Nirella and his band will play four concerts Sunday.

POLO STAR

WILLIAM HAINES is a polo star as well as a film star in "The Smart Set," booked for the Schenley and Kenyon screens.

KNOW HER?

YES, THIS is Louise Fazenda. She's starred in "Pay As You Enter," a Sheridan Square photoplay.

FOUR PLAY AWARDS BY AMATEURS

IN AN effort to stimulate dramatic endeavor in Pittsburgh, the Pittsburgh Amateur Players' Association announces that it will make several awards at the conclusion of the 1928-29 season.

A cash prize of $100 will be given to the individual who has made the most important contributions to the cause of community drama in Pittsburgh.

A trophy will go to the social agency which has the finest dramatic organization and the largest number of successful productions.

A symbolic trophy is for the religious agency in recognition of successful efforts in the promotion of things dramatic in church circles.

An award will go to the women's club that shows the most effort to popularize periodic dramatic productions and programs among women's clubs of Greater Pittsburgh.

The Pittsburgh Amateur Players' Association was sponsored by the Pittsburgh Junior Players' Guild, through its executive director, Lewis H. Abel, who is the founder and executive secretary of the association.

Leon Blank Offers Play

LEON BLANK, Yiddish actor, will appear in the Gayety for one performance Tuesday evening in his New York success, "The Insane Father." He will be supported by his own cast from the Public Theater, New York, including the comedian and dancer, Hymie Jacobson; Annie Meltzer, leading woman; Sarah Filler, David Lubretsky, Diana Goldberg, Abe Sincoff, Esther Field, Dave Reitz, Salcha Schore and A. Winogradoff.

THE INDIANS ARE COMING

CHIEF-RETURN-FROM-SCOUT, that's the one fellow's name. The other is Tall Bull. They're just a couple of the Indians with the 101 Ranch, a Wild West attraction, to be in Pittsburgh Monday and Tuesday.

Many Events For Willows

VARIED activities will mark the opening week at the New Willows, Oakmont. A general public opening will be held on Saturday, May 26. The next day there will be a Sunday concert at the dinner hour. On the night of May 28 the Syria Auto Club will hold its first summer event at the New Willows. The Chamber of Commerce of Oakmont will hold its annual banquet there May 29. Decoration Day will be marked by a special program. On June 2 the H. J. Heinz Employes' Association will hold their annual dinner. A nationally known orchestra will appear at the New Willows Saturday night, with others following during the regular season.

Two Sunday Organ Events

THE "Prize Cong" from "The Master-Singers," by Wagner, will be included on the free organ program to be given at 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon by Dr. Charles Heinroth in the Carnegie Music Hall. Dr. Heinroth also will play the Overture to "William Tell," by Rossini. Other numbers will be: "Invitation to the Dance," by Weber; symphonic poem, "Le Rouet d'Omphale," by Saint-Seans; Sonata in C Minor, by Baldwin; Intermezzo from "Cavalleria Rusticanna," by Mascagni, and Military March, No. 1, by Schubert.

At the Sunday free organ recital to be given at 3 o'clock in Carnegie Hall, North Side, Dr. Caspar Koch will be assisted by Barbara Bess Wellman, contralto, and Virginia Wellman, harpist. The program includes: Suit "Gothique," Boellmann; Ave Maria, for contralto and harp, Bach-Gounod; solo, "Barcarolle," Offenbach; "May Night," Palmgren; "Rondo di Campanelli," Morandi; "Memories," Demarest; "Gloria," for contralto and organ, Buzzi-Peccia; "The Rosary," for contralto, harp and organ, Nevin; "Coronation March," by Svendsen.

Harmon Band For Sanders

SPECIAL features, added innovations and many orchestras of note are to be offered during the tenth annual summer season in Sanders, Aspinwall, which is to open Monday night, it is announced. Dave Harmon and his orchestra have been selected for a two-week engagement in Sanders, beginning Monday night. This will mark Harmon's first Pittsburgh engagement since his appearance in the Penn last fall. The ballroom in Sanders has been entirely redecorated for the summer season. Dancing will be featured nightly. It has been definitely announced that the glass dance floor, a unique affair, will remain as part of the decoration.

MARRIES

LYA DE PUTTI weds an ex-crook in the movie, "Midnight Rose," which is coming to the Harris.

Evelyn Nesbit Remains Here

THIS week, Evelyn Nesbit, who is playing an engagement in both the Flotilla club and Venice restaurant, will give a theater party in the Pitt, where her friend, Anne Forrest, is featured. It is announced that appropriate decorations are to be carried out in the box seating the guests of Miss Nesbit, whom will include members of her revenue playing in the Venice and Flotilla club. Miss Nesbit appears at the Venice restaurant nightly at 7:30 o'clock and at 7:45 and 11:30 o'clock at the Flotilla club.

PATRICIA PITT SEES EASY SEASON HERE

SOCIETY'S "400" WANT PRIVATE BEACHES

Outdoor Activity Aids Social Set To Quite Nerves

EVEN though you may not take a really active part in it, you may have noticed what a pleasant little social season we are having just now—not what is formally called the "little season," with its debutantes, as yet, perhaps, but comfortably filled with parties and dances and weddings. Just a bit easier on the nerves of both hostesses and guests, too, than the overcrowded days of the winter season!

Our society folks are sandwiching quite a lot of outdoor activities in with their parties, too. Golf and riding are both especially popular, as they always are, and just now, I understand, some of the sub-debs and their brothers are on their horses even more than usual. For you have heard, haven't you, that the horse show this year is going to include a children's jumping class, one of several new classes designed to appeal both to the riders and the spectators? Nearly all the children who live on Sewickley Heights are expert riders, since they spend a large part of the time in the saddle during the summer, and, of course, many of the youngsters who live down in the Valley and in the city are equally good.

Practice for Show

Saturday afternoons, I have noticed, are most often selected as the time for this practice riding at the horse show ring at the Allegheny Country Club, and both the children and the grownups are to be seen there nearly every week. And it is not difficult to guess that among the young people who will be seen taking the difficult hurdles at the show will be Nancy Byers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Frederic Byers, of Ridge avenue and Sewickley Heights; Jane Walker Stevenson, daughter of the William Cooper Stevensons, of Shields; Allison Maxwell, Jr., son of the Allison Maxwells, of Squirrel Hill; Bertha Brooks, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Twing Brooks, of Edgeworth; Eleanore George, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William D. George, of Sewickley, and Betty Berry Bughman, daughter of the Henry Clay Bughmans, of Sewickley, both of whom are engaged actively in preparing for the show.

Another, and somewhat picturesque, feature will be the Corinthian class, consisting of members of recognized hunts in full hunt uniform. The entries will compete for the John C. Oliver Memorial Cup, which must be won three times for permanent possession.

As usual, luncheon will be served on the grounds, and this feature will be in charge of Mrs. T. McKee Graham, assisted by Mrs. Frank Faber Brooks, Mrs. J. Twing Brooks, Mrs. James Crossan Chaplin, Mrs. Charles L. Doyle, Mrs. H. B. Higgins, Mrs. R. G. Jennings, Mrs. Ralph S. Richards, Mrs. H. H. Robinson and Mrs. J. C. Stewart.

Harvey Norton Van Voorhis is chairman of the ring committee, with William Penn Snyder, Jr., as vice chairman. They are assisted by John Ormsby Burgwin, James H. Childs, Richard K. Mellon, Malcolm McGiffin and W. W. Willock.

J. Frederick Byers is in charge of entertainment, with Dr. Maitland Alexander, W. P. Barndollar, E. M. Byers, W. G. Costin, J. Denniston Lyon, Richard Beatty Mellon, Mrs. Henry Robinson Rea, William Bacon Schiller, Mrs. William Penn Snyder and Henry Darlington, Jr., assisting. Mrs. Schiller heads the music committee, and her aides are Mrs. Percy E. Donner and Mrs. Thruston Wright.

Just in case you have forgotten, the dates are June 7, 8 and 9.

To Wed Austrian Girl

YOU may be interested in knowing that a former local man is to marry an Austrian girl soon. He is William Irwin Moyer, son of Mrs. Irwin J. Moyer, formerly of the Schenley apartments, and now living in Philadelphia. Mrs. Moyer and both of her sons, William Irwin Moyer and Dr. Sandford Moyer, are sailing this week on the Aquitania. After spending some time in Paris, they will motor to Kennelbach, Austria, where Mr. Moyer will marry Helene Valerie Schindler late in June.

While they are in Austria, the Moyers will be guests of Count and Countess Sarthein, of Innsbrook, brother-in-law and sister of the bride. Miss Schindler was a guest of Mrs. Moyer for three months during the past winter and spent some time in Pittsburgh, as well as in Havana and the South. After the wedding, the Moyers will tour Europe before returning home.

"Phantom" Radio Ball

DON'T you think that idea of a "phantom" radio ball is a novel one? It is scheduled, you know, for Saturday night between 9 and 10:30 o'clock, and you can take part in it beside your own radio at home.

The Pleasant Hill Farm Association is sponsoring the benefit, and both tickets and boxes are on sale. It is given for the benefit of the association's work at its vacation camp for girls near Coraopolis. Mrs. Simon T. Patterson is president of the association.

Shady Side Benefit

THERE is going to be another entertainment given for the purpose of raising funds for planting and beautifying the grounds of Shady Side Academy. You remember the first one of these benefits was held the latter part of March. This latest affair is scheduled for May 21 in the Hotel Schenley, when Marie Houston, American lyric soprano, will give a program. Mrs. Charles A. Fisher is chairman for the benefit, assisted by Mrs. Augustus K. Oliver, Mrs. Grant Curry, Mrs. John T. Duff, Jr., Mrs. F. F. Rohrer and Mrs. K. C. Gardner.

The committee formed to see to the landscaping of the grounds about the school includes, in addition to the above names, Mrs. Harold A. Nomer, chairman; Mrs. James C. Rea, Mrs. George H. Calvert, Mrs. Bayard D. Foster, Mrs. Clinton S. Bradley, Mrs. Frank A. Hamilton, Mrs. Harry J. Miller, Mrs. C. F. C. Arensberg, Mrs. W. Forman Bickel, Mrs. Hugh Rodman, Mrs. C. H. E. Succop and Mrs. George Wittmer, Jr.

Picks Wedding Date

THE list of June weddings is slowly increasing, as you may have noticed, and during the past week Margaret Perkins announced that she has chosen Friday, June 22, for her marriage to John Speer Laughlin, son of the junior George M. Laughlins, of Woodland road.

Margaret is really a local girl, you know, although she and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Curtis Perkins, have lived in New York and Southampton for a long time. She made her debut here, if you will recall, about three years ago.

She is to be married at 4 o'clock in the afternoon in the Church of St. Andrew-on-the-Dunes, in Southampton, by the Rev. Dr. Percy G. Kammerer, rector of Trinity Church. Mrs. Perkins is in mourning, so there will not be any reception.

Margaret's cousin, Martha Chalfant, will be her maid of honor, and in the list of bridesmaids is another Pittsburgh girl, Clodagh McCune. The other bridesmaids will be Retta Johnston, of Lexington, Ky., also a cousin of Margaret; Beatrice Patterson, of Philadelphia, and Phyllis B. Thompson, of New York. Young Mr. and Mrs. Laughlin are going

Public Bathing Now Passe With Exclusive Set

By CHOLLY KNICKERBOCKER.
(Registered U. S. Patent Office)

NEW YORK, May 12.

IN THIS era, when every one socially prominent in New York, with the possible exception of Mrs. Hamilton McK. Twombly, Mrs. Henry Waters Taft, Mrs. Henry Clews and a few of their intimates, dons abbreviated bathing attire, there is a crying demand for "private beaches."

Newport started the ball a-rolling years ago when Bailey's Beach was established so that the flappers of the late Ward McAllister's day could indulge in matudinal dips in the briny deep far from the vulgar stares and gazes of the excursionists from Providence and Fall River.

And as any follower of la mode knows, the bathing attire of the above-mentioned flappers, compared with the beach togs of the present day "buds," was, to say the least, superfluous.

Palm Beach now glories in the spacious Bath and Tennis Club, and Southampton, after much discussion, pro and con, has compromised by having a new private bathing pavilion. The mere appearance of the structure and the usual "No Trespassing" signs are supposed to keep the Southampton "detrimentals" at a safe distance.

Westhampton has one of the finest bathing casinos on the south shore of Long Island, and Narragansett Pier, despite its constant thinning summer population, has two private beaches. Now Easthampton has joined the processions, and when the Easthamptonites gather, a few weeks hence, for a season of gaiety, they will discover the approved bathing location has moved down the beach a bit—to the Maidstone Club.

Inasmuch as almost everyone who is any one in Easthampton is a member of the Maidstone it was very wisely decided to combine the new private bathing beach with that organization.

With Easthampton putting on a loftier "high hat" about the bathing of the social unknowns than is sported by the more self-satisfied Southampton coterie, I predict something will be done about the latter resort's half-hearted way of dealing with the "private beach" proposition.

Newport Dilemma

WHILE the unexpected passing of that beau of the old school, Duncan Cameron, put something of a crimp in the Newport plans of the lady he married back in 1926, it would appear Mrs Elsie Howland McVitty Quinby Cameron does not intend to abandon her Aquidneck Isle programme.

Not for a minute!

With the deed to a parcel of land out on the Ocean boulevard, adjoining Frazier Jelke's superb early American villa, in her strong box, Elsie is determined to meet a few more Newporters before ordering the foundation laid for the villa she threatens to erect on her briny bound acreage. With that idea in mind, she has signed the lease which entitles here to dispense hospitality this summer at "Cozy Nook," a rather antiquated abode reeking with Newport memories and traditions.

Had Duncan lived, Newport would have been far from difficult for Elsie. Alas and alack, he died almost on his honeymoon, leaving Elsie stranded among the Newport top-lofty ones.

There appears to be a wide difference of opinion as to Elsie's social chances at Newport. Personally, I feel certain she will reach her goal—in time. But the Bellevue avenuelites have not, as yet, completely recovered from abroad for their wedding trip and when they get back they will live in Pittsburgh.

Stage and Play Farewell

THE Stage and Play Society's performance on Wednesday night was its farewell production of the season, I understand, and the members will soon be leaving for their summer homes or vacation trips. This latest performance was very well done, I thought, and apparently most of the audience thought so, too.

Three plays were given, one of them written by the president, Carroll Pitzhugh. It was "Mon Ami Pierrot," and in the cast were Mrs. Henry B. Lupton, Mrs. William S. Moorhead, Mrs. Thomas Jones Hilliard, Esther Ely, Harold Geoghegan and Durbin Horner. Clare Kummer's "The Robbery" was another, and it was directed by Mrs. Haines Allen Machesney. The cast included Ann Watt, who was making her debut on the stage; Mr. and Mrs. C. F. C. Arensberg, Joseph A. Kelly and Durbin Horner.

MacCord Nuptials

A BEAUTIFUL church wedding of Wednesday night was that of Martha MacCord, daughter of Mrs. Thomas Charles MacCord, of the Cathedral Mansions, and Biddle Arthurs, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Biddle Arthurs, of Center avenue.

The time of the ceremony was 7:30 o'clock and it was performed in the First Baptist Church by the Rev. Dr. Carl Wallace Petty. Martha was given away by her uncle, David J. Lewis, of Oakmont. She wore a dress of ivory pointe de sole made on simple lines, and the train fell from the waistline. Her tulle veil was arranged in cap effect and she carried white lilacs and yellow roses.

The former Elizabeth Arthurs, the bridegroom's sister, who is now Mrs. William Whigham, Jr., was matron of honor, and she wore a bouffant frock of sea green chiffon. The maid of honor, Marjorie Easton, of New York, had a bouffant frock of pink taffeta, and the bridesmaid, Kathryn Brennan, of Pittsburgh, wore orchid taffeta and chiffon. They all carried spring flowers to match their dresses.

Mr. Whigham was best man and the ushers included Clifford G. Dunnells, of Chicago, Martha's cousin; Dr. Theodore Redman, Joseph F. Kuntz, Jr., Frederick B. Westervelt and A. Lyle Linderman, of Pittsburgh; B. W. Cummings III, of Pottsville, and James Verner, of Springdale.

After the ceremony, there was a reception in the Hotel Schenley, and later the young Mr. and Mrs. Arthurs left for an eastern trip. They expect to be at home in the Cathedral Mansions after June 15.

Gleffer-Clarke Wedding

MARTHA GLEFFER, daughter of Mrs. Harry Wilson Gleffer, of the Negley apartments, and John Murdoch Clarke, of Philadelphia, were married on Wednesday at 5:30 o'clock in the Church of the Ascension. There was a reception at the house after the ceremony, which was performed by the Rev. John Hart, student pastor of the University of Pennsylvania, assisted by the rector, the Rev. Dr. Boyd Edwards.

Martha was given away by her uncle, Joseph Jones, of this city, and she wore white satin cut in straight lines, with long, tight sleeves. Her veil was of rose point lace caught with a close-fitting cap, and fell over a full court train of satin. She carried white lilacs, orchids and lilies of the valley. Mrs. Arthur B. Van Buskirk, Martha's cousin, was her only attendant, and she wore pale green lace with a large hat to match. Her flowers were butterfly roses.

Hugh M. Clarke, of Lancaster, was his brother's best man and the ushers were Dr. Marshall Fulton, of Boston; Gordon Hardwick, J. Tyson Stokes and Chester A. Osler, all of Philadelphia, and John Titzel and Arthur B. Van Buskirk, of this city.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarke sailed yesterday for a trip to Naples.

Dormont Club Closing Year

THE closing meeting of the child study department of the Dormont Mothers' Club will be held on Wednesday evening in the Kelton Avenue School Auditorium. Election of department officers will take place and a musical program will be given, a social hour following.

Women at McDonald Nominate

THE Woman's Club of McDonald held its semi-monthly meeting Wednesday afternoon in Eastern Star hall. Mrs. D. E. Orwig and Mrs. Daniel Hardy were the hostesses. "The Negro" was the topic on which three papers were read, the first of which was by Mrs. W. A. Young on "Booker T. Washington." Mrs. R. M. Weir's paper on "Paul Laurence Dunbar" was read by Mrs. Max Levison, and Mrs. J. W. Campbell's paper on "Roland Hayes" by Mrs. T. J. Miller. Mrs. George Smith read a deferred paper on "The Moses of Her People—Harriet Tubman." Miss Alice Horty discussed current events for Mrs. R. Bamford, and music was furnished by Mrs. Allan McCarnes. The Rev. H. G. Hoe, pastor of the First Baptist Church of McDonald, was present and addressed the club, saying the Negro is beginning to put something into the world, to realize he must help himself. Mrs. J. N. McDonald brought a report from the junior meeting, which was held May 6 in the Twentieth Century Club, Pittsburgh. The report of the nominating committee follows: President, Mrs. D. M. Cummins; Mrs. J. E. Davenport, Mrs. William Farrar; recording secretary, Mrs. B. J. Kenney; corresponding secretary, Mrs. W. R. Dickson; treasurer, Mrs. R. J. Bamford; auditors, Mrs. L. P. Valentour, Mrs. J. H. Cornell; current events division, Mrs. W. L. Moore, Mrs. Max Levison; civics, home economics and garden division, Mrs. B. M. McCartney, Mrs. J. A. G. Davidson; music, art and drama, Mrs. W. G. Cook, Mrs. A. V. Campbell; trustees, Mrs. J. N. McDonald, Mrs. J. P. Shane, Mrs. George W. Smith. The civic division will meet next Wednesday afternoon in the Eastern Star hall.

Magazine Council Reports Progress

A MEETING of the Better Magazine Council of Allegheny County was held Tuesday at the Congress of Clubs. Reports were heard from committees in Pittsburgh and vicinity which indicated co-operation of the news stands in handling only magazine approved by the council. The speaker of the day was H. C. Cridland, field secretary of the Pennsylvania State Bible Federation. It was voted to continue meetings throughout the summer instead of taking the customary vacation.

Travelers' Club Studying Parks

MRS. C. R. ADAMS, Mrs. W. H. Cochrane and Mrs. William C. Zeigler gave the papers continuing the study of national park at Tuesday's meeting of the Travelers' Club. Mrs. E. T. Crowder and Mrs. B. C. Tunison read western ballads.

Luncheon to End Season for Club

Leaders Here to Vie on Program With State Heads

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG.

PITTSBURGH members will have a prominent part in the programs for the tenth annual convention of the Pennsylvania Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, which will be held in Williamsport next Friday and Saturday. Dr. Florence Teagarden, of the psychology department, University of Pittsburgh, is to be one of the principal speakers. In fact, Dr. Teagarden is on the program with Miss Emily R. Kneubuhl, national executive secretary, for the banquet which will bring the convention to a close.

"What the Public Thinks of Us" is the topic upon which Miss Gertrude Gordon, also a member of the Pittsburgh club, will speak on Friday at a committee round-table luncheon, and at the vocational breakfasts on Saturday Miss Esther Katten will speak at the lawyers' breakfast and Miss Ella King Vogel at that of the teachers. Miss Vogel, who is both local and state press chairman, will make her report and speak on publicity Friday afternoon, and Miss Anna Adams, another Pittsburgher, who is state treasurer, will be heard from in report at the Friday morning session and again on Saturday afternoon, when she is to speak on "All This Talk About the Business Woman."

Welcome Is Arranged

The sessions will, of course, be held in the Lycoming Hotel, beginning with a state executive board meeting at 8:30 Friday morning. The Mayor of the city will give his official welcome, and there will also be a formal welcome from the hostess organization. Reports will consume the remainder of the morning session.

A number of interesting topics will feature the committee round-table luncheon, among them being "Our Expansion—A Pioneer's Job," "Our Pace Makers—The National Federation," "Qualifications for Membership," "What Shall We Feature?" and "Getting Out the Membership." Following further committee reports will come an address by Miss Charlotte E. Carr, director of the bureau of women and children, State Department of Labor and Industry, club reports and the charter ceremony. Friday afternoon's tea at the charming rustic cottage of the Williamsport Business Women's Club on Lycoming Creek, preceded by a motor trip through the city and suburbs, is one of the numerous social affairs of the two convention days. Another will be the reception by the hostess club that night.

Miss Adams to Speak

The principal address for Saturday morning will be delivered by William H. Coleman, of Bucknell University, district governor of the Lions' International, and at this same session Miss Kneubuhl will discuss "Our Federation and Its Growth." Election of officers will close the morning program, a birthday luncheon intervening between that and reconvening for the afternoon, when Miss Kneubuhl again is to speak, her topic this time being "Possibilities of Women in 1928." What is designated as "An Hour With Our Own" is scheduled for 4 o'clock, when Dr. Mary Wolfe, of Laurelton State Village; Miss Sarah Jackson, of The Inn, Buck Hill Falls; Dr. Mildred Rogers, of New Castle, and Pittsburgh's Miss Adams will speak. The convention will go over to Sunday to the extent of holding the "emblem breakfast" that morning.

Self improvement is the major project of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs. A higher degree of education for the prospective business woman, a more specialized training for the woman already in business—these are two of the things for which this organization of 866 clubs in 47 states of the Union stands.

"At least a high school education for every business girl," has been the educational slogan of the organization for several years. To insure this education, scholarship funds have been raised in many local clubs and state federations until many girls, who because of economic pressure would have been obliged to leave school before completing high school training, have been enabled to finish their courses.

The Pittsburgh club also awards prizes annually to the four girls maintaining the highest standard in Business High School, Miss Conley's Shorthand School, Grace Martin's Secretarial School and Pittsburgh Academy.

Survey Under Way

While the federation education committee deals largely with the prospective business woman, the personnel research committee, of which Margaret Elliott of the University of Michigan faculty is chairman, concerns itself with the woman already in business. Miss Elliott's committee has for the past two years been making a vocational survey of the federation which is expected to yield much interesting and worthwhile data as to the advantages and handicaps in the various vocations. It will tend to demonstrate how many women have failed because of lack of adequate education, how many have succeeded because of highly specialized training, how many have selected their vocation because of economic pressure, how many have made free choice.

As soon as the survey is completed an educational secretary will be added to the staff at National Federation headquarters whose duty it will be to assist in shaping a vocational guidance program for the organization which will tend to solve the problem of the woman who is a misfit in business.

Woman Judge to Talk to Nurses

MISS RUTH BOWER, principal of the West Penn Hospital School of Nursing and chairman of the program committee of the Sixth District Graduate Nurses' Association, is chairman of the lecture to be given tomorrow night at 9 o'clock in the Mercy Hospital Nursing School, by Judge Florence E. Allen of the Ohio Supreme Court. Miss Bower is assisted by Miss Annie E. Grass, Miss Adele Polk and Miss Mary Hinchey. Judge Allen will talk on "Our Heritage."

No. 39, O. E. S., Plans Card Party Friday

PITTSBURGH CHAPTER No. 39, O. E. S., will hold its spring dance and card party Friday night in the Wilkinsburg Masonic Temple.

Glee Club Will Give Concert

THE Young Women's Christian Association of Pittsburgh announces a concert by Christine Miller Clemson, to be given in Carnegie Music Hall on Thursday evening, May 24, at 8:15 o'clock. Mrs. Clemson, who is one of Pittsburgh's best beloved singers, has sung but little in public during recent years, so that this concert is rapidly assuming the proportions of a gala affair. The concert is being given for the benefit of the summer conference fund of the Y. W. C. A. Summer conferences are held at Kiskiminetas and at Silver Bay on Lake George, New York, and funds raised at this concert will be used in sending business girls and women to these regional meetings.

Outlook Alliance To Elect Thurs.

ITS annual election will be held by the Outlook Alliance in the Congress of Clubs on Thursday morning. The following ticket has been submitted by the nominating committee: Mrs. Charles S. Hutchison, second vice president; Mrs. Marion F. Smith, treasurer; Mrs. G. H. Baskerville, recording secretary; Mrs. H. K. Brady, Mrs. S. J. Corbett and Mrs. Fred Weitzel, directors.

Scholarship Club Will Give Dinner

MRS. J. CHARLES WILSON, Mrs. J. C. Bily and J. Robb Corbett are among those who will present the program for the dinner which the Sarah Sloan Scholarship Club will give Friday night in the Congress of Clubs.

Miss Winchester Heads Junior Club

MISS JEANNETTE WINCHESTER is to head the Junior Woman's Club of Oakmont next year. She and the following were elected at the annual meeting held Monday night in the home of Miss Virginia and Miss Dorothy Lees: Vice president, Miss Alberta Yeaglin; recording secretary, Miss Margaret Marshall; corresponding secretary, Miss Natalie Thompson; treasurer, Miss Cornelia Harmon; directors, Miss Lois Lipter and Miss Virginia Lees. The juniors will bring their season to a close with the annual dinner dance at the Willows on June 23.

Aspinwall Women Plan Benefit Bridge

IN order to have adequate music for its Saturday night dances for the young people of the borough, the Woman's Club of Aspinwall has purchased a talking machine. To finish payment of the new machine, the women will hold a benefit bridge Friday night under the chairmanship of Mrs. W. H. Reuter.

Women's Clubs in Program

THE music department will have charge of the reciprocity meeting which the Woman's Club of Mt. Lebanon will hold tomorrow evening in the Washington School. Mrs. James S. Huey, president of the club, will open the meeting with greetings and will then introduce Mrs. J. T. Moon, department chairman, who will preside. A number of local clubs are to take part in the program. The Woman's Fortnightly Review will present Zona Gale's play, "Neighbors;" Mrs. J. J. McIlvaine, of the South Hills College Club, will sing a group of Scotch songs in costume; a Polish dance will be given by the Girl Scouts and the Boy Scouts will act as ushers. The Mt. Lebanon Club Choral will sing, accompanied by Mrs. R. H. Allen and C. S. Simonsen on the violin. Mrs. Lucile Miller Werner is director of the choral, and Mrs. J. P. Boore is accompanist.

AMERICANS DAZZLE ST. JAMES' COURT PRESENTATIONS

Jewels and Gowns Glitter as Debbies Bow Before Rulers

By GERTRUDE LADY DECIES.
Universal Service, Special Radio.

LONDON, May 12.

THE great events this week, of course, have been the courts at Buckingham Palace.

The Prince of Wales, Duchess of York, Princess Mary and Prince George attended on King George and Queen Mary when they entered the throne room hand in hand to receive the curtsies of scores of beautiful debutantes.

The Queen was dressed in a gown of gold and wore the diamond crown with the famous lesser star of Africa and the kohinoor. The Queen did not carry a fan. This was a great disappointment to Mrs. Hugh G. Somers, of Beverly Hills, who is spending the season in London and who sent the Queen this week a beautiful blue and gold ostrich fan, hoping her majesty would carry one to the courts.

As the American debutantes made their bows, the Duchess of York gave several friendly smiles and nods to her many friends from the United States.

Miss Astor Presented

Viscountess Astor was present in court on Tuesday, when she presented her daughter, Miss Phyllis Astor. The latter wore a marvelous creation of lime-green satin and tulle and carried a bouquet of cream roses and lilies of the valley.

Among those conspicuous for lovely gowns and jewels in the diplomatic group were Mrs. Houghton, wife of the American ambassador, and Mrs. John B. Stetson, wife of the American minister to Poland. Mrs. Stetson's was a midnight blue gown, embroidered with thousands of crystal beads, and she wore also a sapphire tiara.

Of course, the most important American debutante on Tuesday was the 19-year-old Miss Elizabeth Houghton, daughter of the ambassador. She looked as pretty as a picture in white with a train of silver and diamante.

U. S. Girls at Court

But Wednesday was the real night for American girls when those who went to court with their frills, feathers and fans included Miss Diana Rockwood, of Indianapolis; Miss Evelyn Bigelow Clark, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Francis Clark, of New York and Newport; Miss Katherine Bullock, of Denver, and Miss Virginia Kingswood Booth, daughter of Mr. Ralph Harman Booth, well-known Detroit publisher.

Miss Booth, who was presented by Mrs. Houghton, had a big party given her at the Berkeley restaurant after the presentation, and displayed her finery there to the curious eyes of a throng of dancers, while a battery of camera men waited in an adjoining room.

There were several similar parties at the Savoy, where one of the private entertainment rooms had been turned into a photographic studio. The debutantes supped at the restaurant and then went to have their photographs taken in turn, as they were summoned by the majestic toastmaster.

THE Avalon Woman's Club will have its annual luncheon in the Highland Country Club on June 4, and members will have the privilege of bringing guests. Mrs. C. P. Dils is taking reservations.

O. E. S. No. 264 To Hold Card Party

ROOSEVELT CHAPTER, No. 264, O. E. S., will hold a pivot card party May 22 in Gimbel's. Mrs. Willa Freyer is chairman for the affair.

Luncheon Ends Club Sessions

NEXT Friday in Dormont Masonic Hall will be held the annual business meeting of Dormont New Century Club, the business including reports of all committees and departments, and the election of officers for the coming club year. Music will be provided by Mrs. Elizabeth Stephens Cross, soprano, and by Miss Alice Minerva Southard, xylophone artist.

During the past week the musical department and the literary department each presented its closing program. The musical tea given Monday afternoon in the home of Mrs. B. B. Byers, of Hillsdale avenue, had as its program violin numbers by Mrs. Helen Hunt Allen, readings by Mrs. H. G. Shrewsbury, and dances by little Mary Jo Kunkle, accompaniments being played by Mrs. Harold G. Ewens. Gifts were presented to Mrs. Joseph G. Moorhead, department chairman, Mrs. Ewens and Mrs. H. A. Heineman, the accompanist. The literary department closed the year with a luncheon at South Hills Country Club, the luncheon being followed by a lively program, and some preliminary arrangements for the new year.

Tomorrow afternoon Miss Lydia E. Fleming, of Pioneer avenue, will be hostess to the dramatic department of the club, having as her assistant, Mrs. Eugene Elliott. Raymond Moore's play, "Great Moments," a juvenile comedy, will be studied, under the supervision of Mrs. A. Thomas Lehman. Mrs. H. B. Randle, soprano, will sing.

On Tuesday afternoon the home economics department will meet with the new chairman, Mrs. W. S. Dunlop, of Voelkel avenue, to discuss plans for next season.

Mrs. H. H. Jones, president of the Junior Auxiliary, will be hostess for Tuesday night's meeting, at which election of officers will be held. Miss Carol Parker and Miss Zelda Kauffman will present current events, and Miss Helen Nicholas will give readings. The auxiliary has planned a benefit bridge to be given Saturday in Kaufmann's Auditorium, the chairman in charge being Miss Sarah Kauffman, of the ways and means committee.

Jewish Women Hear Recital

AS a surprise for members of the Pittsburgh Section, Council of Jewish Women, at their annual meeting last Tuesday, Mrs. Caroline Himelblau gave a costume song recital. Dressed as Sevillian woman, Mrs. Himelblau sang several Spanish and Mexican songs, to the accompaniments of Mrs. Grace Blenko Martin. The following nominees were elected: President, Mrs. Raymond M. Kaufmann; vice presidents, Mrs. Morton H. Herzog, Mrs. Alfred M. Oppenheimer, Mrs. Leo L. Half, Mrs. Lee Rosenthal; recording secretary, Mrs. Maurice Davis; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Charles B. Buerger; treasurer, Mrs. Alexander Silverman; auditor, Mrs. Mortimer B. Lesher; director, for unexpired term 1928-29, Mrs. Saul Lavine; for three-year terms, Mrs. Julius H. Cohen, Mrs. Meyer J. Goodstone, Mrs. Frederick A. Johnson, Mrs. Leonard S. Levin, Mrs. Ralph M. Morganstern.

Cholly Knickerbocker's Gotham Society Chat

For years Duncan, whose father, the late Sir Roderick Cameron, had a splendid estate, "Clifton Berley," on the south shore of Staten Island and was a leader in the smart activities on the island in the days when the Fellowes, Heckschers, Jays, Aspinwalls, Schieffelins, Crockers and Duncans maintained Summer homes there, was devoted to the dashing Mrs. Richard Stevens. Some insist Mrs. Stevens' unexpected marriage to Josef Forman, a Czechoslovakian many years her junior, so upset Duncan's cardiac organ — and pride — that he promptly asked Elsie McVitty Quincy to be his bride.

The latter lady had divorced Edward H. McVitty and had received legal sanction to change her name—and that of her daughters—to Quinby. Before marrying the late Cameron she cut something of a figure in Washington society. But the District of Columbia never has been an opening wedge at Newport.

It will be interesting to watch during the next four or five months the happenings at Newport, and by September first, we all shall know whether Elsie will build on her ocean front plot or put the land on the real estate market and suddenly decide Watch Hill, Narragansett Pier, or even Southampton, is a perfectly lovely spot in which to spend the torrid seasons.

Brady Millions Heir

IT IS, indeed, sad that James Cox Brady did not live to celebrate the day when his friends could hail him as a grandfather.

The charitable and kindly Mr. Brady frequently confided to friends his one desire was to be a granddaddy, but fate decreed he was to depart from this earthly existence several months before the stork presented a son to the Frederick S. Moseleys, Jr.

The infant heir to a part of the Brady millions was born last week at the Harbor Hospital on Madison avenue, and latest reports have both the mother and her tiny son "doing nicely."

Mrs. Moseley, before her marriage, was Jane Hamliton Brady.

Engagement Snappy

LONG engagements are not favored by Lois Kingsley.

Being the daughter of her father, Lois believes in going quickly ahead with any project—even matrimony—once she has made up her mind. And it must be admitted she has permitted very little grass to grow beneath her pedal extremities in the matter of setting the date on which she will accept a nuptial circlet from Dr. Ralph Henderson Boots, of No. 791 Park avenue.

Only a fortnight has passed since I had the honor of announcing Lois' engagement and now comes the news that she will be married on the afternoon of June 13 at St. Bartholomew's Church. At present, the very pleasant daughter of the Darwin P. Kingsleys, of 660 Park avenue, is busily engaged penning notes to her close friends, inviting them to serve in her bridal party on that day, and when he has a few hours free from his duties as assistant attending physician at St. Luke's Hospital, Dr. Boots spends his time arranging for his ushers. The ceremony, which will be a consequential event of mid-June, will be followed by a reception at the Park Lane.

Lois' daddy, a native of the interior hills of Vermont, has been president of the New York Life Insurance Company for more than 20 years.

Can It Be True?

FROM across the seas—London, to be exct—come disquieting rumors that have dark, threatening storm clouds hovering over the matrimonial happiness of that interesting metropolitan couple, the Horatio Seymour Shonnards.

Gotham's gentility will find much food for thought in the lamentable tales that have reverberated from the environs of Buckingham Palace to the confines of New York's Fifth and Park sector, and should the dashing "Betty" and the placid and retiring "Ray" decide to write the final chapter of their romance before a sombre-robed divorce justice, the pessimistic ones will declare in stentorian tones that the mad, giddy social whirl is directly responsible for the scuttling of the Shonnard marital barque.

Those in New York who share Mrs. Shonnard's confidence insist she declared, before starting for the shores of Albion, that a wide difference of opinion—and interests—had cropped up between Mr. Shonnard and herself. That was not exactly news. For ever since their recent inclusion in the "Social Register" the comings and goings of the polite world have been paramount among Mrs. Shonnard's interests.

"Ray" Shonnard does not share "Betty's" desire to shine, in a refulgent manner, among the gilded ones of our marble and gold set. He is not intrigued by the peerageites Mrs. Shonnard has cultivated during the numerous trips she has made to England since disposing of the country place out on the north shore of Long Island that formed the setting for the early Shonnard social triumphs, triumphs in which that trim, white-haired patrician, Mrs. F. Edgerton Webb, played a leading role.

It was rather expected, however, that the Shonnard difficulties would be hidden behind a smoke screen of seeming domestic bliss until after the debut of the attractive daughter of the household, Jane. The latter is a charming youngster, and last summer, when the Shonnards leased the magnificent "Castle Grant" at Grantounonspey, Scotland, the ancestral home of the young and beautiful Countess of Seafield, Jane made a deep impression in English society. Even those not blessed with extended memories will recall that the late George J. Gould took his second wife, now Lady Dunsford, to "Castle Grant" after their marriage and the sensational disclosure that followed that union.

Inasmuch as the Shonnards are blessed with an important fortune—which "Betty" enjoys putting into circulation on both sides of the Atlantic—and have been much to the fore in our social life for the past decade, those of us who know and like "Betty," hope that oil will be poured on the troubled waters and that some amicable arrangement will be reached whereby "Ray" can have the fireside, his pipe and his slippers, and "Betty" her place in the Mayfair ranks where the cymbals are crashing the loudest.

Comes Musical Spouse

THOSE who predicted a long time would elapse before the one-time Martha Codman would bring Maxim Karolik, her youthful, musical spouse to Newport, indulged in idle chatter without taking into consideration that Martha is famed for her determination and that she is very much in love with her husband.

The mere fact that "Maxie" is young enough to be Martha's son makes no difference. She waited years for romance to come knocking at the snow white front door of her handsome Newport villa, and certainly Martha should know Dan Cupid when she sees the winged archer. And "Maxie," after lean days in the musical world, probably knew a spinster-heiress when he happened across Martha at one of the Newport musicales where he was an "assisting artist."

Their wedding on the Riviera last February caused all Newport ladies of the mauve decade to put an extra lump of sugar in their tea in their excitement over the news.

Soon Martha and "Maxie" will bring their European honeymoon to an end and will be "at home" on Bellevue avenue, just below the now opened Casino. It will be interesting to see which of the Newport "great ladies" leave cards on the December-May bride and groom. For Newport is a strange place and it will be difficult for Martha's very snooty friends to accept socially, a young man whom they formerly engaged, professionally, to entertain.

However, as I have said, Martha has determination—and oodles of money.

Which augurs well for "Maxie" being "taken up"—eventually!

Carnegie Kin to Wed

MARGARET C. PERKINS, familiarly known to the New York and Southampton jeunesse dorees as "Peggy," will become Mrs. John Speer Laughlin on the afternoon of June 22 in the red-shingled St. Andrew's Dune Church at Southampton.

That bit of personal intelligence reached me last evening and it is safe to predict "Peggy's" wedding will inaugurate the season down in the Hamptons.

"Peggy" is the daughter of the Frederick Curtis Perkinses, late of Pittsburgh, but now making their home at the Plaza Hotel. Her mater was formerly Florence N. Carnegie, a niece of the late Andrew Carnegie. Which makes Thomas Morrison Carnegie an uncle of the bride-to-be.

The ceremony will be solemnized by the Rev. Dr. Kammerer, of Trinity Church, Pittsburgh. Dr. Kammerer will become a dean when Trinity is transformed into a cathedral. Due to a recent death in the bride's family there will be no reception.

Martha Chalfant, "Peggy's" cousin, will serve as maid of honor, and among the bridesmaids will be Phillis Thompson, Cloudagh McBunne, Retta Johnston and Beatrice Patterson.

A honeymoon in Europe is being planned by "Peggy" and young Laughlin.

The Perkins-Laughlin wedding was originally scheduled for the afternoon of June 23, and something akin to a scramble for that date was indulged in by "Peggy" and Charlotte M. Littlejohn, with the latter emerging triumphant. Charlotte is scheduled to wed Edward Morris Rich, Jr., of Baltimore.

Two fashionable weddings in a single week-end is a record for Southampton.

Club at Pitt Ends Season

MEMBERS of the women's association of the University of Pittsburgh closed the year with a reception by the Newcomers group on Wednesday, at the Faculty Club. A musical program was given by Miss Helen Greenwood, Mrs. W. P. McCandless, Mrs. Eda Kreiling and Miss Keziah Thomas, accompanied by Mrs. Alan Floyd; Mrs. Oliver Reiser and Mrs. W. W. Buecker, piano; Mrs. Joseph Madden, vocalist, accompanied by Mrs. Floyd; Mrs. Buecker and Dr. Ralph Cornwell, in piano duets. Mrs. Ralph Boots, chairman of the Newcomer group, received with Mrs. John G. Bowman, Mrs. N. Andrew N. Cleven, Mrs. Howard Dice, and Mrs. John Dambach. Mrs. Bowman and Mrs. Henry Scribner presided at the tea table and were assisted by Mrs. J. Steele Gow and Mrs. Arthur Spalding.

CAPITAL SOCIETY WOMEN ENTERTAIN 'FIRST LADY'

Mrs. Coolidge Is Honor Guest At Annual Fete

By GEORGINA WASHINGTON,
Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, May 12.

LEADING ladies in the politico-social life of Washington gathered many-strong at the beautiful Pan-American Building the other day to entertain the First Lady of the land at one of those noon affairs popularly called "breakfast."

The occasion was the annual breakfast given for Mrs. Coolidge by the Congressional Club, that smart organization that brings wives of Senators and Representatives together on a common meeting-ground.

The Congressional Club fills a large and distinct niche in the social life of this capital of ours. Only through its kindly ministrations do many timid little women whose husbands represent rural districts scattered over the country have a quick and substantial entre into the society that would otherwise forever shut them out.

And this function of the club, though not spoken of in public, is so much appreciated that its members give it unstinted support.

Throughout the "season," the club gives any number of lovely entertainments, but perhaps the President's wife's breakfast is its piece de resistance. This particular First Lady is especially interested in the welfare of the organization and attends many of its functions.

Recalls Mellon Fete

The buffet breakfast this season was set in the splendid hall of the Americas at the Pan-American Building, the very room in which Ailsa Mellon, daughter of the Secretary of the Treasury, and her nice young husband held their gorgeous wedding reception some two springs ago.

Mrs. Dawes, the Vice President's wife, shared honors with Mrs. Coolidge. Mrs. Hoover and Mrs. "Jimmy" Davis were there representing the cabinet, and "Princess Alice," that charming Roosevelt daughter, who is the wife of the Speaker of the House, was here, there and everywhere, thoroughly enjoying herself, as she always seems to do.

Besides these special guests and the members of the club, many other ladies affiliated with the life of former administrations who still maintain their membership in the club were on hand, not missing a thing.

Mrs. Peter Goelet Gerry, the former Mrs. George Vanderbilt and now the wife of the handsome Rhode Island Senator, is president of the club and did the honors. She is a stunning woman, with much poise and dignity, and she certainly does know how to do things "up brown."

Mrs. Gerry made a graceful little speech, welcoming Mrs. Coolidge in the name of the club, and then—wonder of wonders!—there were no speeches. Just music and the babble of women's voices in cheery conversation.

Charter Member There

There was a chic little souvenir program, parchmenz bound, and decorated with the club emblem in blue and gold and with tiny copies of Mrs. Coolidge's latest and best photograph.

Dear little Mrs. John B. Henderson was there in all the glory of her quaint clothes. Mrs. Henderson is the immensely wealthy widow of Senator Henderson, of Missouri, and her 80-odd years in no way incapacitate her in the matter of getting around.

She was a charter member of the Congressional Club and is now an honorary vice president.

So interested in the club is she that, not satisfied with donating the land on which the present outgrown clubhouse stands, she indicates now that she means to give the organization her own mansion as a new place to roost.

Effective, Economical Complexion Beautifier

For the blonde's faded skin or brunette's oily or sallow skin, the best remedy is ordinary mercolized wax. Procure an ounce at any drug store and use as directed. It gradually absorbs the worn-out surface skin with all its defects, a little each day. With the disappearance of the outer cuticle, the new skin is revealed clear, smooth, soft and velvety, and the entire face seems years younger. Mercolized wax brings out the hidden beauty. To quickly remove wrinkles and other age lines, use as face lotion 1 ounce powdered saxolite and 1 half pint witch hazel.

Unitarian Women End Year

THE Woman's Alliance of the First Unitarian Church, has closed its year and will resume its regular program meetings in October. The annual meeting was an event of last Wednesday, when reports were given and the election of officers held, with the following result: President, Mrs. Charles Mundo; vice presidents, Mrs. H. M. Marvel and Mrs. H. Talbot Peterson; recording secretary, Mrs. Harvey Fouse; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Burton C. Royce; treasurer, Mrs. W. W. Austin. Mrs. Charles St. John, of Boston, wife of a former minister of the First Church and chairman of the committee on international work in the General Alliance, told of the work of the liberal Christians in several foreign countries which she visited last summer.

Oakmont Women To Elect May 22

THE next meeting of the Oakmont Woman's Club will be held May 22 in the home of Mrs. T. H. McGraw, Hulton road, and will be the occasion of the annual election. The music committee will present Mrs. Edith McDowell Palmer, contralto, and Mrs. Olga S. Morrow, soprano, as soloists for the day. Mrs. Harry G. Morrow, president of the club, who has been spending some time in California, will be home to take her place in the executive chair. At last Tuesday's meeting in the Oakmont Boat Club, Arthur Ray Davis, tenor, accompanied by Earl Mitchell, sang, and Mrs. Harry C. McDonald, director of Allegheny County Girl Scouts, spoke on "Scouting and the Girl of Today." Mrs. McGraw had a paper on "Benjamin Franklin" and Mrs. E. R. Loomis outlined the 1928-29 program.

Parents, Teachers Confer

REGISTRATION at the thirty-second annual Congress of Parents and Teachers, which was held in Cleveland last week, showed that visitors were present from 14 foreign countries and that virtually every state in the Union was represented. Delegates were present to the number of 2,000. Problems affecting the moral, physical and mental welfare of American school children were discussed. The problem of illiteracy among parents was taken up; a suggested budget for high school girls and a campaign for simpler dress among them were other points, and the need for religious training for discussed at length. It was interesting to note that E. H. Allen, of London, England, editor of the Teachers' World, said tradition English reserve and the conservatism of teachers were barriers which would prohibit a like convention in his country. Mrs. S. M. N. Marrs, of Austin, Tex., was chosen president of the association.

Library Women Meet Downtown

AS a change from its usual procedure the Woman's Club of Library met in the Congress of Clubs last Tuesday. Mrs. E. S. McElvaine was hostess and the program consisted of a paper on "Early American Poets," by Mrs. S. F. Boyer, with illustrative readings by Mrs. R. A. Forsythe; piano solos by Mrs. Charles H. Bayha; "Modern Poets," by Mrs. E. B. Wolstoncroft, with readings by Mrs. Emmet Davis; vocal solo, Miss Retta Rainey. The tea hour rounded out the afternoon.

Mrs. Gessler Host To Hospital Club

MRS. J. A. GESLER was hostess for last Tuesday's meeting of the Home and Hospital Club of Bellevue and was assisted by Mrs. F. J. Fulton. The nominating ticket reported its slate which will be voted on at the next meeting, May 22, in the home of Mrs. L. L. Knox, Balph avenue. The cast for "The Minstrelette" repeated its entertainment for the ex-service men in the Veterans' Hospital last Wednesday evening.

N. England Women of Pgh. Meet

THE annual luncheon and meeting of the Pittsburgh Colony of New England Women will be held tomorrow in the Pitt Faculty Club. In addition to reports of Congress delegates there will be a round table discussion of the colony's own aims. Candidates for election are Mrs. H. Talbot Peterson for vice president; Mrs. A. W. Tarbell, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Lowell Innes, registrar; Mrs. P. J. Chesterman, Mrs. G. Brewer Griffin and Mrs. W. W. Austin, directors.

Denniston Ave. Girl to Wed

MR. AND MRS. JAMES R. CONNOR, of Denniston avenue, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss M. Dorothy Connor, to Charles E. Leberknight, of Bedford and Pittsburgh. Both Miss Connor and Mr. Leberknight are graduates of the Carnegie Institute of Technology.

Bellevue Club Women Entertain Husbands

MRS. J. SMITH CHRISTY, music chairman, arranged the program which was presented Tuesday night before the Woman's Literary Club of Bellevue when the members entertained their husbands in the home of Mrs. Luther L. Knox, Balph avenue. Mr. and Mrs. C. Frederick Newman gave both duets and solos and were accompanied by Mrs. Frederick Harvey. Mrs. Nelle Moore Sprowls contributed readings. Mrs. Elmer L. Kidney and her social committee were in charge of the affair, which was attended by 50.

Make her happy with a MAYTAG

Every Feature Designed to Make Washday Easier for Mother

—Safety-feed, Soft-Roller Water Remover, which spares the buttons, automatically adjusts the tension and reverses the drainboard.
—Cast-aluminum, heat-retaining, non-breakable tub; removes all the dirt, without hand-rubbing.
—Handy Hinged Lid and adjustable legs.
—Enclosed, silent steel gears.
—Big capacity, an entire washing in an hour.
—Compact; occupies a space 25 inches square.
—Lifetime construction, beautiful lacquer finish.

One out of every three washers sold is a Maytag

ONCE a year comes Mother's Day and you shower her with favors in gratitude for all that a Mother means to you. But why not continue your thoughtfulness of her welfare on other days of the year?

There are 52 days in the year when a Maytag would be a blessing to Mother—particularly those mothers of infants and hard-playing boys and girls who soil their clothes in the vigorous play hours which grow healthy bodies for them.

Yes, Washday is Mother's day, too, but it need not be her hardest day. The Maytag will change it to an easy, carefree hour or so, relieve her from hand-rubbing those play-grimed clothes—things that are better washed at home and sweetened by the sunlight of the backyard—clean, fresh, sanitary.

Don't compromise with Mother's happiness and satisfaction when you select a washer. There is but one Maytag—the washer that won world leadership in 600 days, the washer with the Soft-Roller Water Remover that makes wringing the clothes, as well as washing them, easy.

Deferred Payments You'll Never Miss

Telephone for a Free Trial Washing

There will be no cost, no obligation. Let mother see how easy it is to do a big washing with the Maytag, how beautifully clean it washes, how handy, how quiet, how compact, how sturdy it is.

Congress To Honor Art Chief

THE department of education and fine arts of the Congress of Clubs announce an informal dinner in honor of James C. Boudreau, supervisor of art in the public schools, at 6 o'clock Monday. Among the guests will be Dr. and Mrs. William M. Davison, Dr. and Mrs. Ben Graham, Dr. Charles R. Foster, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Vittor, Christian Walters and supervisors of art in Pittsburgh schools. Mrs. Graham will give violin solos and Mrs. Joseph Lazear, soprano, will sing, accompanied by Mrs. J. R. Boydston. Mrs. C. A. Brooks and Mrs. Sylvester Snee and their committee will be in charge.

The public welfare department of the Congress met for election of officers on Monday. Mrs. C. S. Hutchinson was chosen honorary chairman. Mrs. Walter F. Cooley was unanimously re-elected chairman; Mrs. A. L. Fillmore and Mrs. C. W. Parker, vice chairmen; Mrs. T. A. Loring, secretary and treasurer.

A large group of Congress members will attend the performance of "Boaz," written by Mrs. Chester F. Johnston, Congress drama chairman, at the Bellevue Theater on Thursday. Another play of Mrs. Johnston's, "The Leopard's Spots," will be presented over KDKA at 11 o'clock Tuesday morning, the Congress radio hour. "The Leopard's Spots" is a Memorial Day play and will be presented with Mrs. L. A. Hubach, Miss Mary E. Graham and Milton Hays in the cast and Miss Janet Waldorf as coach.

Mrs. Carl E. Coslowsky, Congress president, is to be guest speaker at a luncheon meeting of the Women's Benevolent Association Monday in the Fort Pitt Hotel.

Announce Two Engagements

AT a bridge tea given yesterday afternoon in the University Club, announcement was made of the engagement of Miss Frances M. Koenig, daughter of Dr. Adolph Koenig, of Edgewood, to Robert B. Davidson, of Pittsburgh; and of Miss Elizabeth Highberger, daughter of Mrs. F. P. Highberger, of Wilkinsburg, to Harry M. Reed, of Latrobe. Twelve tables were in play.

MOTHER AND MAY FLOWERS

A SUN-TELEGRAPH MOTORLOGUE

Mother Nature and Mother are the thoughts for this Sunday's Sun-Telegraph Motorlogue. Tucking Mother into the most comfortable seat in the car, hundreds of motorists throughout this district will celebrate Mother's Day at spots of interest where Mother Nature may be seen arrayed in all her bright new finery. Days of life-giving sunshine have brought fruit blossoms and wild flowers to full bloom and these are to be seen everywhere. Charting a route north to Butler and back again to the city through Evans City and Mars, the Motoring Tourist has included Treesdale Farm, which this Sunday observes its annual Blossom Day, in the trip. Here about 50,000 fruit trees, the great majority in full bloom, are to be seen on a tract of more than 1,000 acres. All along the route are woods and fields filled with wild flowers, as well as many other orchards. The scout car used was a Stearns-Knight Eight Sedan, loaned by the Rea-Seagert Company.

April Best Month For Automobiles, Prosperity Holds

By RAY PRIEST.

NEW YORK, May 12.—April appears to have been the largest sales month that automobile manufacturers have enjoyed.

The National Automobile Chamber of Commerce headquarters here report that there were 350,000 cars shipped by its member companies during the month. This is 8 per cent more cars than were shipped the same month a year ago by member companies and 8 per cent less than were shipped in March.

Ford not being a member of the chamber and his rapidly increasing production during the last month, it is believed, more than made up the 8 per cent loss over March, which was the largest month in automobile history.

HIGH PRICED CARS BOOM

Ford's average production during March was estimated at around 1,000 cars a day. His average in April was around 2,100 cars a day.

The chamber offices report a "continued run of prosperity throughout the country."

It is said that business seems to be good everywhere and in some places is on the upgrade.

"We find that everybody is buying cars and that the used car situation is apparently well in hand," the chamber offices report.

In this territory sales of the more expensive makes of cars have shown an abrupt upward turn. The Ford branch here reports that Lincoln sales for April were 186 cars, which is 22 per cent higher than during the same month last year, and indicative of the general increase throughout the eastern section of the country.

SURE SALES TO CONTINUE

Henry Ford on his return from England last week said he was pleased to hear that automobile sales in general were good and added that he felt "cocksure" that they were going to continue.

Harvey Firestone, who met Ford's boat at the dock, to greet his son, Harvey, Jr., predicted that the rubber situation was well in hand and that tire prices were bound to come down.

His son was returning from a visit to Liberia, where Firestone is experimenting with rubber growing on a gigantic scale.

General Motors officials in New York appear well satisfied with automobile conditions throughout the country.

It is expected that a new Chevrolet plant will be started soon in the Southwest. The constantly increasing demand for cars in this price class was somewhat relieved by the start of production a few weeks ago in the new Atlanta plant, it was said.

Other indications seen here that automobile manufacturers were riding on the crest of American prosperity were increasing prices of stocks of the various companies. Traders here point out that motor stock prices last week again showed an increase in value over previous weeks.

37 Makes of Cars In Show for Women

A great open air automobile show will be staged for women motor car drivers and feminine aspirants to the automobile operating right at Schenley Oval Saturday afternoon at 1 o'clock. The display will be presented by the Pittsburgh Automobile Dealers' Association in connection with automotive safety instructions given women by the Western Pennsylvania Safety Council in co-operation with the Better Traffic Committee and the Congress of Women's Clubs.

Thirty-seven different makes of cars will be lined about the big oval for inspection by the women. A large force of expert mechanics will be stationed at the various exhibits to explain the purposes of the various parts of the cars.

In addition to the display of cars, the program will include band music and automobile driving contests. A merchandise order for 50 will be awarded the woman scoring the most points in the contest, by the Dealers' association.

Among the cars to be seen in the exhibit will be: Falcon-Knight, Oakland, Pontiac, Ford, Velie, Studebaker, Erskine, Peerless, Moon, Diana, Lincoln, Cadillac, LaSalle, Franklin, Pierce-Arrow, Hudson, Essex, Stutz, Buick, Chrysler, Stearns-Knight, Willys-Knight, Whippet, Graham-Paige, Auburn, Packard, Oldsmobile, Nash, Chevrolet, Elcar, Marmon, Locomobile, Gardner, Reo, Star, Durant, Dodge, Hupmobile Chandler.

WATCH SPEED, CLUB CAUTIONS

Motorists are cautioned to obey the legal speed limits in a bulletin issued by the Automobile Club of Pittsburgh. The Motor Vehicle Code, which went into effect on January 1, changed the former speed limits and new regulations are now in force.

The maximum speed limit for a passenger vehicle is 35 miles. Local authorities may limit the speed to 20 miles by posting signs at proper intervals. Twenty miles also is the maximum limit when approaching within 200 feet of a grade crossing where signs are properly erected.

How to Go

FROM Sun-Telegraph Building, Gazette Square, route for this Sunday's automobile trip is over Seventh avenue to Ninth street, Ninth street bridge, Anderson street, Cedar avenue, Lockhart street, East Ohio street to Etna. In Etna, at creek crossing, 6.1 miles, follow car tracks to left up hill and over Butler Pike to Butler road and thence through Bakerstown, Cooperstown, Glade Mills and Bredenville to Butler. Entering Butler turn left over bridge, 26 miles, and follow along Main street, to Mifflin street, 36.7 miles, making left turn and follow through over Benjamin Franklin Highway to Highway No. 68 at 39 miles. In Connoquenessing, 50.6 miles, turn left, at 56.8 miles sharp right, 56.9 miles ahead to left., 57.7 miles to left, left at 75.2, to left at 77.4, right at 80.3, left at 80.6, right at 80.7, and left at 80.8 miles. Arriving at starting point speedometer will show 82.8 miles.

Thousands of Fruit Trees In Bloom Await Motorists Along District's Highways

By THE MOTORING TOURIST.

Mother Nature in her newest and brightest spring dress will greet the motoring parties who take to the roads throughout this district this week. A week ago the Sun-Telegraph Motorlogue was charted through that section of Allegheny county labeled "Picture Lands." The Motorlogue this week holds an equal claim to that title.

Hundreds of acres of blooming fruit trees and innumerable woods and fields filled with wild flowers await those who would see Mother Nature at her best. Then, too, the mothers of men will share honors with Mother Nature, for hundreds of motorists throughout this district will take their mothers, this Sunday, Mother's Day, to see the flowers of spring in their natural state. Every bit of land along the route this week boasts its flowers and to cap these scenes of loveliness, so dear to the feminine heart, is a visit to Treesdale Farm with its thousands and thousands of blooming fruit trees, all marshalled in stately rows. Treesdale Farm this Sunday observes its annual Blossom Day.

OVER BUTLER PIKE

A route north to Butler over the William Flinn highway and south over Highways 68, 43 and 88 has been mapped for this Sunday afternoon automobile trip, one of the most interesting in this district. Leaving the Sun-Telegraph Building, Gazette Square, in a Stearns-Knight eight sedan, loaned by the Rea-Seagert Company, the scouting party left the city by way of the Ninth Street Bridge and East Ohio street, excellent road surface all the way.

Winding down the highway into Butler, the scout party paused to view the city from the hillside. Butler, seat of the county of that name, is a thriving manufacturing and oil town, founded in 1803 and named after Gen. Richard Butler, soldier of the Revolution and friend of Gen. Washington.

THROUGH CONNOQUENESSING

Leaving Butler the scouting party headed west over Mifflin street and the Benjamin Franklin Highway, passing the state police barracks on the right and the Butler Fair Grounds on the left. Leaving the Benjamin Franklin Highway the State Highway 68 was followed through to Connoquenessing and Connoquenessing Creek, two centers of interest to summer campers of this district. A scant half mile from the Connoquenessing Bridge is a tablet on the left side of the road, marking the spot where Washington was attacked by a hostile Indian. Washington, then in the service of Virginia and holding the rank of Major, was sent by Gov. Dinwiddie to Waterford and Franklin to protest to the French on their encroachment on lands claimed by the English. Following the Venango Indian trail in company with Christopher Gist, on December 27, 1753, on his return trip to Virginia from his mission to St. Pierre, commandant of the two French forts, Washington narrowly escaped death when he was fired upon by an Indian while traveling along the trail at the point where the trail is crossed by Highway 68.

Evans City, a town famous in early history in this district, Callery and Mars, named for the star, followed. From Mars the scouting party left the highway to cut across country to the Treesdale Farm, with its hundreds upon hundreds of acres of fruit trees all in various stages of blossoming. (The route from Mars to the Treesdale Farm will be marked for Sunday Sun-Telegraph motorologists.)

Please!

"PLEASE do not strip fruit trees of blossoms," is the plea of farmers and owners of orchards along the highways of this district. With fruit trees in full bloom a few passersby have broken trees in gathering bouquets of such blossoms, which will keep for only a few hours. After several years of small crops the indications this year are for a record harvest. As a result the appeal that blossoms be left on the trees, has been made.

Twelve Balloons Entered in National Races Here

BIG DIRIGIBLE OF NAVY MAY FLY OVER CITY

Scores of Planes Added Bill To Holiday Aero Contest; Interest in Derby Grows.

Pittsburgh is preparing to assume the prominent position it deserves in the world of aviation.

This appeared to be the reaction of the public to the official announcement last week that the national balloon races—one of the air treats of the year—would be staged at Bettis Field, McKeesport, on Memorial Day.

Headquarters were opened a few days ago in the William Penn Hotel for the National Aeronautical Association and the interest shown not only by persons already engaged in aviation but by the "man in the street" has convinced the race officials that this district is ready to appreciate the balloon derby.

Already 12 balloons have been entered by the Army and Navy and private interests, and there will be others. Notables in the nation's military life have accepted invitations to attend the races. The Los Angeles, biggest dirigible in the United States, will probably fly here if suitable weather is indicated. Scores of airplanes of the latest types will fill the air over the field in this many-ringed circus. Thousands of out-of-town visitors are expected. It will, in short, be super-world series atmosphere.

Pilots and Type of Balloons Entered in Race

CHAMPION—Ward T. Van Orman, pilot of the Goodyear entry, won the races in 1926 and 1927.

BIG GAS BAGS—These are the type of free balloons that have been entered in the national balloon races to be staged here on Decoration Day. The first three bags in the contest that will start from Bettis Field will represent this country in the international balloon race.

AIDE—Walter Morton will be Van Orman's aide in piloting the big bag entered by Goodyear.

Subterranean Drive Dream of Parisians

The longest vehicular tunnel in the world is under construction in Paris. Twenty-five miles of underground railway may be converted into a subterranean boulevard encircling the city with big city garages capable of taking care of most of the Paris district's 2,000,000 automobiles.

FRUIT TREES IN FULL BLOOM

burgher, annually has invited the public to its observance of Blossom Day. This year the motoring tourist was called upon to help broadcast the invitation to the thousands of motorists to see the fruit blossoms at their best. On this great fruit farm of 1,600 acres, within just a few miles of our great industrial city, are some 32,000 apple, 10,000 peach, 7,000 plum and 3,000 cherry trees. The farm is a model of modern orchard projects with its big grading, packing, cider and other fruit product plants.

Having feasted to capacity on the beauties of the fruit blossoms and the great lake on the farm, the scouting party turned homeward in its Stearns-Knight sedan in the direction of Warrendale and the Perry highway. The road to Warrendale has plenty of room for improvement, but is a fair road for all who do not desire to travel at breakneck speeds. Many small orchards are to be seen along the Perry highway as well as most attractive country vistas.

Passing by West View Park, the route through the East street valley was selected for the route back to the starting point.

For motorists who desire to attend the observance of Blossom Day on the Treesdale farm without making the circle trip to Butler, a route over the William Penn highway to Bakerstown and left over the Bakerstown-Valencia and the Bakerstown-Warrendale road may be followed. Other routes are: Through Millvale to Babcock boulevard to Warrendale road. Through West View to Perry highway to Warrendale road. The farm is about five miles from the Perry highway and about one mile from the Babcock boulevard.

Another Motorlogue next week. Watch for it!

TAIL SPINS
by WALTER CHAMBERS
• Aviation Editor •

The recent warm weather has put Pittsburgh's summer aviation season into full swing. Fields last Sunday were crowded almost as much as a year ago next month after Col. Lindberg had landed in Paris.

Next Sunday is the anniversary of that epochal flight. Rather a year from Sunday night he landed in Paris. It seems only a few weeks ago that even jaded newspapermen hovered over the telegraph operators to learn when the "young Lochinvar out of the West" would set the Spirit of St. Louis down in Le Bourget and the world would go mad.

They say he's made a million dollars since then and is now enjoying a well-earned rest from the homage that the world paid him wherever he went. The Spirit of St. Louis is in the Smithsonian Institute, a tribute to American achievement, and one of the greatest honors ever paid, in modern times, to a youth of 25 is Lindbergh's.

When, one morning a few days ago, he stepped out of the cockpit at Bolling Field, Washington, and turned his face sadly toward the photographers and newspapermen anxious for some show of emotion as he "cut his switch" for the last time in the plane that made him famous, he added another chapter to the history which he has created. Barr Post, manager of Bettis Field, was there and rightly treasures the memory of Lindbergh ending his last flight in the other part of "We."

It seems stupendous that 52 weeks ago he was only a mail pilot, one of several anxious to win a $25,000 aviation prize. And that 41 weeks ago, just seven days later, he was the most famous youth in all the world. But when we trace the events in aviation since that epochal flight, again we say he has earned the million and the rest his tired soul craves.

Airplane manufacturers in the United States have increased their sales 1,000 per cent within that short space of a year. A dozen achievements have been added to the roll of American accomplishments. Numerous lives have been lost by daring souls ready to sacrifice all to reach the pinnacle of fame on which he stands immovable as time.

Within that year 1,000 miles have been added to the air mail and passenger lines within the United States. Three thousand municipalities have established or plan airports. Huge transports have started regularly down the "trackless track to everywhere" and gone are the dangerous "Jennies," "Standards" and other war-built craft which brought aviation into such disrepute by reason of their haywire attachments breaking and causing unnecessary deaths and injury.

Lindbergh and the Department of Commerce inspection system came forth together. They have forced attention to the industry from the most astute minds in the country. They have aroused the enthusiasm of the people at large by the romance of the industry. And the impetus which Lindbergh gave is just beginning to bear fruit. Aviation has gathered a momentum that nothing can stop. Even his death now would not materially affect it. But for months after his return from Paris there were many grave fears that some untoward incident, causing his injury, would defeat all that he had accomplished.

Only the AIRMAN offers comfortable all-day high speed

ONLY by having an Airman ride can you realize that here is actually a wholly different kind of motor car performance. Far greater riding comfort—far greater ease of handling—at all speeds—over all roads.

Airman superiority is the result of different design throughout. So many exclusive and modern features have been built into the Airman that it is the outstanding achievement of present-day automotive engineering.

Air-cooling—the better way to cool airplane and automobile engines . . . A powerful motor—supplying ample reserve energy to meet any road emergency . . . A new type of high speed—making the Airman the world's fastest car in a day's run . . . # Automobile Production Trend to New High Records

COMPARISON SHOWS OUTPUT AHEAD OF 1927

Number of Passenger Cars For This Year 12 Per Cent Under Figures for 1926.

DETROIT, May 12.—Passenger car production in the United States for the first quarter of 1928 was greater than it was in the same period last year but was not up to the mark set in record-breaking 1926, according to B. H. Cram, industry authority. Truck production for the first quarter of 1928 was below that of the same period of both previous years.

The total number of passenger cars produced in the first quarter of 1928 was 867,782 units, compared with 809,732 in 1927 and 990,523 in 1926. The 1928 figure represents an increase of 7 per cent over 1927 and a decrease of 12 per cent under 1926.

A comparison of the monthly totals of the present year with those of last year shows that each month's production surpassed the corresponding month's by an appreciable margin.

But last year was not an outstanding one. While the wholesale value of all automotive products produced during the year was great enough to make the industry by far the largest manufacturing industry in the country, a greater number of passenger cars were built in each of the four preceding years.

Passenger car production in the United States reached its peak in 1926. Because it is the automotive industry's custom to use the high marks as the standards, no other year can be or will be classed as a really great year by the industry unless it surpasses 1926.

Following this custom, a month by month comparison of 1928 with 1926 shows how the trend of the present year is in the direction of a rapid catching up with the record-breaking year of the industry.

Passenger car production in January, 1928, with 205,543 units, was 26 per cent below January, 1926, with 277,831 units.

March, 1928, production was only 4 per cent below March, 1926, 371,498 cars were built in March, 1928, and 387,570 in March, 1926.

Swept Into Lake, Essex Cars Float

When the steamship Sultana pulled into Chicago recently after a severe storm on Lake Michigan, Capt. David Smith reported a remarkable happening with 42 Essex Super-Six sedans and coaches which were swept overboard.

Capt. Smith reported that instead of sinking the cars floated readily amid the high-rolling waves and could be seen still afloat as the ship traveled out of sight. As they were closed cars, tightly constructed and with all doors and windows closed, his theory is that the air within the bodies was sufficient to float them until waves should break the window glass or capsize the whole automobile in the wave troughs.

"That was a sight for you—a line-up of cars like a miniature formation of battle ships," said Capt. Smith. "They were loosened from the deck in whole rows when the rope lashings broke, consequently they slipped overboard in regular formation. I expected them to go to the bottom immediately, but not one of them did so. The air kept them up and the axles, motor and frame acted as ballast. They're of good balance for they floated erectly and steadily in the heavy seas. This was the hardest storm I have ever seen in many years on the Great Lakes."

Computing Costs of Motor Service

In keeping figures on what it costs to run a car do not confuse service costs with total operation and maintenance costs. Service means only the labor, parts and material necessary for a service operation. Gasoline, tire upkeep, replacements due to accidents, and similar items should not be charged to service.

WILLYS OUTPUT AT NEW HIGH

April production of Willys-Knight and Whippet Fours and Sixes topped the highest month in the history of Willys-Overland with a total production of 38,500 cars. This represents almost 60 per cent of total production for the three preceding months, the Rea-Seagert Company, distributors here, have been informed.

This announcement was made following the company's financial statement for the first quarter ending March 31 which reveals earnings of $2,502,896.55, after interest but before Federal taxes and special rebate deductions which were charged off in this quarter. This shows an average profit a unit of production on the 76,695 cars built in this period, of $36 a car.

This extraordinary charge-off for the first quarter which covers inventory adjustments and rebates to dealers on cars in stock at the time of the drastic Whippet price cut early in January, amounts to $1,155,320.72, reducing the net earnings transferred to surplus to $1,647,575.52.

Commenting on this statement, John N. Willys, president, said: "The charge-off to cover dealer rebates and inventory adjustments obviously is not a recurring charge and was applicable to cars in possession of dealers and materials and stock on hand at the time of the Whippet price cut. Before this charge the profit per car was $36. With a rapidly rising production schedule which is absorbing overhead faster than cost sheet estimates, the per car profit is naturally rising. The company's price policies have justified themselves and are plainly benefiting profits and finances as well as trade position."

Keech Seeks Mount For 500-Mile Race

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., May 12.—Ray Keech, world speed king who roared over the sands of a Florida beach at the breath-taking clip of 207.55 miles an hour has arrived here to obtain a car to drive in the sixteenth international 500-mile race to be held at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, May 30.

Keech, a short, husky youth of 27 weighing 170 pounds, has sandy hair that is thinning to baldness, a quiet personality and a determination to win international laurels on the speedways of the world.

He has conquered the hazards of straightaway driving at a maddening gait and now he wants to test his skill and daring in the high speed traffic of the old and young masters of the most dangerous sport in the world.

It was his first view of the historic Indianapolis Speedway. He never has seen a big race here. And he was very attentive as Leon Duray, Hercules of the speed sport, bent his tiny creation into the turns at a gravity defying speed.

Keech undoubtedly was impressed with the skill necessary to glide the fast cars around the four quarter turns of the two and one-half mile oval. "Those corners," declared Keech, who undoubtedly was mindful of the long straightaway in Florida on which he made his record, "certainly make this course difficult."

He came here from Philadelphia and will remain until he decides on a car which he will drive in the race. There is some likelihood that he will purchase the Stutz special which Frank Lockhart, who was killed at Daytona Beach attempting to break the record Keech established, had prepared for the coming race.

Keech, who is married and the father of a son, gained his driving experience on the dirt tracks of the eastern states.

Pays Cash for Worn-Out Tires

A big nationally-known tire company is making an amazing offer to auto owners and agents. To demonstrate the new Mellinger Heavy Duty Tire, guaranteed for 15 months against all road hazards, they are paying $5 to $10 each for old tires. They are inviting people to make a free seven-day mileage test of the new Mellinger, which embodies new principles of construction such as a seventh ply inside shock absorber.

Many Mellinger agents make $50 a week spare time with this trade-in and free mileage test. They are also given free tires for demonstrating use and a wonderful sales kit with sample sections. Simply send name today to Mellinger Tire Co., Dept. 330, Warren, Ohio, for confidential offer free test and cash-in on old, worn-out tires.

SPRINGS EASE BRAKING EFFECT

Now that virtually all cars are equipped with four-wheel brakes, automotive engineers are seeking means to decelerate cars not only quickly and without effort, but smoothly so that the occupants will feel little if any of the shock of sudden stops.

Through exhaustive tests carried on for more than a quarter of a century, the Franklin Automobile Company has accumulated a wealth of data to prove the supremacy of the full-elliptic spring in softening and eliminating the shocks of quick starts and stops as well as the jars arising in ordinary travel over rough pavement, street car tracks and country roads.

Franklin Airman cars are equipped exclusively with this type of spring, having springs on each side equivalent to an ordinary semi-elliptic longer than the wheelbase of the car. The softness of the braking effect is said to occasion surprise among people experiencing it for the first time, and the resiliency of the spring in riding coupled with Franklin's weight distribution, are claimed to be responsible for the well-known easy riding qualities which these cars provide.

CAR ENAMELING TEDIOUS TASK

Greater care and more processes than are used in a modern laundry are contained in the operation of enameling the sheet metal parts of the new Oldsmobile. Each part is washed, rubbed and scoured before receiving its enamel bath. Even the air in the enameling ovens is washed to make sure that not an atom of dust mar the smooth finish, says C. L. Day, of the Oldsmobile Pittsburgh Company.

The finishing of the full crown Oldsmobile fenders is typical of the processes used on the various enameled sheet metal parts. When the fender comes from the final buffing it is hung on an overhead conveyor that carries it slowly through the cleansing bath. By the time it reaches the further end of the washing compartment it has been washed, steamed and rinsed. An alcohol bath and rubdown is given the fender just prior to hanging it on a conveyor that carries it through a series of enameling baths, drip tubs and ovens. It is first dipped in enamel, then carried over the drip tubs and then into an oven. Then follows a second enamel bath, drip and passage through the ovens.

AEROTYPE-

WITH THE CHASSIS THAT LUBRICATES ITSELF

[Not for 2,500 Miles, Not for 5,000, But for the Entire Life of the Car]

By STANLEY MOON

AGAIN the radical Aerotype registers its pronounced leadership. Again Aerotype brings you advanced engineering fully two years ahead. I said two years. For Moon-Aerotype is America's first car with a self-lubricating chassis—no springs to compress, no levers to push, no moving parts, no dripping, no attention required. The Stanley-Moon Chassis Lubricating System is automatic, not for 2,500 miles, not for 5,000, but for the entire life of the car.

And there are many more sensational features in the new Moon-Aerotype. Take its amazing motor design. Here, Moon has deliberately appropriated the airplane, or rather its engineering, and gives you a water-cooled adaptation of many of the ideas that assisted Lindbergh and Chamberlin in their great trans-Atlantic flights.

Decidedly, now, Aerotype shows the direct way to a newer and finer kind of motoring, motoring that fails to tire, but rather captivates, refreshes and stimulates like any other wholesome sport. Moon's brilliant performance wins you on the spot. And when you ride in the seven-bearing Aerotype Six at seventy-two smooth miles an hour or in the Straight Eight at eighty, you'll call either "an experience".

Right from Paris: Moon-Aerotype bodies reflect their French origin in their ultra new lines, in their daring sweep, in their unusual silhouette. Moon Engineers commissioned the reigning Paris designer to model The Body Beautiful. And behold the result, almost perfection itself, un chef-d'oeuvre. Moon bodies with their swanky radiators are the very last word from France—as Parisian as l'atou, as chic as Lelong, as authentic as your own signature before le notaire.

In Moon-Aerotype you also get High Compression with the famous "White Flash Head"; Anti-Knock construction with patented Twin-Barrel Carburetion and Dual Manifolding; Bohnalite aluminum alloy pistons combining feather weight with high thermal conductivity; the Double-drop Dreadnought, the frame that eliminates side-sway, and the beautiful French Bodies with the New French Radiator. Now come and try them out. Bring on your engineers or friends of mechanical turn—we'll leave the decision to them.

"This new Hupmobile saves me $1000"

THUS remarked the motorist who had planned to spend from $2500 to $3500 on a personal car for his wife—and then saw the new Hupmobile Century Six. He purchased immediately, saying that the car fulfilled every requirement in luxury, style and power that he could have desired. Time after time, men and women long accustomed to making their selection from the higher-priced fields, are coming to the brilliant new Hupmobile Century Six and Eight, and gratefully pocketing the difference. Hupmobile quality and Hupmobile performance are known to all. Now to these are added beauty and distinction of line unsurpassed at any price. You have only to see the new Hupmobile Century models to realize how far these cars are destined to go in invading the higher priced field. You have only to drive and ride in them to know how completely they meet every wish for the highest conceivable type of performance.

By H. W. DIETRICH,
Automobile Editor.

NOT only are automobile manufacturers breaking records in their production of cars, but they also are reporting new high marks in earnings for this year. Of nine of the larger companies reporting on their earnings for the first quarter of the present year, only two show earnings under the same period for last year. The earnings of one of these two companies was cut down by rebates to dealers because of a price cut earlier in the year. The drop of the other company reflects a falling off in sales. This is in verification of the statement of the automobile industry that prosperity is continuing throughout the country.

Friday, Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., head of the General Motors organization, completed five years at the helm of that great automotive company. In the five years of Mr. Sloan's stewardship, General Motors assets have more than doubled. A short time before Mr. Sloan took over the presidency that organization showed assets of $522,335,034, December 31, 1922. At the end of the first quarter of this year the value of its assets had risen to $1,115,717,679. Net earnings for 1922 of $31,807,448 are contrasted with $233,264,724. In 1922 the organization sold 456,763 cars and trucks and in 1927 1,562,748. Dividends at the end of Mr. Sloan's fifth year were $134,536,061, 13 times the figure of 1922.

Continuing this optimistic note is the report on exports of motor vehicles for the first year. During the first three months shipments of automotive units from this country numbered 115,986, an increase of 17 per cent over the total of 98,941 for the same period in 1927 and 40 per cent over the similar three months of 1926. The increase of 1928 over 1927 represented a value of $16,000,000. The picture here is a rapidly increasing American motorization of the world.

Continuing the atmosphere of optimism is a news item from France that the average gasoline and automobile tax there was $61.90, for the year of 1927. The 960,000 motor vehicles in that country paid a total of $59,414,000. This is approximately three times the sum paid last year in gasoline and automobile taxes by the average American motorist. The American motorists will be content to remain here.

* * *

The recent automobile trip of the Islam Grotto Automobile Club to Warren, O., has encouraged the officers of that organization to plan new achievements in an entertainment way. The trip to Warren was for the purpose of participating in Ali Baba Grotto's ceremonial. Further plans are for a picnic in July, trip to a county fair in September, swimming party in October and dance in November.

TO BUY OR NOT TO BUY?

I'VE got a problem on my mind
That keeps me 'wake at night.
My forehead's getting wrinkle-lined;
I just can't work it right.
My income's short of running cost;
I owe too much, by far;
But this is troubling me the most—
I've got to buy a car!

The good old bus is on the blink;
It's made its last long tour.
The bearings all are loose, I think;
All four tires might be newer.
It's going to cost a lot of jack
For new parts if I keep her;
Should I waste coin on that old hack
Or is a new car cheaper?

Who will untie this tangled knot
That's spoiling my digestion?
How spend the coin I haven't got?
Friends, there's a puzzling question.
Sell it for junk and walk you say?
Why, what a boob you are!
What man who's driven half a day
Could live without a car?

He put a mortgage on his home to buy a car. Then he negotiated a loan on the car to build a garage.

"And how are you going to pay running expenses?" asked a friend.

"Why, gush," he said. "A fellow who owns a house, a garage, and an automobile ought to be good for credit at most any filling station!"

"How much will you charge to fix this car?"

"What's wrong with it?"

"I don't have any idea."

What Price Blame In Crossing Smashes

TWO rival fire companies in a country village stopped before a burning house to argue whose fault is was that no one got there sooner.

The argument was a good one, supported by logic and statistics, but while the firemen talked the house burned down.

This fable is a good deal like what is taking place today with respect to the attitude of some of the railroads toward grade crossing accidents.

In a recent issue of Railroad Data, for example, we find the committee of public relations of the eastern railroads making this statement: "Very rarely are grade crossing accidents the result of carelessness on the part of the railroad. In the vast majority of cases it is the motor driver who is either careless or who is the actual aggressor, by running into the side of the train, disregarding signals or running through crossing gates."

The assumption that the motorist is careless because he has run into the side of a train is wholly an assumption, and nothing more.

Either the driver has seen or heard a positive signal warning of the approach of a train or he has not. If he has had the warning and still goes ahead, that is carelessness of the grossest sort.

One error into which the railroads fall is that of thinking that the ordinary painted sign which warns the public to look out for the engine constitutes a warning signal. Every one knows that such a sign is present 24 hours of the day, no matter how many trains may or may not be running. Consequently there is a temptation for the driver not to be on his guard as much as he might advisedly be.

Crossings which are cared for only in this way are listed by the Interstate Commerce Commission as "unprotected."

Be Careful of Fire In Forest Jaunt

EACH year the warning against forest fires is broadcast by the state and various conservation bodies.

Yet each year's tabulations show that careless campers have ruined fine stands of timber, valuable not only for commercial use but irreplaceable in our generation for their scenic beauty.

Cigarets are thrown from automobiles despite the warnings posted in various forest areas against smoking during the dry season. It is not diabolical, of course. It is sheer carelessness. But the damage is just as great as if it were intentional.

Motorists should be jealous of the privilege accorded them. They should guard against fire even more than in their own homes. Homes may be rebuilt in a short time. Forests take years to grow. Be careful of fire.

and critics say,
"two years ahead"

"Two years ahead in appearance and mechanically," says H. F. Blanchard of Motor . . . "New in every respect. Gives the impression of being in a much higher price class," A. F. Denham of Motor Age . . . "An important advance in the art of car building," Walter C. Boynton in Automotive Daily News.

According to men whose opinions count, there is the spirit of tomorrow in the thrilling performance and voguish appearance of this new and larger Oldsmobile Six.

A new, high-compression 55 h. p. engine offers an abundance of smooth, quiet, economical power resulting in flashing get-away, speed, and long-lived endurance.

The smart lines and luxurious finish of new Fisher bodies match the advanced engineering of engine and chassis. New roominess and silenced interiors provide new comfort and enjoyment.

A score of other new chassis and body features—features which heretofore have identified high priced cars—definitely establish this new Oldsmobile as the Fine Car of Low Price.

THE FINE CAR OF LOW PRICE

The Engineer takes a ride in an Oldsmobile

When he came into the salesroom he announced that he had no intention of buying an Oldsmobile. "Recently I have been hearing praise and comment that I feel sure is extravagant," he said, "and I'm curious about this car. I'd like to see it."

A demonstration was suggested; and a grudging "H'm, a smart looking job!" was the only comment as he stepped in. He put the car through its paces—thoroughly enough to reveal all of the performance qualities that Oldsmobile engineers had achieved by their new design. His expression showed keenest interest particularly as to speed, acceleration, silence and smoothness.

Returning he remarked, "High-compression motor eh? That means special fuels!"

It was explained that on the contrary, Oldsmobile engineers had secured high-compression performance results without special fuels by means of a specially designed General Motors Research cylinder head. And, naturally, he was keenly interested in the cylinder head which made this possible. For half an hour that engineer went over the Oldsmobile from stem to stern. Then he straightened up.

"The trouble with you salesmen," he said, "is that you don't appreciate how good this car is. Why, man alive, this isn't just a car, it's an engineering achievement!"

Senoritas Go on Parade

HUPP BREAKS MORE RECORDS

Passing the 8,000 mark for the second time in the company's history and setting the third new all-time monthly record registered in three successive months, Hupmobile shipments in April continued to reflect the unprecedented demand which the new Century Six and Eight have been meeting ever since their introduction.

Shipments for April, it is announced by R. S. Cole, general sales manager, were 8,052.

The figure exceeds even the previous high total attained in March, when for the first time Hupmobile shipments crossed the 8,000 level.

It is an increase of 96 per cent over the figure for April, 1927, when 4,111 cars were shipped and exceeds by 74 per cent the previous largest April in the company's history—in 1923, when 4,637 cars were shipped.

Shipments since January 1, now amounting to 24,952 cars, are the largest for this period in Hupmobile history.

Three Schools Study Values of Highways

WASHINGTON, May 12.—Motorists of the United States pay a bad roads tax equivalent to 22.3 cents on every gallon of gasoline consumed on a poor highway, the American Road Builders' Association stated today. It will cost that much more to consume a gallon of gasoline on poor roads than if the same car were driven on good roads, according to the association.

The figures were derived from the results of elaborate experiments conducted at Washington State College, Iowa State College, and the North Carolina State College. They are estimated for a car making 10 miles to the gallon on a rough highway.

"On a basis of a speed of 32 miles an hour," the Washington report states, "the test shows the cost in gasoline and tires each 1,000 miles over a certain rough road for an average four cylinder car weighing 3,500 pounds loaded, was $35.10. At the same speed, the cost for the same car over a very smooth improved road was only $12.50."

To attain the highest degree of economy for highway transportation it is essential that road construction methods be standardized in order that roads may be built which will handle traffic at a mimimum of cost. An effort is being made to standardize county road construction through a County Highway Officials' Division of the American Road Builders' Association.

A little over one-fifth of the total mileage of roads in the United States has been improved to some degree, and the American Road Builders' Association estimated that there are still at least 2,000,000 miles of roads that are inadequate for economic handling of traffic, and must be further improved before they may be classified as economic highways.

Oil-Soaked Wiring Great Fire Hazard

Oil-soaked wiring in automobiles causes many disastrous fires.

INSPECT TIRES FOR BRUISES

"Winter driving with its cool weather and wet streets is easy on tires and wear is very slow," says E. N. Niedringhaus, of Campbell-Niedringhaus, distributor of Lee of Conshohocken tires. "The only bad risk tires run in winter is that rubber cuts very easy when wet.

"Many accidents are caused at this time of the year by front tires suddenly blowing out. Car owners should know that getting out into the country for the first fast pleasure drive of the season at a 40 or 50-mile clip often proves too much of a strain for old times that have given good service all winter. A sudden blowout may ditch your car.

"It is not safe or economical to neglect cut or bruised spots in tires. Either discard them if too much worn or have expert tire repairmen put them in a safe condition. Many thousands of miles can be saved by a good repair made in time."

City Gains Big Lead In May Sales Meet

With the month of May not yet 15 days old, the sales corps of the Studebaker Sales Company of Pittsburgh has rolled up a 26,000-point lead on its four rivals, Cleveland, Philadelphia, Buffalo and Baltimore, in the world-wide sales drive to make May a champion month for Studebaker cars.

The Pittsburgh goal is to make May another million dollar month and early indications are that the Pittsburgh sales army will surpass its March record, which set a new high in the Studebaker organization. It was after the success of the first Pittsburgh campaign that Paul G. Hoffman, vice president of the Studebaker Corporation of America, inaugurated the Pittsburgh plan of sales campaigns in every Studebaker dealer organization all over the world.

The point score up to and including last Wednesday was: Pittsburgh, 80,100; Cleveland, 54,500; Philadelphia, 50,000; Buffalo, 40,000, and Baltimore, 35,800. The Pittsburghers are allowing double the number of points because of the constricted territory and their point score is doubled in the accounting.

The entire local Studebaker organization has been divided into two armies of equal strength, the Red and the Green, and they will compete for individual prizes which have been put up by F. L. Dennis, president of the Pittsburgh company, but they are banded together in the campaign with the other cities.

Speed Car Tests Will Benefit Auto Industry

STREAM LINES ADD TO POWER OF MOTOR CAR

Super-Charger Adds to Efficiency of 200-Mile-an-Hour Machines, Study Shows.

By AN AUTOMOTIVE ENGINEER

We average automobilists are apt to wonder what good it will do the art of automobile design to turn out machines that will do better than 200 miles per hour. When Malcolm Campbell, last February, raced over the sands of Daytona Beach, Fla., at a speed of 206.95 miles an hour he started interesting discussions both in and out of automotive circles. The public as well as members of the industry are wondering what significance may be attached to these new speed developments.

It is certain that he will never put into even the flashiest roadster a motor that even approaches that of these speed monsters. The engine in the car driven by Campbell is a carefully guarded secret in many respects. The British admiralty under whose auspices the car was built has not as yet released the details for publication. The engine was built by Napier and is said to be of the W type.

The W type of engine is not new to us as it has been used for aviation work for large planes. In this type of engine the cylinders are arranged in three rows instead of in two rows as in the V type. Captain Campbell's car has 12 cylinders in three rows of four. It has a bore of 5½ inches and a stroke of 6¼ inches. It uses overhead camshaft and has a supercharger which gives a compression ratio of 10 to 1. (The highest compression passenger cars have a ratio of from 5½ to 6 to 1.) It is therefore necessary with the W type of engine to use a heavily doped fuel. The power developed is about 1,000 horsepower, and according to theoretical calculations, figuring wind resistence, etc., it takes 700 horsepower to drive it at 220 miles an hour.

From a car of this type we learn of matters that are interesting to both aviation and automobile design. From a standpoint of aviation the benefits of a good streamline are made very clear. For instance it was found that by making streamline housings for the wheels, that it was possible to save 80 horsepower at 220 miles an hour. Before this particular job was done, the power necessary to drive the car at 220 miles an hour had been cut down from 1,100 to 700 horsepower, simply by stream-lining the body in such a way that the air was entered and left behind with as little projective float surface as possible. It is very well known that the leaving lines of a streamline body are, if anything, more important than the entrance lines. Consequently every precaution has been taken in this respect.

From the standpoint of the automobile engineer there is much to be learned. While the valve timing, valve action and compression and many other features of such a motor are absolutely impossible from an automobile standpoint as far as ordinary practice is concerned, still the fundamentals are exactly the same.

Adding New Link in Oakland Chain

TRANSPORT VETERAN—C. A. Rehtmeyer, Allegheny county distributor for Oakland and Pontiac, greeting William E. Haggerty, president of the Haggerty Motor Company, newest addition to the Oakland-Pontiac sales and service organization of this county. The Haggerty organization, Reedsdale street, last week entered into the automotive sales and service field with a record of 50 years as a transfer company in that district. Other officers are: J. C. Haggerty, vice president; G. W. Haggerty, manager, and L. E. Haggerty, secretary and treasurer. All are brothers.

VACUUM BRAKE AID TO SAFETY

I. W. Danforth, Pittsburgh distributor for the Westinghouse automotive brake-vacuum type, in a recent conversation with automotive men outlined briefly automotive progress as he has seen it from an angle of safety.

"Within the last four years," cites Mr. Danforth, "more worthy safety devices have come to the front than in all previous years, since the introduction of the motor car. Low hung chassis, sturdy wheels, all metal bodies, non-shattering glass, larger and more absorbent bumpers, have all contributed to the safety of every American motorist. All these features have helped in the common cause," says Mr. Danforth, "but today a new safety era dawns with the introduction of the new Westinghouse brake. Aside from its potential safety features, the Westinghouse brake is pleasingly inexpensive, may be installed on any car in just a few hours without disturbing the standard brake rigging in any way."

1927 Gas Exports Gain 2 Per Cent

Exports of gasoline during 1927 totaled 42,436,328 barrels, an increase of 2 per cent over the preceding year, according to a Department of Commerce report received by the National Automobile Club. Increases were shown by all petroleum products with the exception of illuminating oils, while the greatest increase was shown in gas and fuel oils, which jumped 24.6 per cent.

Reo Betters Time Of Fast Miami Train

Bettering the time of the fastest train from Miami to Chicago by 12 hours, although handicapped by an additional 100 miles, a 1929 Reo Flying Cloud roadster recently completed a similar trip in 30 hours and 25 minutes, information received here by R. E. Loughney Motor Company, Reo distributor, states. The mileage of the Miami-Chicago route by highway is 1,601 miles. The fastest train time is 43 hours and 35 minutes.

The Flying Cloud roadster, a stock model, was checked out of Miami at 3 o'clock Eastern time, Thursday morning, May 3, by the Cooper Carlton Hotel, Chicago, Friday morning, May 4, at 8:25 o'clock, Central time, by an official of the Postal Telegraph Company there.

The car was driven alternately by P. A. Collins and William Moreland, two of Reo's staff engineers. Two delays were encountered on the long trip, one of 15 minutes for a tire change and the other for ferrying across the river at Henderson, Ky.

"The entire Reo organization is highly delighted at the showing of the car," says R. E. Loughney of the Pittsburgh organization, "not because of the implication of speed, for the engineer-drivers point out that at no time was the car driven faster than 70 miles an hour, but for the reason that the car was able to maintain so high an average speed for more than 1,600 miles. And this high average was maintained under all sorts of climatic and road conditions, subjecting the car to more gruelling punishment than would normally be encountered in a lifetime of ordinary driving."

USED MOTOR SALES FACTOR

An entirely new slant on the used car, elevating it to its rightful place in the industry, was taken here by R. H. Grant, vice president in charge of sales of the Chevrolet Motor Company, just prior to sailing for a month's trip to Europe.

As evidence of the growing importance of the used car, Mr. Grant pointed out that during the first quarter of 1928, when the Chevrolet dealer organiatzion was moving 250,000 new cars, it also was delivering at retail more than 200,000 used cars.

This was made possible by a changing attitude toward the used car on the part of both the automobile dealer and the public, Mr. Grant said.

CABRIOLET 80 ADDED BY MOON

The addition of a Cabriolet to its enthusiastically accepted Moon-Aero-type 8-80 line, is announced by the G. F. Reed Moon Company, distributor, here. Prior to this date the 8-80 could be had in two models, the full length four-door sedan and the closed-coupled four-door sedan. These two models made their initial bow before the automobile world at the New York automobile show. The constantly increasing demand has made it necessary to add breadth to this popular 8-80 line; hence the 8-80 Cabriolet, the announcement states.

In keeping with the Moon's reputation in automobile coachwork, the body of this new car reveals in a striking manner the ultra-modern trend in fine motor car design and decoration. The body of this new Cabriolet which was designed by a noted French engineer, is of composite steel and wood construction.

STUDEBAKER'S
$795 ERSKINE SIX

Sets Ten New Records by Traveling 1000 miles in 984 minutes

proving ITS CHAMPIONSHIP STUDEBAKER HERITAGE

ON April 26, two strictly stock Erskine Club Sedans—exactly like those you can purchase from any Studebaker dealer—each traveled 1000 miles in less than 1000 consecutive minutes.

The run took place at Atlantic City Speedway, and was supervised by officials of the American Automobile Association who verified the stock design of the cars.

As a result, ten new records for stock cars under $1000 were established by the Erskine Six. And Studebaker has demonstrated that its 76-year-old traditions for careful building are carried through in the design, materials and workmanship of this low-priced fine car—named for Albert Russel Erskine, Studebaker's president

Although sold at the lowest price at which any Studebaker-built car was ever offered ($795 f. o. b. factory), Studebaker has not permitted any compromise in the materials or workmanship entering into the Erskine Six. That is why this car was able to travel 1000 miles at better than a mile a minute—why you can drive your Erskine Six 40 miles an hour even when NEW—why the Erskine is so economical to maintain and to operate.

A few minutes behind the wheel of the New Erskine Six will introduce you to a type of performance as sensational for its price class as that of the World's Champion Commander is to the field of higher priced cars.

Two Million Cars Junked During 1927

WASHINGTON, May 12.—Motor vehicle registration of the United States during 1927, according to final and revised figures of the American Motorists' Association, totaled 23,127,315 passenger cars and trucks. This is after the elimination of the so-called reregistrations. There were 20,230,429 passenger automobiles, taxis and busses, and 2,896,886 trucks and tractors, the latter being grouped together. In addition, there were 123,451 trailers, 120,203 motorcycles, 33,179 tax-exempt official automobiles owned by the United States, and 101,689 tax-exempt automobiles owned by the 48 states.

Comparing the 1927 registrations with those of 1926, the revised figures show a net increase, during the year, of 1,125,922 vehicles, an increase of 5.1 per cent over the registrations of 1926, which totaled 22,001,393.

The revised figures, eliminating the reregistrations, show that there were 1,884,104 old passenger cars and trucks which were "junked" and worn out during 1927.

This figure is arrived at by the Association as follows: Total 1927 production 3,294,225 passenger cars and trucks. Of this total 384,199 were exported leaving a total of 2,910,026 passenger cars and trucks of the total 1927 production sold in the United States during that year. Deducting from this the increase in registration of 1,125,922 would indicate that approximately 1,884,104 vehicles were "retired" during the year.

The largest increase in registrations during the year was in North Carolina, showing an increase of 11.8 per cent, followed by South Carolina, with an increase of 10.2 per cent and Utah with an increase of 10.1 per cent.

The most important thing ever said of Essex is said by buyers in the largest 6-cylinder sales, and the most overwhelming competitive preference of automobile history.

The only prestige back of this enormous success is the public knowledge that Essex has always stood for value—and this time such pre-eminent value that there is no second.

In many territories Essex sales exceed those of any other "Six" by more than 2 to 1. And, with slight variations, this preference is the nation's and the world's.

SEADROME AIRWAY PLANNED FROM N. Y. TO EUROPE IS DESCRIBED BY INVENTOR

Edward R. Armstrong Tells of Project for Airplane Service That Would Carry Passengers Regularly Across Ocean in Less Than One and a Half Days.

THE recent flight of the Bremen has served to sharpen interest and discussion concerning dependable air service between America and Europe. In the accompanying timely article Mr. Armstrong presents an outline of his plan for establishing a safe airway over the Atlantic. Mr. Armstrong, inventor of the seadrome which is the basis of his project, was for some years consulting engineer of the E. I. duPont de Nemours Company, Delaware, and is now on leave of absence from the duPont organization to devote his full attention to the development of his enterprise.

AIRPLANE flights across the Atlantic in a single jump, both east and west, are now an accomplished fact. But these flights were accomplished at great hazard to the fliers. In each instance they literally gambled with death and in several of the attempts the fliers lost the gamble and their lives. Thus, while the flights that have been made are praiseworthy and have contributed to the advancement of aeronautical science, they naturally raise the question:

I believe that the answer to this question is embodied in a project with which I have been identified for some time and which is now taking definite shape. Briefly, it may be summarized as follows:

1—The establishment of an airway across the Atlantic over which airplanes may make frequent stops for refueling, repairs and supplies. This is to be accomplished by:

2—The permanent anchoring of eight seadromes or floating landing fields at regular intervals—about 325 miles apart—thus breaking the trans-Atlantic air journey up into a series of comparatively short flights.

3—A consequent reduction to a minimum of the danger that now attends uninterrupted Atlantic flights by thus providing frequent stopping points.

4—The ability to make such an airway commercially practicable and profitable by reducing the amount of fuel required on uninterrupted flights and substituting in its place a pay load—passengers, express and mail matter. First class passenger fare would be about $500 for the voyage.

A Chain of Floating Landing Fields

The basis for such a trans-Atlantic airway is the seadrome, or floating landing field, which I have invented and which has been subjected successfully to the most searching scientific tests over a period of years.

The establishment of the ocean airway contemplates anchoring of these seadromes in a chain extending from New York to the Azores and thence to Lisbon, Portugal, where connection will be made with the network of airways now linking Paris, London, Berlin and other European cities.

Over such an airway it is estimated that the journey from New York to London and Paris can be made in about thirty-four hours, perhaps much less, with favorable winds.

Passengers will be able to travel in comfortable, strongly built seaplanes that can land safely on the surface of the ocean in case of emergency. They will be in constant radio communication with the nearest seadrome.

There will be hotel accommodations available for them on each seadrome when they can break the journey if they desire. The Azores route is comparatively free from the hazards of fog and entirely free from ice and sleet, all of which menace the shorter pathway between Newfoundland and Ireland, and likewise the frequency and severity of storms are much less.

First Seadrome Soon to Be Started

Despite its dangers, those who have made uninterrupted flights across the Atlantic have chosen the Newfoundland-Ireland route because the limitations of the gasoline supply they could carry made it desirable, even compulsory, to traverse the shortest path from land to land. It is about 1,700 miles from Newfoundland to Ireland. But over the proposed seadrome airway this problem is eliminated by the refueling stations, and thus it is not necessary to seek the shortest route. The distance from New York to Portugal over the proposed course will be 3,500 miles.

The project for this seadrome airway across the Atlantic has now reached this point: With the exception of certain legal formalities, a syndicate has been organized to provide $2,500,000 for the first unit. After about three months of final tests—particularly in the test basin of the Navy Department, where models of warships are studied—and the preparation of engineering plans, construction of the first seadrome will be commenced. It should take about a year to build and cost about $1,500,000. Meanwhile a fleet af about fifteen seaplanes will be constructed.

Plan Test Airway to Bermuda

To subject the seadrome to the fullest possible test in actual use, we will anchor it at a point midway between New York and Bermuda and establish a temporary airway between those points, so that every phase of operation under all conditions may be observed and worked out. It is about 660 miles to Bermuda, so that the seadrome will be anchored about 325 miles from New York, thus making the air hop to and from the seadrome about the same as each hop on the Azores route.

It is estimated that six months of such operation will enable all conditions affecting the airway to be scientifically studied and to demonstrate the utility of the seadrome and the engineering and commercial practicability of the entire plan. Once this is corroborated, construction of the remaining seven seadromes will be undertaken and the proposed trans-Atlantic airway established. Our present estimate is that it should be in full operation three years from now.

OCEAN AIRPLANE HAVEN—An artist's visualization of the Armstrong seadrome as it is expected to appear in mid-Atlantic. The airplane landing deck or platform is 1,200 feet long, supported by the structure of vertical tubes upon which this seadrome's principle is based. In the drawing are shown the hotel accommodations, radio apparatus, hangar equipment, etc., which each seadrome is planned to carry; also the supply barge at one end. Mr. Armstrong plans to name each of his chain of seadromes after a pioneer in aeronautics. The first will be christend the Langley.

AIRWAY TO EUROPE—This map illustrates the airway which Mr. Armstrong proposes shall be established from New York to Europe, via the Azores. He selects this route because of the minimum of storms, fogs and ice hazards as compared with the shorter Newfoundland-Ireland route. The line of freezing temperature, and the percentage of fog, two of the chief dangers of ocean flying, also the limit of iceberg zone, indicated on the map, have been compiled by Mr. Armstrong from U. S. Government hydrographic charts and meteorological records. The proposed positions of the eight seadromes between New York, the Azores and Lisbon are indicated. Also a tentative seadrome route direct from the Azores to England, as well as subsidiary airways connecting with the main trans-Atlantic airway.

What Seadromes Are

There is no question that such an airway will serve to extend the sphere of influence of the United States immeasurably, and from an economic viewpoint I believe it will bring an immense quickening and expansion of business between Europe and America.

Speed of communication is the essence of modern commerce. We are entering an air age, and already the development and extension of airplanes has speeded up business. Airways gridiron Europe today, and tens of thousands of passengers travel by plane every year safely and in comfort.

In the United States there is a constant extension of air traffic, although not so rapid as in Europe. It remains now to bridge the Atlantic with a practicable airway, and this my associates and I are undertaking to do.

What is the seadrome? How will it withstand the buffeting of Atlantic storms and thus provide safe and dependable havens in midocean? I will explain briefly.

It is a series of thirty-two vertical tubes of steel and iron about 15 feet in diameter and about 195 feet high. About midway in the length of each tube there is a tank-like drum 30 feet in diameter and 30 feet deep. At the bottom of each tube is a ballast chamber and a water ballast tank 70 feet across, like an inverted mushroom.

These thirty-two tubular structures are bound together by network of steel and iron girders and braces, into a rigid framework. On the top of this is built the main deck or airplane landing floor. This will be 1,200 feet long and 400 feet wide.

At each side of the main landing deck will be built structures to provide hotel accommodations, hangars and housing of supplies, radio apparatus, meteorological instruments, and quarters for the operating personnel.

Seas Do Not Rock It

When the seadrome is fully loaded and in the water it is buoyed up by the large tanks on each tubular unit as well as by the air in the tubes themselves Normally each tank will be about 20 feet below the water line and the landing deck about 70 feet above the water line. The mushroom-like bottoms of the tubes, which act as stabliizers, will be 150 feet below the water line. The main landing deck will be 70 feet above the sea's surface.

When the seadrome is floating in the water, it remains almost level, even in the roughest seas. The largest of ocean waves are not felt at a comparatively short distance below the surface. In any Atlantic storm the water

15,000 WOULD FLY TO SOUTH POLE WITH BYRD

Boys, Men and Women Desire to Embark on Trip To 'Top of the World'—Bored Rich Women, Old Men Who Wish to Top Career With One Glorious Gesture Among Thrill Seekers. Receives as Much Mail as Matinee Idol.

By W. W. CHAPLIN,
Associated Press Staff Writer.

BOSTON, Mass., May 12.

IF COMMANDER RICHARD EVELYN BYRD accepted all the offers to accompany him to the South Pole made since he returned from his flight to France, a city of some 15,000 persons would spring up in the Antarctic this fall, as motley and futile a community of thrill hunters as was ever assembled in one place.

There would be men of all ages, from old ones to whom the years have brought realization that they have never accomplished anything very brilliant and who wish to top their drab career with one glorious gesture, to boys fresh on the threshold of life who see all before them only in terms of dashing adventure.

And there would be women, too; bored rich ones, with fond visions of heated igloos staffed by a retinue of servants, and hero-worshiping young ones with romantic notions of impossible dramas in which they would inevitably be cast as the dashing heroines.

40 Applications Daily

Commander Byrd receives an average of about 40 such applications a day, largely from people whose only common bond is their monetary desire and their almost universal unfitness for any expedition in which hardship, labor, technical training and perseverance under trying conditions are the component parts.

Not all the women who write to the air conqueror of the North Pole, however, want to accompany him to the frozen wastes. About four a day write him soft letters that a matinee idol might preen himself over, but which Byrd merely tosses aside with a smile.

The rest of the flier's daily mail, to which he and a secretary have to devote most of their mornings, and which runs from 50 to 200 letters, is divided between pleas for financial assistance, letters of advice from people who don't think much of aviation and hate to see a nice man wasting his time at it, invitations to speak at meetings or dinners, and rambling letters of no special import.

Does Not Seem Annoyed

A less efficient man might find such a daily load of mail an almost unbearable burden in the busy season of preparation for such an adventure as Byrd is now planning, the South Pole flight, but he takes it all in his stride and shows no trace of annoyance, going calmly on to the other duties of the day.

At noon there is always a walk, in which he is accompanied as a rule by Dick Jr., who is eight, and at least one dog. At 5 o'clock the office work is again suspended for exercise, this time of a more active sort. In winter Byrd plays squash and in summer tennis or golf. Swimming and sailing are also among his favorite sports.

No matter how great is the pressure of his affairs Byrd always manages to set aside time for exercise. He knows that there are strenuous days ahead of him, days in which his endurance will be taxed to the utmost, and he is constantly building himself up against that time.

Relaxes for an Hour

He prefers not to work after dinner, but often it is unavoidable; there are so many people to see, so many letters to write, proofs of book and article to read, plans to make. But by 11 o'clock he is through and for an hour he relaxes, reading as he sips a glass of milk and eats a few crackers. By midnight he is in bed, and when his work is cleared up early he often is asleep an hour before that, storing up the strength which later he will be called on to send him circling above the South Pole.

This daily routine is, of course, frequently altered by trips to New York, and other places for visits to his publishers, for business arrange-

TRADER HORN — The Greatest Adventure Story of Modern Times

Natives Are Routed And Slain When Attack Is Made.

By ALFRED ALOYSIUS HORN.

Edited by Ethelreda Lewis.

CHAPTER XXIX.

WE WERE about all ready for anything when a canoe came alongside. It was Nina, the headman and a couple of his witch doctors, and Nina spoke to me just. She was nattily dressed in the European togs I had given to her and spoke in a firm voice which I understood come and see us at once, you will receive protection if not you will be attacked and will surely die.

She looked me steadily in the eye as she spoke and insisted on my following her at once. I thanked her at once, but told her I had a surprise in store for anyone if they cared to come and try. At this she smiled and said don't be foolish, they don't want to kill you, I will see to that, but your boat is fast, they are ready to attack you and I give you this chance, come with me.

I told her how thankful I was to her, but I could not leave the ship. I had got it into trouble and would get it out. She said no more, but I noticed a waterblot you call a tear in her blue eye. I waved her goodby; we said no more; she had risked her life to save me.

There was nothing could help me only my rifles. I had confidence in them, so had my boys. In fact I wanted a go-in with these river men. If I won, which I knew I would, I was as good as king of the river. I knew the native, if I licked him I had his friendship.

Firing Opens

We had not long to wait as out from the Isogo point shot two war canoes bearing straight down on us. Iwolo now proposed a drink and stood behind us as we mounted the poop field, glasses in hand. We took things easy and opened out at 800 yards on Isogis fleet.

As we potted them they began to hesitate, and then making a swift turn back we played skittles with them the canoes showed signs of the wildest disorder. This tickled Iwolo who started up a song (Iduma enywary calis a mo macka) the cheek of a slave always comes to grief. We potted them till all agreed to leave them alone and leave some of them living, we felt like going ashore and taking the town and killing Isogy.

And now a fleet of twenty put out from Rengogus but shared a worse fate as we popped in a few shots at them at 1,000 yards and the effect was plainly visible they returned. They had a life's surprise. I had all shots and we drank and amused ourselves whilst beaconing them on shore to come out awhile.

They had the easiest licking I ever saw and from that time on I always commanded the river. With a loss of nothing but a couple of hundred cartridges I had quieted the river to stay quiet. And old General Iwolo always smiled when we spoke of the battle at Isogis.

Natives Afraid

After another piece of luck, which was the sudden rising of the river a couple of feet, we felt quite independent so I turned the big paddles round and dropped anchor at Ninas Sacred town. The inhabitants seemed afraid of us to begin with but I hailed the Sacred chief who came off in his best canoe along with several of his witch men.

I received them well on board but let them see I was prepared for any eventualities that might arise. This was a good advertisement as they had seen how well we had disposed of our enemies without a scratch. I noticed he had his weather eye on our rifles and took all in.

I never even mentioned the battle only to say that anyone who was foolish enough to bother us would regret it and furthermore I told him my wishes had all been granted and if he wished I would come on shore and make another wish. He said I could wait till they had composed themselves as there had been quite a number of influential men on shore who had been shot. And of course I was sorry especially as Isogis son had been killed.

Opposed Attack

Of course I expected as I was a full member of the temple to be treated like any other member of the faithful and to this he agreed but as the doctors were fixing up the wounded they would prefer remaining quiet, in fact he had been adverse to one member of the temple fighting another. But I chimed in this boat of mine and the goods were mine and they had attacked me what had he to say about it.

He could only tell me he was never in favor of the attack and said in a whisper we warned you as a brother did we not. Of course you did I answered you offered me protection if I would leave the boat and I shall always be thankful to you for that warning and furthermore I have come here purposely to reward you all for your good action now the battle is over and I want you to make peace with everybody on my account.

These wise man now had a confab and said they understood me exactly and would be glad of any help I could give them so as to commence peacemaking. I asked them to state what they wanted and they asked me for five cases of gin and two bottles of rum and they would begin to move away every evil spirit in the river after which there could be nothing but peace.

I had the gin and rum placed in their canoe at once and they promised to return and tell me how they had gone on in spirit land but begged me not to come on shore until they had returned.

Made Good Impression

In about two hours the sacred boat put off with Nina and the old chief at the bow standing. She looked radiant and in the stern sat Chief Isogi, who seemed to be depressed. He disclaimed all blame for the attack and blamed the creek men who had acted without orders. I made them all welcome and treated them as if nothing had happened.

Nina was dressed in European style and on parting shook hands with me leaving a short note (Trust no one) or (Beware). I noticed the chief's eyes cast on my rifle brigade and especially old Iwolo whom they all knew as the best fighter and general of the whole Cammas. They all went off smiling but could not help seeing that we were alert.

I had made a good impression on them and as they had downed many a ship on this very spot and I knew they were treacherous to a man I felt proud as they retired friendly with my goose. All the same I had steam always ready and sudden death to any false move were my orders to my fighting Chief Old Iwolo.

The river rose quickly and the captain reported ten feet or more in the channel between the long sandbanks. So we hove anchor and with a full head of steam were soon thudding away up the Ogowe. The natives cheered us lustily as we passed onward and eventually passing Her Shiffs we were all safe and sound alongside the pier at Adimanongo.

There was a great gathering of traders ashore and discharging cargo was the order of the day. Sinclair was glad to see us. As the river fell slightly after our arrival, I took a good two days' rest which I badly needed. Now the reloading traders' purchases took place and early morning all being ready we sailed for far-off Samba Falls. A young Presbyterian mission lady (Miss——) came aboard and to my surprise she was bound for Samba Falls and was the first white lady who ever visited there. I could not help but admire her courage.

TWO WAR CANOES BEAR DOWN ON TRADER HORN IN THE BATTLE FOR THE KINGSHIP OF THE RIVER.

NinaComes To Aid of Trader.

Interesting indeed are the "old visitor's" observations at this point made to Mrs. Lewis after finishing this chapter.

"I can't be second-rate in literature, ma'am. I must give facts and novelties too. Properly woven they are the basis of solid interest.

"That old Pioneer sure came up to the scratch. Livingstone's boat she used to be, carrying a load of Bibles instead o' Manchester goods. A favorite of fashion he was, with all the luxuries obtainable by prayer in Piccadilly drawing rooms. A stand of arms they gave him. Ladies'll always admire a romantic figure. Prowess. That's what tickles 'em.

"Don't Lose Fight"

"Aye, I've been saving up this river fight to put in a bit of prowess for a reviewer. When you're cornered, battle out! Keep your self-respect between your teeth! A fight lost in Africa's the world lost. Other places'll give you a second chance. The Ivory Coast gives you only one.

"'Twould never 'a' done for me to listen to Nina T——. 'You'd better come,' she said. A strange look that girl had sometimes.

"No, ma'am, you'd hardly say I was in love. My little ringletted lass of the lily ponds in a Lancashire lane kept my heart. But it was only in Nature for a boy to have a good stare at those eyes of a goddess looking at him so strangely. Kind but piercing they were. She'd never seen a light-haired boy and perhaps it brought memories of her father.

"'Tis a good thing I knew her so intimately. Any book, to catch the fancy, needs some attachment like Nina. Something that continues in the background and provides color. Aye! Come to Nina's story, I would have crammed the whole narrative into three or four chapters. There was little enough of it. But come to a book you need some proper understanding of Selection. That's why I've had to weave it in somewhat meagre. Get me contrast and me solidity with gorillas and river-fights and so forth and cetera.

Love Interest

"Mind you, there's some'll read the book for that. Fellers who'd turn up their nose at a so-called love interest. It's in the make-up of the natural man that he keeps a soft corner for a bit of a battle. And if he's ever been a lad he'll sure enjoy my rivers. Aye! Come to rivers, Ma'am, my knowledge would be sure considered a novelty even in America.

"And that bit about Miss Hasken. They'll appreciate that in Cincinnati. They sure will. They think a lot of goodness in America and they can't fail to be attracted by that sweet lady stepping aboard to sail up a cannibal river. The first white woman they'd seen. Like an angel she sat there with her back against the bales and staring out. All on board loved her. 'Twas the look in her eye. Aye! 'Twas a look could 'a taken Stanley and his sort to the world's end and heaven as a wind-up. But they hadn't got it. They hadn't got it.

"Never cared for Stanley, us traders. 'Twas no love of humanity made him go after Livingstone. Always wanted the spotlight turned on him. There was that poor feller Pocock was with him. Got carried over Samba Falls in a boat. Very likely. But 'twas an open suspicion among the traders that the boat was cut from its moorings.

Natives? Oh, aye, natives if you like. Better say natives did it if you're making a note about it. I don't want to be crucified with those notes of yours, Ma'am. Aye, he couldn't bear for any other feller to get a bit of credit.

"Nothing Fashionable"

"But that mission lady. She never thought of anything but the schools and churches she was going to build. Saw 'em all as pretty as a picture at likely spots up that wild river. 'How beautiful to see one there, Mr. Horn!' she says.

"Wear? What did she wear? Well now, Ma'am, I should have to think. Nothing fashionable. No feathers or these so-called pork-pie hats. Just one o' these Leghorn hots. Nice and shady for a lady's eyes. And a dress of brown holland same as my sister Emily used to wear in the summer. Buttons and so on on the bodice. Braid. And she had to keep lifting her long skirt, getting in and out of the boat and walking in the dust and the long grass.

"Aye, I've seen so-called women explorers since then. Helmets and so on. Riding boots and ties and everything else. But I've never seen that all this men's truck made 'em any braver than that poor lady who never thought of her get-up."

at 50 feet below the normal surface is for all practical purposes without motion, eternally calm. It is down into this calm water that the buoyant tubes of the floating seadrome have their foundation. A vital factor of the seadrome's stability is that its center of gravity is BELOW its center of buoyancy; in ordinary ships and steamers the center of gravity is ABOVE the center of buoyancy.

Waves Slide Under It

In exhaustive tests with models of the seadrome and of the steamship Majestic artificial waves, the proportional equivalent of 60 feet in height on the ocean, simply rolled by the tubes leaving the seadrome as a whole practically motionless, while the model of the Majestic was almost swamped by them. It is a well-known principle of marine engineering that the model of any craft, built with exactly the same proportionate shape and size in relation to weight, will behave exactly the same under given conditions as the full-sized craft itself.

Thus, in model form, the seadrome has demonstrated its stability and its immunity from the battering power of artificial waves proportionately as violent as the highest known ocean waves. It is axiomatic that the full-sized seadrome in actual use, built on the same lines, will behave in the same manner.

If a barge-like vessel, with solid sides and bottom and floating on the water as a ship does, were constructed to contain a landing deck of the same area as the seadrome, it would be torn from its anchorage and battered to pieces by the waves of an Atlantic storm. It is the principle of construction of the seadrome that allows the waves to roll more or less freely through the miniature forest of supporting tubes without encountering much resistance which is the chief basis for the seadrome's stability.

Each seadrome will be anchored by a steel cable to the sea bottom. Along the proposed Azores route the ocean's depth varies from less than one down to three miles, and the size of the cable varies accordingly. For anchorage at a depth of three miles the cable will be 3½ inches in diameter in the upper part and diminish to 2¼ inches in diameter as it approaches the sea bottom. It is attached to a heavy, specially-constructed anchor that rests on the ocean floor, and the cable runs upward on a long curve to a large buoy at the surface. From this buoy a shorter cable is attached to the seadrome. This allows the seadrome to swing about freely under the influence of wind and currents, just as ships do at anchor.

Anchors 3 Miles Deep

It is admitted that it would not be feasible to anchor a steamer or a barge-like vessel in this manner in water three miles deep, because the force of the waves hammering against the hull would exert a pressure that would break the cable. The seadrome, however, offers so much less resistance to the waves that the anchoring cable of the size proposed will be ample to withstand the strain. Besides, the weight of the cable is largely supported by the buoy to which it is attached.

Gasoline, oil and other supplies will be delivered by tank steamers to a small supply barge attached to the stern of each seadrome and protected from the waves by the Brashear air breakwater, which effectiffvely breaks up the wave force by diffusing compressed air emitted from perforated pipes.

Each seadrome will be equipped with a rescue boat that can be sent to the aid of any sea plane that is forced to descend between stations. It is also planned to have a series of small floating beacons, built on the same principle as the seadrome, anchored midway between each station to mark the course of the airway.

What Lindbergh Said

About 10,000 tons of steel and iron will be required for the construction of each seadrome which should cost about $1,500,000, about one-tenth of the cost of a ship structure of approximately the same deck landing space. The total displacement of each seadrome will be about 50,000 tons, of which about one-half is ballast, in the form of iron ore or some other heavy, cheap material.

There are many technical and other details to be worked out as the project progresses. Although an exhaustive study of meteorological conditions from the records of the United States Government leads to the inevitable conclusion that the approximate route selected is the most feasible from the viewpoint of minimum weather hazard, some minor variation from it may prove desirable.

Further practical tests may reveal necessary modifications, but basically I am confident that the project as I have outlined it in general terms is scientifically practicable and economically sound.

The establishment of floating landing stations for trans-Atlantic airplanes has engaged the thoughtful attention of aviators and aeronautical engineers for some time. Commander Byrd, Chamberlin and Hinton have all agreed that floating landing stations are necessary to make trans-Atlantic flying commercially practicable. Shortly after he made his epochal flight to Paris last year, Col. Lindbergh was quoted on the probability of a regular trans-Atlantic air service as follows:

"The establishment of floating stations along trans-oceanic airways is without doubt the largest obstacle to be overcome in connection with sustained trans-oceanic air communications. In the first place, they must be large enough to shelter the air liners and contain all modern equipment as well.

"A Practical Reality"

"They must also provide adequate housing facilities for passengers, since there will be occasions when it will be necessary to halt for a number of hours. But what is more to the point, these island shelters in the Atlantic must be able to give all these services in the face of the severest storms.

"To insure the comfort of passengers and further reduce the dangers of the voyage, the islands should be located not more than a few hundred miles apart.

"Just how the engineering question can be worked out cannot, of course, be gone into just now, but I think it is feasible, and I am reasonably certain that the islands will come with the advancement of aviation."

I believe that the system I have devised and which is about to be launched will solve the problems that Col. Lindbergh propounded. I am confident that within a reasonably short time the trans-Atlantic airway I have outlined will be a practical reality, creating a new channel of communication between the New and Old World and opening a new era in the history of aviation.

ments in connection with his next expedition, and for direction of test flights of the three planes he is to take with him. As a rule he is an observer on these tests, but not infrequently he takes the stick himself. Because of his fame as a navigator the fact is sometimes lost sight of that Byrd is a pilot himself, and one of the best in the country.

Although he has the co-ordinated body of an athlete, Byrd is by no means a large man. He weighs close to 160 pounds and is well under six feet tall. With his wavy hair, classic features, and the soft southern drawl of his courteous voice it is sometimes difficult for persons meeting him for the first time to visualize him in the role he has played time after time of conqueror against seemingly insuperable odds.

"Fizzle" at Life

Some of his friends have a whimsical theory by which they explain his indomitable nature. When Byrd was at Annapolis he broke the bones in one foot twice in sports, and one of the bones failed to knit. Because of his injury he was somewhat later retired from the Navy, his career apparently ended, leaving him, in his own words, a "fizzle" at life. The broken ends of the unknitted bone in his foot were nailed together by surgeons, and friends say with a laugh that iron from that nail must have permeated Byrd's system and made him strong beyond all possibility of defeat.

COMMANDER Richard E. Byrd, who expects to make a flight to the South Pole. He is determined to be the first man to make a flight to both poles.

As a matter of fact, of course, Byrd's determination to follow his urge for adventure dates back much farther than that nailed-up foot, back at any rate to the time when he was 12 years old, that, unaccompanied, he circled the world whose hidden places he was later to seek out from the clouds.

REX BEACH SAYS: 'TO MAKE A SUCCESS OF MARRIAGE, A MAN MUST THOROUGHLY MISUNDERSTAND WOMEN'

"From Infancy a Woman Is Taught to Believe That She Is Mysterious and That the Workings of Her Mind Are Difficult of Comprehension," He Says.

By REX BEACH,

Famous Novelist and Short Story Writer.

IT IS not possible for a man to make a success of marriage unless he thoroughly misunderstands women. The experienced husband knows this; the younger man usually does not begin to find it out until he becomes engaged.

There is nothing a woman so dearly loves to imagine as that she is not understood. From infancy she has been taught to believe that she is mysterious and that the workings of her mind are difficult of comprehension. And to these beliefs she will cling tenaciously when she has parted with all other illusions.

Astute writers of stories and plays are well aware of this fact and make the most of it. They know that in a world, run as it is today—for women only, anything they write about the impenetrable female mind is sure-fire material.

You must have noticed the type of line that never fails to rouse the women in a theater to a pitch of unbridled enthusiasm. I have heard it, or something closely resembling it, in almost every play I have ever seen. It goes something like this:

FIRST MALE CHARACTER: I have been married for twenty years, and do you know what I have learned in that time about women?

SECOND MALE CHARACTER: No; what?

FIRST MALE CHARACTER: Nothing.

The wily playwright knows that this sort of thing can always be counted on to evoke vociferous applause and jazz up a tedious spot in his show. Everyone in the audience knew exactly what was coming, but a woman invariably gets as much kick out of it as she did the first fifty times that she heard it. Her appetite for this kind of poppy juice is insatiable.

Platoons of Beaux

After failing to put something over on her husband, there is nothing a woman enjoys more thoroughly than to walk tragically away to her room, look at her reflection in the mirror and murmur tensely—"Not understood!" It is a pretty fallacy that wise husbands encourage. Often it is their only haven of refuge in times of dire extremity.

As soon as a girl is old enough to realize that she owes it to her self-respect to have a platoon of beaux pursuing her she instinctively turns to the device of not being understood in order to attract them.

At this early age it is her parents, she asserts, who do not understand her. And it is an effective line to take, for it leads her victims to believe that she is an unusually interesting character, and at the same time compliments them in a subtle way by implying that they do understand her, and therefore must be possessed of more than ordinary intelligence. Poor lads. How they fall for a little flattery.

Any fair-minded person would admit that such insidious tactics are, well—not strictly ethical, but the female of the species has been permitted to indulge in such wiles for so long that they are now accepted as legitimate. She shoots this kind of thing at each unwary fellow who comes along, and it seldom fails to keep him close to her skirts for whatever they call those funny little kilt arrangements they wear nowadays) for a time at least.

Later on, having selected the man she intends to marry, she still remains obsessed with the idea that she must continue to be mysterious and unfathomable. With a troubled look in her eyes she coos to her fiance:

"I wonder how we shall get along together, Jim? I'm awfully difficult, you know. Nobody has ever been able to understand me."

Lots of Misunderstanding

Our heart bleeds for Jim! He fancies for a time that he is acquiring some rare specimen and wonders if he will be clever enough to take care of it. It is not long, though, before he discovers that he is entering into an agreement to toil and suffer for the rest of his days for an ordinary sample of "a rag and a bone and an abbreviated hank of hair."

The girl takes him home to see the simply adorable engagement ring that some other lucky man has bought for his fiancee. Her ecstatic ebullitions of admiration for this costly bauble leave no doubt in his mind that she is trying to egg him on to give her something similar. It is of a much more expensive variety than he intends to buy.

Here it is that he first learns the advisability of not understanding his Dorothy all the time. When she shows him an advertisement for a millionaire type of motor car he decides that he is going to have quite a lot of misunderstanding to do.

He becomes a little nervous; commences to question the soundness of this connubial contract he is diving into, but as a rule the bride-to-be's parents keep his mind off such unhealthy speculations by speeding up the preparations for the wedding. They don't intend to miss this golden opportunity of passing their daughter on to someone else. They have heard the patter of her little feet about the parental abode quite long enough. But this is beside the point.

After the Honeymoon

The honeymoon having been disposed of with nothing more serious than a few petty squabbles the young couple returns to take up the threads of everyday life. Then it is that the business of being misunderstood and misunderstanding begins in earnest.

Now most men are kept busy during the day and want to relax and rest when they return home from their labors. On the other hand, the average wife is occupied with rather monotonous duties while her husband is at work, and she regards the evening as a time especially dedicated to play.

She has probably grabbed off a large hunk of sleep during the afternoon and is all pepped up and prepared for a nocturnal outing of some kind. It is unfortunate that the husband's resting time and the wife's playing time should clash in this way—but there it is!

On entering his home the jaded husband salutes his wife dutifully and sinks into an easy chair.

"Nancy Carliss was here today," remarks the wife, brightly, "and she told me that that new musical comedy, 'Hot Dog,' is a peach of a show."

Smothering a Groan

Husband decides to employ prophylactic measures. He closes his eyes. His pose suggests extreme weariness. In silence he visualizes the evening if he dares understand her insinuation.

"Yes," the little woman prattles on, "she and George were there last night with the Townsends, and afterwards they all went on and danced at The Green Butterfly until 3 o'clock. They had the BEST time!"

Husband smothers a groan and mumbles some unintelligible reply. The memory of the nauseating day he spent at the office following the last occasion on which he abused his system on one of these alleged best times is still fresh in his mind. He definitely decides that nothing will induce him to understand his wife.

Left alone for a moment, he swiftly but stealthily makes for his bedroom, takes a shower and emerges attired in his oldest golf clothes and slippers. He is armed with newspapers and magazines, thus indicating clearly that he is settling down for a quiet evening at home.

His wife looks at him sharply as he returns to the living room. Her face wears an expression of supreme disgust. She tells herself that she is married to an obtuse clod who does not understand her. Husband tells himself that he would be a sucker if he did understand, and pretends to be deeply immersed in his literature.

They spend a strained evening together, with the wife brooding happily on her unhappy lot in life, and the husband feeling uncomfortably guilty but pleased with himself at having so successfully frustrated her plans for dragging him out on a binge.

Homicidal Thoughts

It is not until the following morning that wife explodes and iterates him bitterly for not taking her to the theater and dance-den on the previous night.

"Why didn't you SAY that you wanted to go?" asks husband, looking surprised and adopting that maddeningly exasperated tone that all husbands reserve for breakfast-time discussions. "You can't expect a fellow to be a mind-reader. I had no idea that you felt like going out!"

For a brief moment wife's thoughts are overwhelmingly homicidal. She wonders why the electric chair is the reward prescribed by the stupid law for husband-slaying.

However, there are explanations and a reconciliation, and husband promises not to be so remiss in future. And what could be fairer than that? Wife has had the satisfaction of being misunderstood and husband has secured a peaceful if not altogether enjoyable evening, which he would have been deprived of had he been asinine enough to understand her. The arrival of a box of flowers during the morning marks the end of this little episode.

Laying a Trap for Him

Then again, Jim's old friend, Bob Merrill, telephones and asks him over for a game of poker with the boys. Dorothy overhears him declining the invitation, interrupts the conversation and urges him to go.

"Are you quite sure you won't mind being left alone?" asks Jim.

"No. I'd like you to go out and have a good time," she assures him.

Jim goes. He feels a trifle mean about it for he knows that his wife was not in earnest when she urged him to go out without her, but was simply laying a trap for him. He is quite aware that she was merely trying him out to see if he would say:

"I'd rather stay at home with you, darling, than go to all the best poker parties in the world."

He loathes this transparent attempt to catch him out. It has been played on him so often. And he feels like a game of poker, anyway. He rather hates himself for not having made the obvious reply and staying at home, but reflects that his wife will have the orgy of aesthetic self-compassion which she secretly hoped for when she suggested his deserting her for the evening.

Her Injured Feelings

Jim, before leaving the house, had endeavored to persuade her to have some friends in to keep her company, but this she would never do. She prefers to be misunderstood and nurse her injured feelings in solitude as she has seen heroines do in best-selling novels.

For weeks, maybe years, she will treasure the memory of this evening of exquisite misery. She will cherish the thought that she has this ace up her sleeve to unleash at her husband's head when the opportune moment shall arrive.

Surely this all goes to show that the wife is justified in being not understood when she gets so much satisfaction and pleasure out of it, and similarly that the husband would be every kind of a goof if he ever spoiled her fun, and a great deal of his own, by letting on that he does understand her.

This business of being "not understood" on the one side and "not understanding" on the other is a jolly game. Without it our matrimonial ratings would be sunk a thousand fathoms deep (or deeper if you prefer it).

You cannot offer a more stinging insult to a woman than tell her that you understand her. And, furthermore, the man who boasts that he is privy to the workings of the female mind is invariably either a bully or a soulless creature who does not deserve to have his life brightened by the companionship of the delightfully uncertain sex. He probably kicked dogs when he was a little boy.

U. S. Must Adopt Strong Foreign Oil Policy To Protect Itself Against British Domination

By ERNEST J. HOPKINS,

Special Writer for the Hearst Newspapers.

WASHINGTON, May, 1928.

RUSSIA and Mexico are ceaselessly in the oil news. And rightly. It is in Russia and Mexico that the world battle over petroleum has reached its bitterest fights.

The petroleum factors in these two nations have been the usual three:

1—Foreign governments, with radical policies of "nationalizing" their great oil deposits, and using them as a diplomatic or political asset, as well as financial.

2—The aggressive British oil trust, solidly backed and partly owned by the British government, and aiming at world monopoly in petroleum.

3—Various American oil companies, acting separately, fighting each other as well as the foreigner, and backed very weakly from Washington, if at all.

The United States alone lacks an oil policy. This explains why in foreign fields Americans are on the defensive and losing out. Uncle Sam, deceived by the lavish abundance of our national oil production, is a poor third in the struggle abroad.

Russia's oil fields lie north of the Caucasus, just as the oil fields of Iraq lie south.

Russia last year again rose to be the world's second largest oil producing nation, with 72,500,000 barrels of output.

Russian oil is certain to be a dynamic factor in the oil world of coming decades. It has the British "oil trust" worried. It is a diplomatic factor, too.

For the ownership of Russia's oil is unique. It was confiscated by the Soviet government, without compensation to the previous owners, in 1917. And any price the Russian government obtains for it, above bare production cost, is "velvet." It can undersell the world.

About Russian oil there has been more argument, more dispute and more outright hypocrisy than over any other politico-commercial factor of our time.

When Standard of New York contracted to buy $40,000,000 worth of Soviet Russian oil on a long-time contract at the rate of 7,170,000 barrels a year, and Vacuum Oil contracted for 1,475,000 barrels a year, Sir Henri Deterding cabled a wrathful message designed to influence the American public.

His attitude was that to purchase "stolen" Russian oil was an act of despicable immorality, and that he, on the moral plane, was going to fight it—using AMERICAN oil to put Russian oil out of business in India and elsewhere.

The hypocrisy of this British attitude is shown by these records:

1—Russia sold 2,161,500 barrels of its oil in 1922-23; 5,450,550 in 1923-24; 8,908,000 in 1924-25, and much larger amounts in the years since then.

2—In all these sales, her largest customers were the British.

3—The British Navy has bought and is still buying big quantities of Soviet oil, delivered at Malta.

4—France, late in 1927, bought 216,150 barrels of Russian Soviet oil for the French Navy.

5—Italy, in 1927, bought 19,050 barrels of Russian Soviet oil for the Italian Navy and has made other purchases for the same use. Italian industry is running mainly on Soviet petroleum.

6—And SIR HENRI DETERDING AND HIS ROYAL DUTCH-SHELL TRIED TO MONOPOLIZE THIS "STOLEN" RUSSIAN OIL IN 1921 BY OFFERING TO BECOME THE DISTRIBUTING AGENT OF THE SOVIET SUPPLY.

7—Failing in this, Deterding BOUGHT "STOLEN" RUSSIAN OIL REPEATEDLY FROM 1922 TO 1925, and he broke the formal anti-Russian boycott of European and American oil men to do it.

At the time of the first Dutch-Shell purchases—amounting to 458,500 barrels in March, 1923, with an option on 655,000 barrels more—Deterding was CHAIRMAN of the committee of eighteen European and American oil companies that had pronounced the boycott. It was known as the "Groupement."

Deterding broke his own boycott, violated the "Groupement" agreement, and bought "stolen" Russian oil. He has explained that he did this because the British government requested him to do so.

His Fingers Crossed

Sir Henri's wife is a Russian princess of the old regime and he hates Bolshevists. At all events Sir Henri's outburst against the Standard of New York must have been written with his fingers crossed.

Consider how the British Government went about its attempt to monopolize Russia's oil:

In 1921 Colonel J. W. Boyle, representative of the Royal Dutch-Shell Combine, visited Krassin, the envoy of the Soviets in London.

Colonel Boyle had this letter to Krassin from Esmond Ovey, Lord Curzon's Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs:

"Sir: The Marquis Curzon of Kedleston is informed by Colonel J. W. Boyle that the Dutch-Shell group are anxious to obtain a concession from the Soviet Government for the production of oil from their properties in South Russia and Caucasia.

"I am directed to inform you that it is WITH THE FULL APPROVAL AND SUPPORT OF HIS MAJESTY'S GOVERNMENT that Colonel Boyle has addressed himself to you on this subject.

"His Majesty's Government trusts that these negotiations may result in an early and satisfactory settlement. I am, Sir, your most obedient servant

"ESMOND OVEY."

These negotiations failed. The Soviet Government turned down the British "trust."

The attempted boycott followed. As stated above, Deterding, while acting as its chairman, secretly negotiated with the Soviets and smashed his own boycott!

At the present moment, the British "oil king" is trying to crush the American oil company that has done exactly what he did himself—buy Russian oil.

The price war centers in India. That is British territory and Indian governments are beginning to act. The other day, the Bombay city council passed a resolution of hostility to the Standard of New York, stating that the American company should be boycotted BECAUSE AN AMERICAN WOMAN HAD WRITTEN "MOTHER INDIA!"

The Standard has proceeded to contract for more and more Russian oil. The fight is not over.

The British angle of the Mexican oil situation is little appreciated in this country.

The Royal Dutch-Shell established branches in Mexico about the time they entered California—before the war.

Lord Cowdray's "El Aguila" or "Mexican Eagle" concern was there already. Lord Cowdray had had sufficient trouble with Mexico's shifting governments; he was ready to sell out.

An American concern made him an offer and it was well received. Midway in the negotiations—the British government stepped in.

That government had announced, as one clause in its oil policy, that British-owned oil holdings could only be sold to a BRITISH buyer.

Almost overnight, the American deal was off—and Cowdray sold the "Mexican Eagle" to the Royal Dutch-Shell, which owns it today.

Furious competition followed between the British "trust" and the American companies in the Tampico-Panuco region. And it brought its usual result of overdrilling.

In 1924, Mexico's production began to decline. Some of the finest "gushers" began to shoot salt water.

From the "peak" of 193,339,000 barrels in 1921, Mexico's output gradually dropped down to 64,200,000 barrels last year. Political troubles were largely to blame.

But over-drilling, due to American-British competition, was largely to blame, too.

Today the legal troubles in Mexico are settled. The Huasteca, an American company, announces it will seek to revive its holdings. Mexico, our nearest and most natural oil reserve, will probably regain second place.

But if new oilfields are discovered there, they will be government controlled. And access to them, by Americans, can only come through DIPLOMATIC NEGOTIATION.

U. S. Oil Policy Needed

The entire world-picture says one thing:

The United States must formulate an oil policy and organize to carry it out.

Such a policy may well copy the British plan as follows:

1—A Federal Petroleum Agency in the Government at Washington.

2—Organization of such oil companies as go abroad, into an "American group," working hand in hand with the Federal Agency.

3—Genuine conservation at home, instead of the do-nothing activities of the present Oil Conservation Board. Main items in the latter would be as follows:

4—Repeal of the law that makes the leasing of Government oil lands compulsory; and the taking of these lands out of production.

5—Legal permission to oil companies to combine for the purpose of oil conservation, with a strong governmental agency to keep watch on such combinations.

Such a policy, if started without delay, would insure a continued supply, free of the threatened danger of British "trust" prices, to the greatest oil-using people upon earth.

THE FIVE GROTONS

By FANNIE HURST

Lame Girl Learns How To Live Properly And She Wins.

THE Five Grotons formed one of those vaudeville acts that might have been composed of a conglomeration of as many different names as there were members of the team.

Variety numbers are sometimes assembled like that under a common name when as a matter of fact no two members are even related.

It so happened, however, that the Five Grotons were literally the Five Grotons. Patrick Groton and his wife, Emmy, a thoroughly irresistible and beautiful pair of seventeen-year-old twins; Sofia and Eva, and a gingerful youngster named Eddy, sixteen, who did a quadruple somersault act that was one of the sensational features of any bill upon which the Groton family appeared.

It was one of those perennial, dependable, sure-fire, hale-and-hearty numbers that could count on forty weeks out of the year. The remaining twelve weeks the Grotons spent at their farm called "Dunwanderin."

If ever a group of people violated the traditions that seem to hover over the theater, including vaudeville, it was the Grotons.

THEY lived in trunks, they indulged in stage jests of none-too-subtle a flavor. The really beautiful Groton girls came out in white silk pantalettes and flaunted their dimpled legs. Mother Groton for fifteen years had been whacking Father Groton over the head with a bladder and the final ensemble of their eighteen-minute hit-and-miss, slap-stick, sure-fire, rough-stuff, song-dance-and-nonsense act, consisted of the Groton family forming a human ladder on one another's shoulders and perilously threatening to catapult out upon the audience as the curtain fell.

Emmy Groton, who had a soft, round, fat, pink face, a dumpy figure and a pretty good sense of buffoonery, which she vigorously applied to her husband in the act, ruled her family under her two stubby thumbs.

The twins frankly feared and adored her. When they were 16, it was not unusual for her resounding smack to fall smartly against the lovely cheeks of her lovely daughters. Eddy, the son, who was double-jointed and who had been offered fabulous sums to do a solo act, had been known long after he was in long trousers, to hide under the bed from his mother's wrath. Patrick Groton was what was known in the early days of their act, before their children were born, as "a lady-killer." He had shining pink cheeks, elaborate long, black eyes and a bright brown mustache which curved down and then up.

EVEN when his twins were seventeen, there were women in his audiences who thought him comely. When Emmy read the occasional mash notes that percolated back-scenes to him, she merely lifted back her lips and made a noise with her teeth that sounded like "tush." Patrick feared her a little, too, but in a boisterous way. He was forever smacking her resoundingly and in high buffoonery. She was forever making a great wide gesture at him and just missing him. They were a family of high-jinks on-and-off stage.

There was another member of this group who never appeared in the act. Her name was Angy. She was Emmy's twin sister. A twin had begotten twins.

At 16, Angy had fallen off a trapeze and broken a leg. It left her lame. Fiercely, Emmy Groton had taken this sister into the family regime. She traveled with them, ate with them, shared sleepers with them. She was as querulous as her sister Emmy. She ruled her nieces and nephew with the same high hand. She domineered Patrick and ridiculed his vanity with even a higher hand than Emmy.

This was the domestic group of the Grotons. The 12 weeks of each year they spent at "Dunwanderin" by no means represented the sole period this family spent in domestic regime. The high night-life, the hilarity, the perils, the temptations, the loose habits of the beautiful Groton twins consisted of returning night after night with their parents from the theater to their hotel, where Emmy and Angy prepared a light supper and, even after they were grown, tucked them to bed.

At 16, Eddy Groton, who had some of his father's flair for the ladies, had never been out in his life after the theater.

EMMY and Angy could create a domestic atmosphere out of a section in the sleeping-car. Evenings on trains, the Grotons played "euchre" and drank hot-chocolate that Angy prepared on an alcohol burner, and nibbled dainty biscuits that Emmy actually baked herself in a portable oven that fitted on top of the alcohol burner. Emmy Groton saw to it every night of her life that the twins drank a glass of milk each before they went to bed; that Eddy took an iron tonic supposed to be good for the vagaries of a young man's complexion, and Angy brewed for her brother-in-law a concoction known as Camomile Tea which he detested, but which the sisters decided was necessary to his well-being.

And so this rough-and-tumbling family; the irresistible and lovely twins, the clever Georgie Cohan-esque young Eddy, the high-humored Patrick and Angy and Emmy, lived what practically amounted to life in a cottage. Indeed it might be said that life in the smallest town in which they played was more sophisticated in many of its aspects than the day-by-day routine of this tightly-merged little group on wheels.

They experienced a curious combination of agony and exultation. Emmy was dead. The father held a long, private conference with his twins and his son, then walked out of the dressing room.

Emmy, with her domineering, overwhelming manner, directed and controlled the Groton tribe with the complete mastery over their lives that a trainer has over his dogs. The Grotons were at the mercy of Emmy at every turn in their lives; they ate when she told them to; they were dressing for their curtain at her command. If they sat around after the exit march and talked the talk of stage-life with members of other teams on their bill they were enjoying a breath of relief and relaxation which would be momentarily taken away on order to retire to their hotel rooms, at the mercy of Emmy.

Emmy was their top-sergeant. Emmy was the busy, busy manager who kept them together, kept their health, put down dissension within her ranks by monopolizing for herself the right to dissent.

THE suggestion from the sister that they accept an invitation to an after-the-theater party, the request of Eddy to see the sights in a new town with the ventriloquist, and the timidly projected idea that Patrick "look up an old school days friend"—these were insubordination, these were not good for their common cause, these were signs in the direction of disruption. Emmy squelched them all, and the light in her eye and the firmness of her lips invited no appeal.

It was a tyranny. The girls chafed under it. Eddy whined and dragged his feet. Patrick, who had a sort of perennial youth about him, champed at his bit. Emmy had jerked the reins a bit too tightly. Sometimes there were squabbles and rows, but in the end, a more complete subjugation.

It was in a town called Fancy Prairie that Emmy committed the simply incredible act by not waking up one morning. When Patrick reached out to tweak at her ear, it was a strangely cold ear that suddenly brought terror to his heart as he touched it.

Emmy was dead.

Her children stood about as the news came to them, absolutely unable to take it in. The motivating force of the family, the motivating force of the years, the motivating force of life itself had been Emmy, and now Emmy was gone.

* * *

THE twins were suddenly and bewilderingly left free to taste of the life that had for years licked tantalizingly at their pretty feet like a surf that would lure them out into breakers. The slim, adolescent Eddy, who was attractive to girls, suddenly was unleashed. Patrick, who for years had secretly felt that life was passing him by, was free now, too, to be a devil with the ladies.

Six weeks after Emmy was buried, Patrick walked out of a dressing-room in a variety theater in Spokane, Washington, where after their act was over, he had been holding a long, private conference with his twins and his son.

Fifteen minutes later, he walked out of the room of his sister-in-law Angy, who had been waiting for them in her hotel-room with hot chocolate and home-made cookies.

There was a light across his face from the ardor of his proposal.

Six months later, with his three adoring children as witnesses, Patrick and Angy were married.

The BOOK SHELF For Readers and Writers by George Seibel

This Was a Man!

ONE of the most famous books that have come down to us from the past is Castiglione's "Courtier." It first became known to the English world through a translation by Sir Thomas Hoby—often spelled Hobby—a contemporary of William Shakespeare, of Francis Bacon, and of the famous John Florio who first translated Montaigne's Essays into English. Hoby's translation of Castiglione has been reissued in one volume of the popular and convenient and low-price Everyman's Library, with an introduction by Dr. W. H. D. Rouse. It is old-fashioned English he writes—the English of the King James Bible and the Elizabethan giants. However, it presents no difficulty to any reader with an average education, and it ought to make many people acquainted with wise old Baldassare Castiglione, people who had known of him only as the sitter for a famous portrait in the Louvre.

"The Book of the Courtier" was published five years before Montaigne was born, and Count Castiglione was a man after Montaigne's own heart. This Italian Chesterfield, whose book has been issued in nearly 150 editions, in nearly every language (I know of four English translations) produced his famous work at about the same time that Machiavelli wrote his "Prince." Machiavelli's book was a manual for tyrants; Castiglione's is a guide for gentlemen.

The age of the Renaissance, we have ample proof, was not devoid of scruples or virtues; the Borgias themselves were not as black as they have been painted. Castiglione's book, though often as frank as Boccaccio's tales, shows that the ideal of a gentleman was not far different from that of our day.

Giants in Those Days

In 1508, when the work was begun, Italy held more great men than any other country since the golden age of Athens. Michelangelo and Raphael, Titian and Giorgione, were peopling the world with beauty. Machiavelli and Guicciardini, Ariosto and Bembo, and Vittoria Colonna, then twelve years old, are among the immortals of literature. Cesare Borgia, one of the greatest of soldiers, and Leo X., one of the greatest popes, were of about the same age as the author of the "Courtier."

Savonarola had been burned ten years before: Martin Luther was soon to take his journey to Rome, and the dawn of the Reformation was reddening the skies. The cornerstone of St. Peter's had just been laid: the Pope had moved into the upper rooms of the Vatican; the wonderful group of the Laocoon had just been discovered. In the same year that Castiglione began his "Courtier," Michelangelo began his work in the Sistine Chapel.

In the affairs of this avid and glorious age Count Castiglione played no mean part. Born on Mantuan soil, he studied at Milan, where one of his masters was Chalcondylas, a Greek exile of whom another pupil wrote: "Merely seeing him, you fancy you are looking at Plato; far more when you hear him speak."

Castiglione's diplomatic and military career began at Milan, just before the overthrow of the Sforzas. He was sent on important embassies to popes, kings, and emperors. Henry VII of England decorated him with the Order of the Garter; Charles V, the German emperor, made him Lord of Avila in Spain, where he died in 1529. His body was brought back to Italy, and his young friend, Giulio Romano, called "the excellent master" by Shakespeare, designed his tomb.

Castiglione seems to have been the ideal of a gentleman portrayed in his own book. When arrangements for his marriage were pending, and the bride's father hesitated, the suitor broke them off utterly with the words: "The wife that I am to take, be she what she may, I desire that she should be given to me with as good will as I take her withal—yea, if she were the daughter of a king." He afterwards married a noble lady, and from this happy union sprang three children—one a son who attained the age of eighty, and is reported to have been the embodiment of all the qualities described by his father in "The Courtier."

Contrasting this Italian Chesterfield with our English one, who inculcated upon his son maxims on "uniting wickedness and the graces," the comparison must result in favor of the Italian. Where Chesterfield tells his son that his "dancing master is at this time the one man of greatest importance" to him, Castiglione was depicting in his "Courtier" and reflecting in his life, as Symonds says, "a modern gentleman, such as all men of education at the present day would wish to be."

Think of Montaigne's wisdom and learning, of Boccaccio's sprightliness and grace—they are combined in Castiglione's "Book of the Courtier." It will divert the jaded reader; it will fortify the virtuous with wisdom; it overflows with wit, humor, poetry, philosophy. Cast in the form of a series of imaginary conversations, it forestalls Walter Savage Landor by more than three centuries, if Lucian of Samosata had not forestalled him by seventeen.

The interlocutors are some of the wisest and wittiest men and women of that wonderful age; such as Pietro Bembo, the poet-cardinal; Bernardo Accolti, for whom all the shops of the city were shut when he had a poem to read; a dozen other poets, scholars, courtiers, and four fair ladies whose wit and virtues would have graced any age.

All these meet together in the palace of the Duke of Urbino, and in a sort of game, or battle of wits, to describe the perfect courtier, they talk of all the things that make up life—of love, war, literature, conversation, dress, manly honor and womanly virtue, and a hundred other things.

Crumbs From the Table

As an example of whimsical humor, one story could hardly be matched. In the more modern translation of Opdycke it reads:

You surely must still remember that absurd story which my Lord Duke lately told of a certain abbot, who, being present one day when Duke Federico was discussing what to do with the great mass of earth that had been excavated to lay the foundations of this palace, which was then building, said: "My lord, I have thought of an excellent place to put it. Give orders to have an immense pit made, and it can be put in without further difficulty." Duke Federico replied not without laughter: "And where shall we put the earth to be dug out of this pit of yours?" The abbot continued: "Have it made large enough to hold both."

Such stories are sprinkled through the book, and though some might cause a blush to that lady who was distracted for fear she might have to rise naked on Judgment Day, there is not one that is dull or trite. Above all, the book is remarkable among all the books of its age for the pedestal on which it puts woman. Boccaccio and his school treated woman as an inferior creature of caprice and cunning; Castiglione's picture of the perfect court lady is as attractive as that of his perfect courtier. But one tale is so witty that one may pardon the spice of malice:

A husband was making great lament and weeping for his wife, who had hanged herself on a fig-tree, when another man approached him, and, plucking him by the robe, said: "Brother, might I as a great favor have a small branch of that fig-tree to graft upon some tree in my garden?"

Of the political philosophy permeating the book, let the words put into Bembo's mouth be contrasted with Machiavelli's counsels:

It seems to me that since liberty has been given us by God as a supreme gift, it is not reasonable that we should be deprived of it, nor that one man should have a larger share of it than another; which happens under the dominion of princes, who for the most part hold their subjects in closest bondage. But in rightly ordered republics this liberty is fully preserved; besides which, both in judgments and in councils, it more often happens that one man's opinion singly is wrong, than that of many; because disturbance arising from anger or scorn or lust more easily enters the mind of one man than that of the many, who are almost like a great body of water, which is less liable to corruption than a small one.

What stores of worldly wisdom are contained in the book, another brief excerpt will serve to indicate:

Thus gentleness is very admirable in a man of noble birth who is valiant and strong. And as his boldness seems greater when accompanied by modesty, so his modesty is enhanced and set off by his boldness. Hence to speak little, to do much, and not to boast of praiseworthy deeds, but to conceal them tactfully—enhances both these attributes in the case of one who knows how to employ this method with discretion; and so it is with all other good qualities.

Other "Everyman" Issues

Among other new issues in Everyman's Library "Sir John Mandeville's Travels" is worthy of note. This once famous book, which probably was read by Shakespeare, is now attributed to Jean d'Outremeuse, a French notary in the Belgian city of Liege.

H. M. Tomlinson's thrilling logbook, "The Sea and the Jungle," is another new volume on the Everyman shelf. "A travel book for honest men," the author has called it—and it already has won its way to a place somewhat analogous to Dana's "Two Years Before the Mast."

Henri Barbusse's "Under Fire," considered by many who know the greatest book written about the Great War, is another addition to the Everyman Library of popular-priced classics. Sordid and horrible, it tells the story with a brilliance and force that cannot leave the reader cold, a book of international reputation to rank with Tolstoy's "War and Peace."

Then there are two new Everyman volumes embracing "A Dictionary of Quotations and Proverbs," one of the volumes being devoted to quotations, the other to proverbs. While this work is the accretion of the labors of a series of successive compilers, that only makes it the more valuable and inclusive.

Charles Darwin's "Descent of Man" has also been included—let not the disciples of Bryan hear it in Tennessee. Likewise Gustave Flaubert's famous "Madame Bovary"—let it not be whispered in Boston.

Birthdays of Authors For This Week

Today, May 13 (1840)—Alphonse Daudet, French novelist, "Sapho."

May 14 (1752)—Timothy Dwight, American writer and president of Yale.

May 15 (1862)—Gerhart Hauptmann, German dramatist and poet, "The Sunken Bell."

May 16 (1839)—Rene Francois Armand Sully-Prudhomme, French poet.

May 19 (1762)—Johann Gottlieb Fichte, German philosopher.

EDEN PHILLPOTTS.

Since the death of Meredith and Hardy, Eden Phillpotts is emerging as the foremost of English novelists, with Wells as his only rival. His best book, "The Secret Woman," appeared many years ago. He is also a dramatist and poet.

BEST SELLERS IN PITTSBURGH

The following books are selling best in Pittsburgh book stores, according to lists furnished by J. R. Weldin Co., T. Edward Jones, Priscilla Guthrie's Book Shop, Kaufmann's Book Department, Horne's Book Department, Gimbel Brothers' Book Department and Boggs & Buhl's Book Department.

"Daisy and Daphne," by Rose Macaulay.

"Ashenden, or the British Agent," by W. S. Maugham.

"The Key of Life," by F. B. Young.

"Debonair," by G. B. Stern.

"The Bridge of San Luis Rey," by Thornton Wilder.

"Naked Truth," by Clare Sheridan.

The New Fiction

Interference

One of the best plays presented in Pittsburgh during last season was "Interference," by Roland Pertwee, and he has turned it into a novel, also entitled "Interference" (published by Houghton-Mifflin). It is the story of a woman's past, which comes up to threaten the happiness of her marriage with a famous physician. How the Doctor meets and checkmates the interference, with the grain of good hidden under the scoundrelly character of Philip Voaze, makes a tale of jealousy and blackmail quite as enthralling in its fictional form as it was on the boards. Roland Pertwee writes with the deftness characteristic of the best English authors.

All or Nothing

A man's search to find himself, to justify his existence, is the theme of J. D. Beresford's "All or Nothing" (published by Bobbs-Merrill). "Lucky Jim" Bledloe seems to have everything—wealth, position, success; but all his life he is trying to find just where he fits into the scheme of things. He finally sees a great light, and although almost everyone thinks he has suddenly gone mad he begins giving away his wealth, renouncing all worldliness and preaching renunciation as the "divine truth." He converts his wife, whose love he has hitherto failed to win, and she becomes the staunchest disciple of his new creed.

The Madeleine Heritage

Martin Mills in "The Madeleine Heritage" (published by Bobbs-Merrill) has traced the growth of a family tree. A Protestant clergyman, Simon de Montfort, eloped with the beautiful Madeleine du Remy des Baux at the beginning of the 18th century, took her back to his home in England, and established the long line of descendants whose history follows. The main plot of the story deals with the branch of the family that migrated to Australia and were among the original colonists of Port Philip. Heredity is revealed in its influence on character through an interesting period of Australian development.

Mother's Day Used as Theme in Many Air Programs

Observe Mother's Day in Broadcasts

Numerous programs commemorating Mother's Day will be heard on the air this Sunday. One of these will be a presentation over KDKA at 3 o'clock. Elbert R. Moses will give appropriate readings and a musical background will be furnished by the KDKA Little Symphony Orchestra.

A special program, under the auspices of the International Mother's Day Association, will be broadcast through Red network stations at 7:30 o'clock. Among the speakers will be Anna Jarvis, founder of the association, and Bruce Barton. Musical stars to appear will include Lucy Marsh, Lambert Murphy, Godfrey Ludlow, Yascha Bunchak, the Cavaliers and the C. O. A. Glee Club, in addition to the National Symphony Orchestra.

The Mother's Day theme also will be stressed in numerous church services, which will be broadcast. At 2 o'clock, over WCAE, the Rev. George C. Fisher, pastor of the Highland First Presbyterian Church, will give a Mother's Day address. There will be music also.

At 9:45 p. m. the Ambridge First Presbyterian Church quartet will be heard in a Mother Day program over WCAE. Emily Cartwright Miller, soprano, is director. Other members include Esther Baeurelein, contralto; R. H. Edgar, tenor, and A. McLuckie, baritone. Dvorak's "Goin' Home" will be sung by the quartet. Mrs. Miller will sing "My Ain Folk," and also a duet with Miss Baeurelein, "Mother, O My Mother." McLuckie will offer "Little Mother of Mine."

A new quartet has been organized for the Atwater Kent Radio hour, which will inaugurate its summer schedule of Sunday night concerts at 9:15 o'clock, over Red Network stations, including WCAE. The quartet is composed of Victor Edmunds and George Rasely, tenors; Erwyn Mutch, baritone, and James Davies, basso. Mr. Mutch, the director, is a Pennsylvanian, who began his musical career as a boy soprano soloist in New York choirs. The quartet's numbers will include Shaw's "Hey Robin, Jolly Robin," the Essex folk song, "Bushes and Briars," "Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes," "Mandalay," and "Die Lotosblume," (The Lotus Flower).

Another network feature to be heard over WCAE will be the Stetson Parade, which goes on the air at 6 o'clock. This broadcast will reproduce the summer cruise of the midshipmen from the U. S. Naval Academy at Annapolis.

Hans Barth, pianist, will be heard over WCAE and associated stations at 7 o'clock. His program will be made up almost entirely of works of Chopin.

Selections from the classics will feature the Roxy Stroll over Blue Network stations, including KDKA, at 2 o'clock. A mixed chorus of 100 voices, a symphony orchestra and guest soloists will be featured.

Mortimer Wilson, American composer and conductor, will conduct a program of his own compositions during the High Spots of Melody broadcast at 9:45 o'clock—a network feature to be heard over KDKA.

Another network program to be heard over this station at 10:15 o'clock will be a presentation by Don Amaizo, violinist. Among his violin numbers will be Hamblin's "Ave Maria." He also will render the violin solo "Preghiera," by Martini. In addition, Mr. Amaizo will lead his orchestra in several selections.

One of the outstanding local events to be heard over KDKA will be Dr. Charles Heinroth's organ recital in the Carnegie Music Hall at 4 o'clock. "The Prize Song," from "The Master Singers," by Wagner, will be on this program. Dr. Heinroth also will play the Overture to "William Tell," by Rossini, and numbers by Weber, Mascagni and Schubert.

At 3 o'clock, over the Columbia Chain and including WJAS, the Symphonic hour will offer a program of all-Wagnerian music, which will be played by the United Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Howard Barlow. Other chain features to be heard over WJAS include a program of compositions by contemporary musical writers, which will be offered by Don Voorhees and his concert orchestra at 9 o'clock; the LaPalina hour, presenting South American and Spanish music, at 9:30 o'clock, and the United Military Band, at 10:15 o'clock.

Ball Player Gets Radio

GIANT STAR—Andy Cohen, second baseman with the New York Giants, was given a big ovation when he was presented with an Atwater Kent radio set in the Y. M. H. A. last week. Attorney Ben J. Giffin (right) made the presentation speech.

WCAE OFFERS LOCAL EVENTS

Another program of Maude Ingersoll's Musical Pictures will be presented from the studio of WCAE this Sunday night at 7 o'clock. The entertainment will consist of vocal solos and instrumental numbers. The Stanley WCAE Revue from the Stanley Theater studio of WCAE will be an event Tuesday at 10:30 p. m. Performers from Stanley theaters will take part.

Catherine Morneweck, contralto, and James Rogan, violinist, will take part in a program at 7 p. m. Wednesday over WCAE.

McCausland's, Inc., In New Quarters

McCausland's, Inc., piano and radio dealers, are now located in new and larger quarters at 425 Liberty avenue. A reception and informal house warming, attended by the public, marked the official opening of the new storerooms Friday and Saturday. The firm is 38 years old.

Radio Fan Thinks Poker Should Be On Air Programs

A RADIO fan writes to WJZ, key station of the Blue Network, suggesting that poker games be broadcast instead of the popular bridge hands.

A woman requests infogmation on how to give a formal tea.

A man writes in to say that his dog barked back at a "dog bark" heard in a broadcast program.

A woman writes that she enjoyed the Great Moments in History episode, concerning Paul Revere's ride, because her great-great-grandfather was one of the men who rowed Revere across the river.

And so on and so on, for each day a vast amount of mail registering approval and complaints is received by this station.

Microphone Awes Many Celebrities

NEW YORK, May 12.—John D. Rockefeller, Jr., would make a good radio announcer, Gene Tunney, holder of the world's boxing championship, would not make a success in broadcasting unless he learned to conquer his nervousness before the microphone.

Radio might prove fatal to Morris Gest, noted theatrical producer. The microphone stretched him on his back after his first encounter with it. Feodor Chaliapin, opera singer, was nervous at first but soon learned to enjoy radio broadcasting.

These observations are culled from personal experiences of National Broadcasting Company staff members who have been present when the great and the near great have made their radio debuts.

Edith Mason, an English actress, who made her debut under Carlin's direction, had to have a cup of strong tea before speaking to the unseen audience. As soon as she had the tea she was quite calm, Carlin said.

Recently a well known New York actress was given a part in a radio play. The "mike" got the best of her during the broadcast and she went to pieces completely. Fast work by the man in the control room saved the day and few radio listeners-in knew that anything had gone wrong.

On another occasion Maria Jeritza, opera star, banished everyone but the announcer from the studio and had the curtains drawn on all windows before she would sing. Then she did a first-rate job.

With the microphone familiarity may bring composure, but never contempt. Even the veterans of broadcasting have a wholesome respect for the device that has the power to send their voices on journeys of thousands of miles.

Gene Tunney, when he spoke over an NBC network, was very nervous. As soon as the broadcast was over he asked everyone he met, "Did I get over all right?"

Party Conventions In National Hook-Up

It won't be long now until the summer's radio circus gets under way. There'll be two feature events—the presidential conventions. The Republicans will meet in Kansas City June 12 and the Democrats in Houston June 26.

Radio fans will have free tickets to these attractions—called "the best show on earth." They will be broadcast from start to finish over a national hook-up, with Graham McNamee starring as announcer.

The first presidential conventions to be on the air were those of 1924. The stunt was so new, and radio itself was so new, that comparatively few people were ready to listen when the Republicans got going. But, there was so much talk about what was being broadcast, that by the time the Democratic convention got under way in Madison Square Garden, the number of set owners and of neighbors dropping in to hear friends' sets had greatly increased.

The Democratic convention, with its epic fight between the Smith and McAdoo forces, proved to be a radio sensation. "Twenty-four votes for Underwood" became a catch phrase in the streets.

A side show attraction in the summer radio circus will be the broadcast of the Tunney-Heeney fight, scheduled for July.

NEGRO SINGERS IN BROADCAST

"In the South," with the Hall Johnson Negro singers as principal entertainers, will be radiocast by the Eveready Hour Tuesday evening.

The program will be in the nature of a novelty in its radio presentation, inasmuch as it will literally burst upon its listeners' ears without the usual introduction by the station announcer. Instead of such introduction, the audience will hear a member of the Johnson group impersonating a colored preacher and exhorting his brethren to attend an old-fashioned picnic down the river.

From then on the action of the specially written continuity will unfold rapidly, culminating in the congregation's arrival at the picnicking grounds after a steamboat ride featured by group singing, dialogue in humorous and pathetic veins, and some close harmony work by selected quartets.

The Hall Johnson singers comprise a chorus of 18 voices, including eight women and 10 men.

Celebrate "Pinafore" Birthday Over Radio

The fiftieth anniversary of the premier of "H. M. S. Pinafore," one of the most brilliant of Gilbert and Sullivan's comic operas, will be celebrated by KOA, Denver. This station will broadcast the production Friday night, May 25, exactly 50 years after the opera was first staged at the Opera Comique, London.

Songs Made Money; But Not for Foster

"Oh, Susannah!" often heard on the air and one of the most tuneful songs of that celebrated writer, Stephen Foster, brought its composer no financial reward.

In 1846, at the age of 20, Foster, who was then working as an accountant for his brother in Cincinnati, wrote "Oh, Susannah!" and "Old Uncle Ned." Having no idea of their value he made a present of the manuscripts to W. C. Peters, a friend in the music business. Peters took these manuscripts, made $10,000 from selling the songs and established a music publishing house which became the largest in the west.

To Wipe Out the Useless Barberry Bush Which Threatens Country's Wheat Crop

SCIENCE is continually delving into the mysteries of plant and animal life and bringing new facts to light. Recently the common barberry bush has been the subject of research. It has been found guilty of crimes against the vegetable kingdom, and must pay with its life for the effect it has on the well being of useful crops.

Many years ago, farmers noticed that the dreadful stem rust infection was always more severe on grain growing near barberry bushes. They could see no apparent reason for this, but since it was true, they asked the scientists to explain it. A thorough study of the situation was made, and it was found that one period in the life of the devastating black stem rust had to be spent on the leaves of barberry bushes before the rust could attack the cereal grains. Immediately it was seen that the barberry bush, which had long been prized for its beauty and hardiness as a decorative shrub, was accessory before the fact in a crime that cost grain growers millions of dollars every year.

Stem rust is, without doubt, the worst enemy of the grain grower. Because of its part in this tremendous loss, barberry has been sentenced to die—it has been ostracized from high society in the realm of decorative shrubs.

The common barberry bush is a shrub with an interesting history all its own. It was one of the very first shrubs brought over by the early settlers. Originally it had been brought from Asia into Europe where it gained great popularity as an ornamental and fruiting bush. It was natural, then, for the people coming to a new country to bring with them a few barberry bushes. Moreover, there were several characteristics which were very much in the favor of this particular shrub.

In the first place, it produced a large number of berries which were noted for their tart flavor and adaptability for makwines. In addition, the roots, which were brilliant yellow, were very useful in making dyes and for medicinal purposes. Thus it is not surprising to find common barberry bushes listed among the first plants imported into this country.

Once planted in America, this shrub began to spread. It was a hardy bush and grew in almost any place. This was another reason why it was popular with the early settlers—they did not have to worry about it living after they once set it out. Soon it was well established in New England, and as the settlements moved westward, so moved the pretty barberry plant.

Because of these features the highly esteemed shrub was carried and spread far and wide throughout the United States and some parts of lower Canada. The bushes soon produced berries which birds and animals scattered. Nurseries began to propagate and sell common barberries at an early date. It was such a popular shrub that nurseries often followed a practice of giving a barberry bush as a premium with exceptionally large orders of nursery stock.

Striking Campaign Poster Designed to Assist in the War on the Barberry Bush, Which Is Responsible for the Stem Rust, Causing Millions of Dollars in Losses to the Wheat Crop Annually.

Barberry Bush Growing Beside a Wheat Field, and Spreading the Deadly Rust. The Cartoon for the Poster Was Drawn From This Scene.

While these things were happening in America, back in Europe, from whence it came, the barberry was being condemned by farmers because it had been found that it harbored and spread the injurious stem rust to small grains. Several European countries enacted laws demanding the eradication of these bushes. At an early date certain communities in New England noticed that grain did not mature well when growing near barberry bushes.

The little country of Denmark started a barberry eradication campaign in 1903, and stem rust has not caused serious loss in that country since the campaign was finished.

Rust losses became more serious each year in America, and in 1916, the loss from this source was estimated at 200,000,000 bushels of wheat in the grain producing states.

This great loss resulted in a legislative program against the barberry, and laws demanding the destruction of all barberries were passed in 13 principal grain-growing states of the Central West and Northwest. Since then the United States Department of Agriculture and other agricultural agencies have been conducting an active and thorough campaign to eradicate the barberry in other states.

Quite aside from the Federal movement to remove the barberry as one of the principal menaces to the nation's wheat crop, farmers in New England and the Middle West had been working for years toward its eradication, but these efforts lacked organization, and because of the sturdiness of the bush it has succeeded in recuperating after each attack, and, like weeds, flourishing rapidly and in greater bulk because of the weeding. The deadly rust continues to make its inroads on the crops, and it has become necessary to have the war on the plant made general and directed from a central point.

In following this idea, the Federal and State Farm Bureaus all over the country have united and have issued pamphlets with full instructions to farmers as to the manner in which complete destruction of the barberry may be accomplished. Farm literature has been flooded with details of the warfare, and in the wheat belts the campaign is being waged with posters, one of which is reproduced at the top of this page.

Grange societies are now holding stated meetings, at which experts in the eradication campaign deliver comprehensive lectures and demonstrate the best and most effective methods of dealing with the plant and preventing the spread of the rust to the wheat field.

The Department of Agriculture has spent large sums in making motion pictures of these demonstrations and exhibiting them in the farming regions. The making of these films required many months after the researches had been completed. One section of the pictures deals with the growth of the plant. The pictures were taken many months apart and depict the development of the bush under favorable and adverse conditions. Another phase of the films shows farmers weeding out the bushes and clearing the fields. A picture of the same fields a year later shows the menace completely revived because the weeding and clearance were not accomplished scientifically. Later the pictures show government and State agricultural experts handling the situation in their own way, and still another year later the field is shown completely free of the menace.

The government is finding a ready cooperation in the movement and special agricultural classes are being organized to insure the safety of the wheat crop by removing all parasitic influences, of which, however, the barberry is claimed to be the worst.

Since the campaign started, more than 15,000,000 common barberry bushes have been found and destroyed in the sections mentioned. Practically every county in the territory has been scouted by Federal agents who are trained in locating and eradicating this pest.

The only intrinsic value of the shrub, aside from its natural beauty, lies in its berries, which are highly regarded by bird fanciers, for the berries provide delicacies for bird life and have a certain market value. Extracts from the fruit are hailed as tonics for even caged birds and bring fair prices.

This value, however, the farmers and Federal agricultural experts believe, is completely overshadowed by the deadliness of the bush so far as the wheat crop is concerned, and will be no factor in the campaign to wipe it out of existence in this country.

Found—Prehistoric Timber Dwelling

ARCHAEOLOGICAL diggings recently carried on in a small streamless valley near Ipswich, in England, disclosed, imbedded in deposits, a large number of flint implements, flakes and hammer stones, together with hearths, fragments of coarse pottery and human bones.

But more interesting than all these was the discovery of what appears to have been a prehistoric dwelling of timber. It consists of two pieces of oak planking behind which were piled a quantity of flints and other large stones, and behind these a row of stakes, roughly pointed, and driven into the sand to a depth of about a foot.

Between the planks and the supporting mass of stones were found traces of clay in which were partially imbedded portions of numerous branches.

It is possible that the structure is all that remains of the basal portion of a primitive "wind screen" such as was used by the primitive Australians and Tasmanians. The structure was found under deposits about five feet in depth.

Is He the World's Biggest Dog?

THE giant Great Dane owned by Mrs. William B. Finney, of Baltimore, Md., is believed by many patrons of dog shows to be the largest animal of his breed in the world. He weighs 170 pounds, and measures almost eight feet from the tip of his nose to his hind feet.

Physically, the Great Dane is of larger proportions than Goliath of Gath, owned by G. B. Hersey, of Walthamstow, England, but Goliath weighs, it is claimed, 220 pounds.

Great as Goliath is, he is smaller than the marvellous Irish wolf hound, Shanganagh, owned by Mrs. Horatio Bonestell of Oakland, California. Shanganagh is the champion of all wolf hounds. Standing on his hind legs he rears eight feet two inches into the air, measuring thirty-six inches at the shoulders. And he has by no means achieved his full growth, being less than two years old. He weighs over 200 pounds.

When it comes to size, it is generally admitted that the Irish wolf hound has it on all other canine breeds, with the St. Bernard second and the Great Dane third. Of the three breeds, though, the general average of size is best maintained by the St. Bernards.

Luxurious "Hotel" for Insects

THE San Joaquim County Insectary at Lodi, California, is a veritable hotel for insects. It is used to determine the possibilities of using the insect known as the beetle bug, or so-called lady-bug, to rid vineyards of the destructive pest known as the mealy bug. Beetle bugs live and thrive solely on mealy bugs.

The luxurious insect hotel at Lodi, which is electrically heated, not only raises the beetle bugs, but also the mealy bugs to feed and fatten them.

At present three species of beetle bug are being propagated. One is imported from Australia and the other two are obtained in California. The beetle bugs lay and hatch about 250 eggs at a time, the first hatching taking place in about twelve days, the insect being in the form of an immature worm or larva.

The insect hotel has four rooms, each one electrically heated. The thousands of beetle bugs graduated from the insectary have done noble work in warring upon the destructive mealy bug.

How Waitress Became a Social Pet

Miss Gladys Knight, the Restaurant Waitress Whom the Italian Artist Introduced Into the Fashionable Set at Del Monte, California.

THE handsome and interesting young man who came into the little restaurant in San Francisco was Achilles Angeli, of Florence, Italy, artist and nobleman, and every girl in the place vied for the honor of serving him. His largesse was considerable and his smile most attractive.

After a while, however, he began to select a particular table, the one presided over by pretty Gladys Knight. The American girl and the Italian nobleman got to be excellent friends. He told her, one night, that he intended going to Del Monte for a while. And, with a smile, he added:

"It would be nice if you could come, too."

He was probably the most surprised man in the fashionable town when, a few days after he had reached Del Monte, Miss Knight arrived. She explained that she was getting a holiday, and that she intended spending a few days there. She had always longed to do this.

"You must let me introduce you to some of my friends," suggested Angeli.

She demurred. She was pretty, had some nice clothes and was perfectly able to take care of herself in any sort of society. But she didn't want to embarrass Angeli. After all, she reminded him, she was a waitress and there are some people who look into one's profession before they accept one into their circle.

"Nonsense," said Angeli. "They don't care what you are as long as you are as nice and as interesting as you happen to be. Besides, we don't have to advertise the fact that you're a waitress. The point is, you're my friend, and I feel it my duty to introduce you around."

He made good his promise, and to her surprise Miss Knight became feted and adored of the town. For two weeks little Miss Knight led a dream life—dinner parties, dances, theatre parties, all sorts of wonderful functions, accompanied always by the gallant young Italian, who sternly resisted the importunities of other swains to escort the pretty girl he had introduced into society. She met many people whose names she had read in the society columns and was rather startled to find they were very much like other people.

The holiday came to an end, and when Miss Knight returned to San Francisco, she determined that her days as a waitress were over. She took a course as nurse and decided to make that her profession. At the hospital where she was employed, Angeli found her, and now he spends his week-ends in San Francisco, and those who know them both say that, having introduced her into society as a friend, he may, some day, introduce her in another capacity

Her Costume Made of Snake Skin

THOSE who noticed Miss Lillian Kagan recently promenading the boardwalk at Atlantic City pronounced her costume a rattling good one. Her apparel—dress, hat and shoes—was made entirely of rattlesnake skins. The costume was designed, planned and created by Mrs. Harry Holbert, wife of a banker of Tucson, Arizona, who is the first woman actually to introduce the snake into the dress-making industry.

Mrs. Holbert was the first woman to appear in clothing made entirely from snake skins. She achieved such excellent results in this unique use of a product which had hitherto been confined largely to belts, pocket books and scarves that all the other women of Tucson began to copy her idea. This didn't deter Mrs. Holbert in the least. In fact, it was what she was looking for. Mrs. Holbert runs one of the largest snake farms in the country, and it is her wish to popularize the use of snake skins for women's clothing.

Artists say that the skin of a snake is among the most beautiful of natural phenomena, from the viewpoint of coloration as well as design. Fabric makers have frequently imitated the skin of a snake. The idea occurred to her, "Why bother with imitations when you can get the real thing?"

She set about capturing live rattlesnakes, of which there is a plenitude in her home state. The work was no child's play. The danger involved, however, merely added zest to Mrs. Holbert's enterprise. When she had obtained several specimens of rattlesnake skins she spent some weeks experimenting with various tanning processes, and finally she effected one which suited her purpose.

The snake skin, when cured by this process, resembles very much in texture and quality the finest grade of heavy taffeta. Encouraged by her success, Mrs. Holbert went into the venture with increased determination. In a short time she became known as one of the most expert snake trappers in America.

Each year she takes a trip to the mountains to replenish her stock of skins. Rattlers go into Winter quarters in late August, and it is then that Mrs. Holbert goes on her annual hunt.

Her first product from snake skins was a beautiful riding habit. The jacket was entirely fringed with rattler skins. The front part of the dress was made of beautiful diamond skins. The strap that held the jacket together was made from the skin of a baby rattler. She wanted riding boots made of snake skin, but found that the texture was not quite firm enough for that, so she used the skins of several gila monsters and found that they served admirably and were most ornamental. She found that she could tan the skins into texture so thin that when crumpled up they could be reduced to the tiniest balls. Her second sartorial product from snake skins was a beautiful evening dress of perfectly matched skins, with slippers to match. The effect was stunning, pronounced by dressmakers of the town as the most remarkable evening dress they had ever seen.

The Giant German Flying Yacht and Other New Aircraft

The Dornier Company's Amphibian Flier Now Under Construction on the Swiss Side of Lake Constance for Cross-Atlantic Service Between Europe and New York

EVERYBODY has seen a butterfly fold its wings and settle quietly and daintily upon a flower or delicate leaf of a plant, without shock or disturbance. And at last man has applied this obvious spectacle which nature has held out before his eyes—a folding monoplane has been built in California which runs along the street just like an automobile, and, at the pleasure of the man at the controls, drops the wings into position and rises into the air like a bird that unfolds its wings and soars to the sky.

And so the inventive genius of man has applied itself recently in many new directions to solve problems of flight.

Perhaps one of the most interesting, from a popular point of view, is the new "flying yacht" already referred to in these columns, but hitherto not fully described. Much secrecy has been maintained by the German aeronautical engineers who were seen working out the details of the flying boat. The well-known English magazine Air, has, however, obtained the facts and figures about the flying yacht and, in a recent number, publishes the picture reprinted above on this page together with the following description of this interesting novelty in air navigation:

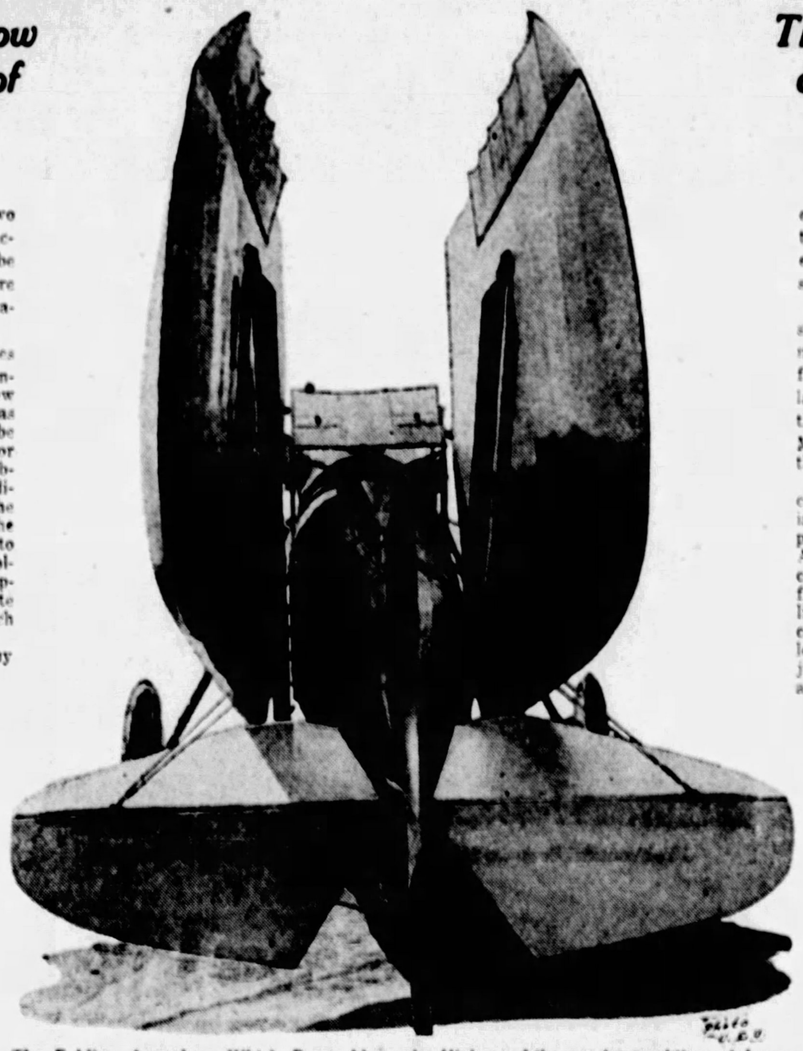
"Air is now in a position to give definite and exclusive information on this subject. The machine, which is a flying boat, modelled on the general lines of the 'Super-Wahl,' is under construction in the Dornier Company's works situated on the Swiss side of Lake Constance, and it is anticipated that it will be completed by the end of this year. The span of this gigantic monoplane will be approximately 158 feet, its weight, fully loaded, about 44 tons, and it will be driven by 12 engines, each of 500 horsepower.

"The crew of Germany's new leviathan of the air will consist of nine—two pilots, a navigator, two wireless operators, two mechanics and two stewards. Seating accommodations and sleeping berths will be provided for fifty passengers, and there will also be a dining saloon and a lavatory.

"The machine, of which our artist gives a carefully drawn impression, will inaugurate a cross-Atlantic service to New York, but information is not available as to whether the route followed will be across the north Atlantic from Ireland or from Spain via the Azores. It seems probable, in view of the better weather conditions prevailing on the latter route, the facilities offered by the Azores and the existing German-controlled air line to Spain, that this southern route will be followed. Spain also offers the best jumping-off place for a service to compete with the recently inaugurated French service to South America."

While not everybody may hope to buy a passage on one of the new German trans-ocean flying yachts, yet many who have considered owning a little private aeroplane may be influenced by the ingenuity of Mr. W. B. Kinner, well-known designer of aircraft, who has succeeded in perfecting a monoplane with folding wings. One of the difficulties of owning and taking care of a private monoplane is the problem of finding a building to keep it in. An automobile can be garaged in a building not much larger than a hen house. But an aeroplane with its wide spread of wings requires a large building of peculiar construction.

Mr. Kinner's folding wing aeroplane can be stored in a garage eight by ten feet wide and twenty-five feet deep. This curious new land-and-air vehicle has a hundred horsepower Kinner five cylinder radial air cooled engine. It is made as a two seater or a three seater in both open and closed models with the same wing spread and the same folding wing feature.



The Folding Aeroplane Which Runs Along the Highway Like an Automobile and Immediately Takes Off Up Into the Air When the Folding Wings Are Spread.

This Trans-Ocean Liner Will Carry a Crew of 9 and Have Seating Accommodations and Sleeping Berths for 50 Passengers, Besides Dining Saloon and Lavatory

This interesting new airship has a wing spread of thirty-five feet and is able to make a speed of one hundred and twenty-five miles an hour. It is able to make a landing at the exceptionally low speed of thirty-five miles per hour. Describing Mr. Kinner's invention in technical terms, the Aero Digest says:

"The wings are tapered, their mean chord being six feet. The total wing area is 216 square feet, and the plane, complete with the engine, weighs 915 pounds. A Kinner modification of the 27 wing curve is used in the new monoplane. A flying stabilizer, dual gasoline tanks and lines, N struts, brakes, alemite aileron controls, padlocked wing pins, exhaust collector ring integral with cowling, and adjustable hot air stove for the carburetor are features of the Kinner monoplane.

"The wings of the new ship can be folded easily by one man in ten minutes, the folding feature being almost automatic. The front wing pins are pulled, the front struts removed, and the leading edges of the wings swing toward the ground supported by the hinged rear struts. From this position the wings are pushed back along the fuselage and hooked, ready to wheel the ship into the garage.

"Similarly to the Kinner Airstern biplane, the monoplane has a takeoff in less than 100 feet and a climb of 900 feet per minute. With brakes, the ship can be landed and stopped in 100 feet. The first of the Kinner folding wing monoplanes has been purchased by Dr. T. C. Young, of Glendale, California, chairman of the Field Committee for the 1928 National Air Races, and has been designated an official ship for these events. In addition to standard equipment, Dr. Young's ship is equipped with Sauzedde wheels and brakes, standard steel propeller, Gruss Aerol struts, a one-shot fire extinguisher system, Irving parachutes, and extra instruments."

The automobilist touring the country may soon expect to see a strange-looking machine with whirring blades come rolling out of a garage and turn into the highway, and as it gathers speed and comes to an open stretch in the road where the fences and trees on either side will not intervene—this strange vehicle may spread its wings and rise into the air and disappear over the countryside. Or, the automobile jogging along the highway may see a huge bird appear in the sky, draw rapidly nearer, pass over his head, flutter down into the road ahead of him, fold its wings and jog along with the rest of the traffic on its way to its garage.

But if Mr. Kinner's interesting folding aeroplane can land on and take off from the automobile highway at pleasure—no such convenience belongs to the Beardmore inflexible monoplane, whose picture is shown below on this page. This sky giant is the world's largest monoplane and was built for the British Royal Air Force. This machine resembles a huge dragon-fly and has a wing span of one hundred and fifty feet. The landing wheels are in proportion to the rest of its giant structure and stand seven feet six inches high. A man standing beside the wheels and fuselage of this tremendous mechanical bird is dwarfed by the size of the machine and its widespread wings. The German flying yacht, when completed, will then be the world's largest monoplane, with a wing span of 158 feet.

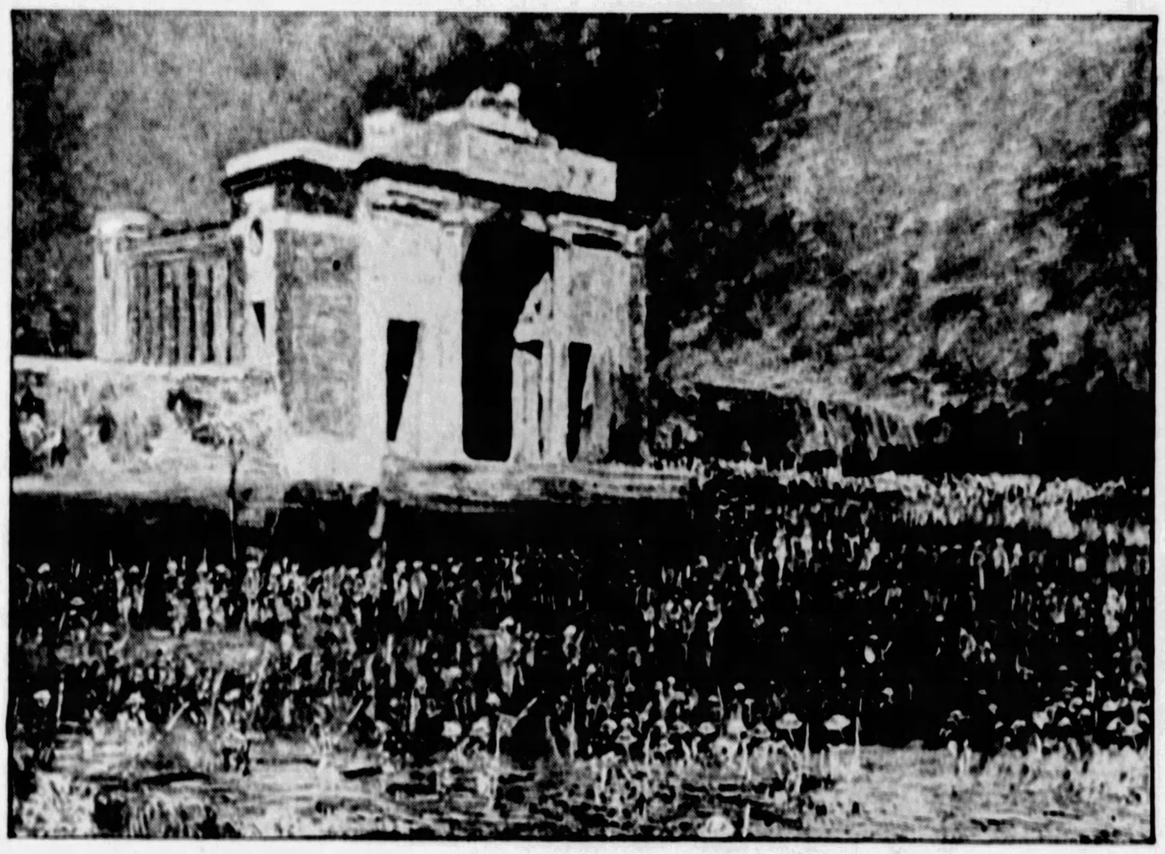
Ghosts of the Battle-field—An Artist's Vision at the Menin Gate Memorial



Imaginative Study by W. Longstaff of the Menin Gate Memorial Bathed in Moonlight. The Memorial, Recently Dedicated, Commemorates the Heroism of English and Australian Troops in This Famous Sector.

English and Australian Troops Cheering the Armistice, a Scene at the Site Witnessed by the Artist. It Is in Striking Contrast With the Mystical Imagery of His Picture.

THE Menin Road, leading to Ypres in Belgium, saw as much of the World War as any other part of Europe.

It was on the spot where now stands the beautiful Menin Gate Memorial that the survivors of several Anzac regiments cheered news of the Armistice which came to them—a scene used in a new British film commemorating the event.

To this spot came the English artist, W. Longstaff, to paint a picture of the beautiful memorial. Mr. Longstaff, who had been the official artist with the Australian forces in France, sketched the arch at midnight, in the moonlight, and, under the influence of memory, included in his painting the ghosts of the Anzacs, of those who fell in the moonlit salient. The figures of the fallen Anzacs who never heard the news of the Armistice are worked in with beautiful imagery among the poppies and waving corn about the arch on the Menin Road.

In the British film the same background was used, and coincidence made the film scene similar in general composition to the imaginative study by Mr. Longstaff.

The Menin-Ypres sector was occupied principally by the Second British Army Corps, which included the Australian First and Second Divisions. In this sector, where previous attempts had to a great extent failed, the Anzac troops achieved their objects all along the front with brilliant success, the crest of the main ridge on either side of the Menin road being wrested from the enemy. The Germans made desperate attempts to recover some of the ground they had lost about the Menin wood, but without success, and in spite of their resolute opposition they were unable to prevent the British troops from attaining practically the whole of their objectives.

The losses were extremely heavy on both sides, and a great many German bodies fell with the British along the road where today the corn and poppies grow about the great Gate which commemorates the sector's part in the great war.

Photographing Air Currents to Help Aviators

AIR in motion possesses properties that are very little understood, the laws of its dynamic actions and reactions never having been generally investigated or formulated. Particularly with reference to the operation of heavier-than-air machines is this the case.

It was this lack of information and knowledge which caused well-known physicists to say, not so very long ago, that successful aerial navigation, because of the insoluble eccentricities of air currents, would never be feasible. Air, they declared, possessing almost perfect elasticity and fluidity, cannot be set in any but the simplest movements without occasioning a multitude of results that are so utterly complex and involved as to defy analysis.

This may have been true when it was stated, but things have changed since then. Almost daily scientists specializing in studies of air currents have discovered new and important truths concerning the mysteries of the atmosphere.

With a camera that can take 20,000 pictures a second, movies of dust-laden air currents have been taken by German scientists for reference study in aviation. Details of breezes moving at fifty miles an hour are clearly revealed. The eye is enabled easily to follow the movements of the air currents around various obstacles.

By means of the new camera a picture was taken of the flight of a pistol bullet through an electric light bulb. The finished picture made the result look like the slow bending and final disintegration of the glass. Currents of air from a windmill and the passage of air around an airplane wing were also shown.

The super-slow-motion camera, as it is called, was developed by German scholars and craftsmen particularly for the purpose of studying air currents for the further development of aviation. It has two parallel discs, one with a large number of small mirrors which reflect the image obtained through the lens of the other disc, which holds the films.

Former Princess Now Without a Country

BUDAPEST, April 29.

AN inexorable sequence of miseries seems to haunt Mme. Mustafa Medjidje, who had posed for the past several years in Budapest in the role of an actress, but who, as most everyone knew, was in reality the divorced wife of Abd El Kadir, ex-Crown Prince to the throne of Turkey. Mme. Medjidje has suddenly departed from Hungary, and the former princess, many of her friends believe, is wandering about Europe, a pauper and a woman without a country.

As is generally known, the lot of the divorced wife of a Turk is never a happy one. She loses caste and friends and everything, save perhaps a small dowry. But when Mme. Medjidje was divorced from the former heir-apparent to the Turkish throne, there were many who thought that her unusual beauty and her talents would save her from oblivion.

When Prince Abd El Kadir was deprived of his worldly possessions and Turkey raised up a dictator, the Prince and Princess were divorced. After the decree was made absolute, the League of Nations restored some of his wealth to the Prince, but the Princess and her children were left destitute. The Prince refused them support.

To earn funds to keep her alive, the Princess wrote her life history and went about Europe, appearing on the stage. Several times she was stricken ill. Her public appearances were unsuccessful and she decided to try to become an actress.

That ambition brought her to Budapest, where, under an assumed name, she made several appearances. With the curse of the royal rank temporarily removed, she began to have some chance of success, when another blow struck her. The Budapest alien office recently adjudged the ex-Princess an undesirable alien, as being unable to support herself, and ordered her deported.

But as she had been virtually exiled from Turkey, and as no other country would admit her, no decision could be reached as to what disposition could be made of her. Meantime, she disappeared.

Rebuilding Dome of Shattered Shrine

CRITICS of the Bible, intent on proving that there was no truth to the story that a great earthquake rocked the city of Jerusalem at the hour when Christ perished on the cross, maintained for many years that Jerusalem could not have been visited by an earthquake because it was not in an earthquake zone.

They were confounded on July 11 of last year when Jerusalem and its neighborhood were shaken by just such an earthquake which St. Matthew says "rent in twain the veil of the temple."

The most serious damage done by the 1927 quake was to the Church of the Holy Sepulchre. The Dome over Chorus Dominorum was so badly shattered that it was later officially condemned. A temporary roof is now being erected, pending the demolition of the dome and its rebuilding next Spring.

Scientists at work in Jerusalem narrowly escaped death when the quake came. Members of the Palestine Exploration Fund were at the bottom of trenches, engaged in excavating the ruins of the ancient city, when the shock occurred. The walls of the trenches fell in, but fortunately not before premonitory tremors had given warning and permitted the scientists to escape.

The shock was severe enough to be registered on seismographs throughout the entire world. At Georgetown University in Washington, at Fordham University near New York, in the Greenwich Observatory at London, in Cairo not far away, and in Japan and Australia on the opposite sides of the earth, the quake at Jerusalem was known from the records of these instruments even before the cables brought news of it.

The first shock cost three hundred lives in Jerusalem and destroyed many buildings. It proved conclusively that there might very well have happened in Jerusalem what is so eloquently described in Matthew 27, verses 51 to 54:

"And behold, the veil of the temple was rent in twain, from the top to the bottom; and the earth did quake, and quake, and the rocks rent. And the graves were opened; and many bodies of the saints which slept arose, and came out of the graves after His resurrection, and went into the holy city, and appeared unto many."

The Beautiful Baroness Luli Hohenberg, Who Has Become an Actress to Earn a Living.

Baroness Forced to Become Actress

VIENNA, May 1.

A STROLL through the night life of Vienna, with particular reference to cafes and theatres, would reveal a goodly slice of the Hungarian nobility, not in the roles of patrons, but as entertainers. The impoverished aristocracy, lacking in the equipment necessary to earn a living by means of the more conventional trades and industries, have sought and found sanctuary and livelihood in the theatre.

Many of them have been quite successful. The latest of the aristocrats to join the ranks of the show folk is the Baroness Luli Hohenberg, whose debut at the Burg Theatre in Vienna, classic home of the Austrian stage, was a complete success.

Luli was induced to go on the stage by the success of her friends, the Countesses Etelka and Kaia Marquita, daughters of the Count Ladislaus Marquita, once one of the richest noblemen in Hungary but of late years reduced to respectable penury. For a year the two beautiful girls—neither is past eighteen—had been working under assumed names in Budapest cafes, determined to succeed on their talent rather than because of their family and former high position socially. It was only when they had made good on their own that they revealed their real identities.

The nobility of many nations may be found as active workers in the theatres of Europe today. If the Russian monarchy is ever restored it will be the sentimental duty of the royalists to endow theatres. Ever since the revolution, when Russian nobles by the scores fled from their country to all parts of the world, the stage has been their salvation. Among those of the Russian court who have scored a conspicuous success are Maria Leoinskaya and Nina Feodoroff, noted beauties of the imperial Russian court in the days before the red revolution.

Plane Propellers for Farm Lighting

CURIOUSLY enough, the flying machine has been instrumental in providing a solution for the problem of electric light and power on the farms of the United States.

For it is the airplane propeller that, with slight modification, has newly revolutionized the windmill, making the latter a wonderfully efficient machine for generating electricity free of cost. At an initial expense of only a few hundred dollars, the farmer can install a wind turbine that will furnish all the "juice" he needs for lighting his dwelling and outbuildings and for mechanical purposes.

Such windmills, somewhat variously patterned, are already in use on many farms. Typical of them is one that employs a single two-bladed "windstick" closely resembling an airplane propeller, ten and a half feet long, and made of plywood glued together under great pressure. The edges that cut the air are metal-tipped.

The windstick is geared to an electric generator mounted on the top of a fifty-foot skeleton tower. A tail-vane keeps it facing the wind. In a high wind the outer tips of the stick travel at a rate of sixty miles an hour. Ball bearings on the tower cap and shafts, render the apparatus noiseless in operation.

The "headpiece," which carries the generator and windstick, swings with the wind, responsively to the guidance of the tail-vane. But when the wind exceeds a velocity of twenty-five miles an hour, the rotating stick automatically turns aside. Were it not for this protective arrangement, the power transmitted to the generator might generate more than a safe "load."

Winds constantly vary in strength, and at times there may be dead calm. Hence, as an essential part of the contrivance, there is a battery to store a reserve of electricity for use when there is no breeze.

$11,000 a Day For Rosie Dolly to Spend

And the Will of the Dancing Girl's Rich Canadian Father-in-Law Provides an Equal Income to His Widow Who Was a "Manicure Lady" In a New York Barber Shop

The Widow of Sir Mortimer Davis, Who Was Elly Curran, a "Manicure Lady" and Chorus Girl.

Lawns, Drives, Gardens and Tennis Court, as Seen From the Front of the Davis Summer Residence on Lake Des Sables, at Sainte Agathe des Monts, Quebec.

Roszika Dolly of the Famous Dolly Sisters, Who Married the Only Son of Sir Mortimer Davis, the "Rockefeller of Canada."

STENOGRAPHERS, manicurists, waitresses, the pretty girls who stay on the farm—all can and do catch millionaire husbands, sometimes, but the dancing girl has the best chance of all.

This was remarked recently when the will was read of the late Sir Mortimer Davis, Canadian tobacco and whisky magnate. Sir Mortimer left a fortune of about $150,000,000, from which the income, conservatively estimated, is at least $22,000 a day. This river of gold is divided by the will into two equal streams of $11,000, one of which will pour into the hands of the widow, Lady Davis, who was first a telegraph operator, then a manicurist and finally a dancer before she got her big chance.

Another of the same amount will go through the fingers of his son, Mortimer, Jr., into the hands of Roszika Dolly, of the famous dancing Dolly twins. The twins have had everything together from measles to matrimony and even divorce, so theoretically Sister Yancsi should do as well for herself. Has she? Not yet—but soon.

Rumor in London has it that now Rosie is so well fixed that she will never need her dancing partner again. Yancsi, otherwise Jenny, has decided to marry Gordon Selfridge, Jr., son of the very wealthy owner of London's greatest department store. Exactly how much young Mr. Selfridge will inhert is not known, but nobody doubts it will be plenty. As it is the husband's job to provide the money and the wife's to spend it, the Dolly sisters are going to be sadly overworked. But dancers are usually good at that, too. Of course everyone knows how "Follies" girls dance into millions.

The Dollys have been dancing persistently for a long time, ever since they were very young, but this is the first time either of them has captured great wealth. Lady Davis, on the other hand, achieved it by dancing only one season. Most of the very rich men of Europe and the Americas have watched the Dollys perform and studied their charms, with, perhaps, matrimonial thoughts, but these two girls had one great disadvantage matrimonially—they were twins.

Twins are cute and funny until someone seriously tries to win one of them. Then it is no joke. How can a man make wholehearted love to a girl and convince her that she is the only woman in the world when he sees another just like her flitting about. As soon as a man's courtship got fairly started it was sure to be ruined by some such remark as this:

"That's just what you told my sister last night."

Several Princes from Eastern lands where polygamy flourishes said they loved them both, offered to marry them both and never try to tell them apart. It did seem the logical solution, but the twins did not fancy the idea.

Then along came Jean Schwartz, a song writer possessed of an occult sixth sense by which he could always tell them apart and make love exclusively to Jenny. She rewarded this discernment by marrying Mr. Schwartz. As the twins always did things together, Rosie turned around and married the next man that asked her, who happened to be Harry Fox, a vaudeville actor. There was no financial profit in either match and the twins followed each other out of matrimony as they had into it.

The Late Sir Mortimer Davis, the Canadian Tobacco King.

Young Mortimer Davis, Jr., and His Wife, Roszika Dolly.

How Mortimer Davis, Jr., knew he loved only Rosie and was able to tell her from Jenny has never been adequately explained, but it is supposed that he never could have managed it if the twins had not agreed that he was a very eligible young man and that Rosie was to have him. Right after their not-very-secret secret marriage, it was generally believed that Sir Mortimer had cut his son off with a paltry four or five millions, but the will recently made public revealed that he shared with his stepmother the entire income of the vast fortune.

After all, why should Sir Mortimer have disinherited his son for marrying a dancer? He had married one himself, and staid happily married. It has been figured that every second man and woman in the British Empire who bends an elbow to take a drink or light a smoke is contributing to the profit of these two dancers.

The career of Lady Davis is even more romantic and remarkable than that of either of the Dollys. As Elly Curran, born in New Orleans, she believed herself pretty and bright enough to win the heart of any man, and her ambition was high. There were rich men in New Orleans, but she never caught their eye for reasons which she could understand. There was no proper way to come in contact with them and she could not afford the clothes that are as necessary to beauty as the setting is to a diamond.

To get this indispensable scenery she must go to work, and while she was about it, thought she might as well work in New York where eligible men are most numerous. Men's tastes vary. The first millionaires she met might not happen to fancy her. If there were one hundred times as many of them in New York, then her chances should be one hundred times as good there, so there she went.

The first thing was a job, and she got one as a telegraph operator. The pay, though moderate, was enough, by economy in other things, to provide a small but becoming wardrobe. This, however, did not advance her at all. As many a pretty girl who has come to the city learns, the most difficult problem of all is contact with the right kind of men. Her fingers clicked off messages to and from men of millions, but she never saw them. Elly decided that she was in a blind alley and looked around.

Telephone switch-board operators at hotels make a good many contacts with highly desirable bachelors, and so do stenographers. But on the whole, she decided that the most intimate, tete-a-tete contacts were those of the manicure, and also this trade took less time to learn. So Elly dropped the telegraph key, picked up the buffer and appeared in the barber shop of a New York hotel.

This was better, but it was not enough. Something was wrong. She was meeting men, some of them the right sort and she saw signs of interest, but she was conscious that somehow she failed to bring to bear on them the full power of her attractiveness. Overhearing men rave about chorus girls gave her the clue. Her lovely figure, clothed in the long skirts of the day and hidden under the manicure table was largely lost. Therefore, when one of her customers happened to be a theatrical manager and offered to give her a tryout as a chorus girl, she realized that she had manicured the hand of fate, resigned her job and went after the new one heart and soul.

She made good and appeared in the "Girl From Dixie." Again she had done better but seemingly not well enough. There were so many other girls in the chorus who seemed as pretty and who knew more about dancing. If she could only promote herself to a show girl or a feature dancer, it would pick her out of the crowd and the competition, but that seemed a long way off.

The show went on the road and one day the girl realized with a shock that she was about to play her own home town, New Orleans. At once the highly desirable privilege of wearing tights became undesirable because her family, relatives and friends would be scandalized. She informed the company manager that she would have to have a skirt for New Orleans.

"You are crazy," said the manager. "It would be ridiculous for one lone girl out of a big chorus to wear a skirt."

Ridiculous or not, that is what would have to be done, she insisted. The manager was angry.

"Well, if you can't dance in tights, then you can just ——"

He was going to add: "quit the show." But he was intelligent as well as emotional and he began to think. This is the girl's home town. If he fired her for modesty, that would make people resentful. On the other hand, it would be a great story of their girl who was too modest to wear tights, and yet too pretty to let go. So he cooled down, told her she had an awful nerve but could have her skirt.

It was, indeed, a good story; the town rose to it, and the theatre "turned 'em away" all that week. Among those who managed to get in at fancy prices was Count Guillermo Moroni, an attache of the Italian Consulate at New Orleans who became tremendously sympathetic with this maiden too modest to wear tights. Sympathy for a pretty dancer is likely to turn into something else and it did. Presently Miss Curran was the Countess Moroni and on her honeymoon to the Count's Italian villa.

Italian nobles are rather plentiful and this one was not very rich but he had a town house and villa by the sea and it was a bona fide title. Best of all, she had the unique distinction of being one of the very few American girls who had won one strictly on her merits, instead of buying it. She was in the remarkable position of having a noble husband who really loved her. But like most international matches, this one was broken by difference of temperament, quarrels and divorce. Though the marriage was a short one, it lasted long enough for the Countess to make a lot of the sort of contacts she yearned for as she visited Monte Carlo, Nice, Cannes and Paris. As the only American girl they had ever heard of who got a title free, these men were much impressed.

Divorce left her with little money, but she needed little. All she had to do was pick and choose among those contacts who now swarmed back at the news that she was free. At last she was where she had dreamed of being. The men who were begging to marry her were, of course, bachelors, but before she made up her mind there crowded into the midst of the competitors the towering figure of Sir Mortimer Davis, the "Rockefeller of Canada" who had accumulated most of the concerns manufacturing the famous old brands of English whiskies and tobaccos. But he was a married man.

Something this magnate whispered in the ear of the ex-Countess caused the chances of all the other men to fade and sadly they watched to see what would happen. Lady Davis, who had been Miss Henriette Marie Mayer, of California, had not been living very congenially with Sir Mortimer, but she had always declined all suggestions of divorce. But her husband was in the habit of getting anything that he really wanted and now she let him have his freedom in return for $50,000 alimony awarded by the Canadian courts on top of a large private settlement. Within a few hours of the arrival of the final papers, the former chorus girl became the new Lady Davis. She had captured one of the greatest fortunes in sight. In fact, it was not in sight when she first met Sir Mortimer.

The former chorus girl became the mistress of great estates in Canada, including the splendid country home St. Agathe des Monts, near Quebec, and on the Riviera the palatial Villa Les Glaieuls, one of the most expensive on the Mediterranean. And now, at the age of forty she has nothing to worry about except how to spend that $11,000 which will keep flowing into her bank account, every day, including Sundays, for the rest of her life.

The sixty-two year life of the man who left all that money is a business romance. He was the son of a little Jewish cigar maker of Montreal. Born to the trade, young Mortimer Davis turned to cigar-making as his highroad to fortune as naturally as a young gander takes to the farmyard pond. At an age when most men are still shifting from pillar to post, seeking the right job, Mortimer Barnett Davis had whirled through Canada's tobacco trade like a fiery young comet and, through his Imperial Tobacco Company, had achieved control of the bulk of the Dominion's cigar, pipe tobacco and cigarette markets.

Though he had no capital of his own to start with the man who was later to become so important that he was knighted could always persuade others to supply it and they never regretted it. Restless and never satisfied with success, Sir Mortimer Davis turned to other industries, became a director of many of his native country's biggest business institutions and, as his last commercial coup, essayed a merger of distilling companies which soon placed his newly-formed Industrial Alcohols, Limited, in the forefront of the world's distributors of whiskies, gins and other liquors and their allied products. Hard work and hard living in his youth broke his health and he was forced, in middle age, to retire from active business and live in the balmy climate of Southern France, where he still retained active control of his various Canadian companies through constant cable communication with his Montreal offices and hurried visits to Canada to confer with Baron Shaughnessy, son of one of the founders of the Canadian Pacific Railway, who became the Tobacco and Whisky King's personal representative in all his commercial activities.

His retirement was busier than most men's busiest days. Up to the very end when he was carried fainting from a heart attack out of the Cannes Casino, his representatives were at work capturing for him one famous brand after another of liquor and cigars. Had he lived another decade he might have had a British monopoly. But with his death all that stops. Mortimer, Jr., his only son, by his first wife, has shown no inclination for business. He thinks that he and Rosie ought to be able to get along on the $11,000 a day his father piled up for him

Curious Styles for Brides Among the Zulu Jungle's Fashionable Set

A Zulu Bride, Bedecked With the Remarkable Apparel Prescribed by Fashion. A Veil of Heavy Beads and a Chic Ensemble of Cows' Tails Make Up the Essential Features of Her Clothing. No Bride-to-Be Dares Appear Unveiled.

ZULULAND, on the north coast of Africa, is still largely untouched by European civilization, but in one respect the women of the Zulu tribes are kin to their sisters with white skins who live in cities instead of jungles. They have their fashions of dress, their fineries, their ornaments. In short, although their conceptions of attire are radically different from the European woman's, they are generally just as much interested in the matter of dress.

The Zulu bride spends just as much time over her trousseau as does the European or American girl. Current fashions for brides call for a veil of heavy beads and a chic ensemble of cows' tails, which makes up the bridal array. The Zulu bride may appear at the jungle altar in considerably less apparel than would be considered conventional in New York, London or Paris, but she will never appear without her veil.

After the ceremony, when she is a wife, she may discard the veil, but as a general announcement to the world at large that she is now a married woman, she beads her hair, making a glittering strand of each twenty-four hairs. The marks on her cheeks are tribal scars.

Monogamy, according to the generally accepted Zulu point of view, is a practice in vogue only among whites and what they consider "poor blacks." The Zulu man who adheres to monogamy does so only because of poverty, laziness or inability to support more than one woman. On the other hand, the polygamists of the tribes are usually the aristocrats and hard workers; men who by virtue of thrift, exceptional industry or royal blood, are able to work for and support a number of wives.

An infinite number and variety of hair-dressing styles obtain among the Zulu women, including the use of made-up tails and wigs and imitative hair-dresses. The native women are very proud and vain in the matter of personal apearance, and particularly so in reference to their coiffures. One of the most popular styles of hairdressing is known as the kashinga, which is a circular style of head-dress made by arranging a circle around the outer edge of hair, and working in concentric circles toward the center. It is then stiffened with castor oil and red powder.

Neck decorations are popular with the women and take the form of brass and copper wire collars. The wire, which is softened first by heat, is twisted around the neck into the shape desired. If the woman is wealthy the entire neck is thus covered, then the coils are continued until the collar lies on the shoulders. Some women wear head collars of pretty patterns which, unlike the wire collars, may be removed and replaced by others.

Ear and nose-sticks and rings of beads, metal or ivory, are frequently used, and finger rings of metal and iron are worn, as well as bracelets of brass, copper and iron, strengthened with zebra hair or fibre. The belles of the tribe frequently wear several hundred of these around their legs and arms. Some go in for heavy ornaments. Armlets of brass and copper half an inch thick are twisted around the wrist and wound up the forearm spirally, almost to the elbows. These are much coveted by the women, and though heavy and awkward, are worn daily for years. The lower extremities are similarly decorated in some instances, and often the weight of the brass and copper wire around the legs is enormous. This tends to a slow, stately walk which, among the Zulus, is considered a mark of superior birth and breeding.

The latest fashions in Zululand prescribe a girdle of beads around the waist, and short grass skirts about ten inches wide. The women also wear gowns made of sheepskins, and some of them make pretty aprons of woven bead-work. For coloring the garments several dyes are used which are made from berries, roots and flowers. A red dye much in vogue is obtained from the bean of the Usishi tree, and a khaki dye from the Mubaba tree.

In the not so distant past, Zululand was torn by tribal fights and other conflicts. Warfare raged for years, sometimes black man against black man, sometimes between European and Zulu, wars in which the terrible Zulu Chief Chaka figured prominently. But out of the battered warrior armies there has emerged a peace-loving people who abide in a land of contentment.

When a suitor is forthcoming for a Zulu girl, the would-be bridegroom sends an emissary to the girl and awaits her answer. If it is favorable, he then makes a visit in person and presents his suit. After that come conferences with the family of the girl, during which the purchase price of the girl is discussed; when that matter has been satisfactorily settled, the engagement of the two is publicly announced to the whole village. When the time approaches for the wedding the girl is given a wedding string of beads and is carried on the back of a strong woman (her wedding couch) to the home of the groom. It is not considered dignified for her to walk.

A Tribal Matron After the Wedding Ceremony. She Discards the Veil, but as a General Announcement to One and All That She Is a Wife, She Beads Each Twenty-four Strands of Hair, With the Curious Effect Shown in the Photograph. Her Cheeks Are Marked by Tribal Scars.

Egypt's "Sunday Drivers"

TOURISTS who visit Egypt are surprised, and frequently quite disappointed, to learn that the land of the Nile is somewhat different from what it was in the time of the Pharaohs. Many of them have an impression that Egypt has been untouched by modern progress since the days of Tut-ankh-Amen.

While it is true that Egypt has been largely westernized, there are still some Egyptians who believe in the old ways and steadfastly refuse to become modernized. The accompanying picture shows an Egyptian gentleman of the old school taking three of his wives out for a holiday ride, accompanied by a couple of the harem attendants. Unlike his more up-to-date brother, this Egyptian does not use a flivver. His vehicle is the same old donkey cart that his father used before him.

But he cannot escape modernity in his ancient land. Up and down the Nile ply modern steamships. All over Egypt are evidences of modern civilization. At the edge of the desert, under the very shade of the Pyramids, stands a modern hotel with extensive grounds, with a motor bus service for its guests. Heliopolis has modern electric street cars and contains one of the finest hotels in the world—the famous Heliopolis House. At Helouan, opposite the site of ancient Memphis, there is an eighteen-hole golf course that rivals some of the best in Europe.

At Luxor, where lie the tombs of the Kings, are modern hotels, taxicabs, and most of the conveniences that are to be found in Paris or London, including motion picture theatres, beauty parlors for the women, and cafeterias. At Assouan, usually the most southern spot visited by tourists in Egypt, is the famous Cataract Hotel, which has lawn tennis courts, swimming pools and scores of other modern advantages.

Yet, despite all these evidences of modernity, there are still Egyptians farmers to be seen tilling the soil in the manner of their ancestors, and in some of the smaller Egyptian cities the hand of modern civilization has touched life but slightly.

Insane Crew on Fast Train

THE annals of railroading contain records of cases where trains rushed on through the night without the controlling hand of an engineer. There are many instances of engineers attacked with heart failure, falling dead at their throttles and leaving their trains at the mercy of fate.

An instance unique in railroad history occurred recently along the upper valley of the Meuse in Belgium. The 7.10 train from Givet failed to stop at Hastiere, the first station, as it should have done according to schedule. It flew past at top speed.

The stationmaster telephoned to the next stop, where danger signals were displayed in an effort to bring the train to a halt. But again everything was disregarded. Men armed with red flags were placed along the road, and they waved the danger signals frantically, but all to no avail. The train continued its headlong course without breaking its journey at any of the ten stations at which it was scheduled to stop. By this time the entire line was in a panic, the officials and stationmasters along the line completely at their wits' end.

The train rushed into Namur, three quarters of an hour ahead of time. Fifty yards beyond the edge of the platform the train came to a standstill. Men rushed to the cab, expecting to find it either empty, or with the dead figure of the engineer on the floor. But two men were there, the engineer and fireman. They were behaving in such a peculiar manner that they were handed over to the police. Their incoherence and general behavior was such that it was at first thought they had been intoxicated.

But when they were examined by physicians, it was found that both had suddenly gone insane. What the incident was which crazed the two men is a mystery and may perhaps always remain one, for it was proved that neither of the men had taken a drink. They were unable to give the physicians any clues to the strange situation.

Ancient Indian Treasure Dug Up From Hidden Tribal Tombs Near Panama

EXCAVATORS working in the mountains of Cocle, in Panama, recently, at a depth of fifteen feet, came upon tombs of the ancient race of Indians which once occupied that section. In the first grave opened there was found a skeleton clad in a copper war suit covered with a shell of gold a sixteenth of an inch thick. The breast-plates of the warrior were solid gold, and scattered about the skeleton were candlesticks, plates and other objects, all of gold.

The discovery of the old graves came about in a curious way. Some years ago, in cutting a trench through a forest, the diggers came across an image of gold. Continuing digging, to their great surprise, they came across further ornaments of gold.

As soon as the information leaked out a rush was made to the scene and wholesale digging began, with the result that many more golden ornaments were found. They were sold for their intrinsic value, and it was not until recently that archaeologists took hold of the excavation work along systematic lines.

A special search is being made for the tomb of the famous Indian chief Uracca, who successfully defied the Spaniards. His stronghold was in the mountains about Cocle. The work was undertaken by Lieutenant C. D. Williams, aided by two excavators. In his account of the work Lieutenant Williams writes:

"My attention was drawn to a remarkable cave. The inside was cut away to form benches and tables. We thought that very likely this might have been the secret meeting place of Uracca. We started our work of excavating along the banks of a mountain rivulet, and it was not long before we came across some pottery. The digging finally revealed what seemed to be a cave beneath the river bank, and here the pottery became more plentiful, thousands of broken pieces being found. In one tomb alone 306 battle axes were recovered. Soon we found the skeleton.

"In the nose of the skeleton was a large gold ring, beautifully decorated with carved frog ornaments. We came across several little golden frogs, about an inch and a half long. We found a great many arrow heads and a large number of gold battle axes, and it is not at all unlikely, from the plentitude of war-like material in the tomb, and from the martial aspect of the accoutrements of the skeleton, that the body was that of the great chieftain Uracca."

THE "careless" workman in a factory, the unfortunate individual who is always getting hurt or breaking the machinery, is frequently not careless at all. His troubles are more apt to be due, science has discovered, to bad eyes, bad ears or some other physical defect. The employe who is a continual failure in his job is not necessarily dull or stupid or unwilling. It may be merely that there is something the matter with his sight or hearing or muscle sense or some other bodily characteristic.

New knowledge of these facts is inducing scientists and employers, working in close co-operation, to devise numerous instruments and methods for testing the senses and muscles and other characteristics of employes or of persons seeking employment.

In a recent article, Mr. Sydney Ingham, a safety engineer, of Ludlow, Massachusetts, describes a case in which a woman factory employe had experienced such numerous accidents, falls, collisions and so on that she was about to be discharged. Someone suggested that the difficulty might be eye trouble. A simple examination proved that this was the truth. The unfortunate woman really could not see properly. Once tested by the oculist and provided with suitable glasses, she switched immediately from the liability column of the factory to the asset column. Not only did she keep her job but she proved a valuable employe.

If all candidates for industrial employment were tested in advance for poor eye-sight, incidents like this could be avoided. Scarcely any item of business policy would be more valuable to everybody, in happiness as well as in money, than would this policy of testing human material. No modern factory would think of buying coal or iron or similar physical materials, the scientists point out, without subjecting these materials to chemical tests. The "chemistry of human beings," tests which determine whether or not an individual is suited to a job, are equally important.

No reliable scientific tests have yet been devised for revealing human character. Ruth Snyder for instance, held positions as typist and telephone switchboard operator satisfactorily, and did very well as a Sunday school teacher for a number of years. There are many tests which would have established her fitness or unfitness for typewriting or the switchboard, but there are no satisfactory scientific tests which would have revealed the fact that this healthy, rather attractive young office worker and Bible class leader was really a woman without moral instincts and capable of one of the most cruel, sordid murders of modern times.

A few instances of scientific human testing have been in use for years. One is the color-blind test which is required of candidates for jobs as locomotive engineers. Since colored lights as signals are so necessary in operating railway trains it is obvious that a person unable to see colors would not be successful in the railway business.

The importance of tests of other senses has only recently been recognized. Hearing, especially, has been neglected, but Mr. W. L. Betts, of the Bell Telephone Laboratories, in New York City, recently announced in the Bell Laboratories Record, a publication privately circulated among the employes of that institution, the perfection of a new electric device which makes it possible to test quickly and cheaply acuteness of hearing possessed by any individual. Previous methods of making this test have been rather complicated and expensive; suitable enough for use by ear specialists in cases of actual deafness but not capable of being applied conveniently in the routine testing of factory employes. The old-fashioned watch tests, in which a person is asked at what distance he can hear the ticking of a watch, is not accurate enough for really scientific purposes.

More or less complete deafness can be detected, of course, by this watch test or by many other simple tests, but this is not what the modern testers of human material have in mind. A person who is seriously deaf is unsuited for many kinds of jobs, and this fact is obvious to everyone, including the deaf person himself. What Mr. Betts' apparatus is intended to detect is a lesser degree of deafness; a slight dulling of hearing which the victim may not know that he has, but which might prevent, in factory work, his hearing warning signals or the slight changes of sound which happen when a machine begins to operate in some wrong way.

It is also important, Mr. Betts points out, for employers to test incoming employes in order to avoid improper claims for damages. Suppose, for example, that the employe's deafness is first recognized while he is working for an employer. There is apt to be a claim, perhaps perfectly honest, that the job has caused the deafness. If each employe is tested when he is hired mistakes of this kind can be avoided.

The most important consideration in everybody's mind, is, however, the happiness and satisfaction and success of the worker; for this, all industrial experts now recognize, is an absolute essential to the progress of any business. If persons have slight defects of eye or ear or muscles or other bodily characteritics these defects may be of no importance provided the person concerned has the right kind of job. But it is necessary to discover these defects in advance and to fit each person into the kind of job which he can do.

One of the most spectacular examples of testing people to suit jobs is the well known whirling chair used to test aviators. Hidden deeply inside the bones of the side of the head, just beyond the ear, Nature has provided three small curved tubes which serve as levels, much like the ordinary carpenter's level. This organ in the head controls the equilibrium sense, the sense which makes it possible for a person to stand upright even without using his eyes to determine his position. Naturally, this equilibrium sense is of the greatest importance to aviators, who must have the most delicate sense of balance and the most immediate perception of any beginning tilt or upset of their airplanes.

Candidates for training as airplane pilots are placed, therefore, in a suspended chair into which a person can be strapped securely and which can then be turned around, revolved upside down and twisted rapidly in other directions. If this strenuous experience destroys the accuracy of a person's sense of balance the examiners conclude that that individual is not apt to prove a first-class airplane pilot.

Another example of the desirability of fitting individual characteristics to the job was emphasized recently in the post office in Norfolk, Virginia, where letter-carriers were tested for their walking abilities by having each of them walk for a time on a small treadmill. Meanwhile the position of the toes and heels, the placement of the feet, the action of the leg muscles, and so on were observed by an expert orthopedist. The idea is that if an individual has malformations of bones or muscles, or merely if he has bad habits of walking, it is probable that the individual will be neither happy nor successful in the delivery of the mails.

The management of one of New York City's largest department stores, has introduced recently similar tests for persons who wish jobs driving that firm's delivery automobiles. In the psychological laboratories of the store there has been constructed a special driver's seat, exactly like the driver's seat on a delivery automobile but connected with electric recording apparatus instead of with the engine, wheels and so on of an actual car.

The candidate for a job as chauffeur is seated in this imitation automobile and is instructed to do the proper thing corresponding to signals, such as "stop" and "start" light signals and so on, which appear on a blackboard in front of him. Similar methods were devised a short time ago by Professor A. J. Snow, for use by the Yellow Taxicab Company, of Chicago, in testing candidates for jobs as taxicab drivers.

Modern psychologists believe that slight difficulties of muscular co-ordination, of equilibrium sense and so on, such as are identified by these tests, are probably responsible for a great many factory accidents. Mental defects, resulting in the kind of thoughtless motions which are characterized as "absent-mindedness" also come into this matter. For example, Mr. Ralph Motley, director of plant personnel for the Atlantic Refining Company, recently announced at a meeting of the Personnel Research Federation, in New York City, that his statistics show married men much less likely to suffer factory accidents than single men. The curious fact is, however, that divorced men and widowers are still more subject to accidents, on the average, than are single men.

The most probable explanation of these facts is that a happy and contented home life carries with it freedom from mental distress and absent-mindedness. Widowers and many bachelors do not enjoy this mental calm. The contented man keeps his mind on what he is doing and makes the necessary motions in the proper fashion. On the other hand, the man who is worried about his personal affairs or about his home, lets his muscular co-ordination lapse and is more likely to do some improper thing which may mean an accident. Dr. V. V. Anderson the experienced industrial physician who is in charge of the testing of candidates for employment at the department store already referred to also emphasizes this matter of a contented home life as one essential of a thoroughly successful employe or executive.

Under Dr. Anderson's direction there have been developed not merely the method of testing automobile drivers but a complete series of tests and examinations, given pleasantly and comfortably to candidates for employment, and designed not only to reject those persons who are clearly unsuited but also to sort out new employes and place them in jobs where they will be happiest and most useful.

Psychological tests and examinations must be used for such selections as well as the physical tests of hearing, sight and the like. Psychologists distinguish, for example, between two types of mind, often called the "extrovert" and the "introvert." Extroverts are people who give their main attention to the world around them and to the other human beings with whom they come in contact. Introverts, on the contrary, fix their attention chiefly on internal things. These latter individuals are apt to have fits of brooding, introspection, and day-dreaming. Psychologists have developed many tests which detect with more or less precision these contrasted introvert and extrovert types.

Either of these types of mind may prove, Dr. Anderson points out, successful in business or in life. People of extreme introvert tendency often turn out, for example, to be successful inventors, planners, scientists and so on. It has been the general experience, however, that introverts make poor salesmen and that extroverts make good salesmen. This is an important item, therefore, in fitting people to sales jobs. Mr. George H. Gallup, of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, recently applied this idea in an interesting fashion, using the familiar device of "crystal gazing."

Asking the candidate for a job in sales work to sit quietly at a table and gaze intently at a crystal ball, quite like those once used by mediums and fortune tellers, Mr. Gallup observed the candidate's psychological reactions to this crystal-gazing situation. By means of rules which he has worked out he determined thus the extrovert or introvert tendencies. The extroverts, who would make the best salesmen, were hired; the introverts were directed toward other jobs in which they might be more successful.

A similar device for testing mechanical and engineering ability has been developed by Dr. Johnson O'Connor, of the General Electric Company, Lynn, Massachusetts. Dr. O'Connor uses a series of nine wooden blocks, cut into irregular shapes but capable of being fitted together like the parts of a picture puzzle. Persons who can fit these blocks together quickly and accurately are apt, Dr. O'Connor finds, to prove good mechanics and engineers. On the other hand, persons who have great trouble in fitting these blocks together correctly, usually turn out to have rather poor engineering ability.

One of the most curious of the relations which modern industrial psychologists have discovered between human characteristics and suitability for specific jobs was reported recently at a convention of telephone operators by Miss N. R. Allen, supervisor of the telephone exchange at Albany, New York. The best telephone operators, Miss Allen finds, are those who move their faces most while talking. These grimaces do not themselves assist the understandability of the operator's speech, but they are indications of an ability to move the muscles of face, mouth and throat easily and perfectly, so that each letter of a word is given its full and exact sound.

Thus the amount of facial movement which a telephone candidate displays in talking may be one of the important psychological tests in hiring such candidates for operators.

In all such human testing, however, it is necessary to remember, the experts insist, that mere mechanical or physical tests made by instruments applicable to eyes or ears or muscles or other things, are never competent to give the final answer concerning the abilities of a prospective employe. These tests must be interpreted in the light of all of the elements of what might be called the personality. Dr. Anderson, out of his long experience in this field, concludes, "Tests and other tools to be used can aid and guide the interviewer in getting a better knowledge of certain aspects of an applicant's abilities but they will never alone and of themselves furnish sufficient information to afford a safe basis for securing employes, for they do not evaluate the personality."

More women realize that Mazola is now indispensable in the kitchen

HERE are a few "reasons why" that will interest every woman. A single can of Mazola in your kitchen means that you have always ready for instant use—

A perfect shortening, equal in richness to butter—

A pure vegetable fat for all frying—

A salad oil as fine as money can buy anywhere.

Mazola itself is as good and wholesome to eat as the fully-ripened golden corn from which it comes.

Then there is the economy of Mazola—for all three uses named above, Mazola usually costs less.

Once Mazola comes into your kitchen you, too, will find it indispensable for shortening—for frying and for salad dressings.

For shortening, Mazola makes a flakier, more appetizing pie-crust—better grained, lighter cake. For example, try this recipe for Flaky Pie Crust:

1¼ cups flour
¼ cup Argo or Kingsford's Cornstarch
½ teaspoon salt
8 tablespoons Mazola
Cold water to moisten —about 4 tablespoons

SIFT the flour, cornstarch and salt into a bowl. Stir in the Mazola, moisten with the water. Turn onto a floured board, roll out at once. One-quarter teaspoon of baking powder may be added if desired.

For salads, the quality of Mazola is praised from coast to coast by women who formerly used imported oils exclusively. Regardless of price the world affords no finer oil for salad dressing.

Foods fried in Mazola are greaseless when ready to serve—and always more easily digested. This simple recipe for French Fried Potatoes will convince you of the superiority of Mazola for perfect deep frying. Scrape and pare 1½ pounds Irish potatoes and cut lengthwise into long strips, about sixteen to a potato. Rinse, dry on a towel, put in a frying basket and fry in deep Mazola hot enough to brown a bit of bread in a minute, 395 degrees F. Drain on paper, dust with salt and serve.

Held Prisoner by a Murderous Madman

Pretty Edouardina, a French Canadian Girl, Goes to Montreal From Her Village Town, Loses Her Way, Is Coaxed Into Jules Coulombe's Squalid Room, Is Stripped and Her Clothes Destroyed, Is Guarded by a Dozen Great Snarling Dogs and Watches Her Wild Captor Murder Two Victims and Burn Their Remains in the Stove

If She Wrapped Herself in the Blankets, the Rats Were All the More Certain to Crawl Underneath With Her, to the Great Amusement of Coulombe.*

Edouardina Laurendeau, on Her Way to the Coroner's Jury to Tell How She Was Held Captive by the Madman and Made to Witness His Murder of a Young Girl and a Man.

The Shack Outside Jules Coulombe's Home, Where He Tossed a Part of the Body of One of His Victims.

Jules Coulombe, Former Montreal Policeman, Now Held for a Series of Remarkable Murders.

"THIS is what I'll do with your body if you try to escape or tell on me."

Edouardina Laurendeau, a young French Canadian girl, was held a prisoner, without any clothes, in the filthy hovel of Jules Coulombe, a Jekyll-Hyde type of murderer, in Montreal, for two months. All one day she watched her captor reading calmly by the stove. From time to time he put down the book, carved off a slice of flesh from a human body at his feet and tossed it into the flame.

Finally, when she could not repress a gasp as she saw him break an elbow joint with his powerful hands, the murderer paused in his work and made that threat about her own body. She knew he would do it.

Could any nightmare be worse than the actual experiences Edouardina stepped into when she came to the big city to see her mother? When she arrived from her home in the country, near Louiseville, Province of Quebec, there was nobody to meet her at the station. On her way to the Roman Catholic institution, in which her mother was awaiting an operation, Edouardina became lost in a wretched part of the city.

Being a country girl, she had been warned not to talk to strangers and looked around for a policeman, but there was none in sight. She noticed a powerfully-built man with a serious look of authority, somewhat suggestive of an officer of the law and thought it would be safe to ask him where a policeman might be found.

"I am a policeman, in plain clothes," he answered gravely. "What can I do for you?"

The man was Jules Coulombe and what he said was partly true. He had once been a member of the Montreal force. The girl explained her trouble and the supposed policeman started to explain how to get there, but directions were complicated.

"No," he interrupted himself, "you'd only get lost again. I'm going in that direction and will take you far enough so the rest of the way will be easy."

Edouardina went with him gratefully and as they passed through what might be called the "tenderloin district" of Montreal, he informed her that innocent country girls, like herself, often get "white-slaved" in that very area they were walking through and sometimes murdered, giving the police a lot of trouble. He wished girls would be more careful. She clung to his arm and kept very close.

The man stopped at the door of a dilapidated brick house in Sanguinet Street, where garages, warehouses and wretched tenements mingle.

"I have to speak to someone here," he explained. "Will you step in?"

Before she had time to think about it, he had unlocked the door and pushed her through. Instantly she was almost frightened out of her wits, deafened by a terrifying explosion of barks and growls, and the hot semi-darkness she had been pushed into was full of gleaming eyes and teeth of big dogs. At a word from the man as he closed and locked the door, the animals fell back, but still growling and showing their teeth at her. Edouardina snatched frantically at the locked door.

"One word from me and my dogs will tear you to pieces," Coulombe warned.

The girl looked at him in astonishment. She saw his face swiftly change to an expression beastlike and bloodthirsty as that of the vicious dogs, as he snarled:

"You are going to stay right here with me as long as I want you and if you try to get away or make any noise, the dogs or I will kill you and I'll burn your body in that stove.

"But aren't you a policeman?" she gasped, stupid with terror.

"Oh, yes," he jeered, "I'm a policeman and this is my private police station where I keep my prisoners. And to make sure they don't try to escape, the first thing I do is to take away all their clothes—same as they do in the hospitals."

When she started to resist, the dogs leaped forward with snapping jaws. The man shouted at them and they paused.

"Don't struggle with me," he cautioned. "They will think you are fighting with me and then even I won't be able to save you."

Almost fainting she felt her clothes torn off her and saw them thrown into the stove. For two months the unfortunate girl lived there with nothing to wrap around herself but a nasty blanket. There were usually six to eight dogs in the small two-room apartment, heated by that one stove. When Coulombe went out, he locked the door and took one or two dogs with him, but always several remained on guard.

If she went to the door or windows, some of which were boarded up and the others covered with some sort of coating through which she could not see, the animals threatened her. Once when she called for help she thought they would tear her to ribbons.

Edouardina soon learned that Coulombe's business was rat-catching. He would return from work with his dogs and a cage full of live rats. Then followed a scene which he and his pets enjoyed greatly, but almost drove the prisoner mad.

"Now, watch the fun!" he would cry, dumping the rats in the middle of the floor and watching the dogs pounce on them. There was no escape—they were doomed—but in their frantic attempts to hide, the rats dashed everywhere. They scampered over the girl's unprotected form, and the dogs, in pursuit, knocked her over. If she wrapped herself in the blanket, the rats were all the more certain to crawl underneath with her, to the great amusement of Coulombe.

If she stood on a chair or table, the desperate rodents climbed onto her head and shoulders, and the dogs, bounding after them, knocked her down. If she threw herself on the floor, the rats burrowed underneath her. Sometimes she was bitten by both pursuer and pursued. She finally learned that the best thing to do was to drop her blanket and stand still. Fortunately, the ordeal did not last long.

Several times toward the end of her imprisonment, inspectors from the Civic Health Department examined Coulombe's place and ordered him to clean it up. During these inspections they saw the girl lying on the bed, under her blanket. One word from her and she might have been free, but she dared not speak it. Her almost hypnotic fear and obedience were not without cause.

He had told her that if she complained she would be murdered, and as she had seen two other people murdered right there she had no reason to doubt it. The ex-policeman, with the aid of his dogs, might have easily killed her and the inspectors, too.

The first of the two victims she saw go was a young girl, whom both she and Coulombe understood was Bessie Daley. This proved later to be an error, and it is not yet known who that murdered girl was.

Edouardina, as usual, when her jailor had company, was lying silent on the bed. She and the dogs listened and watched an argument over fifteen cents, until Coulombe lost his temper and struck his caller. Instantly there was a roar from the dogs, a scuffle and general pandemonium. From the bed Edouardina could see nothing but a milling mass of dogs. A moment later their master called them off and the supposed Bessie Daley lay dead. Whether the man or the dogs did the actual killing, she could not see and did not dare to ask.

Most of that night and all the next day Edouardina and the dogs watched him reading and passing the body, bit by bit, into the stove. It was during this time, when he broke the girl's elbow-joint, that he warned his prisoner of a similar fate for herself. Sometime during the following night he had burned enough of the body so that he could carry away the charred and pounded-up bones in a small newspaper package.

The other murdered person was Arthur Richard, a young man who had also called on business. He betrayed interest in the silent form under the blanket that looked at him with frightened eyes. When Coulombe noticed this and harshly ordered him to mind his business, Richard started to speak to her. Again Coulombe struck, the dogs charged and it was all over in a minute.

Once more the girl had to endure watching the callous murderer reading and passing his victim in slices into the stove. She could turn her eyes away from the sight, but there was no way to escape the smell of burning flesh that filled the room.

Coulombe was tired of the job too. This body was tougher and bigger than that of the slender girl. When at last the limbs and head had been consumed and only the headless trunk remained, the murderer realized that it was far too big to go in the stove door. At this discovery, he sighed and scratched his head in thought. And as he thought, he noticed flakes of snow blowing in through a chink in the boarded up window.

Opening the front door, he saw that a heavy snow storm was in progress. He returned to the stove, looked in to see how the last pieces of flesh were getting along, picked up the headless torso and carried it out. Almost immediately, to Edouardina's surprise, he came back empty-handed and seemed relieved. The girl could not imagine how he had disposed of the body in such a few seconds but she knew better than to ask. People passed through the street for a couple of weeks and did not seem to see anything outside—nothing happened. Then, one day, the Health Inspectors came with police and took Coulombe away to the Bordeaux jail for not cleaning up.

"What about the woman?" one of them asked.

"She'll be all right," replied Coulombe, with a warning look at Edouardina, who answered from the bed:

"Yes, I'll be all right."

So they left her but she noticed that they would not let him lock the door. After a while the girl arose and, followed by the suspicious dogs, went to where Coulombe's extra clothes hung. She wondered if they would let her touch them. Some growled but the arrest of their master seemed to have upset them and she was able to dress herself and even finally to step out.

Edouardina managed to find a haven among strangers in that none-too-respectable neighborhood but she said nothing about her experiences. The spell of the man's terror was still on her. Three weeks later, after a thaw, last February, ash and garbage collectors noticed a curious looking bundle, thinly covered with ice on the low, one-story roof beside Coulombe's door. One was curious enough to climb up. Down tumbled the naked torso of a man. The police brought Coulombe to headquarters from his cell for a long grilling but he said carelessly:

"Certainement! That was Arthur Richard. He was too big to go into the stove, so I tossed him up there and he stuck and froze the first toss. The snow buried him nicely."

For two weeks he had come home from his rat-catching every day and noted unconcernedly that it was still nicely covered. It was much harder to get the story from the frightened lips of Edouardina, who still thinks the man can make good his threats though he is in jail indicted for murder.

After he had also confessed to the murder of Bessie Daley that young woman turned up, alive and well. The police expect to connect this butcher with the disappearance and probable death of six other young girls and the murder of one man, the manager of La Banque Canadienne Nationale. It is generally thought however, that the insane asylum rather than the gallows awaits this character, worthy of Edgar Allan Poe. He was a good policeman until several years ago when he injured his head in stopping a runaway horse. After that his behavior was so erratic that he had to be dismissed from the force.

THE WONDER WATCH of the WORLD

FOR THE DASH-ABOUT GIRL

MODERN youth demanded a modern watch and at last can have one. Here is a watch that is not only exquisitely beautiful but extremely practical: a watch for all day, every day; for teas, luncheons, bridge or the most formal social functions, yet ready to tick the seconds during hours of house work, business or madcap play—the finest watch that it is possible to buy at or near the price.

FIFTEEN DOLLARS

W11002—The Wonder Watch for ladies. Perfected jewel precision movement. Delicately engraved case. Fashionable cut corners. Exquisitely feminine . . . . . $15.00

FOR THE GET-AHEAD MAN

TODAY, when over 85% of all men's watches are strap watches, Elaine-Goering will be welcomed as a long awaited necessity. Dignified cases make it ideal for everyday uses. The mechanical excellence of the Elaine-Goering movement appeals to a man's knowledge of workmanship, and solves the problem of a satisfactory timepiece for motoring, golf, tennis or any strenuous sportswear.

FIFTEEN DOLLARS

W11525—The Wonder Watch for men. A masterpiece of craftsmanship—reliable and accurate. Perfected jewel movement fitted with luminous dial. Surely a watch to please any man . . . . . $15.00

As Modern as Young America

NEARLY 80 years ago, in 1849, the great watch works of Elaine-Goering were founded. Here a group of skilled artisians gathered together to produce watches whose fame would ultimately carry around the world. Gradually innovations were introduced, radical refinements were made in construction and design. Gradually their products were proven, accepted, and finally acclaimed. Never satisfied, they worked toward the day when Elaine-Goering could offer the world a masterpiece of watchcraft at a price well within the reach of everyone.

Today, from that vast experience of 79 years they present their greatest and most triumphant achievement—The Wonder Watch of the World . . . in a range of models and a scale of prices that will astound the entire country.

Never Before A Watch Like This!

Here is an entirely new standard of watch beauty, of mechanical craftsmanship, of unequaled value. Here is a watch that has been tested in every conceivable way; tested for service, tested for accuracy, tested not only at the factory but in every country in the world under the most trying climatic conditions. Here is a watch that has been scientifically perfected—artistically refined. An international watch, that combines in its compact case the collective wisdom of Europe and America. Here, indeed, is the watch for you, the finest watch that it is possible to offer at a really moderate price. Here is the Elaine-Goering . . . the Wonder Watch of the World.

Win A Watch FREE

Here is a contest of riddles about time . . . with 100 Elaine-Goering Wonder Watches as prizes. Anyone can enter. No questions, no letters, no essays, no catch questions. Get the free contest book from your jeweler today or we will mail one free to you on receipt of the coupon below.

Superb Workmanship

Every Elaine-Goering Watch gives the greatest accuracy of time-keeping with a surprising freedom from repairs. To insure the smoothest operation, the important moving parts are fitted with great precision, and are carried on master jewels that act as eternal bearings. And as a final safeguard, every watch is tested and re-tested before leaving the factory.

Exquisite Casework

Designed by skilled artists, the cases of Elaine-Goering Watches have been created as the supreme expression of modern international art, charming in their cultured simplicity yet daring in their advanced conception.

For the ladies' models, the designs are of the most delicate tracery. Delightfully feminine in their appeal they subtly compliment the wearer and enhance the smartest ensemble of fashion.

For the men's watches, the casework is distinctly masculine—true mannish strength glorified in designs of Spartan ruggedness.

Many Models to Choose From

The Elaine-Goering is offered in a large number of models, to meet your most exacting requirements. Every model carries the perfected movement with interchangeable parts. An ideal gift for graduation, birthdays or anniversaries . . . to bring lasting enjoyment for years to come.

Each watch individually packed in a luxurious velvet-lined case and carrying with it the famous Elaine-Goering guarantee.

Priced from $12.00 to $425.00, you can choose an Elaine-Goering Watch that is exactly the style that you have long hoped for. By all means see them today. Compare them with any watch at or near the same price. Then, you too, will discover that the Elaine-Goering is indeed the Wonder Watch of the World.

GUARANTEE

Every Elaine-Goering watch is absolutely guaranteed in writing against defects of material and workmanship.

W12050—A superb platinum and diamond wrist watch set with 8 matched sapphires and 20 genuine diamonds. 15 jewel movement with a richly silvered dial . . . . . $425.00

W12270—Solid 14 karat white gold case. Engraved border and dial. 15 ruby jewel movement. A stunning model—the latest style . $95.00

Misery that Followed Her Husband's Cruel Falsehood

Twice Married and Abandoned on Her Wedding Day, Pretty Dorothy Green Travels Half Around the World to Ask Punishment for Herself for a Crime She Innocently Committed

Little June Noles.

Mrs. Dorothy Noles, Who Left Her Husband on the Day of the Wedding, Believing His Falsehood That He Already Had a Wife, and Four Days Later Married Another Man, Thus Innocently Becoming a Bigamist.

On the Day of Her Wedding a Quarrel Started and Unkind Things Were Said by the Young Bride and the Young Husband Until in Searching His Mind for the Meanest Thing He Could Say That Would Hurt Her the Most, Young Noles Shouted:

"I have another wife, still living—so what you imagined was your marriage to me doesn't mean anything."

Reginald Alfred Noles.

LONDON, May 3.

"Scotland Yard.

"Dear Sirs:

"I am a bigamist and want to be tried for my crime as soon as possible. Enclosed please find my two marriage licenses, which you will see are dated only four days apart. If you need any more evidence against me I will supply it when I see you. Kindly have someone meet my steamer and arrest me because I might change my mind about giving myself up . . ."

THE letter, which was written from the far away Island of Ceylon and signed "Dorothy Noles," named the steamer on which she would arrive and the day it was due to dock at Liverpool. Scotland Yard, used to tracking down dangerous and elusive criminals, read this curious communication with suspicion. It looked like a hoax, some actress, perhaps, trying to get into the papers. Still, it is the business of Scotland Yard to arrest malefactors and this woman had made out a prima-facie case against herself.

"What's all this?" demanded the detective, severely, when a pretty, lily-like blonde, less than 23 years old, admitted that she was the "criminal" he was seeking and was ready to go to jail as soon as she had her baggage sent somewhere.

"By the way," she asked," will they let me have my steamer trunk in the cell or only hand luggage?"

"Just a minute—" said the detective, "I want to ask you a few questions and I warn you that what you say will be used against you. Have you really committed bigamy?"

"Oh, dear, yes," replied Mrs. Noles, opening her wrist bag. "Here is a picture of my first husband, Mr. Noles. It really doesn't do him justice. And this is Mr. Thomas, my second one, and here is June, our dear little three-year-old girl. Isn't she cute? It's for her that I am having myself arrested."

"Whose little girl?" inquired the detective, who was trying to take accurate notes.

"Why mine, of course, by my first husband, but she wasn't born till after my second marriage. He didn't understand and so he ran away . . ."

"Wait a minute. Who didn't understand?" pleaded the detective. "Let's begin at the beginning and please tell me only one thing at a time."

The officer of the famous crime detecting organization then drew from her the following story: Her widowed mother, Mrs. Green, whom the records of "Old Bailey" Court later referred to as a "person of importance," had left London with her small daughter Dorothy to open a girls' seminary in Ceylon. Mrs. Green was welcomed by the over-heated English colony of the island because she took the responsibility of their flappers off their hands and also the task of entertaining visiting celebrities.

It is such a bore in the heat to talk learnedly, to Oxford dons and American professors, who expected them to know which State their college towns were in, but Mrs. Green didn't mind. Dorothy was equally energetic, going in for sports, entertainments and finally giving music lessons to make a little pin-money. The lessons were a great financial success and caused Dorothy to demand a "career." Mrs. Green would have had more confidence in the daughter's talent if she hadn't been the most strikingly pretty girl on the island and if her pupils had not all been men. Still, she might be right, and, anyway, there would be no living with her until that "career" had been gratified.

So Mrs. Green fixed it up for Dorothy to study at the London Royal Academy of Music and live at the home of her uncle, Mr. Walter E. F. Prins, a barrister-at-law. Mr. Prins imagined that his only problem was to place the girl's piano in a wing of the house where it would cause least annoyance. Except for that he supposed the presence of this provincial young person meant only another plate at his table, one more in the pew Sunday morning and one more in the car Sunday afternoon.

But when an alarmingly pretty and vivacious 19-year-old beauty landed on him he found that his home was no longer his own. He seemed to be only its janitor. The youth of London buzzed around his house like flies around an arc light. His clients could not even get him on the telephone because someone was always calling Dorothy.

This was bad enough, but he felt his responsibility to the young beauty's mother of seeing that the girl really learned something and went back to Ceylon fancy free, in the same condition she left. Finally he laid down the law. There were to be only two evenings of entertainment, either in or out of the house, and telephones only at stated hours. Otherwise what would become of that "career"?

Dorothy agreed that this was just, but London was such a cheerless place after sunny Ceylon and she became lonesome and homesick. When such a pretty girl gets lonesome something is likely to happen and it did. There was the solid and substantial Mr. Arthur Thomas, who kept a standing order for orchids and a standing offer of matrimony for her. Instead of accepting him she listened to the blandishments of the handsome and careless Reginald Noles, who had a gift for talking about passion under an Italian moon.

One day Dorothy disappeared, leaving a vague explanation and no address. She had moved over to the apartment of the free and easy Mr. Noles, where they lived happily for several months. There were just two flaws in that happiness. One was that they had somehow neglected to get married and the other that Reginald gambled too much. Dorothy finally insisted that both these things be remedied. He agreed.

They were quietly married one morning and rode home in silence. The bride was modestly keeping quiet that the groom might have an opportunity to say sentimental things about their wedding day. But he had said all that long ago and was now thinking about an important horse race. Dorothy thought his silence meant that he was planning some big surprise and she did not want to be cross and spoil it. After lunch he stepped out casually and she wondered whether he would come back loaded with pearls, orchids or tickets to the Riviera and that Italian moon. At eight o'clock that evening Reginald broke the suspense by coming in. One look at his face and she knew what had happened.

He had played the races and lost. To her dismay, she realized that he hadn't given the wedding day a second thought and to his astonishment, she flew at him. He had supposed that if he married her she would quit talking about it and be reasonably happy and contented for a long time, but there she was raging at him. The more she described what a miserable person she had married, the more he regretted that ceremony. As the tongue-lashing went on he searched his mind for something that would hurt her as much as she was hurting him. Finally he remarked:

"You needn't feel so badly about that marriage. I have another wife, still living—so what you imagined was your marriage to me doesn't mean anything."

He had silenced her and in the silence he put on his hat and marched out. After giving her plenty of time to cool off and be sorry for all she had said, he came home with the intention of confessing that the "other wife" was imaginary—but Dorothy was gone.

When she got out on the street she was confronted with the fact that there was no home for her but a hotel. Her pride would not let her return to Mr. Prins and she could not bear to tell her mother. She had almost no money. What was she to do? There was the Thames River to jump into, and then she thought of the faithful Mr. Thomas and his standing offer. She called him up and accepted it, without being asked any questions. It looked as if Mr. Thomas would make an ideal husband.

Four days later they were married and again quietly, at her request. Now, at last, she would have a real honeymoon, even if he was not quite as dashing and romantic as Reginald could be when he wasn't thinking about something else. However, this groom really had to know one or two things and on the way from the wedding she informed him of her near-marriage to Mr. Noles. Mr. Thomas almost had apoplexy but he recovered and endured more details until she intimated the expected arrival of the present little June.

At that point the groom's capacity to absorb bad news had reached the saturation point and with a hoarse cry he leaped out of the taxi and ran away. Thus, within four days, this bright and pretty bride had been left flat twice on her wedding day. As far as Scotland Yard knows, this is a record for bad luck.

Dorothy dropped from sight of both husbands and kept in touch only with her mother. The baby was born and later she returned with it to Ceylon, where the heat-prostrated British colony was too languid to investigate her status as a "grass widow."

But after three years she learned that Noles had only been fooling about a previous wife, that she was a bigamist and some day it would all come out to the disgrace of her little girl. It would be better to have it all over with while he was still too young to ask questions. So she had come to England to get it done as quickly as possible.

The detective took the bigamist to London and, as it was late, the law's red tape required that she spend the night in jail. Next morning she was out on nominal bail and in due time appeared at "Old Bailey," where thousands of hardened criminals have been tried. But there was no harsh cross-questioning of this sad little beauty. In fact the judge was seen to blow his nose and look around sternly to see if anyone dared suspect he was perhaps concealing a tear.

When Dorothy had finished her story, Mr. Noles came forward and corroborated it. He declared that words failed to express his bitter sorrow and shame that, in a moment of temper, he should have invented an imaginary wife for the sole purpose of humiliating Dorothy. But now he wanted his wife back, and wanted her terribly.

And Dorothy, of course, having married Mr. Thomas under the delusion that the wedding ceremony of four days previous was a bogus one, had so obviously not intended to break the law that the Recorder decided that a nominal verdict of two days' imprisonment, which meant instant release, was punishment sufficient and to this he added a rider that no moral blame attached to the sorely tried girl.

And now everyone wanted to know if this mixed up romance was to have a happy ending. Would Dorothy forgive the man who so cruelly deceived her by misleading her into the belief that she was "deceived?" There could have been few acts more heartless than to send the girl's dreams for her whole future crashing, when all the time she was Reginald's legal wife. On the other hand, he acted under the influence of temper and how could he have guessed that Dorothy, hopeless and helpless, would take the only way out that offered at the moment—marriage—which she, of course, believed legal, but which actually was a criminal act?

Many women marry and believe themselves legally wives, only to discover that they are deluded. Dorothy was one of the few who are legal wives and don't suspect it.

Dorothy would not tell the reporters whether she would or she wouldn't, but they were men, so reportresses were sent. She wouldn't tell them either but, being women, they were more qualified to give an expert opinion. They prophesy that she will come back to him but that first he must court her all over again, marry her again, say all the things he forgot to say on the other occasion and make good on that Italian honeymoon. Reggie will probably agree to all this because he is in a chastened frame of mind. He says:

"Husbands should never lie to their wives. If their wives don't believe them, that's bad and if they do—it's even worse."

FAT WOMEN!

HERE IS SPLENDID NEWS

Reduce Safely

Take Fat Off Any Part of Your Body

No Drugs To Take.

No Foolish Dieting.

Amazing Discovery.

MILLIONS of overstout, fat hips, double chins, bulky arms and protruding busts, thick looking legs and ankles will soon disappear, thanks to the discovery of "COLLIPASTE" which you rub into any fat parts as you would a cream, yet it is not a cream and does not contain a drop of water.

COLLIPASTE actually penetrates the pores of the skin, creates excessive heat, thereby bringing oxygen into contact with the fatty tissues, which melt and pass out with excreted moisture. The parts are thus reduced in size, the flesh made firm and normal, pleasantly and harmlessly.

Slenderizing the figure this new easy way is meeting with hearty approval by physicians who warn against dangerous internal drugs. The success of COLLIPASTE will surely revolutionize methods of reducing, because it is pleasant and healthful to use, at night and it works while you sleep. Get a jar now and take away those ugly, fatty, burdensome parts.

Send no money. Simply mail Coupon below to Dermolav Laboratories, Dept. 40, No. 1780 Broadway, New York, N. Y. for jar costing only $1.95. On arrival pay postman. If you are not more than pleased with reduction your money will be refunded.

What Happened to the Coquette When She Met the One Man She Couldn't Trifle With

Don Pedro's Hand Shot Out and Dashed the Weapon From Dolores' Grasp.

Synopsis of Preceding Chapters.

AT the Three Arts Ball, Don Pedro Barrego, a handsome young Spaniard, meets Dolores Annesley, an English beauty, to whom love is a game she plays skillfully. After a short acquaintance he declares his love amidst a barrage of kisses. Taking offense at his passionate proposal, she orders him out of the house. He leaves, determined to win her at all costs.

Dolores goes to Spain for the bull fights where she recognizes Pedro Jose Fernandez, Spain's most famous matador, as Don Pedro. While on an excursion into the hills Dolores is led by a guide in the pay of Don Pedro, to the matador's secluded castle, the House of Dreams. Don Pedro swears to keep her captive until he has mastered her.

CHAPTER VII.

"I Hate Him!"

DOLORES composed herself after a time, dried her tears and sat staring gloomily into the fire. She was thinking over Maria's words, and wondering what it was in Don Pedro that could inspire love in other women. She herself was revolted by the very thought of him.

It occurred to her that she might get away through a window. She sprang up and hurried into the bedroom. The windows were set high up in the walls of a lofty room, quite six feet from the floor, and Dolores saw at a glance that they were not made to open. Air was admitted through ventilators which were opened or shut by cords. The windows themselves were of glass set in small frames. It would be impossible to escape through the window except by smashing the whole frame, and the frames were of metal.

The House of Dreams was at once a fortress and a luxuriously furnished prison, and Dolores saw that escape from it was almost an impossibility. Even if she overpowered Maria, she could not hope to find her way out or to find the key of the outer door. Besides, there were probably other servants of Don Pedro on guard outside the house....

A sort of apathy settled down on her. She ate the dainty food Maria set before her without appetite, and at times wandered restlessly about the house, which interested her almost in spite of herself. The place puzzled her. It had something of Don Pedro's personality about it, and the rooms were essentially a man's; but they were the apartments of a man of learning and artistic tastes rather than those of a bull-fighter.

There were old pictures on the walls, and books in English and Spanish, scientific works as well as novels, in the bookcases. There were Persian rugs on the floors, and down cushions on the couches and chairs, while in the panelled hall were some fine specimens of antique armor, valuable tapestries and trophies of the chase. The whole place had an air of luxury and refinement. Yet it was the property of Don Jose Fernandez, a matador!

The day wore on, the light faded, and Maria lit the hanging Moorish lamps, and suggested that Dolores should dress for dinner.

"Dress for dinner!" exclaimed Dolores. "Why should I?"

"The master always dresses for dinner," responded Maria. "He will expect you to be dressed when he returns."

"So he returns tonight!" exclaimed Dolores, her face paling at the prospect of what she might again have to endure.

She wanted to rebel, but realized that it would be futile to do so. What use to refuse to attire herself in evening dress, even although she knew that she would be dressing merely to please the man she hated?

Maria laid out some exquisite evening gowns for her inspection, and Dolores chose a lovely thing of jade green georgette with silver tissue.

"Oh, but you are beautiful!" cried Maria, and she spoke from the heart.

"If I were not beautiful I should not be here," said Dolores bitterly. "I think that beauty is a curse. If I had been born ugly, I might be free and happy, for I should not have aroused the love of Don Pedro and fallen into his power. I wish I were dead!"

"If the senora had been born ugly, she would probably be breaking her heart because Don Pedro would not look at her, and praying to the good God to send her a lover," Maria retorted. "Why are you unhappy? You have youth, health, beauty and the most wonderful lover in the world."

"I hate him!" flashed out Dolores. Maria withdrew looking hurt and shocked.

Dolores sat down and turned the pages of a magazine. She was nervous, and when she heard a shrill whistle outside she started convulsively to her feet, and her hand went instinctively to her heart. She heard Maria opening the hall door, and heard the sound of Don Pedro's rich, musical voice. She stood quivering with apprehension.

But Don Pedro did not come into the bedroom, and after a time Dolores' natural courage reasserted itself. She would show him, she decided, that she scorned him. She nerved herself to face him, and when Don Pedro appeared in the doorway half an hour later he found her again the cool, haughty society girl who had repulsed him in London.

"Good evening, Dolores," said Don Pedro, his eyes kindling with admiration. "I have never seen you looking more beautiful. I hope you have not been bored in my absence. Dinner is served. Come."

He was in evening dress and looked very handsome, but he aroused only hatred in Dolores' breast. Without a word she rose and went towards the door, her head proudly erect.

Dinner was served at a small round table in the centre of the hall, and Dolores felt that Don Pedro's eyes never left her face during the meal. He seemed to be in high spirits, and rallied her mockingly on her silence and frigid attitude.

"Do you know what I have been doing today, Dolores?" he asked. "I have been searching for a Miss Annesley. It appears the young lady, who is half English and very beautiful, wandered away from her friends yesterday when she was exploring El Castillo Moro, and it is feared that she has either lost herself in the forest or on the mountains—or perhaps she has fallen into the hands of banderos."

"You could have told them that I have fallen into the hands of one who is worse than any brigand," Dolores exclaimed scornfully.

Don Pedro laughed, showing his white teeth. There was a mocking look in his dark eyes.

"You do not seem to appreciate the humor of the situation," he retorted. "I was in Seville when Miss Annesley went away with her friends to El Castillo Moro. I was still in Seville when Gomez induced her to go in search of the House of Dreams. I was seen in Seville early in the evening and I reappeared in the town this morning. Everyone knows Pedro Jose Fernandez, the famous matador, popularly known as Don Pedro, and everyone thought it was characteristic of the noble fellow that he should at once join in the search for the missing English lady. Don Pedro said in public that he had seen the beautiful senorita and he would not rest until he found her."

He laughed again at Dolores' expression of scornful fury.

"It will not be amusing for you when they find me and I tell them how I have been treated," flashed out Dolores.

"They will never find you, Dolores, but if they did, I wonder how much you would tell?" responded Don Pedro very quietly.

"You fiend!" burst out Dolores, stung to passionate anger. "Haven't you humiliated me enough?"

The realization that if she did escape she could not make public what had happened without blasting her reputation infuriated her. She could imagine how spiteful people would laugh, and how the many women who were jealous and envious of her would gloat.

Again the mocking smile came back to Don Pedro's lips, but there was a stern expression in his dark eyes even as he met Dolores' furious glance.

"You have still to learn the meaning of love, my Dolores," he drawled. "You do not yet realize what an excellent master you have found. Let me help you to some more of this excellent chicken. You must eat well tonight, for you will have to embark on a long journey to Badajoz early tomorrow morning."

Dolores felt that she wanted to strike him and raged inwardly at her own helplessness. She could have cried in mortification, but she knew Don Pedro would only mock at her tears and add to her humiliation.

"A journey?" she repeated, after a pause. "What do you mean?"

"Unfortunately—or fortunately I learned tonight that one of your aunt's servants saw you leave the Castillo Moro with Gomez and recognized the man in Seville. Gomez has been arrested on suspicion, but, of course, he will tell nothing. It will be an easy matter, however, for the police to discover that he is a servant here, and they will come here to make inquiries and to search for you. When they arrive Maria will receive them, assure them that no lady has been here, and invite them to search the house if they doubt her word. They will discover that the House of Dreams is the property of Don Pedro, who is himself supposed to be scouring the mountains in search of you, and suspicion will be disarmed at once. You will have disappeared."

Dolores thrilled inwardly with excitement. Surely, she thought, she would find some opportunity to escape from Don Pedro during the journey to Badajoz, or would encounter someone who would rescue her. If La Guardia Civil were searching for her, she might yet escape.

"It will be quite an adventure for you," went on Don Pedro. "You must find life more thrilling than it used to be?"

Dolores did not answer, but rose from the table and went across to the fireplace just as Maria entered with the coffee. Don Pedro lingered for a few minutes at the table, and made Maria glow with pride by congratulating her on the excellence of the dinner.

"We will have coffee here by the fireside," he said at last. "You may go as soon as you have cleared the table, Maria."

He rose, strolled across to the fire and stood watching Dolores with a curious intentness as she poured out the coffee with assumed composure. Again she felt that his eyes were upon her, and hated herself when she found she was blushing.

She knew that her gown suited her to perfection, and was sorry she had made herself look so charming. She was forced to look at Don Pedro as she handed him his coffee cup, and her heart contracted when she saw the glow of ardor in his dark eyes.

Don Pedro was feasting his eyes on the beauty of her form and coloring, enhanced by the jade-green gown. He sipped his coffee with deliberation, then offered Dolores a cigarette and lit one himself.

Maria cleared the table, withdrew to the kitchen and presently reappeared.

"Good night," senor. "Good night, senora," she said with a curtsy. "May your dreams be pleasant."

Always on top of his job How does he do it?

THIS man's commission check is always bigger than any other salesman's on the staff. He's a wonder! When he breezes into town after a gruelling business trip—with a bunch of orders in his pocket for the boss—he's always as fit as a fiddle. And just rarin' to go off again.

How does he do it—living on trains—snatching hasty meals at railway station counters and small town restaurants? Forever on the jump.

If you could see him pack his bag for a trip, you'd know. A bottle of Nujol always goes in. Nujol keeps body functions normal, even under abnormal regime. Keeps hasty meals and indifferent food from upsetting you. Wards off the bad effects of change of water and climate. For Nujol not only prevents any excess of the body poisons (we all have them) from forming but also aids in their removal.

Whatever your job is—you need health and energy to ride it. Take a tip from this star salesman and take Nujol regularly. You'll be amazed to find how much more clear-headed and all 'round efficient you feel. Keep up this treatment faithfully for 3 months and you'll feel like a million dollars. And you will have taken the first step toward getting it.

Star Salesman

The whole treatment costs about the price of 3 good picture shows. Wouldn't you give that to feel like yourself again?

Isn't Nujol worth trying? It was perfected by the Nujol Laboratories of the Standard Oil Company (New Jersey). It couldn't possibly hurt you, anyway. (Nujol contains no drugs or medicine.) And if you're like other people it will do you a world of good.

Be sure you get the genuine.

Put On Like a Cream, Washed Off Like Soap, Ends Unwanted Hair!

Women Here Employ Beauty Doctor's Method at Home

Hundreds of local women—like Mrs. Ada Le Moine—have removed superfluous hair at home by a novel French treatment which, druggists here say, is safe, quick, pleasant and inexpensive, making the skin clean, soft and healthy and giving a dainty feminine appearance.

Mrs. Le Moine found no effective way to end superfluous hair on legs, arms, under-arms and back of neck, until her sister, a skin specialist, advised X-Bazin.

She reports that she simply applied X-Bazin like a cold cream and left it on for five minutes. When she washed it off, like soap, her skin was at last beautifully free of all unwanted hair—smooth and soft as though it had had a cream massage.

X-BAZIN cream depilatory, made on the formula of Dr. Xavier Bazin, the noted French scientist, is used in leading American and European salons as well as by numbers of women here. A generous tube with certified directions can be had of your druggist or toilet goods dealer for only 50c. Trial 10c tubes, also, at the better 5c and 10c Stores.

A BILL now before Congress provides for a great highway across the country to mark the famous "Oregon Trail." From Independence on the Missouri River, this long road will run 2,030 miles to the Columbia River on the Pacific Coast. This great national highway and parkway will be 200 feet wide and it will follow the path patiently and doggedly trodden by those rugged American pioneers who struggled against almost incredible hardships to open up the West.

Over the old Oregon Trail passed the greatest migration in all history. In the twenty-five years between 1845 and 1870, when railroad travel began, more than half a million people made their way along that dangerous and difficult pathway.

Preceded only by a few explorers and an occasional fur trader, these sturdy pioneers abandoned their homes in New England and the Midwest, and with their families, furniture and cattle, pushed across the Mississippi, which was then the frontier, and strung out in long trains of covered wagons over the uncharted plains and mountains.

Indians swept down upon them. Women and children grew hardened to the wild war whoops, and even toddlers learned to pass bullets and clean guns to the men instead of hiding their heads in their mothers' skirts when the fierce red warriors circled the covered wagons with a ring that spat both lead and arrows.

Great herds of buffalo rolled like living tidal waves upon the camps of the pioneers, leaving too often nothing but splinters of the wagons and, stamped into the earth, unrecognizable fragments of what had been the human beings who had set out so courageously to conquer the wilderness. Sometimes the Indians started these stampedes, enlisting the aid of the beasts in wiping out the white invaders. And sometimes, when the shaggy brutes were quietly grazing, the Indians who had been riding hidden among them, would dart out and overwhelm the little camp, carrying away those who were not slain on the spot to torture at their leisure.

Even when these pioneers of the old Oregon Trail had settled down there was little security. About twenty pioneers had stopped and staked out farms on the Muddy, in what is now Nebraska. One morning when the men were in the fields a band of two hundred Cheyennes came whooping and howling out of the brush. All the whites were slaughtered with the exception of a Mrs. Eubanks and her child. She was a blonde, and while there is no evidence that Indians, like gentlemen, prefer blondes, it was her amazingly golden hair and fair skin that saved her life.

She had seen her husband scalped. Now a warrior picked up her child by the feet and was about to clubits head against a tree. Mrs. Eubanks seized the Indian, says Frank A. Root, the old Indian fighter, in "The Overland Stage," and he tripped and fell. Catching up the baby, she started to run. The brave drew his knife and made after her. Chief Two-Faces interfered.

"What warrior are you," he asked, "to be thrown by a squaw? I'll take this woman for my own."

The lovely blonde woman was seated on a horse and her feet tied under the horse's belly. With the child in her arms, she rode under the burning sun all day. She suffered, of course, agonies. Next morning the chief took possession of her and gave her a buffalo robe to cover herself. She was a slave for fourteen months.

"At last," writes Root, "it was decided to take her to Fort Laramie and sell her to her people. Mrs. Eubanks told Colonel Baumer, in command at the post, then boasting of three hundred men, of the horrors to which she had been subjected.

"The three chiefs met the Colonel and two orderlies a mile or so below the fort. Twenty bucks were posted in the hills some distance beyond to receive the goods they expected. The Colonel told the orderlies to stroll down the river, throwing pebbles at the dogs, in a manner not to excite suspicion, until they were out of sight. They were then to run to the post and call out all the cavalry, surrounding the Indians. The plan succeeded admirably, and the three chiefs were placed in irons.

"At that time I was scouting at Alkali, and General Connor and General Heath, who was delivering to the former the command of the district of Colorado, were at my place. Colonel Baumer telegraphed them of the arrest of the chiefs, and Mrs. Eubands was brought in and told her story over the wire.

"General Connor asked: 'Where are those villains now?'

"The answer clicked: 'In chains.'

General Connor replied: 'If you have them in chains, hang them in chains.'

"Baumer sprang from his table in the telegraph room and placed a guard at the door, with orders to let no one pass in or out. The door was locked, with the operator inside. The Indians were taken out, tied by ropes around their necks, and the wagon driven from under them.

"When Colonel Baumer returned this message was handed to him: 'Colonel, I was a little hasty. Bring them to Julesburg and give the wretches a trial.' The Colonel answered: 'Dear General—I obeyed your first order before I received the second.'"

As settlements sprang up along the Oregon Trail and as the game began to disappear the Indians became more irritable, and especially when they had traded fur for whiskey, so unreliable as to be always dangerous. Still, they did not attack the whites along the Oregon Trail just east of the Rockies in any great numbers until after the Sand Creek massacre of 1863.

The Sand Creek Massacre was perpetrated upon the Indians by a body of Colorado militia, who scalped the Indians, killed women and children and altogether misbehaved.

The effect was to band Cheyennes, Sioux and Arapahoes together into a war party of 1,000 warriors. Moving between the forks of the Platte River, the Indians camped near Julesburg, a famous station on the Overland Stage Line, which followed the Oregon Trail. The station was built of cedar logs hauled from a hundred miles south. One mile west of the station was Rankin, a small fort garrisoned by a few soldiers.

The Indians determined to use one of their favorite stratagems against the soldiers. While the main body of warriors hid in the sand hills a few miles away, Big Crow, a Cheyenne chieftain of the Crooked Lance Society, with five of his men and two Sioux, showed themselves outside the fort.

Although the Indians had worked this same dodge dozens of times, the soldiers fell into the trap again. A detachment of cavalry set out in pursuit of Big Crow and his warriors, who, of course, fled toward the sand hills. The detachment would undoubtedly have been wiped out if it had not been for the impetuousness of a band of young braves, who charged down from the sand hills while the cavalry was still half a mile away. As soon as the young braves appeared the cavalry turned and galloped back toward the fort. Big Crow's men turned after them, and, with the help of such young warriors as managed to overtake the soldiers, killed eighteen. Meanwhile the main body of Indians poured down from the hills.

Just before the Indians charged the westbound stage coach stopped at Julesburg, and the driver and passengers got out for breakfast. They saw a thousand Indians swarming at them, and all hands—passengers, driver, guard and station employes—jumped into the stage or hung on to it and drove like mad to Fort Rankin. The Indians pursued them, but they reached the fort just as the stage drove into the stockade.

The Indians broke into the warehouse and store at Julesburg, and the chiefs ate the hot breakfasts which the passengers had deserted. One old Indian seemed to fancy a sugar bowl; he tied it to his belt and rode off in great triumph, without bothering to take any other trophies. In the meantime the squaws had brought down extra ponies from the hills, and these were laden with flour and sugar. The canned goods puzzled the Indians, and except for a few cans taken as samples or ornaments, were left behind. But a large stock of gold and silver watches was distributed.

One of the stage passengers was a United States paymaster, with money for the troops in a metal box. This box the gallant paymaster left behind in his haste to reach the fort. The Indians broke it open and were much disappointed to find it contained nothing but green paper. One warrior took a thick bundle of bills, chopped it into confetti with his tomahawk and sprinkled his squaw with it. The rest of the money was scattered on the ground. When the Indians had taken all the loot their ponies could carry they rode away.

The Indians now began raiding all ranches, stations and settlements between the two forks of the Platte and along the Oregon Trail. In a few days they had more plunder than they had ever taken in their history, according to George Bent, the son of a pioneer ranchman, who was with them. They brought the most unlikely things to Bent for his explanation of their use—including a huge quantity of candied citron, which the Indians could not imagine was edible.

It was in 1836 that the first white women went the full length of the trail. They were the wives of Whitman and Spalding, the missionaries who built the Whitman Mission in the State of Washington—which was wiped out by the Indians in 1847, when Dr. Whitman, his wife and eleven others were massacred and fifty women and children were captured. Father de Smet, a famous missionary and explorer, went out along the trail in 1840.

Meanwhile others had been marking the trail farther east. The fur traders of John Jacob Astor used it regularly as far as the Rocky Mountains, and some of them, tiring of adventure, settled along its route. Laramie, in Wyoming, was founded, and the famous scout, Jim Bridger, built the fort that bore his name. In 1842 General Fremont, "The Pathfinder," definitely marked most of the trail.

The progress of the movement to perpetuate the old Oregon Trail is largely due to the tireless efforts of President Ezra Meeker, of the Memorial Association, who in 1852 travelled the entire length of the trail with his young wife and child or ox-drawn covered wagons. In 1907 he broke a span of oxen to the yoke, hitched them to a covered wagon and made the return trip over the trail he had helped to make fifty-five years before. As he went he held meetings to create interest in the project, and in many places was able to erect permanent markers. Later he flew over the route in an aeroplane, accomplishing in sixteen hours of running time what it had taken him six months to accomplish seventy-two years before.

In his book and in lectures Mr. Meeker relates a great many things about the exciting life on the trail. Telling of preparations for the start, he says in his book, "Ox-Team Days on the Oregon Trail":

"We had butter packed in the centre of the floor, which was in double sacks; eggs packed in the corn meal or flour, enough to last us nearly five hundred miles; fruit in abundance and dried pumpkins; a little jerked beef, not too salt. The little wife had prepared the home-made yeast cakes, which she knew so well how to make and dry, and we had light bread to eat all the way across. We baked the bread in a tin reflector instead of the heavy Dutch oven so much in use on the plains.

"The butter melted and mingled with the flour, yet it did not matter much, as the 'shortcake' that resulted made us almost glad the mishap had occurred. Besides, did we not have plenty of fresh butter, from the milk of our own cows, churned every day in the can by the jolting of the wagon?"

Later on Mr. Meeker remarks:

"The ox has had much to do with the settlement of the country. The pioneers could take care of an ox team so much cheaper than a horse team that this fact alone would have been conclusive, but aside from this, oxen were better for the work in the clearings or for breaking up the vast stretches of wild prairie sod. We used to work four or five yoke to the plow, and when dark came unhitched and turned them on the unbroken sod to pasture for the night. On the plains oxen were better than horses for getting their feed and fording streams. There was another advantage, and an important one—the Indians could not run them off as easily as they could horses."

Since Mr. Meeker came from Indiana, by way of Iowa, he took the northern branch of the Oregon Trail, which began at Kanesville, now Council Bluffs, crossed the Missouri and followed the north bank of the Platte. The southern or main branch began at Independence, Missouri, and followed the south bank of the Platte.

When the Meeker party bought an old flatboat rather than pay an extortionate toll to the regular ferry men, the Kanesville sheriff tried to uphold the local monopoly by force. Instantly every emigrant within sight grabbed his rifle and came to the aid of Meeker. The sheriff withdrew.

"Some people have assumed that on the plains each man was a law unto himself.," Mr. Meeker remarks of this incident, "but nothing could be further from the facts, as evil-doers soon found out. While there was no mob law, the instinct for fair play and the counsels of the older men prevailed. In what is now Wyoming a murder had been committed and it was clear that the motive was robbery. The suspected man and his family were traveling along with the moving column. Men who had volunteered to search for the missing man finally found evidence proving the guilt of the person suspected. A council of twelve men was called and it deliberated until the second day, meanwhile holding the murderer safely.

"What were they to do? Here was a wife and four little children depending on this man for their lives. What would become of his family if justice was meted out to him? Soon there developed an undercurrent of opinion that it was probably better to waive punishment than to endanger the lives of the family; but the council would not be swerved from its resolution. At sundown of the third day the criminal was hanged in the presence of the whole camp. This was not done until ample provision had been made to insure the safety of the family by providing a driver to finish the journey. I came so near to seeing the hanging that I did see the ends of the wagon tongues in the air and the ropes dangling therefrom.

"The penalty for stealing was whipping, which, when inflicted by one of those long ox lashes in the hands of an expert, would bring the blood from the victim's back at every stroke. Minor offenses or differences generally were arbitrated. Lawlessness was less common than in the communities from which the emigrants had been drawn, for punishment was swift and certain."

Just across the Missouri cholera broke out and spread rapidly up and down the long line of covered wagons. Panic set in.

"Soon we began to see abandoned property," Mr. Meeker writes. "First it might be a table or a cupboard or, perhaps, a bedstead. Very soon, here and there, would be an abandoned wagon, then provisions—left with a sign, 'Help Yourself.' The abandonment of wagons continued as the teams became weaker and the ravages of cholera began to tell. Many lost their heads and ruined their teams by furious driving, lack of care and abuse. There came a veritable stampede—a strife for possession of the road, to see who should get ahead. It was against the rule to attempt to pass a team ahead, yet now whole trains would strive, often with bad blood, for the mastery of the trail."

Then the host of wagons from the south side of the Platte came across and joined those on the north side. Camping beside the trail with a brother stricken with cholera, Mr. Meeker in four days counted 1,600 wagons that passed. A woman counted seventy-five new graves in seven days. The entire column of wagons that year was 500 miles long. By the time Mr. Meeker got to Wyoming that trail had been worn so deep that even in the red sandstone the kingbolt of his wagon dragged on the high center of the road.

"The pioneer army was a moving mass of human beings and dumb brutes," says Mr. Meeker, "at times mixed in inextricable confusion a hundred feet wide. There would be a confused mass of cows, young cattle, horses and men afoot on the outskirts. Here and there would be the drivers of loose stock, some on foot and some on horseback—a young girl, maybe, riding astride, and with a younger child behind her.

"The dust was intolerable. In calm weather it would rise so thick that the lead team of oxen could not be seen from the wagon. Then, again, the steady wind would hurl the dust and sand like fine hail and sting the face and hands.

"An incident that made a profound impression on the minds of us all was the meeting with eleven wagons returning, and not a man left in the entire train. All the men had died and been buried on the way, and the women and children were returning to the homes alone. What became of them we never knew.

"Many of the pioneers crossed rivers in their wagon boxes, and very few lost their lives in doing so. The difference between one of these prairie-schooner wagon boxes and that of a scow-shaped, flat-bottomed boat is that the wagon box has the ribs on the outside, while in a boat they are on the inside. Often the wagon bodies would be lifted right off and poled across. Then the oxen would be driven into the water with the frame of the wagon behind them, and the men hanging on to the beasts and swimming behind them. I've seen a man go across a river holding onto the tail of an ox. And I have seen six men hanging on to one swimming mule. Then there were what we called bullboats. They were made of a light network of willow twigs covered with a buffalo robe or cowhide. They would turn and twist with every current, and when they got in an eddy they were regular merry-go-rounds.

"There was often buffalo meat to be had, and sometimes other game, and, of course, every pioneer started out with a big stock of provisions. But near the end of the journey only too often famine prevailed. I have seen whole families living on rabbits, herbs and even grass. I have known cases where

"GETS-IT" World's Fastest Way

The Spaniard By Juanita Savage

She went out, and once more Dolores and Don Pedro were alone together in the House of Dreams.

CHAPTER VIII.

The Way of Escape.

STILL conscious that Don Pedro's eyes were upon her Dolores stared into the fire. In spite of her efforts to retain her composure she was trembling slightly.

Don Pedro, a strong, dominant handsome figure, sat very still. The firelight gleaming on his face made his eyes seem like pools of light, and when Dolores, after a tense silence, forced herself to glance at him, she could see he was breathing quickly, and a vein was pulsing in his strong neck.

"Come here, Dolores," said Don Pedro. He spoke very softly and held out his arms, but there was a note of command in his quiet voice. "Come here and kiss me. You are very lovely tonight—as lovely as you were on that first night when you set me aflame. Come and kiss me, Dolores."

Dolores clutched the edge of the old oaken bench on which she was seated, as if to prevent herself from rising to obey the command.

"Don Pedro, we can't go on like this," she burst out breathlessly. "Won't you let me go? I don't care for you—will never care for you, and can never forgive you, but—but only let me go and I will take no action against you—will not tell anyone what has happened. I can say I lost myself in the forest, and—and no one will know. Let me go now."

Don Pedro's face was impassive, and he scarcely moved a muscle as Dolores gasped out her appeal. His eyes seemed even brighter than ever, and Dolores could not take her own eyes away from them. His arms were still extended towards her.

"I told you to come and kiss me," he said, still in low tones. "It would be better to obey unless—"

He paused, and the hidden menace in his soft words caused Dolores' heart to throb with terror. Her lovely face had gone white and her throat was dry. Her courage was going, but still she stood there. Her hands clasped and unclasped nervously.

He came towards her slowly. She shrank away, her eyes wide with fear.

His arms closed around her lissom waist, drawing her to him, and she felt his lips on hers, clinging to her own in a kiss that seemed to burn her and sap all her strength of resistance. She wanted to struggle but could not . . . Don Pedro drew her down on the settee beside him.

"Kiss me, Dolores," he ordered, cradling Dolores' neck in the hollow of his arm, and bending over her, his dark, handsome face within a few inches of her own, his eyes looking straight into hers. "I have been kissing you, but now I want you to kiss me. I want to feel your soft arms around my neck, and want you to kiss me like this—and this—and this."

As he spoke the last words he kissed Dolores again, pressing his lips on hers, and crushing her closer to him.

"Now!" he exclaimed, and waited; but Dolores' arms did not go round his neck as he had hoped. She lay passive in his arms, her violet-blue eyes almost black with the intensity of her agitation, her bosom heaving, her whole body quivering. "No?" continued Don Pedro, after a long pause. "Even I cannot infuse fire into you. You have yet to learn the meaning of love although you are my woman. But you shall learn it! You shall learn to kiss like this—and this—and this—and to hunger to be in my arms."

He kissed Dolores fiercely again and again as he spoke.

She struggled desperately, but his arms bound her like bonds of steel.

When Dolores came to herself again it was to find that it was still night, but Don Pedro had lighted the lamp which hung from the center of the ceiling, and was moving about the room.

As if he had been waiting for Dolores to open her eyes, he turned and looked at her, and a faint smile twitched the corners of his firm mouth.

"I am sorry to disturb you, and would be glad to remain here with you, but you will remember that we must start for Badajoz before dawn," he said. "I am preparing your outfit and my own, and I am going to take the liberty of transforming the most beautiful woman in the world into a boy. I, of course, know you are a woman—oh, yes, I know you are a woman!—but I do not wish to let anyone else know it during our journey!

Dolores listened dazedly, hardly understanding the purport of the words. She saw that the garments Don Pedro was handling looked shabby—the sort of clothes that peasants wore—and she wondered as she sat up in bed. Obviously Don Pedro was making mock of her again, but she could not understand his intentions.

"I won't wear those!" she cried, looking disdainfully at the garments he held out.

He took a step towards the bed, and she rose hastily.

It might be wise to pretend to be submissive, she reasoned, to allow Don Pedro to believe he had conquered her and broken her will, to lull him into a sense of security which would make escape easier when the opportunity came.

"I will help you to dress and to assume your disguise," he said calmly.

Dolores' cheeks were hot with embarrassment, and she avoided his eyes . . . She looked with distaste at the shabby clothes. There were trousers of corduroy, a blouse, a short coat, a cloak, a big colored handkerchief, and a slouch hat, heavy boots and coarse stockings.

"Why must I wear these?" asked Dolores, with a grimace of disgust.

"Because you happen to be Dolores Annesley, for whom the Civil Guard, the Carabineros, and a number of other people will be searching within a few hours," replied Don Pedro. "They will be seeking a beautiful woman, fashionably dressed, and will not give a peasant boy on a mule a second glance. I myself shall assume the garb of a peasant or a muleteer, and you will be my younger brother. It will pain me to disguise your beauty, but necessity demands it, and I shall appreciate your feminine loveliness the more when we reach my house in La Sierra Moreno and you are able to resume your identity. Please dress at once. We have no time to lose."

Don Pedro strode out of the room. Dolores set her teeth and clenched her hands in her anger.

"Oh, God, let me escape from this brute!" she prayed silently. "Death would be better than this."

Tears of vexation welled in her eyes, but she blinked them away impatiently, and began to put on the shabby clothes Don Pedro had laid out for her.

She looked into the glass. Her wonderful hair, like red gold mingled with burnished copper, was hanging over her shoulders, and even the rough skirt she had put on did not quite disguise the contours of her figure. She wondered how she was going to hide her hair, and had just started to braid it closely round her head, when she caught sight of something that made her heart leap. It was a revolver which Don Pedro evidently intended to carry with him for protection on the journey.

The way of escape! The thought flashed through Dolores' brain instantly, and she snatched up the weapon. She had handled firearms before, and she saw at a glance that the revolver was fully loaded. One shot and she could end her miseries.

She raised it to her temple just as a hand shot out, dashing the weapon from her grasp. Dolores screamed involuntarily. She had neither seen nor heard Don Pedro emerge from the dressing-room and she whirled round to find him, ashen-faced and wide-eyed beside her. His blow had sent the revolver hurtling across the room, and he darted over and picked it up before Dolores had recovered from the shock of surprise.

"What were you going to do, Dolores?" he demanded hoarsely, and it struck Dolores that he looked frightened—he who had never known fear. "What were you going to do?"

"I was going to kill myself," answered Dolores shakily, facing him defiantly. "I would rather die than live with you. If I had had time to think, I would have killed you first and made my escape."

Don Pedro stood motionless and silent for a few moments, his black brows contracted, his face gray and set. His expression frightened Dolores, and she wondered what he was going to do. He slipped the weapon into his pocket.

"You little fool, do you imagine you can escape me like that?" he exclaimed harshly, laying his hands on Dolores' shoulders, and compelling her to look into his eyes. "Can't you understand you will never escape me? Never, while we both live?"

His manner changed as his hands fell from her shoulders, and he laughed mockingly into Dolores' white face.

"Do not be in too great a hurry to become an angel," he resumed. "I prefer you as you are, with a spice of devil in you. Now let me complete your disguise. You have wasted enough time. Remember, I will tolerate no further nonsense. Bind you hair round your head quickly."

A week previously Dolores would have ridiculed the idea of obeying any man who dared order her about like a servant, but now after one look at his stern face, she obeyed Don Pedro.

She bound her hair as closely as possible round her head, and then Don Pedro deftly tied a gaudy handkerchief around it, completely concealing it. Next he produced a "make-up" box, seated Dolores on a chair under the lamp, and proceeded to stain her face.

Why wait 4 years? for the performance CHRYSLER gives you today

Today, there is nothing like Chrysler six-cylinder performance ..... Four years from today, perhaps, you will be able to get in other cars the performance you get right now in the Chrysler . . . Even with Chrysler to show the way, imitation and emulation have barely caught up with the performance of the original Chrysler—the car that obsoleted the cumbersome, bulky vehicles of four years ago . . . And during these four years, Chrysler's progressive engineering has constantly increased the long margin of Chrysler superiority . . . That is why the Illustrious Chrysler "72" at $1545 and upwards today gives you performance that you cannot equal in any other car, even if you pay $1000 more . . . That is also why the Great Chrysler "62" at $1065 and upwards offers you far more than you can buy in other cars costing many hundreds of dollars more . . . Why should you wait four years and pay far more money for the Chrysler performance you can have this very day and for so much less?

NOW IT LOOKS SO STYLISH!"

By Mae Martin

"I had a little crepe de chine dress of a very noticeable color," says Mrs. L— of Seattle, Wash. "It was fashionable the season I bought it, but was decidedly out the next year. Then it faded in washing and I decided to change the color. I had never done any tinting or dyeing, and was very timid about it. But my neighbor told me I could do as well as anyone, with Diamond Dyes. I got the colors necessary to make the shade I wanted over the original color of the dress, and, to make a long story short, it turned out beautifully. Now it looks so lovely and stylish, I want to wear it all the time."

The simple instructions in every package of Diamond Dyes make tinting and dyeing so easy that anyone can do it. New colors go on just like magic, right over the old, faded colors. Tinting with Diamond Dyes is easy as bluing, and dyeing takes just a little more time. Diamond Dyes are true dyes. Insist on them and save disappointment.

My new 64-page book, "Color Craft," will help you with your clothes and home furnishing problems. Hundreds of dollar-saving ideas, illustrated in colors. It's FREE. Just write Mae Martin, Dept. 35, Diamond Dyes, Burlington, Vermont.

The Story of a Man Who Married His Wife's Slayer to Save His Son

Synopsis of Preceding Chapters.

A YEAR after the death of his wife, Lady Mary Dale, in Egypt, the Rev. Hugh Dale, vicar of St. Sciriol's Parish, in a suburb of London, hears the confession of a beautiful nurse in which she admits that she gave a woman patient a fatal dose of poison in order to marry her son.

Gordon Dale, the vicar's son, returns to England with His fiancee, Cora Brierly, who was his mother's nurse, and Rev. Dale recognizes her as the woman whose confession he heard and who must be his wife's slayer. But he is powerless to warn his son, as Cora's secret is safe under the seal of the confessional.

Cora is only marrying Gordon for the money he has inherited. To save his son the vicar offers to marry her himself, as he, too, has £30,000 as well as considerable social position. She accepts, and Gordon upon hearing of it, leaves the house with Aileen Southcombe, his father's ward, vowing never to return.

Aileen goes to the Settlement House founded by Rev. Dale and Lady Mary while Gordon stops at Larcat's, a third-rate night club just around the corner. To revenge himself upon his father, he decides to buy the night club in order to ruin as many souls as the vicar saves at the Settlement.

Larcat's is raided, and in the confusion Gordon escapes with a young girl, Juliette Brendon, granddaughter of Countess Xanti. The girl takes him to the Countess' home, where she shows him a painting of his mother and one of Cora Brierly, the latter with a blood-red mark on the forehead, throat and over the heart. The Countess has Paul Mattanos, a Greek ex-medical student and Cora's accomplice in the murder of Lady Mary, imprisoned in her house.

Aileen goes to live at the Settlement, where Bill Gavenor, the son of Lady Gavenor, whom everyone about the Settlement calls "Boss," becomes very much interested in her. She devotes herself to the care of Lotta Larcat, who is suffering from a mental ailment. Lotta tells her how she painted two portraits for Countess Xanti, one of her own sister Cora and one of Paul Mattanos, because they had killed one the Countess loved. Lotta's illness is caused by a curse pronounced by strange, psychic old Countess Xanti upon Cora and which Lotta has willed to take upon herself. The vicar's fiancee is Lotta's sister.

Aileen accepts the management of Countess Xanti's household. The vicar marries Cora and they leave for a honeymoon in Paris.

With His Right Hand Dale Clung to the Window, While His Left Grasped the Shoulder of a Woman Whose Fingers Clung Desperately to the Ledge.

"When I left her," she said, "she was alive."

There was something so sinister in the simple words that Dale gave a cry. At the further end of the room, some people looked up and idly looked away again.

"What mark is that on your wrist?" he gasped.

She did not even glance at it. She leaned forward in her seat and looked up at him, her bright old eyes shadowed by her folded veil.

"Mr. Dale," she said impressively, "you are a good man. I do not know why you were called upon to protect your son at such a cost, but I do know that you sacrificed everything—that you stopped at nothing. Now let it be enough. I took on your struggle for you. I have used my own weapons. Sit down. Rest yourself here with me for half an hour. Then go—go back to the life that was yours before this last trouble came to you. You will have deserved your peace."

CHAPTER XX.

THE manager of the Hotel Colosse was in his office with the English doctor when Hugh Dale entered.

"I have been out for—for a stroll," he explained. "Unfortunately I did not take the keys of my suite with me and I can't get in. I thought perhaps you might have a duplicate key."

He took a bunch of keys from his safe and left the room, closely followed by Dale, who, the doctor noticed, was shivering with cold.

The doctor returned to the matter he had in hand. He worked on steadily for some ten minutes, when his solitude was disturbed in an unexpected manner. A page boy rushed into the room with a request from the manager that he should ascend to M'sieur Dale's suite at once.

"Is someone ill?" asked the doctor wearily.

The page was incoherent with excitement and haste. There had, the doctor gathered, been some kind of accident to Madame Dale, and his help was urgently required.

He followed the page upstairs and entered the sitting room. There was no one there. He crossed the room to the balcony.

The balcony was a small parlor, enclosed in glass and gay with hanging plants. In the middle of the main wall, the windows had been flung open. Two men hung excitedly out of them and others jostled behind them for a better view. The doctor pushed his way past them and gained a place at the window. A man's hand clung to the ledge from outside.

The hand was Dale's. He was standing on a narrow ledge of the ornamental design of the front of the building. With the right hand he clung to the window from which he had lowered himself; while the left grasped the shoulder of a woman, whose fingers clung desperately to the edge of the plinth. Dale's position was one to make the brain swim. The woman's position—

The doctor drew back violently, knocking into the manager of the hotel. The manager's face was white, his words almost inaudible.

"They are bringing ladders! If she can hold on—if he can hold her up—they may be in time. If they are not—what a scandal!"

"Did you find her holding to that plinth when you came up here with Dale?" asked the doctor. "What made you look outside? How—"

"That made us look!" The manager pushed the doctor towards the other side of the sitting-room and then went back to the windows.

Propped up behind the sitting-room door, the doctor saw the lifeless body of a man. He lowered the corpse to the floor and covered it with a coverlet from the bed in the next room. The bed, he noticed, had had the sheets torn from it.

The suite which Dale occupied was on the second floor and looked out over a park. Immediately below its windows—at the foot of the wall to which the woman was hanging—a terrace had been built out. From the edge of this, men dashed up with ropes. There were hoarse voices shouting, and a crowd gathered in the gardens outside.

"Thank heaven, they can see but little!" sighed the manager, wiping his forehead. "She has a dark gown on and there are no lights anywhere near her."

That, accounted for the fact that the hanging figure had not been discovered by anyone glancing up at the side of the hotel from the outside. But why had she not shrieked for help?

When at last she was drawn in and carried to her bed, the question of her silence was answered. She was securely gagged.

"Yes, she is still alive—yes, she will recover, but her nerves may be shattered." The doctor was too busy now to satisfy his own curiosity or that of others. "Have the room cleared, please. Let only her husband stay, and find a sensible woman who will do what she is told. . . . The police? I will come when I have attended to the lady."

Cora was moaning faintly. The doctor turned upon Dale, whose eyes were fixed and glassy with horror.

"Was she hanging by her fingers only?"

"By the time the manager and I saw her—yes. But there was a girdle of knotted linen round her waist and a broken length of linen hanging from the window. The sheets from her bed were evidently torn into strips and knotted together and then she was hung out of the window by the one thin

CHAPTER XIX.

"SO the snake, at least, is dying slowly!"

Dale, still dumb, became aware that the Countess watched him over the rim of her wine glass.

"Countess—" he stammered.

His voice came thickly to his ears. Try as he might he could produce no clearer sound. What had happened to him that he could sit here without power of speech or movement, gazing into the pale, glowing eyes of an old woman, who spoke to him in riddles of life and death? Surely he ought to get up—ask something—do something.

Her voice came to him again, huskily, bidding him drink. He could not obey. The lassitude that she had put upon him—for with the last flicker of clarity he believed that she had deliberately put it upon him—held him chained. He could not drink, he could not move or speak, or even wonder any more.

Waves of darkness rose from the depths of his being, engulfed him, drew him down.

Then, suddenly, he heard the voice of his son, Gordon, in urgent yet proud appeal—

"But for Heaven's sake, man! For Heaven's sake, man, fight!"

A soft thud, like the swinging of a door, extinguished the sound of the voice.

A violent spasm ran through Dale's body. It jerked him to his feet and into speech.

"My son, Gordon, is here somewhere! I heard his voice distinctly."

He swung around, staring at the panelled walls. Any of the panels might conceal a door. He passed his hands over his face. What did it matter whether Gordon were actually there or that the sound of his voice had been the product of overstrained nerves? "For Heaven's sake, man, fight!" The message, real or imagined, had come clearly enough!

"Countess Xanti, I must know what you mean. When you met me by the river, you had come from Cora. What passed between you?"

The Countess still sipped her wine. If she felt that Dale had wrenched his will away from the domination of hers she made no sign.

"I told you," she said. "The woman convinced me that only death could part her from you."

"Yes, yes—and then?"

He remembered now that she had told him that before.

"Countess, answer me this, as you value your own safety. Did you leave Cora safe and well?"

With maddening slowness, the Countess put down her glass, before she replied.

Glorious White Teeth Free of Dingy Film

The way dentists urge to brighten teeth and combat serious tooth and gum disorders

IF teeth are dingy, dull, "off color," they are film coated. Coated with a stubborn film ordinary brushing does not successfully remove. A film that dental science charges with most discolored teeth, with scores of serious tooth and gum disorders.

Send Coupon for 10-Day Tube Free

To remove it, you must use a special, film-removing dentifrice, say dental authorities. Thus most advise twice a day use of Pepsodent—a tooth paste different from all others; made especially to remove dangerous film from teeth.

Film is the great enemy of pretty teeth and healthy gums. It clings to teeth, gets into crevices and forms a breeding place for germs. It invites the acids of decay.

Film, too, is the basis of tartar. And germs, with tartar, are the cause of pyorrhea. It absorbs discolorations from food and smoking. And makes pretty teeth look "off color."

Pepsodent first curdles that film. Then removes it in gentle safety to enamel. It acts to firm the gums and give them healthy, coral color. It multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva and keeps the mouth clean. Largely on dental advice, thousands are discarding old ways for it. Get at drug store. Or send coupon for 10-day trial tube. See what a change takes place.

Yes . . my wife heard about USKIDE

These soles have been on these shoes for six months - over twice as long as any other soles I ever had

These letters of praise tell of long wear and money saved by USKIDE SOLES

United States Rubber Co.

Dear Sirs:-

About a year ago I purchased a pair of work shoes which I have used on my grain truck through snow, rain and all kinds o weather.

I bought these shoes because they looked like good, strong work shoes and the price was right.

In showing the shoes to a friend of mine lately and telling him of their exceptional wear he noticed the Uskide trade mark on the insten.

I never knew the sole of any shoe could be put to such hard usage as these have and last so long. They are still in good shape today and promise to give several months' service yet.

I know that the Uskide Sole is one of your products and I thought this story of service would interest you.

Very truly,

Henry J Wuntke

USKIDE SOLES outwear all others

USKIDE cuts your shoe bill

[USKIDE is made in plain or designed soles]

LUCKY is the man whose wife has discovered USKIDE Soles—or who has discovered them for himself.

He now has his shoes re-soled with soles that wear and wear and wear—twice or three times as long as leather—USKIDE Soles.

Leather Soles were the best shoe bottom material to be had in the old days before we had hard pavements and concrete factory floors—steel construction work—boiler rooms—motor trucks. But these are modern times and they demand a modern shoe sole, especially for hard workers and hard walkers.

Science developed it—USKIDE, the wonder sole for wear.

Here is the sole for the hard walker and the hard worker. There's no job too tough for USKIDE. It wears for months on work that grinds through ordinary soles in a few weeks. It cuts shoe bills right down to the minimum.

Besides being a wonder for wear, USKIDE has other important qualities.

It protects against slipping—that's important for men who work or walk on wet asphalt or smooth steel.

It is waterproof. And it is pliable, comfortable, both winter and summer.

When You Buy New Shoes

Your shoe dealer probably has heavy duty shoes with USKIDE Soles. We can refer you to leading manufacturers who make a feature of them. Ask your dealer to show them to you. They are mighty good shoes right through. You can count on it that the manufacturer who makes his shoes with USKIDE Soles, and the dealer who sells such shoes, are both trying to give you a better shoe for your money

Your Repairman has USKIDE

When your shoes need re-soling, tell the repairman you want USKIDE. He has it—or can get it quickly. Once you have had a pair of shoes soled with USKIDE that pair of shoes is just about certain to be soled for keeps. USKIDE Soles almost always outwear the uppers.

Ladies: No More Run-over Heels

USKIDE—the longer-wearing sole material—puts a stop to lopsided, ragged heels on ladies' shoes—heels that look bad and that make graceful walking impossible.

A pair of USKIDE Toplifts (a "toplift" is the bottom layer on a heel) will keep your heels trim and good-looking Your repairman will put them on for you.

Get Genuine USKIDE

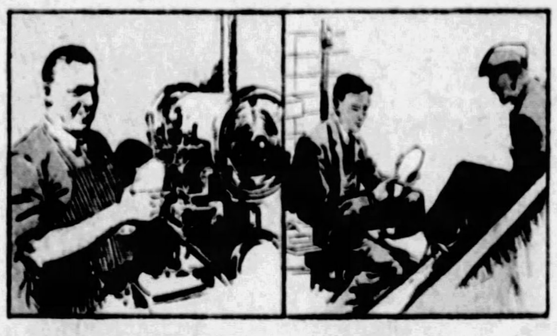
Unless you get real USKIDE, you won't get USKIDE wear. Other black soles may look like USKIDE—but they don't wear like USKIDE. Be sure—look for the name USKIDE.



THE SHOE REPAIR MAN—THE SHOE STORE MAN

These Two Men Know This

When they offer you USKIDE Soles on your new shoes or USKIDE for resoling your old shoes, they are giving you the most wear per dollar that you can buy.

"For Hard Workers and Hard Walkers," say Repairmen

For USKIDE I can say that it is absolutely the best soling material that I can find.

PHILIP BAUMAN & SON,
Chicago, Ill.

We have been attaching on our own initiative USKIDE Soles to shoes worn by policemen, workmen, teamsters and others, whom we know would demand extra hard wear of their shoes.

We have found that we have increased our business to this class of trade and people are returning asking for this sole. We recommend it very highly.

P J. SANTOS, Chicago, Ill.

I find that USKIDE Soles wear three times as long as the best sole leather. My customers that wear them will have nothing else, and they show them to other people and never tire of talking about them. When I meet USKIDE customers on the street they extend the glad hand to me. USKIDE Soles wear in coal mines for over eight months and in most any other service a year. I have a customer who works on the railway who has worn a pair of USKIDE Soles two years. I also have Bankers, Ministers and Business Men wearing them. They say they are fine and that they don't get wet feet with them.

JOHN BOYD, Irwin, Pa.

I am 57 years of age and have worked at shoe repairing since I was 13 years old in Europe and America. USKIDE beats any leather that ever was tanned for wear and workmanship. My customers always come back asking for USKIDE again.

JOSEPH H. BERGMAN,
Los Angeles, Calif.

"My USKIDES were in continual wear for 14 months, having been tested by all kinds of weather and laborious work."—R. H. NUTHALL, Truckman, Erwin, Pa.

"Send me two dollars' worth of USKIDE by parcel post, C. O. D., as I work on the railroad and have worn out one pair of USKIDE Soles and they have anything else beat."—W. H. TALLEDGE, Railroad Man, Osage, Iowa.

"I walk and stand a lot, travel constantly, and I am sold on USKIDE. Since wearing USKIDE Soles, I have never in my life walked better or had my feet better after a day's work. I am going to have USKIDE put on all my new shoes, for now I know what real comfort and real money-saving wear is like."—A. A. SUTOR, Salesman, Detroit, Mich.

"I consider your USKIDE material superior to the average leather sole for wear. USKIDES are waterproof and do not slip on the wet pavements, which is a wonderful advantage to a person in rainy weather."—H. R. EDWARDS, Postman, Scranton, Pa.

"I find that USKIDE Soles give a safe and secure foothold, are waterproof, and will outwear any other sole I ever had. They sure are comfortable—don't draw the feet even in the hottest weather. I can climb to the highest place on any building and feel safe, as I know USKIDE won't slip."—I. E. ATWOOD, Swanton, Vt.

"I can't wear out USKIDE soles. I weigh 200 pounds and the shoes have had the hardest use."—JAMES J. COCHRANE, Railway Inspector, New York City.

Saving money is not my idea

THAT is, saving money at the expense of dependability. No doubt, I could buy cheaper flashlight batteries than Eveready, but I'm taking no chances. When I press the switch, I want LIGHT.

I use Eveready Batteries on my radio set and Eveready Batteries in my flashlight. They are made by the same people in the same shops. And how! It's sometimes a matter of light or death. What's a penny or two then?

Get the flashlight habit. A good flashlight is always a convenience — often a life-saver. And the battery is terribly important!

Sore, Aching Feet

Tender feet—tired, aching, burning and swollen feet! The minute you put them into a "Tiz" bath you can feel the pain being drawn out and glorious comfort being restored.

"Tiz" draws out the poisons and acids that cause your feet to ache, swell and burn. It also takes the soreness out of corns, calluses and bunions. Get a box of "Tiz" at any drug or department store and have real foot comfort at last. Costs only a few cents.

DON'T HAVE OLD LOOKING HANDS

Your hands and skin may appear as youthful and fresh as ever, regardless of the kind of work you have to do, if you will but give them the proper care. An entirely new preparation that contains a Japanese product that is simply marvelous for beautifying, whitening and softening the skin is now being put up in this country and is fast displacing the old fashioned creams, face and hand lotions. This new product is called Ice-Mint and druggists say they are having an enormous demand for it as it has proved to be the very best beautifier for not only the hands but face, neck, arms and shoulders. Ice-Mint is sold at all druggists. Its cost is little and women everywhere are surprised at the real beauty it brings to their hands and skin wherever applied. Ice Mint Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

Stop Feet From Burning and Aching This Very Night

Soreness All Gone By Morning

You've got to get under the surface if you want to get rid of foot agony and misery—the distressing trouble is more than skin deep.

What your poor, inflamed feet are craving for is Joint-Ease—a penetrating, soothing, healing emollient that you can rub on tonight and banish the agony while you sleep.

You probably will never know what real foot comfort is till you give them a good rubbing with Joint-Ease.

Millions who have suffered untold agony from burning feet, but who can now walk miles without discomfort, know this and you can get the same blessed relief this very night if you will put your faith in Joint-Ease.

Suppose you get a 60 cent tube today from any druggist in America with the distinct understanding that your feet are better—very much better in the morning—or money back.

On that basis you don't risk a penny. But give them a good rubbing so that Joint-Ease will have a chance to get to the seat of the trouble. Pope Lab., Hallowell, Maine.

strip and left there to wait until the strip broke."

"I see. She pulled herself up the strip while it still held and when it began to tear, transferred her weight to the ledge. And this was done, I suppose, by the man who then poisoned himself in the next room?"

But Dale made no answer. He sank into a chair; and from the chair he slipped, senseless, to the floor.

* * *

"Have you seen this morning's papers?"

Aileen looked up from her accounts as Juliette Brendon burst in upon her.

"No, I haven't had time. Why? Is there something—oh, Juliette, nothing has happened to Gordon?"

"No, nothing has happened to Gordon," she said with a smile that made Aileen flush. "And talking of Gordon Dale, I forgot to tell you that Bill Gavener rang you up yesterday to ask if we would dine with him and go to a theatre tonight. I accepted. It will be the first time that I have been openly to a theatre. Up to now, I have had to hide at the back of the dress circle in case any of grandmother's friends——"

"Juliette! This must be about Uncle Hugh—and, and—his wife!"

Juliette, settling back in the chair, had let the paper she carried slide to the floor. Aileen had pounced upon it.

Then, as she saw that Aileen's hands trembled, Juliette pulled the paper away from her. "Don't read any more if your nerves are as bad as that! I'll tell you what happened much more briefly and mercifully than the paper can.

"Your Uncle Hugh went out for a stroll after dinner leaving his bride alone in their suite. Presently an old lady called upon her, accompanied by an Arab servant—oh, yes—" as Aileen exclaimed—"the old lady was my grandmother. She does not deny it. She spent a few minutes with the bride and then departed. A purely friendly call, no doubt. A few minutes afterwards, a man entered the hotel and went upstairs, asking no one the way. A servant who met him thought that he was ill because he walked so queerly, as though he were dazed."

"And when Uncle Hugh came back—?"

"He found the outer door of the suite locked and the manager had to let him in. The first thing they found was the body of the strange man, dead. On the table was a paper on which he had written a confession of what he had done."

"And what had he done?"

"Hung her out of the window on a thin strip of bed linen. If she had not managed to hold on to the masonry somehow until help came, she would have broken her neck. Mrs. Dale, on regaining consciousness, recognized the man as Paul Mattanos, a one-time admirer of hers. In despair at her marriage to another, Mattanos planned the hideous revenge. The phial which contained the poison which ended his own life was found upon the floor beside his body."

"Poor Uncle Hugh! Oh, poor Uncle Hugh!" cried Aileen. "What a horrible thing to happen to him!"

"You are not wasting very much pity on her," commented Juliette dryly.

"I don't like her," she said with more vigor than she had shown since she came to Courtney Square. "In fact, I detest her and everything she stands for!"

"Bravo!" applauded Juliette. "I was beginning to think that you hadn't got it in you to really hate—or love—anybody."

She rose and left the room with the slightly swaggering walk which Aileen had at first thought insolent, but which she already regarded with affectionate indulgence.

It surprised Aileen that she should like Juliette Brendon so much. She was so hard to understand; and yet, although Aileen had been with her for less than forty-eight hours, she felt that somehow friendship had sprung up between them.

Aileen forced herself to concentrate upon her work. Presently she put away her books and went her round of the big house. She did not know whether Juliette was in the house or not. She had promised Juliette that she would give an eye to the workmen busy in the rooms over the mews and, leaving the "office," she went towards that part of the house. As she went, she remembered the glove she had picked up there—a man's grey suede glove.

In the hall she stood for a moment. Then she returned to the office and picked up the paper. Her eye went to a description of Paul Mattanos, the man who had killed himself. "Paul Mattanos," she read, "was thin and about six feet in height; his eyes were dark, his lips very red, his face thin with a big nose and slightly receding chin. He wore a dark overcoat over a grey suit, a bowler hat and one glove, grey suede. The other was missing when the body was discovered."

Aileen folded away the paper. She remembered when the Countess departed for Paris, she and Achmed the Arab were not alone in the great car. Countess Xanti had, according to the news report, explained her visit to the Hotel Colosse in a perfectly natural way.

Aileen went first to the kitchen quarters and interviewed cook and butler. She looked into each of the reception rooms; then went higher still, through empty guest rooms to the threshold of the rooms that belonged to Countess Xanti herself. Here, a dark-browed woman was in charge; the Countess' own maid Aileen gathered.

"So it was not she who as in the car with the Countess and Achmed," thought Aileen.

Aileen reach the upper floor and stopped in amazement. Yesterday, when Juliette had shown her the house, she had particularly noticed the cheerlessness of these apartments. Now they were gay with painted furniture and glowing chintzes—and the furniture and chintzes were her own!

While she stared, a familiar face appeared in the doorway and a familiar voice sounded in her ears.

"Oh, Miss Aileen! No wonder you're all of a heap. Miss Brendon, she saw to it all yesterday, getting my address from Bates and taking all your things away from the Vicarage. Come in, Miss, and see how nice everything has been made."

The speaker was Dora, who had been Aileen's personal attendant.

"Done like lightning, it was," Dora was babbling, "while Miss Brendon took you out shopping. The little room that used to be her bedroom is to be mine and the old schoolroom is to be Miss Brendon's sitting-room."

"It's wonderfully kind of Miss Brendon," murmured Aileen, still dazed.

She went into the old schoolroom and looked round. It had been transformed into a tasteful bed-sitting-room, such as any young girl might have chosen to inhabit.

"I promised to look at her other rooms," said Aileen, and reluctantly went for the rooms over the mews.

Here she found a voluble gentleman unpacking hangings of silk and furniture Eastern in design and coloring. Fascinated, Aileen watched the decorators and upholsterers work.

She was still watching them when word was brought to her that Mr. Gordon Dale had come to see her.

She went to the Count's study, where he waited.

He looked haggard and worn. He greeted her, however, more gently than she expected.

"They told me at the Settlement that you had taken a position here," he said. "Honestly, I don't like it. But I suppose I can't induce you to leave?"

"I must have work of some kind," Aileen pointed out quietly. "No, I do not think I want to leave. I have a friend here, you see."

"You mean Countess Xanti's granddaughter? Aileen, I came to see you about—"

"About what is in the papers this morning. There is nothing we can do, is there?"

"No, there is nothing," he said. "But there is one thing I want to do. Aileen, you remember Lotta Laresi's tale of two pictures she painted? I have seen them and I want to see them again."

"Miss Brendon is out," hesitated Aileen, "and I don't quite see how you can get in."

"I am going to break in," he said. "You can show me the way, and if you lose this job I will get you another."

Aileen protested, while Gordon propelled her gently out of the room and up the stairs. He remembered the way, apparently, well enough without her guidance. She could only stand helplessly by while he laid his shoulder to the door and forced it open.

She saw him go in, then heard an exclamation. She hurried in.

In front of her was a curtained picture. To the right a picture of Cora Brierly. The left was blank but on the floor lay a broken frame which Gordon was turning over.

She drew near and gazed down upon the portrait of a man she knew at once to be the Paul Mattanos described by the news reporter. Across the picture ran the black lines of a cross.

"My grandmother locked that room before she went away," said Juliette's voice behind them. "There was no cross on the picture then, and no one could have touched it since. She had black magic, that old woman—after all."

Aileen and Gordon started guiltily. Juliette, however, seemed quite undisturbed by their presence in that room. She looked at the broken picture.

"I had begun to think that it was all childs play," she said. "But this—makes me wonder." She looked up at the portrait of Cora Brierly. "I would not be that woman for a very great deal," she declared softly.

"That woman had a sister who shouldered her burden for her!" exclaimed Aileen impulsively.

"You know the woman in this picture?" asked Juliette.

"For a year she was engaged to be married to me," said Gordon in an expressionless voice. "She was my mother's nurse in Cairo. I introduced her to my father some time ago and she—shall we say, transferred her affections?"

Juliette nodded and stared at the ground. Evidently this last statement was no news to her.

"You knew that already!" exclaimed Gordon.

"Yes."

"How did you know Miss Brierly was engaged to me first?"

"I heard it from my grandmother, Mr. Dale."

"And how did she know it?"

Juliette was deliberating.

"I am not sure that I want to tell you," she said at last.

"Let me see if I can persuade you."

Gordon took from his breast pocket a folded copy of a daily picture paper.

"This," he pointed to an illustration on the back page, "is a photograph of the dead Mattanos. And this," he indicated the picture on the floor, "is a portrait of the man when alive. The police would be interested, I think." Then, as Juliette laughed scornfully, "One moment! This report of the attempt on Cora Brierly's life assumes that Mattanos had been in Paris some time before Cora arrived there; but the fact is—and the Paris police have no doubt discovered that by now—he flew there at the same time that your grandmother did, though not in the same plane. I happen to know, because I went over with him."

Both his listeners stared at him in surprise.

"There was no intrigue about it on my part," he went calmly on. "I had quarreled with my father, and I wished very much to see him once more before he left for Paris. I had gathered from her," he nodded at Cora's portrait, "that they were going to fly across, and I went down to the aerodrome to intercept them. I found I had delayed too long; they had already left. They had been married that morning. Did you know that, Aileen?"

Aileen stifled an exclamation. She shook her head. "There was a chap hanging about at the aerodrome—one of the pilots—whom I knew," Gordon continued. He quite casually told me his brother had just gone over with an old lady who had an Arab servant with her. I knew that your grandmother employed an Arab and so I made it my business to study the passenger list."

"And you found that it was my grandmother. Well, that proves nothing—"

"One moment! . . . about an hour after the Countess had left Frazer was told that his passenger was waiting. I went to see him off and recognized the passenger."

Blood Grows Hair

If you're getting bald, are troubled with falling hair or dandruff—your blood line is too low. Faulty circulation in the scalp, authorities agree, is the main cause of hair troubles. Only your blood can nourish the hair papillae and grow new hair; all other methods are futile. So Science agrees. If you would ward off baldness, raise your blood line.

Suction Does It—

[New Scientific Discovery]

A world famous scalp specialist, who has treated thousands with amazing success, has invented a marvelously simple device which stimulates blood circulation more effectively than any other method ever known. It actually grows hair by suction! And no simple that any one at home can use it with results as perfect as when applied by a scalp specialist. This ingenious suction cup brings blood to the scalp in an amazingly short time—just 5 minutes a day will bring you new hair and a healthy scalp. And at trifling cost.

I make this offer to all—try my suction cup method 10 days. If you don't have a new growth of hair on that bald spot, if you don't stop falling hair, if you're not free of dandruff, the treatment won't cost you a penny! That's fair, isn't it? I take all the risk.

Stay Young With Your Daughter

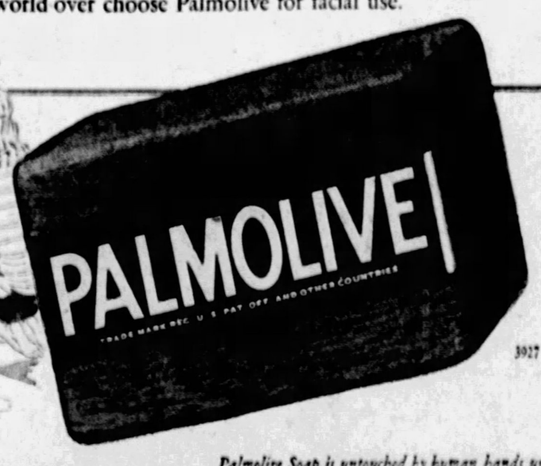
As scores of mothers do by keeping that schoolgirl complexion, the result of natural ways in skin care. The simple daily rule to follow:

Youth is charm, and youth lost is charm lost, as every woman instinctively realizes.

To keep youth, keep the skin clean and the pores open. Banish artificial ways in skin care. Natural ways are best.

Use soap, but be sure it is a soap made basically for use on the face. Others may prove harsh. That is why, largely on expert advice, women the world over choose Palmolive for facial use.



Retail Price 10c

Palmolive Soap is untouched by human hands until you break the wrapper—it is never sold unwrapped

THE present generation recognizes charm only in Youth; with every daughter wishing, in her heart, for her mother to retain, above all things, her youthful allure.

Most mothers know how true that is. And those who are wise in modern beauty methods know too that natural ways in skin care are the most effective known for holding back the hands of time.

That means soap and water—a clean skin, pores cleansed regularly of age-inviting accumulations. Beauty experts advise it. Skin specialists urge it—but always, of course, with the Right Kind of Soap. That is the important point.

The rule to follow if guarding a good complexion is your goal

So, largely on expert advice, more and more thousands of women turn to the balmy lather of Palmolive, used this way:

Wash your face gently with soothing Palmolive Soap, massaging the lather softly into the skin. Rinse thoroughly, first with warm water, then with cold. If your skin is inclined to be dry, apply a touch of good cold cream—that is all.

Do this regularly, and particularly in the evening. Use powder and rouge if you wish. But never leave them on over night. They clog the pores, often enlarge them. Blackheads and disfigurements often follow. They must be washed away.

Avoid this mistake

Do not use ordinary soaps in the treatment given above. Do not think any green soap, or one represented as of olive and palm oils, is the same as Palmolive.

And it costs but 10c the cake! So little that millions let it do for their bodies what it does for their faces. Obtain a cake today. Then note the amazing difference one week makes. The Palmolive-Peet Company, Chicago, Ill.

PALMOLIVE RADIO HOUR—Broadcast every Friday night—from 10 to 11 p.m., eastern time; 9 to 10 p.m., central time—over station WEAF and 31 stations associated with The National Broadcasting Company.

KEEP THAT SCHOOLGIRL COMPLEXION

Watch the Gas.

BE sure there is no gas escaping from your gas stove, gas jets or gas heater. Look them over, especially after cleaning around them and before going to sleep.

MISS ROSALINE DUNN

TRADITION

FOR 15 years my greatest problem was to find the polish that would give the nails of my fashionable clients the soft, lustrous tint of perfection.

When Paris ushered in the sensible vogue of liquid polishes, I tried each of them eagerly. But none lived up to my expectations.

Then in dainty twin phials I discovered Glazo! At last I had the polish that lavished beauty with abandon, that would delight my fastidious clientele.

What a truly marvelous polish it is! Its velvety lustre will, I believe, make nail loveliness an American tradition.

It adorns the finger tips with exquisite radiance which remains undimmed for a whole week, which will neither crack, peel, nor dull in spots.

Keep Your Hands Lovely

Now, with my help and Glazo, you can in a twinkling bestow on your hands the beauty that distinguishes the hands of my clients.

I have prepared a little booklet which explains in detail my method of manicuring the hands. It shows you how with Glazo Cuticle Oil or Cream you can keep the cuticle edge soft, pink, and even, creating a perfect setting for dainty white half-moons. My method of keeping industrious hands lovely and soft is covered thoroughly. And it shows you how I shape the nails to give the fingers an effect of aristocratic length and slimness. Also, if you will follow my method, Glazo, the Liquid Polish, will give your nails the fascinating beauty of perfection.

Of course, you can purchase Glazo Cuticle Oil, Glazo Cuticle Cream and Glazo Liquid Polish at all the better shops and stores. The price of the polish complete with remover is only fifty cents.

The merest word from you, and I will send you my little booklet and a Miniature Glazo Manicure. Just fill in and mail the coupon with 10c.

FOR SKIN IRRITATIONS

The Spaniard

By Juanita Savage

neck and hands to give them the appearance of being deeply tanned, and added a few lines which changed the whole appearance of her face.

Dolores, when she looked in the glass, could hardly recognize her own reflection. In her coarse garments she looked like a handsome and somewhat effeminate Spanish boy of the laboring class.

"Get some dirt on your hands and into your fingernails when you go out," ordered Don Pedro, curtly. "Also keep your hands in your pockets if we have to talk to anyone. Leave the talking to me. Your name until we reach Badajoz is Juan Manuel. Mine is Jose Manuel. Remember it!"

He proceeded to complete his own disguise, and Dolores, as she watched him, wondered if he had at some time been an actor, so skillful was he in the use of make-up. When he had finished, even his most intimate friends would not have recognized him as the famous matador.

"That will do," he commented with a satisfied nod, as he surveyed his reflection critically in the mirror. "Take that bundle and come along. The mules will be in readiness. Hurry!"

She drew a deep breath as they emerged from the house into the cold air, feeling that every step took her nearer to freedom. She had resolved to escape from Don Pedro at all costs.

CHAPTER IX.

Recapture.

IT was not yet dawn, but in the East a ghostly gray light was beginning to conquer the darkness of the night as Don Pedro led the way through a narrow track between the trees.

Dolores was an expert horsewoman, but she soon found that riding a mule on an old and uncomfortable saddle was a very different thing from a canter in the Row, or a run with the Pytchley.

On they went, hour after hour, and Dolores' hopes began to fade again. Shortly before noon Don Pedro halted on a rocky plateau which commanded a magnificent view of the surrounding country. Far below Dolores could see a white streak which she guessed must be the main road to Seville.

"We will rest here and eat," said Don Pedro, shortly. "Dismount and tether your mule."

He stood gazing abstractedly at the magnificent panorama below him for a time, paying no heed to Dolores, who dismounted stiffly, aching and sore.

She sat down on a rock, and Don Pedro lit a cigarette and proceeded leisurely to produce food and a flask of wine from his pack. Suddenly Dolores stiffened, and her heart gave a great leap. Coming round the mountain side towards her were two men.

They were quite close. Don Pedro had not seen them and would be taken unawares. Now the men were hidden by a jutting rock and a turn of the path, but they reappeared. They were only a few yards away, and Dolores' heart was throbbing so fast that she could hardly breathe for she recognized one of he men as a servant at the castle.

At that moment Don Pedro, turning to offer her a piece of bread, was struck by her expression, followed her glance, and saw the men approaching.

"Keep silent!" he hissed in a whisper. "Remember my instructions."

He waited, apparently perfectly calm and composed, as the men approached, and gave them greeting after taking a bite out of a piece of bread in his hand.

"Good day, senors," he mumbled. "One does not often have the pleasure of meeting travellers in the mountains."

The men returned his salutation, but regarded him somewhat suspiciously, one of them fingering significantly the butt of a big old-fashioned pistol he wore in a holster on his belt.

"Who are you, my friend?" asked the man with the pistol.

"Me?" said Don Pedro, with a stupid air. "I am Jose Manuel. My brother and I are going home to Badajoz. We have been selling mules in Cordova, and will be glad to get home, for we have heard there are robbers in these parts."

Dolores had risen to her feet and taken a pace forward. She was trembling violently, but, nerving herself with an effort, she cried out shrilly.

"Save me! I am Dolores Annesley!"

She tore the gaudy handkerchief from her head as she cried out the words, and her hair came tumbling down around her shoulders. Taken by surprise, the men stared at her, and before they could recover themselves one of them—the man with the pistol—was sprawling on his back. Don Pedro, quick as lightning, had swung up his fist and caught the fellow on the point of the chin, knocking him senseless.

He hurled Dolores aside and sprang at the other man, the servant from the castle. The servant was a big, strong, burly fellow, and he snatched a knife from his belt as Don Pedro sprang at him and stabbed at his adversary. Don Pedro dodged the blow, and his left hand closed like a vice on the servant's knife-wrist.

His eyes were blazing with fury, and his lips curled back from his white teeth in an angry snarl. To and fro he and the servant swayed, wrestling, cursing, striking at each other.

Dolores did not see all this. She had recovered herself and was running along the rough mountain path as fast as her heavily-shod feet would carry her, running desperately and breathlessly crying out as she ran, and praying that there might be more servants from the castle near enough to hear her cries.

She heard a shout, and glanced over her shoulder to see Don Pedro racing in pursuit of her. At the same moment she trod on a loose stone, twisted her ankle and fell. Before she could recover herself, Don Pedro was upon her. He caught her up roughly in his arms, and there was such ferocity in his glance that he struck terror into Dolores' soul.

Back to the scene of the struggle he carried her swiftly, set her on her feet, then caught her by the waist and slung her up on the back of her mule.

"Bind up your hair," he snarled at her. "I will deal with you later."

Dolores was shaken, bruised and frightened. With trembling fingers she bound up her hair, watching Don Pedro fearfully as she did so, and wondering apprehensively what he would do to her for having dared to escape from him.

Don Pedro was on the ground, tying up the hands and feet of the man he had fought. Then he darted across to the other man, who was just regaining consciousness, and tied him also.

"I have a mind to kill them both," he growled through set teeth, as he rose. A low moan of horror came from Dolores.

Don Pedro looked round at her, strode across and picked up the handkerchief and hat which she had cast aside, and handed them to her.

"Put these on quickly, then ride ahead of me," he snapped. "Ride fast, and remember that if you meet anyone and try to reveal your identity again, I will kill you."

Dolores obeyed and urged her sure-footed mule along the rough mountain track. Don Pedro clattered along close behind her, and did not speak save to give orders occasionally as to the direction to take. Through gloomy valleys, along green mountain sides, and through forests they rode, and darkness was falling and the mules were exhausted when at last Don Pedro called a halt.

So stiff and exhausted by fatigue was Dolores that when she dismounted she collapsed on the ground. Don Pedro merely glanced at her and made no movement to assist her to rise.

"We will spend the night here," he remarked coldly. "I know of a cave in which we can find shelter. We can tether the mules here in the valley where there is fodder and water for them, and start again at daybreak."

He unsaddled the tired mules, watered them, then picked up his pack and saddle and slung them on his shoulder.

"Get up!" he ordered curtly. "Follow me, and bring your saddle and blanket with you."

He strode away without a backward glance, and Dolores scrambled painfully to her feet and staggered after him. She was aching with weariness, so tired that she could hardly walk, and the saddle and bundle were too great a burden for her. Again she collapsed when at last she reached the cave in the mountain side to which Don Pedro led her.

There was no pity in Don Pedro's eyes as he looked at her, but he produced a flask of wine and thrust it into her hand.

"Drink some of this," he said. "It will revive you, then you can eat. You have had nothing to eat since last night, but you have only yourself to blame. But for your mad folly, we could have traveled leisurely and spent the night in comfort at a posada instead of here. As it is, we will have to travel by a circuitous route to my Castillo Moro."

Dolores gulped down some of the wine, which warmed and revived her, and presently she was able to eat some of the food which Don Pedro produced from his pack and set on the ground before her. Don Pedro ate and drank in silence, staring straight before him across the green valley, over which the shadows of night were creeping.

His meal over, he produced his cigarettes, and flung one to Dolores, much as he might have tossed a bone to a dog.

Dolores lit her cigarette and sat silently brooding. Twilight deepened into darkness, and a crescent moon came up over the tree tops, making the valley a place of fantastic shadows. Don Pedro continued to sit silent, smoking many cigarettes, and Dolores found herself wondering uneasily what was passing through his mind.

She stirred restively, and Don Pedro rose and stretched himself.

"I have been wondering how to punish you, Dolores," he remarked in quiet, cold tones. "It is difficult. A man does not break the cup from which he has drunk in joy. I could thrash you, but the sight of welts on your white flesh would give me no pleasure. On the contrary, it would make you seem less desirable in my eyes. Yet you must be taught a lesson. I will defer your punishment until we reach the Castillo Moro. Uncertainty as to how you will be made to suffer will be the first part of your punishment."

For a moment Dolores forgot her weariness. The calculated cruelty of his words stung her to indignation.

"Do you imagine that anything you can do to me will make me suffer more than I have already suffered?" she burst out passionately. "Torture of the body is nothing compared with torture of the soul, you fiend!"

Don Pedro laughed mockingly, and threw away the end of his cigarette.

"I doubt if you have a soul, or a heart either," he retorted calmly. "You had better rest now, but in case you feel tempted to try to lose yourself, Dolores, I propose to take certain precautions."

How come, you ask? Do a little arithmetic with us and find out. The average dentifrice costs you 50c. You use about a tube a month. Twelve times fifty equals six dollars, the yearly cost. Listerine Tooth Paste costs 25c (the large tube). Twelve times twenty-five equals three dollars. All right. Six dollars minus three dollars equals three dollars, your annual saving. Spend it as you please.

Gleaming Tartar-Free Teeth

With a Minimum of Brushing

THERE are many excellent dentifrices on the market selling at a trifle above or below 50c—but is it necessary to pay that much? Why not a first class dentifrice at 25c—scientifically correct for all types of teeth?

Believing this to be a sound price, we created Listerine Tooth Paste at 25c for a large tube. It is the result of more than fifty years' study of tooth and mouth troubles.

Now it is sweeping the country. Everywhere it is supplanting older and costlier dentifrices that accomplish no more.

Due to the presence of an amazing new and gentle polishing agent, it keeps teeth gleaming white with almost no brushing. Included in it are certain ingredients we have found most ideal in keeping the mouth and gums fresh and healthy.

Try Listerine Tooth Paste for a month. See how it makes teeth gleam. Note how good your mouth feels after using it. Compare it with any paste you have ever used and judge it by results alone. And then reflect that these results are costing you about half of what you ordinarily pay. Lambert Pharmacal Company, St. Louis, Mo., U. S. A.

I used the choicest white curled horse hair, padded with softest down. I believed these mattresses the most luxurious that could be devised . . And then I slept on a Simmons Beautyrest Mattress! Never had I known such ease. It was a revelation—of buoyant, blissful comfort!"

Miss Choate praises the practical and "amazingly buoyant" Ace Spring. "With its new cover," she says, "it is an excellent substitute for the heavy box spring to which we are accustomed. The Beautyrest Mattress and Ace Spring are surpassingly comfortable." This famous sleeping equipment is the achievement of Simmons, world's greatest makers of Beds, Springs and Mattresses.

In furniture and department stores, Simmons Beautyrest Mattresses $39.50; Simmons Ace Springs $19.75. Simmons Beds $10 to $60; No. 1025, $35. Look for the name "Simmons." The Simmons Company, New York, Chicago, Atlanta, San Francisco.

Inner Coils—The Secret of Comfort—The Simmons Beautyrest Mattress owes its comfort to its center of springy coils—deep set in luxurious upholstering. $39.50

ABOVE RIGHT

The Simmons Ace Spring—an extra number of resilient wire coils assures amazing buoyancy. The tailored cover (additional) makes it look like a box spring. $19.75

A Bedroom in Miss Choate's New York Home—A restful room with gray-green walls and hangings, bedspread and slip covers of gray-green chintz flowered in rose. The furniture is old cherry and mahogany and the Simmons Bed an Early American model, No. 1025 is cherry maple finish, equipped with the "surpassingly comfortable" Simmons Ace Spring and Beautyrest Mattress.

As Good-looking as They are Luxurious—the ingenious coil construction of Simmons sleeping equipment assures not only comfort but smart good looks. For the coils extend to the very mattress edge, holding the boxed sides always upright. How neat and trim your bed looks when made up! Best of all this smartness lasts as long as the mattress is used—and the Simmons Beautyrest Mattress and Simmons Ace Spring are incomparable for staunch service.

To Mark the Famous Oregon Trail

starvation was kept off only by grasshoppers — the only living things that could be found to be eaten. And this was when bodies were worn down to the limit of endurance.

"There were the ceaseless anxieties, the fear of Indian attacks, the tragedy of illness or of accident in this wilderness, where the sufferer must still go on or be abandoned with his or her little group, while the rest of the wagon train pushed on. There was always the fear of something happening to the oxen.

"Month after month my wife, Eliza, had gone through this. We came to old Fort Boise, a log stockade. A score or more of wagons clustered there, and I looked into one of them. A woman lay there, dead. Worn out! What had become of her husband no one knew. She lay there with sunken, haggard face, her hair streaming unkempt about it. Her hands were clenched upon her breast, and they were blackened and grimy and toil-worn. To her clung a little boy and two little girls, her children, and the oldest not seven. They called to her to speak to them. Orphans of the wilderness. What became of them? I do not know; other pioneers took them along."

Indians were not so dangerous while Mr. Mecker was on the trail as they afterward became, because, as he points out, the government had not yet made and broken treaties with the Indians. Hence the Indians were more intent on robbery than on avenging their betrayal by the whites, as was the case in later years. Nevertheless, there were times when the Indians openly attacked the whites, and always there was the fear of massacre during the night.

"At nightfall, when we came to rest, we would work our wagons into a big circle, each with its tongue overlapping the one ahead, and each fastened to the other with the brake or yoke chains. There was an opening in one end through which we drove the stock. After that the opening was closed. This was what the Boers called a laager.

"When the Indians attacked they used to sweep down yelling at the top of their lungs. They would circle around the camp, getting closer and closer and banging away with their guns. Now an Indian riding like mad in the dim starlight is a pretty hard target to hit. We learned to wait for the flashes of their guns and then shoot quick a little ahead, figuring that was about where the Indian would be. Sometimes we hit. We lay in the wagons and under them. Those in the wagons shot through the flaps of the curtains. They made a better mark for the redskins than those under the wagons. But, on the other hand, the fellows under the wagons had to be very watchful. Maybe an Indian would drop off his horse or maybe his horse would be shot from under him. Whichever happened, he would be likely to crawl over like a snake, and the first thing the pioneer knew he would have a knife in his ribs and his scalp would be gone.

"The women used to keep the guns loaded, but a lot of them could shoot, too, and did. When the Indians rushed it would be nip and tuck for a while, gunfire spitting in the darkness, yells and banging, and the cattle scared foolish and raising riot in the corral. But there was never a whimper from woman or child. That was the stuff the pioneer women were made of. Thousands of them were like that.

"I wish it were possible to give some idea of what the monstrous herds of buffalo were really like. When they were on the move they were like a living flood. Nothing could stop them or turn them aside during their migrations.

"It is impossible today to conceive the size of these buffalo hordes. There is one authentic record of a stampede which ended at a bluff perhaps one hundred feet high overhanging the Missouri River. The buffalo rushed pell-mell over the lip of the precipice, choking the river with their bodies and never stopping until the bridge of flesh was built from the bottom up to the top."

The Oregon Trail Memorial Association, by act of Congress, has been provided with six million specially coined Memorial half dollars, which the association is selling for a dollar each. With the income from the sale of these memorial coins and contributions from interested members, considerable has already been accomplished in mapping the route of the old trail. The bill introduced in Congress provided for the creation of a Federal Highway Corporation which is to reconstruct the old Oregon Trail as a memorial highway to endure for all time and be a monument to the courage and endurance of the worthy pioneers who trudged over it.

No small part of the work, if the bill passes Congress, will consist in accurately tracing the old trail, for farms and ranches have grown over great portions of it, and prosperous towns have hidden much of the rest. The trail was originally 200 feet wide in places and for miles the iron rims of the oxcarts and covered wagons had worn so deeply that the road-bed was as much as 15 feet below the surrounding land. When the railroads began to push westward, the stretches of trail that paralleled them were abandoned, and after 1870 grass grew in the deeply worn ruts. Eventually the trail became actually lost except here and there where towns grew up around the old military posts. And yet, in some places the ruts made by the old covered wagons are still visible today.

The highway will be unusual in several respects if it is constructed as planned by the present bill. The right of way is to be not less than five hundred feet wide, as already mentioned, and the highway is not to run through any town with a population of 2,500 or more, except where the houses average more than two hundred feet apart. This latter provision is in accordance with modern road-building practice, which recognizes the desirability of keeping trunk highways away from towns so that traffic does not become congested. In addition, the association plans to restore the wild aspect of the country along the highway, which would be impossible were it to run through city streets.

The five-hundred-foot right of way will provide the space necessary for a sort of natural parkway along the road, without the encroachment of farm fences. It is planned to build the new Oregon Trail in four lanes—a two-way traffic for passenger and non-truck vehicles, and a two-way traffic for trucks and heavy traffic. The Federal Corportion is to control the right of way, so that there will be a minimum number of hot-dog stands, and no advertising billboards, it is hoped. There will be tourist parking grounds, of course, but these are to be regulated in much the same manner as are the camp grounds in the national parks.

Apple Sauce Charlotte.

BEAT 1 cup cream until stiff. Beat 1 egg white stiff, adding 3 tablespoons sifted powdered sugar gradually. Add ¼ teaspoon vanilla and combine with the cream. Line serving dishes with lady fingers or strips of sponge cake. Place a tablespoon of sweetened and flavored apple sauce in each dish and fill with the charlotte mixture. Chill and serve.

One-Egg Cake.

WASH and cream ¼ cup butter. Add ½ cup sugar gradually and 1 well-beaten egg. Mix and sift 1½ cups flour and 2½ teaspoons baking powder. Add alternately with ½ cup milk to the first mixture. Flavor with 3 or 4 drops of your favorite extract. Bake about ½ hour in a buttered shallow pan. May be used as layer or cup cakes or as foundation for fruit shortcake.

Banana and Orange Salad.

SLICE two bananas and roll in finely chopped nut meats. Arrange on nest of lettuce leaves with pulp of four oranges. Serve with French, mayonnaise or cream salad dressing.

When Baking Pies.

WHEN making a pie with an upper crust, brush a little milk over it before putting in the oven and it will brown nicely. If the lower crust is folded over the upper, the juices will not run out.

Another Remarkable Swiss Discovery

In Child Development

—to Correct the 3 Most Common Deficiencies of the Average Modern Child

Please Accept 3-Day Test . . . Not a Medicine—but a food

SCIENTISTS working in Switzerland, the nation from which the world's probably most important discoveries in child welfare have emanated, have made important new discoveries. Discoveries which, throughout Europe and America, are largely establishing new theories in child building.

Underweight children are being built up at the rate of 8 ounces to 1½ pounds weekly!

Nervousness, lassitude, lack of energy and appetite often are corrected in the space of days.

In the opinion of world respected scientists, based on thousands of tests made, it largely obviates the use of medicines in building up the underweight or nervous child.

Thousands of American doctors are employing it. Public schools are adopting it. To obtain a three-day test, use coupon below.

Not a Medicine

It is called Ovaltine. Not a medicine, but a supremely enticing food-drink which is different in formula, action and effect from any other food-drink known.

A food-drink not to be compared with "Chocolate" or "Malt" preparations which may look or taste like Ovaltine.

How It Acts

Ovaltine acts, First, to supply highly concentrated food value minus the bulk of many so-called "nourishing" foods. One cup has the caloric value of 12 cups of beef extract! Added to milk, it almost doubles the food value of the milk. Consider what this means.

Second, it turns very quickly into energy, even where digestion is impaired. Thus pick-up in weight and strength is quick and remarkable. It digests where virtually no other food will. Third, and above all things, Ovaltine has the remarkable power of digesting and converting starches from other foods eaten into weight and energy.

Over 50% of the normal diet of a child consists of starchy foods. Of cereals, bread, vegetables, etc. Many underpar, underweight conditions, it is now claimed, are largely due to the child's failure to digest starches.

"She's Gained 2½ lbs. in 2 Weeks"

I wouldn't be without Ovaltine—it is wonderful. My 9-year-old daughter who refused to drink milk and after a sick spell was very run-down, has gained 2½ pounds in two weeks. Mrs. Joe M. Smith, Pampa, Texas.

Now, in Ovaltine, science has met that situation. Starches heretofore often lost by many children, now are utilized.

Hence it is not difficult to understand that the improvement in children is speedy and remarkable.

Druggists and grocers sell Ovaltine in 4 sizes for home use. But to let you try it we will send a 3-day introductory package for 10c to cover cost of packing and mailing. Just send in coupon with 10c.

MAIL FOR 3-DAY SUPPLY

You give Ovaltine hot or cold, as a drink with or between meals, for extra energy. You give hot at bedtime. For thus natural sleep is invited. Results will be a revelation. Accept, for your child's sake, the test offered here. Clip the coupon before you forget.
